PROF. GIDEONSE CITES DANGER IN PRICE TINKERING

Fears It May Lead to New Collapse.

BY HARRY D. GIDEONSE.
[Associate Professor of Economics, University of Chicago.]

Every generation draws its philosophy out of the ordeal of its most recent experience. Tired young men in Germany and the United States react from the excesses of relativity in "modernism" to idealization of the virtues of the Teutonic tribes in Caesar's days or the intellectual rigidities of Aristotle and St. Thomas of Aquinas.

PROF. GIDEONSE.

Similarly, a generation of business men that is scalded by falling prices set up an economic utopia in terms of increases in the price level. Previous acute social and economic distress due to a "high cost of living" [remember the H. C. L. cartoons of fifteen years ago?] is forgotten and only the comfortable spread of rising prices and more slowly rising costs is remembered.

May Bring New Collapse.

Now a rise in prices has its traditional meaning only when it really reflects growing demand. A price rise that has been artificially stimulated is not a sign of returning prosperity, and if the increase takes place in a very short space of time it may merely lead to another disastrous collapse.

It is, for instance, urged today that the 1929 [or 1926] price level should be the objective of our monetary policy. There is evidence, however that technological improvements had made the level of profits too high for stability at that time and that the effort to maintain the price level of that period was in part responsible for much of the bad lending and investment that took place. Technological improvements have continued since then and it is well to remember that a rapid surge upward of prices would give us a 1929 price level with 1934 wages, which would give an entirely different distribution of income than was the case in 1929.

Rigidities in Prices.

Many of our present difficulties are due to differential rigidities in prices. If all prices went up or down together the problems of a depression would be child's play compared with our present difficulties. One of the best known examples of differential rigidity is the sharp drop in prices received by farmers when compared with the "sticky" prices of the articles purchased by the same group. Some of these gaps might be bridged by increasing prices, some disparities might actually increase. A hit or miss inflationary movement might leave us with greater gaps in the price system than we had before. No monetary program can remedy the blunders of misdirection of enterprise due to the world war, excessive trade barriers or technical change.

The quality of argument behind the present monetary policy is comparable to that used by small and determined vested interests in behalf of protection. Just as the tariff advocate approaches his problem from the producer's angle and ignores the vital consumer's interest, so the inflationist propaganda presents the debtors as weak producers—such as farmers—who are engaged in a desperate struggle with strong creditor interests.

Division of Long Time Debts.

Evans Clark's "The Internal Debts of the United States" gives a total for long time debts of 126.8 billions. Farmers' mortgages are only 8.5 billions, almost equal to the real estate mortgages of New York City. The largest single class of debtors are our corporations [railroad, public utility, and industrial] which accounted for $36,000,000,000. In other words, the debtors are not merely the weak, but include some of our strongest corporate intrests. The creditors on the other hand include millions of depositors in savings banks and holders of insurance policies.

It is quite easy to determine abstractly where the incidence of a capital levy by inflation will be. The historic illustrations in Germany and France bear out the theoretical considerations. Inflation in these countries was not voluntary, of course, and our currency depreciation will not necessarily be as serious as it was in

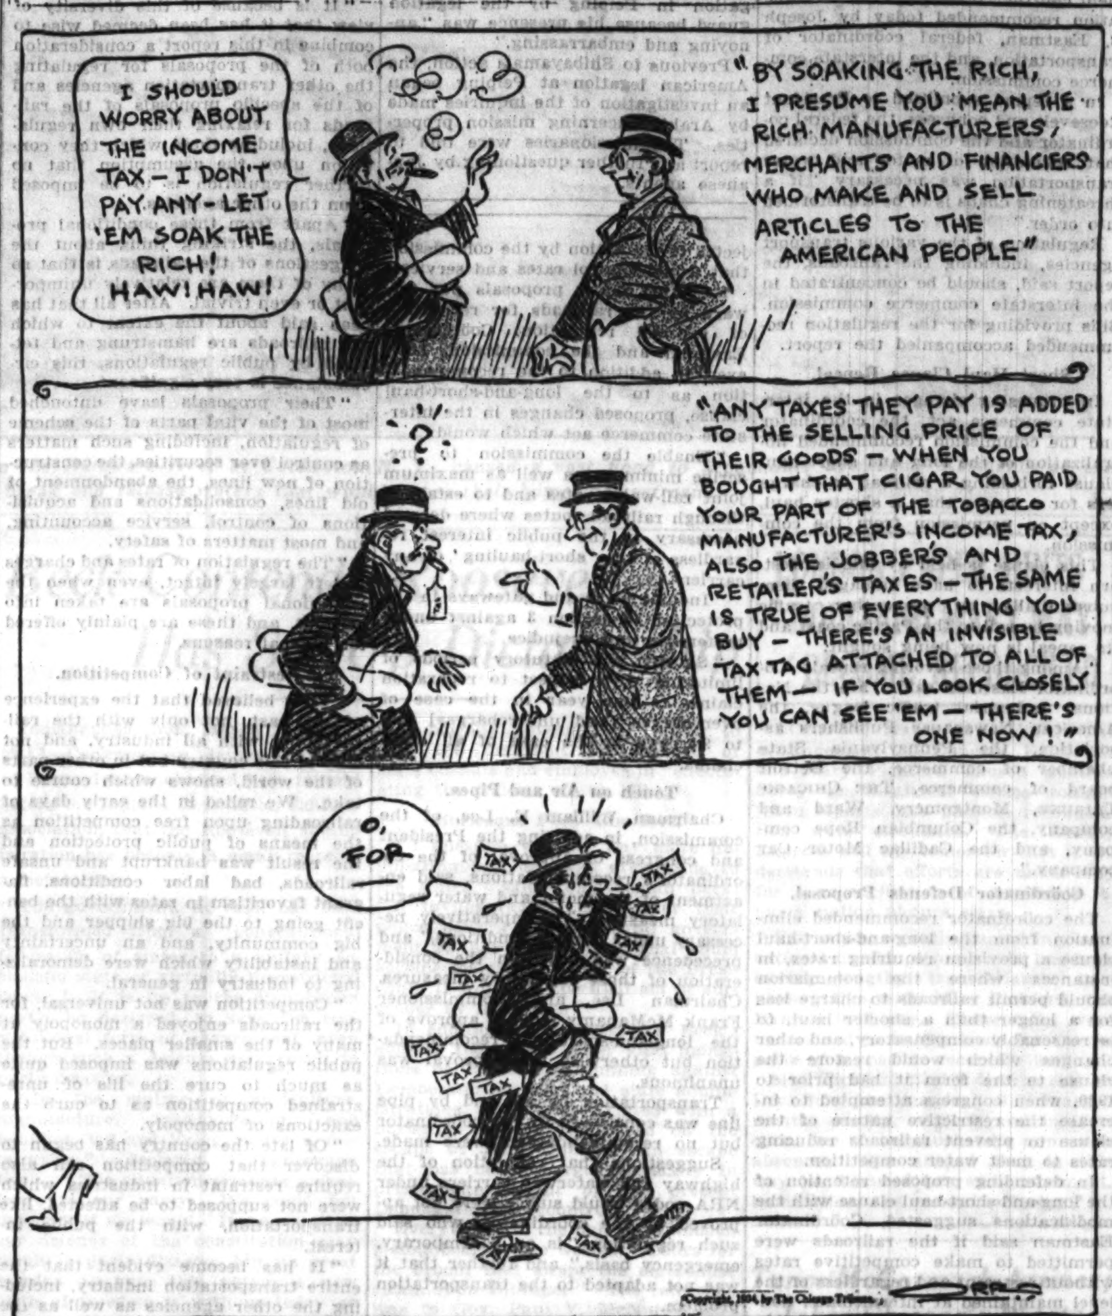
THE INVISIBLE TAX TAG



Insull Gives Up His Fight; Will Return to U. S.

BY EUGENE SPECK.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ATHENS, March 10.—Right in the midst of plans, nearly complete, for a dignified return to the United States ten days hence by Samuel Insull, fugitive Chicago utilities promoter, the Greek government today suddenly ordered him to leave the country by next Thursday, or within half the time fixed for what was meant to be a melodramatic departure.

The news was quickly conveyed to Insull's flat. But he was sleeping and the household decided not to inform him of the new development so as not to disturb his rest. The official notification will be communicated tomorrow morning.

Lawyer Admits Insull Will Go.

The order was issued by Minister of Interior John Moundjourides after three conferences with Prime Minister Tsaldaris. This time the order seems to mean business, for even Insull's lawyer, Pericles Rhallis, tonight admitted that his client is leaving Greece. The government's decision was based on the second report of two university professors of medicine, Vladimir Bensis and Spyros Livieratos, who had examined Insull and concluded again that he is able to travel.

"On this report we have decided that Insull must go," Moundjourides said. "He will be given five days to get out of Greece."

"Is there any particular reason for choosing Thursday as the deadline?" he was asked.

"No, but we want to give him a reasonable time, and five days seems sufficient."

Fifth "Final Notice."

This is the fifth governmental notice which has been delivered to Insull telling him that he must leave the country, and nobody can blame the Greek government for lack of patience with the aged guest, who has not hesitated to base his pleas for a continued stay on the most touching appeal known—that of a failing old man with an incurable disease whose blood might be on the heads of the Greek cabinet if he died during a trip elsewhere.

Today's decision came at an ironic time. Insull only this morning had decided to make a grand gesture and throw his hand in. He had received heavy mail from the United States with the advice from relatives to come back.

Thereupon Insull issued orders that three passages be booked on the Aquitania, calling at Piraeus March 20 for himself, Mrs. Insull, and her maid. He stipulated a cabin de luxe with a salon where they could take meals

2 ROBBERS AND VICTIM SHOT IN HOLDUP BATTLE

Three men, two of them robbers and the third an intended victim, were shot and seriously wounded late last night in a battle in the rear of 5829 Ainslie street.

They are: Michael Piotrowski, 37 years old, living at the Ainslie street address, and the holdup men, Joseph Molinowski, 21 years old, 2127 North Damen avenue, and Alexander Delaney, 32 years old, 2911 Lowell avenue.

Piotrowski, owner of a meat market at Lawrence and Central avenues, was on his way home with a considerable sum of money. Accompanying him were Sylvester Larkowski, 4410 Augusta street, and two other friends. All were in the butcher's automobile and were nearing his garage when the robbers appeared.

Larkowski fired at them, striking each bandit in the abdomen. The bandits, returning the fire, struck Piotrowski in the chest. The condition of each was regarded as critical. Piotrowski was taken to the Belmont hospital and the other men to the Bridewell hospital.

N. Y. May Run Legal Lottery to Aid Jobless

New York, March 10.—[Special.]—Mayor F. H. La Guardia and Borough President John J. Lyons of the Bronx called on Gov. H. H. Lehman this afternoon at his home and told him about a plan for what would appear to be a legal lottery to raise 10 to 15 million dollars semi-annually for relief of New York City's unemployed.

The governor announced that the visit had taken place, at the mayor's request, but made it clear that he was in no way committed to the scheme. The idea is that of Mr. Lyons, the only man to be elected borough president here on the recovery ticket last all.

Would Set Up Corporation.

The word "lottery" appears nowhere in an outline of President Lyons' plan. The outline, headed "Lyons tentative proposal for unemployment relief—league to aid the unemployed of the city of New York,' would set up a "corporation" whose trustees would be the mayor and the rest of the board of estimate, "and seven outstanding citizens not in the employ of the city of New York, who also will serve without compensation."

The "officers," however, would be "selected in the same manner as jurors are chosen—i. e., the names of all paid members are to be placed in a jury wheel from which names shall be withdrawn." The "paid members," according to the plan, would be anyone willing to risk $2.50 on a chance of being elected as an officer under this system.

No Dearth of Officers.

There would be no dearth of officers, the plan calling for a president at $25,000, a vice president at $20,000, nine additional vice presidents at $15,000 each, three secretaries at $10,000 each, ten sergeants at arms at $5,000 each, "and such other officers as may be specified, each to hold office for a period of six months from the date of their selection." The "salaries" would be for their total terms of office.

The city controler, serving without compensation, would "act as treasurer or custodian of the funds . . . and all money accrued from the membership shall be paid to the treasury of the city of New York."

A letter from Mr. Lyons to the mayor under date of March 9, and made public in the mayor's presence, declared that "you indicated a most receptive attitude to the proposal and stated that you thought there was considerable merit to the idea and one which you felt legally could be put in operation without delay."

MELLON FACING U. S. GRAND JURY INCOME TAX QUIZ

Ex-Mayor Walker on List Also.

Washington, D. C., March 10.—[Special.]—Atty. Gen. Homer S. Cummings today ordered criminal action for alleged evasion of the federal income tax law to be brought at once against Andrew W. Mellon, former secretary of the treasury; James J. Walker, one time mayor of New York; Thomas L. Sidlo, Cleveland, law partner of Newton D. Baker, and Thomas S. Lamont, son of the New York financier, Thomas W. Lamont.

Information obtained by the department of justice during a secret investigation of the tax affairs of the four prominent men, Mr. Cummings disclosed, has been turned over to United States attorneys at New York, Cleveland and Pittsburgh. The cases, it was indicated, will be turned over to grand juries in each of the cities.

Details as to the nature of charges involved in the cases were not disclosed in Mr. Cummings' announcement, and inquiry as to the amounts involved in each alleged tax violation brought a statement from the department of justice that this would not be revealed. That the evidence obtained by the department is of a serious nature was indicated, however, by Mr. Cummings' order that the cases be turned over to grand juries. Civil proceedings are not handled in this way.

Cummings Issues Statement.

Mr. Cummings' official announcement of action against Messrs. Mellon, Lamont, Walker and Sidlo was as follows:

"The attorney general, Homer S. Cummings, has referred to United States attorneys in New York, Cleveland and Pittsburgh, with authority to present them to grand juries under the laws against tax evasion and avoidance, the cases of Thomas S. Lamont, James J. Walker, Thomas L. Sidlo and Andrew W. Mellon.

"Other cases of a similar nature are pending for trial and others are in preparation. Civil and criminal tax cases in federal courts are being handled by Assistant Attorney General Frank G. Wideman, head of the newly created tax division of the department of justice."

While it has been known that Mr. Mellon's income tax returns for recent years have been under scrutiny by the justice and treasury departments, announcement of the prospective proceedings against Lamont, Walker and Sidlo came as something of a surprise. Mr. Mellon, it is understood, is to be charged with making wash sales of stock to avoid income taxes. His tax affairs, it was reported, have been under investigation by the justice department for months.

Mellon Won't Comment.

Pittsburgh, Pa., March 10.—[U.P.]—Andrew W. Mellon declined to comment tonight when informed that authority had been given the local federal district attorney to begin tax evasion and avoidance presentations to the federal grand jury.

"I have not been officially advised of the charges," Mellon said. "I have nothing to say."

Sidlo Newspaper Counsel.

Cleveland, O., March 10.—(AP)—Thomas L. Sidlo, against whom legal action for alleged income tax evasion was announced today in Washington, is controler and general counsel for the Scripps-Howard newspapers.

Mr. Sidlo was said at his law offices, Baker, Hostetler, Sidlo & Patterson, to be at the home of Robert P. Scripps in southern California on a vacation trip. He is a former assistant street railway commissioner of Cleveland, as well as a former director of public service.

U. S. Mail Delivers Letter to Wooden Gun, Indiana

Residents of Crown Point have grown somewhat accustomed to hearing their city called "Clown Point" since John Dillinger bluffed his way out of the Lake county jail with a toy pistol. Yesterday a new nickname appeared and apparently was readily recognized by United States mailmen. A letter sent from California to "Harry Meyer, Wooden Gun, Ind.," was promptly delivered to Meyer, a farmer residing just outside Crown Point.

Mrs. Grace Williamson Willett and her estranged husband, Howard L. Willett, head of a trucking company, yesterday agreed on a financial settlement for her in return for which she will obtain an absolute divorce and dismiss her million dollar alienation of affection suit against Mrs. Mary Cave Hall.

The settlement came after a three and a half hour conference between the Willetts and their attorneys behind closed doors in the chambers of Judge Rudolph F. Desort of the Superior court.

The terms of the settlement were not officially disclosed yesterday, but they were revealed from authoritative sources. In substance, Mrs. Willett is guaranteed an income of $17,500 for five years by her husband. This is to be made up from incomes from an insurance trust and from one-third of the Willett company's stock, which is assigned to Mrs. Willett. For the five year period Willett will contribute any amount necessary to assure the $17,500 annually. After five years the guarantee will be canceled, but it is not expected that Mrs. Willett's income will ever fall appreciably below this figure.

Although Mrs. Willett will own the Willett company stock outright and can make provisions for its disposal after her death, Willett will retain the voting power during her lifetime. The insurance trust will be established by a $100,000 payment by Willett to the Prudential Life Insurance company. Mrs. Willett can never draw on the principal, which will be divided at her death between her children, Howard Willett Jr. and Mrs. Samuel Gale Taylor III.

Pays Debts and Fees.

Other provisions of the settlement are that Willett will give his wife $3,200 to pay her current debts and will pay her attorneys' fees in her pending suit for separate maintenance, which will be amended to a divorce bill within a few days. Mrs. Willett is to determine whether the penthouse apartment at 2130 Lincoln Park West, where she is residing, is an asset or a liability. If she believes it to be an asset she will be given outright title to it and the furnishings in it. If she regards it as a liability she and Willett will continue to hold it in joint tenancy.

Mrs. Willett in her separate maintenance suit asked $25,000 a year alimony, charging that her husband deserted her in January, 1933, and that the $918 a month he had been giving her since then was insufficient for her needs. The suit, when amended to one for divorce, will charge desertion and will be heard as a default case next week.

Drops Alienation Suit.

Mrs. Willett's alienation of affections suit against Mrs. Hall, who is the widow of David Hall, head of the Addressograph company, was filed shortly after her husband deserted her. Mrs. Hall lives at 5490 South Shore drive. This suit will be dismissed, according to the agreement, and all costs will be paid by Mrs. Willett. It was reported that Attorney Bennison F. Bartel, who filed the alienation suit, but no longer represents Mrs. Willett in it, has filed a lien for $25,000 against her.

The formal terms of the settlement will be incorporated in the divorce decree.

Meet in Chambers.

Rumors had been persistent in Judge Desort's court for several days that the separate maintenance suit would be settled without the necessity of the judge entering a decree based on the evidence. At 10:30 yesterday morning Mrs. Willett with her attorneys, Nicholas Socrates and Benjamin B. Davis, and Willett with his counsel, Jay Fred Reeve and J. B. Martineau, appeared in court and were immediately summoned into chambers by Judge Desort.

From the judge's anteroom they

COMMANDS: END DEATHS, SHELVE UNSAFE ROUTES

"Legalized Murder" Is Attacked.

BY JOHN BOETTIGER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 10.—[Special.]—Moving in drastic fashion to halt the killing of army aviators, President Roosevelt today ordered Secretary of War Dern to abandon all air mail flying except that which may be conducted with utmost safety to pilots.

"The continuation of deaths in the army air corps must stop," ordered the President.

Ten army flyers have been killed in the three weeks during which the army has taken over the task of carrying the air mail, following the cancelation of private air mail contracts by President Roosevelt. Four of those killed died yesterday in a single day.

Fly Safe Routes Only.

The President's order provided for the immediate "stopping of all carrying of air mail, except on such routes, under such weather conditions and under such equipment and personnel conditions as will insure, as far as the utmost care can provide, against constant recurrence of fatal accidents."

Post office and army air corps officials went at once into discussions as to which routes shall be abandoned, what equipment withdrawn, and what changes in personnel shall be effected. It was indicated that night flying may be discontinued entirely.

It was also indicated that the army's best pilots will now be put on the job. Nearly all of those killed were young fledgling lieutenants, less than a year out of flying school. Army customs kept the captains and first lieutenants, veteran flyers, on the ground to give flying orders to the youngsters.

Toll "Far Too High."

An extraordinary arraignment of his own army was included in the President's letter to his war secretary. Holding that the death toll had been "far too high," Mr. Roosevelt directed that the army should seek coöperation from private aviation companies in teaching the air corps how to fly safely and efficiently.

The President in an ironic vein referred to the "military lessons" obtained from the army's failure, and specified that pilots should be schooled by the civilian flyers in "cross-country flying, night flying, blind flying and instrument flying."

Capitol hill was afire with the sensation of the President's own admission that the air corps, after years of military training and the expenditures of millions of dollars, was unfitted, and should seek training from commercial companies.

As a first step in this direction Secretary Dern today held a long conference with Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, who had been sharply reprimanded by the White House for his public criticism of the President's order canceling the air mail contracts.

Dern Praises Lindbergh.

Mr. Dern made it plain that the administration had been considerate of Col. Lindbergh, in order to effect a reconciliation of views. The war secretary went out of his way to praise the famous flyer, and made it plain that Lindbergh was in Washington at Dern's invitation.

After the conference Lindbergh and his flying wife, Anne Morrow Lindbergh, were guests of Secretary and Mrs. Dern at a luncheon attended also by Gen. Douglas MacArthur, chief of the army staff; Brig. Gen. Benjamin Foulois, chief of the army air corps, and Harry H. Woodring, assistant secretary of war.

It was not known whether Lindbergh would be received at the White House. Inquiries at the White House went unanswered, and the colonel, no doubt, still smarting a bit under the spanking given him for releasing his statement on the air mail before it was received by the President, dismissed all questions with a polite "you'll have to excuse me."

Attacks in Congress.

Although the President's action in sharply curtailing the army air mail activities had a tempering effect on the barrage laid against him by Republicans in senate and house, it was indicated they would continue to make the most of the administration blunder in canceling the contracts.

The President sent copies of his letter to Secretary Dern, to the chairmen of the postoffice committees of both houses, with an explanatory note, and the communications were read in both houses.

Previously Representative Hamilton Fish [Rep., N. Y.] had introduced in the house a resolution demanding an investigation of army air mail flying and branding the death of the army pilots as "legalized murder." Senator Simeon Fess [Rep., Ohio] introduced a resolution in the senate calling upon the President to abandon the flying of the mail until army pilots were trained to the task and had proper equipment.

Considered Bad Blunder.

For its political effect the failure of the army to carry the mails without such carnal results is recognized by leaders of both parties in Washington as the worst blunder thus far committed by the Roosevelt administration.

In his letter to Secretary Dern, the President pointed out at the very beginning that he had given the army the assignment to carry the air mail only after he had been given "definite assurance" that the army could do the job.

Conceding that the weather conditions conspired against safe flying and pointing out that commercial planes had also fallen with even a worse toll of life in the same period, the President wrote insistently that the accident rate had been too high.

Then giving his orders that the army should fly over such routes and under such conditions as would insure utmost safety to human life, the President disclosed that he had renewed upon congress the urgency of adopting at once the proposed legislation by which the air mail operations will be restored to private operation.

Text of Fess Resolution.

Senator Fess' resolution named all ten of the army mail victims and urged discontinuance of service until the men were better trained and had better equipment. The text follows:

"Whereas, the following named army air corps pilots have met their death while carrying the mails:

"Lieut. Durward O. Lowry killed in a crash near Deshler, O., while carrying the air mail from Chicago to Cleveland;

"Lieut. I. F. Patrick killed at Dennison, Tex., while en route to take over the command of an air mail post;

"Lieut. Jean D. Greinier killed while flying the dangerous air mail sector between Salt Lake City and Cheyenne;

Officer Killed in Idaho.

"Lieut. James Y. Eastman killed near Barrymore, Idaho, while flying a difficult stretch of an air mail route;

"Lieut. George F. McDermott lost at Sea off Rockaway Point, N. Y., while en route from Mitchell field to Richmond, Va., to enter the army air mail service;

"Sergt. Ernest C. Sell crushed to death when a heavily laden plane went into a spin at 500 feet shortly after taking off at Daytona Beach, Fla.;

"Lieut. F. L. Howard, killed shortly after taking off from Cheyenne, Wyo.; and

"Lieut. A. R. Kerwin, killed in the same accident with Lieut. Howard; Therefore, be it

"Resolved that the President is requested to discontinue the employment of the officers and facilities of the army air corps or the aviation forces of the navy and marine corps in the carriage of the mails until such time as such forces shall have sufficient training in the type of flying required for such service and shall have become so familiar with the routes covered in such service and until such aviation forces shall have been provided with such equipment as to render carriage of the mails by such aviation forces consistent with the highest degree of safety obtainable by modern aviation science."

Fish Demands Inquiry.

Shortly before the President's statement was issued at the White House Representative Fish introduced a resolution in the house demanding a special investigation into army air corps "operations, equipment, type of planes in use, and training of army pilots, with particular reference to the operation of the army air corps since it was ordered to fly the air mail routes."

"Said committee," the resolution stipulated, "shall also thoroughly investigate all serious accidents and major crackups that have occurred since Feb. 10, 1934, in connection with carrying or in preparing to fly the air mail."

Introducing his resolution Mr. Fish declared that the administration has "blundered seriously in canceling air mail contracts," and "should revoke the order immediately."

The death of the army pilots is not only "legalized murder," he charged, "it is political murder. It amounts to playing politics with human lives and should be stopped at once."

"The truth is that the administration is ashamed to acknowledge its blunders," Mr. Fish continued, "in order to save its face."

Waukon, Ia., March 10.—(AP)—After nearly 55 years of married life William E. Pettit, 76 years old, and his wife, Lucy Pettit, 70 years old, have decided to separate. The wife filed a divorce petition here today charging her husband with cruel and inhuman treatment.

PRESIDENT'S AIR MAIL LETTERS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 10.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt sent a letter today to Secretary of War Dern on curtailing army mail flights in the interest of safety. Copies of this letter went to Postmaster General Farley and to Secretary of Commerce Roper. The President wrote also to appropriate committees of congress urging haste in pertinent legislation. The letter to Mr. Dern follows:

"My dear Mr. Secretary:

"On Feb. 9 the army air corps was given the temporary assignment of carrying the air mail and commenced the actual carrying on Feb. 20. This action was taken on the definite assurance given me that the army air corps could carry the mail.

"Since that time ten army flyers have lost their lives. I appreciate that only four of these were actually flying the mail, but the others were training or were proceeding to the mail route. I appreciate also that almost every part of the country has been visited during this period by fog, snow, and storms, and that serious accidents, taking even more lives, have occurred at the same time in passenger and commercial aviation.

Says Deaths Must Stop.

"Nevertheless, the continuation of deaths in the army air corps must stop.

"We all know that flying under the best of conditions is a definite hazard, but the ratio of accidents has been far too high during the last three weeks.

"Will you therefore please issue immediate orders to army air corps stopping all carrying of air mail except on such routes, under such weather conditions, and under such equipment and personnel conditions as will insure, as far as the utmost care can provide, against constant recurrence of fatal accidents.

"This exception includes, of course, full authority to change or modify schedules.

Orders Additional Training.

"As you know, the period of emergency will end as soon as the necessary legislation has been enacted and new contracts can be obtained. I am writing once more to the chairmen of the house and senate committees urging speed in the enactment of the legislation. Because military lessons have been taught us during the last few weeks I request that you consult immediately with the postmaster general and the secretary of commerce in order that additional training may be given to army air pilots through coöperation with private companies who later on will fly the mails. This should include, of course, training in cross-country flying, in night flying, blind flying, and instrument flying.

"I am sending a copy of this letter to the postmaster general in order that he may make arrangements with you. He will, of course, modify the instructions given on Feb. 9 to conform with the army plans. Very sincerely, FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT."

Letters to Chairmen.

The President's note to Senator Kenneth McKellar [Dem., Tenn.], chairman of the senate committee on postoffices and postroads, and to Representative James M. Mead [Dem., N. Y.], chairman of the house committee on postoffices and postroads, follows:

"My dear Mr. Chairman:

"I am inclosing a copy of a letter which I have just sent to the secretary of war. In this letter I asked that he issue immediately orders to the army air corps stopping all carrying of air mail except on such routes, under such weather conditions and under such equipment and personnel conditions as will insure, as far as the utmost human care can provide, against constant recurrence of fatal accidents.

"This is an added reason for the desirability of the enactment of the legislation which I proposed to your committee a few days ago. I hope that this legislation can be taken up as soon as possible in order that new bids for new contracts for carrying the mail may be invited.

"Very sincerely yours,
"FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT."

HOW TWO MAIL PILOTS DIED TOLD TO ARMY BOARD

Full Report to Be Sent to Washington.

Cheyenne, Wyo., March 10.—(AP)—Details of a spectacular crash and fire which killed two young army air mail flyers were submitted tonight to an official army board of inquiry.

Capt. Bernard Castor, director of air mail operations here, said as the inquiry got under way that the crash apparently "occurred from accidental causes, the exact nature of which are unknown." The board's report will be sent to Washington.

Lieuts. Arthur R. Kerwin Jr. and Frank L. Howard of Barksdale field, Shreveport, La., were killed in the crash, which occurred last night as they were taking off for Salt Lake City on a trial run. Their plane carried no mail.

Motor in New Plane Fails.

A primary concern to the investigators was the seeming failure of the motor in the virtually new plane. Eyewitnesses said the motors sputtered as though they were failing. The plane was one of the newest the army had received from a private manufacturer.

Kerwin's body will be taken to San Antonio, Tex., and Howard's to Big Timber, Mont., for burial. Mrs. Amelia Howard, mother of the dead flyer, was under physician's care today at Big Timber. Her husband died two years ago and Lieut. Howard was her only child.

Halts Wedding Celebration.

San Antonio, Tex., March 10.—(AP)—Mrs. Sabra Scott Kerwin, wife of Lieut. Arthur R. Kerwin, army flyer burned to death in a crash of his ship at Cheyenne, Wyo., was making plans at the home of her parents here to celebrate her first wedding anniversary Sunday, March 18, when the news of her husband's death reached her.

Orders Other Death Inquiries.

New York, March 10.—(AP)—Maj. B. Q. Jones, eastern zone commander of the army air corps mail operations, announced today that two boards of inquiry would be appointed to investigate the crashes which yesterday cost the lives of Lieut. Otto Wienecke near Burton, O., and Private Ernest Sells near Daytona Beach, Fla. The board to investigate Wienecke's death will be appointed at Patterson Field, O. The other will be recruited at Candler air base, Atlanta, Ga.

Brings Air Mail in on Foot.

Pueblo, Colo., March 10.—(AP)—Lieut. D. W. Buckman, army mail flyer, brought the mail into Pueblo today on foot. Flying south from Cheyenne he reached the Pueblo airport and found it blanketed with a heavy fog. About five miles east of the airport there was a rift in the fog and Lieut. Buckman landed on the municipal golf course. He had to hike into Pueblo with the sack of mail over his shoulder.

Forced Down; Take Off Again.

Hartsville, S. C., March 10.—(AP)—An army mail plane was forced to land here early today when its radio went bad in adverse atmospheric conditions en route from Richmond to Miami, but a few hours later its three occupants, after a sleep, were on their way under a cloudy sky.

The trimotored bomber piloted by Lieut. K. N. Allen of Charlotte, Mich., landed at 1:40 a. m. after fog and rain caused Allen to lose his way. One wing of the ship was slightly torn in the landing, but no repairs were necessary.

Bills Would Add Task to I. C. C. Functions.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 10.—[Special.]—Transportation agencies using the highways and waterways of the United States will be brought under the "guiding hand of government control," if congress enacts legislation recommended today by Joseph B. Eastman, federal coördinator of transportation, and the interstate commerce commission.

In a report submitted to President Roosevelt and congress, the federal coördinator and the commission declared that regulation of motor and water transportation was necessary "if a threatening chaos is to be transformed into order."

Regulation of the various transport agencies, including the railroads, the report said, should be concentrated in the interstate commerce commission. Bills providing for the regulation recommended accompanied the report.

Short Haul Clause Repeal.

In proposing changes in the interstate commerce act, the coördinator and the commission recommended liberalization of the long and short haul clause forbidding a railroad to charge less for a longer than a shorter haul, except on permission from the commission.

This clause is held by middle western interests to have damaged them substantially by preventing traffic moving by rail to the Pacific coast and its repeal is now being sought.

"Among those favoring repeal," Coördinator Eastman said, "are the National Industrial traffic league, the American Newspaper Publishers association, the Pennsylvania State chamber of commerce, the Detroit board of commerce, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, Montgomery Ward and company, the Columbian Rope company, and the Cadillac Motor Car company."

Coördinator Defends Proposal.

The coördinator recommended elimination from the long-and-short-haul clause a provision requiring rates, in instances where the commission should permit railroads to charge less for a longer than a shorter haul, to be reasonably compensatory, and other changes which would restore the clause to the form it had prior to 1920, when congress attempted to increase the restrictive nature of the clause to prevent railroads reducing rates to meet water competition.

In defending proposed retention of the long-and-short-haul clause with the modifications suggested, Coördinator Eastman said if the railroads were permitted to make competitive rates without restraint and regardless of the level maintained at intermediate, noncompetitive points, they probably could drive the water lines out of business again and that the same thing might happen, to a considerable extent, with trucks.

Coördinator Eastman's proposed legislation for motor carrier regulation by the commission follows the lines of the Rayburn motor regulation bill pending before the house committee on interstate and foreign commerce, against which substantial protest was made in recent hearings by groups speaking for truck operators and shippers.

Several Changes Suggested.

Interstate waterway carriers, under legislation proposed would be subjected to regulation by the commission that would control rates and services.

Rejecting many proposals put forward by the railroads for relaxation of railroad regulation, Coördinator Eastman and the commission, however, in addition to the recommendation as to the long-and-short-haul clause, proposed changes in the interstate commerce act which would:

"Enable the commission to prescribe minimum as well as maximum joint rail-water rates and to establish through railroad routes where deemed necessary in the public interest regardless of the 'short-hauling' of any carrier.

"Include ports and gateways in the protection of section 3 against undue preference and prejudice.

"Shorten the statutory periods of limitation with respect to reparation claims to one year in the case of overcharges [and undercharges] and to 90 days in the case of all other claims."

Touch on Air and Pipes.

Chairman William E. Lee, of the commission, in advising the President and congress of approval of the coördinator's recommendations, said enactment of the motor and water regulatory measures "is imperatively necessary under present conditions," and precedence was urged in the consideration of those regulatory measures. Chairman Lee and Commissioner Frank McManamy did not approve of the long-and-short-haul recommendation but otherwise the approval was unanimous.

Transportation by air and by pipe line was considered by the coördinator but no recommendations were made.

Suggestions that regulation of the highway and waterway carriers under NRA codes would suffice were not approved by the coördinator, who said such regulation "is on a temporary, emergency basis," and further that it was not adapted to the transportation problem.

"Since 1920 the transportation facilities of the country have expanded enormously," said Coördinator Eastman. "Capital about equal in amount of the total invested in the railroads in that year went, in one way or another, into the provisions of other means of transportation and the railroads increased their own investment by nearly one-third.

Growing Financial Menace.

"The natural result has been a bitter struggle for traffic, not only between the various forms of transportation, but within each subdivision or group, and this struggle has been intensified by the depression.

"This situation, which has been continually growing more acute, not only imperils the financial stability of the national transportation system, but it threatens the wages and working conditions of labor, and it creates a demoralization in rates and charges which in the long run is a menace to commerce and industry.

"The view that something must be done about this situation has continually gained in strength and is now commonly held. There are, however, two schools of thought. The railroads are subject to a very comprehensive system of public regulation, which is the product of years of experience and controversy. The other transportation agencies are regulated much less thoroughly, and to a considerable extent not at all by the federal government.

"It seems to be agreed that this equality should be corrected. Some wish it corrected by imposing more comprehensive regulation upon the other forms of transportation. Others believe that the thing to do is to let down the bars of railroad regulation.

Deems Ideas Unimportant.

"It is because of this diversity of view that it has been deemed wise to combine in this report a consideration both of the proposals for regulating the other transportation agencies and of the specific proposals of the railroads for relaxing their own regulations, including those which they condition upon the assumption that no further regulation is to be imposed upon the other agencies.

"Apart from these conditional proposals, the striking thing about the suggestions of the railroads is that so many of them are relatively unimportant or even trivial. After all that has been said about the extent to which the railroads are hamstrung and fettered by public regulations, this circumstance is very significant.

"Their proposals leave untouched most of the vital parts of the scheme of regulation, including such matters as control over securities, the construction of new lines, the abandonment of old lines, consolidations and acquisitions of control, service accounting, and most matters of safety.

"The regulation of rates and charges is left largely intact, even when the conditional proposals are taken into account, and these are plainly offered for tactical reasons.

Restraint of Competition.

"It is believed that the experience of the past, not only with the railroads but with all industry, and not only in this country but in other parts of the world, shows which course to take. We relied in the early days of railroading upon free competition as the means of public protection and the result was bankrupt and unsafe railroads, bad labor conditions, flagrant favoritism in rates with the benefit going to the big shipper and the big community, and an uncertainty and instability which were demoralizing to industry in general.

"Competition was not universal, for the railroads enjoyed a monopoly at many of the smaller places. But the public regulations was imposed quite as much to cure the ills of unrestrained competition as to curb the exactions of monopoly.

"Of late the country has begun to discover that competition can also require restraint in industries which were not supposed to be affected, like transportation, with the public interest.

"It has become evident that the entire transportation industry, including the other agencies as well as the railroads, is in need of the guiding hand of government control if a threatening chaos is to be transformed into order; and this is the conclusion that has been reached quite generally in other countries.

Would Protect All Forms.

"The object of such control is not the protection of the railroads only, but the proper protection of every form of transportation. They all have their parts to play, for each one of them can do certain things better than any other agency.

"The problem is to find their appropriate functions, protect them in the performance of such functions, prevent wasteful duplication of service without eliminating such competition as is economically sound, and promote a system of stable rates which would reflect the lowest costs of good service, but afford the necessary foundation for credit.

"It is too much to expect that all of the present facilities of transportation in each group can survive, for there are many which are now without economic justification, but out of the present confusion and waste a sound and well coördinated national system of transportation can be built.

Recommends Proper Agency.

"The agency to achieve this result is believed to be the interstate commerce commission. If transportation is to be coördinated, regulation must be coördinated, and the commission is the natural and appropriate agency for that purpose.

"It has been in existence for nearly half a century, and few governmental bodies have stood the test of time as well. No other agency has the organization or the necessary experience. The regulation proposed will have the best chance for success in its hands."

JAPANESE DIPLOMAT STRIKES AT 'MEDDLING' BY AGENT OF ARMY

SHANGHAI, March 10.—(AP)—Loss of "face"—that mysterious something looming large among far eastern peoples—caused a rift tonight among Japanese emissaries to China.

In an unprecedented act, Col. Shibayama, military attaché of the Japanese legation, in his capacity as a diplomatic official, severely condemned the mysterious visit of a Japanese "agent" by the name of Araki to American mission properties in north China.

Col. Shibayama said "the unwarranted meddling of the Japanese army in the affairs of the legation has caused needless alarm that the Japanese army is on the verge of again invading the north of China." He said Araki had been expelled from the legation in Peiping by the legation guard because his presence was "annoying and embarrassing."

Previous to Shibayama's action, the American legation at Peiping began an investigation of the inquiries made by Araki concerning mission properties. The missionaries were told to report any further questioning by Japanese agents.

Body of Explorer Is Found; Lost in Andes 9 Years Ago

MENDOZA, Argentina, March 10.—[U. P.]—The body of a German explorer lost nine years ago was reported found today near the summit of the Andean mountain, Aconcagua. Dispatch from Puente Inca said a group of Italian Alpinists discovered the body of the German Explorer Parker at a height of 20,000 feet. The Italian expedition attained the peak at an altitude of 23,090 feet.

Walter Busch Reisinger Weds Ex-Mrs. Turnbull

Reno, Nev., March 10.—(AP)—The marriage of Walter Busch Reisinger, son of Mrs. Busch Greenough, New York society matron, and Miss Jeannette Anderson was announced today by the bride's mother, Mrs. James Grant Anderson of New York and Pittsburgh. Reisinger is a grandson of Adolphus Busch and Mrs. Reisinger is the former Mrs. Phillips R. Turnbull. Mrs. Reisinger, who gave her age as 35, divorced Turnbull here last Wednesday. Reisinger, 40 years old, was divorced by Mrs. Elizabeth Chalmers Reisinger in Reno last January.

STATE TO ACCUSE TWO DILLINGER GUARDS OF PLOT

Grand Jury Investigation Opens Tomorrow.

Edward J. Barce, deputy attorney general of Indiana, announced yesterday that he would present evidence to a special grand jury at Crown Point tomorrow to show that John Dillinger had the active and willing assistance of at least two guards in his flight fro mthe Crown Point jail on March 3.

The evidence pointed particularly, Mr. Barce said, to Ernest Blunk, deputy sherif and finger print expert of Sherif Lillian Holley's forces, as a Dillinger aid. Blunk has been arrested, as has Sam Cahoon, the jail turnkey. Bonds of $2,000 were set for Blunk and he was released. Atty. Gen. Philip Lutz Jr., at Indianapolis, said that if Blunk should jump this small bail he would "have to blame Judge William J. Murray or the federal authorities."

Hopes U. S. Will Take Charge.

Mr. Lutz was hopeful that government investigators would take charge of the probe into the escape, on the theory that Dillinger's theft of Sherif Holley's car and his alleged kidnaping and transport of Blunk across a state line made him guilty of a federal offense. Otherwise, he said, the prosecution would be handled by Robert G. Estill, state's attorney of Lake county, or by some one appointed by Judge Murray.

Blunk has admitted that he locked other guards in cells at Dillinger's orders, but has insisted that he did so only because Dillinger was at his side with a machine gun taken from the jail arsenal and had threatened to kill him if he did not obey.

Judge Murray, who summoned the special grand jury to investigate the escape, said yesterday that he could not believe the truth of statements that Blunk had entered into a conspiracy to free Dillinger. Sherif Holley renewed her assertion that the jail guards may have been cowardly, but declared the investigation would produce no evidence of collusion or misfeasance in office.

Prisoner Tells of Escape.

Statements which, if true, show that Blunk had ample opportunity to ston Dillinger's going away but preferred to be his boon companion, were given Mr. Barce by James Posey, a Negro who was a cellmate of Herbert Youngblood, the Negro prisoner who fled with the desperate outlaw. Describing the events of the morning of the escape, Posey said:

"Dillinger called first to Cahoon and asked him to call in Warden Louis Baker. The prisoners had all been told that he was going to try a break that day. Cahoon said: 'John, I can't go through with this.' So Dillinger told him to call Blunk. Blunk came into the cell corridor without a gun and helped lock Cahoon in a cell. Then Dillinger loafed in the corridor while Blunk called Baker.

"When Baker came in Dillinger jumped at him with the wooden gun and Blunk helped him. Together they overpowered the warden and locked him in. Then Dillinger and Blunk walked, arm in arm, down the corridor. Dillinger winked at me as he passed."

Move to Jail Kitchen.

Other prisoners and guards were locked in by the pair. Then, Posey said, he and several other prisoners accompanied Dillinger and the finger print man to the jail kitchen.

"Dillinger wasn't scared of Blunk at all," Posey continued. "He laid a gun on the table beside Blunk while he turned his back and changed his clothes. Blunk could have got the gun and covered John, if he had wanted to."

Meanwhile, the search for Dillinger proceeded with some vigor in Chicago. Seventeen police captains were called into conference at the state's attorney's office and informed of clews indicating that the escaped outlaw is still using Chicago as a base. They were urged to exert every effort to find and kill him.

One of the most persistent rumors was that Dillinger is being aided by the remnants of the Touhy gang. Indianapolis authorities said they had learned he and the gang had made connections there. It is their belief that John Hamilton, a Dillinger gang member who was shot in the First National bank robbery at East Chicago on Jan. 15, has since that time been hidden by the Touhyites. Further they believe that Dillinger knew where to find Hamilton and went to him immediately on escaping.

However, there were no reports yesterday with seeming authenticity from persons claiming to have seen Dillinger in Chicago. His last exploit—if it were his—was to seize an automobile in front of 2440 Lake View avenue Friday night. The chauffeur, James Gaskin, asserted that he saw the man who took the machine and that it was Dillinger.

Fires on Policemen.

Later the robber in the car fought with two groups of policemen, one in Schiller Park and another in Irving Park boulevard near Mannheim road. In each case he distanced pursuit after firing blasts of machine gun fire at those chasing him.

No trace has been found of Youngblood, although a search has been made for him in Chicago and other cities. It was suggested that Dillinger may have slain him because he was too conspicuous as a traveling companion.

HOLDS NRA IDEA IS CONTRARY TO BRITISH THOUGHT

Attempts to speed economic recovery by force are contrary to British thought, H. B. Lees-Smith of London, a member of the king's privy council, declared yesterday at the Stevens hotel. He is visiting in Chicago on a tour of the United States.

Elaborating on this point, Mr. Smith asserted that the British, while favorable to President Roosevelt's public works program, have never been convinced that the principles of the National Recovery administration are sound. Recovery, he added, is coming in any event and efforts to push it by force do not jibe with British thought.

Both Great Britain and America are emerging from the depression by different routes, but are making equal progress, he said. America, he declared, has confidence, which will pull America out of the depression regardless of plans to force the issue.

Beck Contends Roosevelt Has Set Up Dictatorship

Indianapolis, Ind., March 10.—[Special.]—Congressman James M. Beck of Pennsylvania, charged here tonight before the Indiana Republican Editors' association, that the Roosevelt administration has become in many respects a dictatorship.

The government, he said, has been transformed from a "constitutional federation of states to a unitary socialistic state of virtually unrestricted power." It is up to the Republican party, he declared, to save the constitutional form of government, even though such a defense may result in party disaster.

"In the matter of agriculture, manufacture, transportation, and banking, we are living under a dictatorship," declared Congressman Beck. "The situation presents a challenge to our party. We could not ignore it if we would. It may be that our defense of the constitution may result in party disaster, but its great mission to give this nation a new birth of freedom is with us today as it was with Lincoln."

In Footsteps of Il Duce.

Congressman Beck then outlined what he denominated as the old government philosophy and the new government philosophy. The old one, he asserted, was founded on the belief that government should confine its operations to strictly governmental functions and not try to regiment citizens in their various activities.

The new or present philosophy, Congressman Beck contended, was different in degree, but not in kind from that of Stalin, Hitler, and Mussolini, for it made citizens into subjects. If the present trend were to prevail, he predicted, even the Union may not long survive.

The Pennsylvania Republican leader hammered hard on a law modeled, he related, by the NRA on Feb. 11, for the acceptance of the states. This was conceived, he charged, to combat the rising tide of judicial decisions. A section of this law, Mr. Beck pointed out, permits governors of states to give the President the services of state officials and employés in "effectuating the policies of the NRA."

Burlesque Foes' Blunders.

"I question whether any more humiliating proposal was ever made to the states," said Congressman Beck. "It invites them to surrender their police powers to the federal government, so that every state official would become merely an officer of the President. It would be the final act of surrender by the states."

In addition to Congressman Beck's address there were other vital indications of Republican gunning against Democratic national and state administrations. One phase, tinted with a burlesque flavor, was based on the escape of John Dillinger—an escape that has been charged to laxity in prison management by the present Democratic state control.

Everywhere in the hall were wooden pistols bearing the words: "Yours for the broom that swept the statehouse clean, John Dillinger." The reference was to Gov. Paul V. McNutt's 1932 campaign pledge to "sweep the statehouse clean."

Dillinger on Scene.

The Dillinger skit was carried further with mythical telegrams from Dillinger to Gov. McNutt. One of the "telegrams" invited the governor to "a reunion of Morgan county folk to be held near Martinsville." Dillinger and Gov. McNutt came from Morgan county.

Again, a crouching figure entered the hall carrying a large wooden pistol, and whispered: "I am Dillinger." Guests "protected" themselves with their own weapons.

In resolutions, the Editors' association critized policies of both state and national Democratic administrations. It opposed proposed federal coördination of communication services as "another step in attempting to control free speech"; opposed the 18 year old age limit in the proposed child labor laws, and attacked Gov. McNutt for his "czaristic" attitude.

LONDON PAPER HINTS DOUG AND MARY MAY BECOME RECONCILED

LONDON, March 10.—[U. P.]—The estrangement of Douglas Fairbanks and Mary Pickford caused another flurry in theatrical circles tonight when reports of a possible reconciliation were circulated. The Sunday Express will say tomorrow that it understands that efforts are under way for a reconciliation of America's famous motion picture stars.

Fairbanks, recently named in a sensational London divorce suit, has been having lengthy trans-Atlantic telephone talks with Miss Pickford, the Express will say. These talks were understood to be the basis for the reports of a possible reconciliation.

Miss Pickford filed a divorce suit on Dec. 8 in Los Angeles. She charged mental cruelty, neglect, and indifference, due to her husband's numerous absences. She alleged that in this way he "caused her embarrassment, humiliation, and mental suffering."

Tenor McCormack Arrives; Likes Chicago's Weather

Chicago's cold but sunny weather didn't seem so bad yesterday to John McCormack, famous Irish tenor, after several weeks of blizzards and zero temperatures back home in New York. He arrived on the Commodore Vanderbilt at the La Salle street station, and was met by a group of friends, including Michael L. Igoe, Democratic leader. Mr. McCormack is to give a song recital in the Auditorium theater at 3:30 this afternoon for the benefit of the John B. Murphy hospital clinic.

HARRY PIERPONT GUILTY; TO GET ELECTRIC CHAIR

Lima, O., March 10.—(AP)—Harry Pierpont, member of the notorious John Dillinger gang, was found guilty tonight on a charge of first degree murder in the slaying of Sherif Jess Sarber.

The jury of 10 men and 2 women failed to recommend mercy for Pierpont and thereby made mandatory a sentence of death in the electric chair.

The jury deliberated for 45 minutes. Only two ballots were taken. The first was ten to two for conviction, a member of the jury said.

Chained and Manacled.

Pierpont, his hands manacled, his feet in chains, looked down at the counsel table where he sat and grinned while the bailiff read the verdict.

Common Pleas Judge E. E. Everett said he would not sentence Pierpont until after Charles Makley, another member of the Dillinger gang, had been brought to trial. Makley is scheduled to go on trial Monday.

The vedict was the first of its kind ever brought in by an Allen county jury. No one has been sent to the electric chair in the history of the county, although one man was hanged in the jail here fifty years ago.

Shot to Death in Raid.

Sherif Sarber was shot to death in a raid on the Allen county jail last October when Dillinger was freed by members of his gang. The state contended Pierpont was the trigger man.

Asked if he had anything to say, Pierpont, said, "no, not a word."

Photographers who sought to take a picture of Pierpont with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Pierpont, were balked by Mrs. Pierpont, who held a scarf in front of her son's face. Before being unchained and taken back to the county jail through lines of National Guardsmen, Pierpont kissed his mother and whispered to her.

Just before retiring the jury had heard Prosecutor Ernest Botkin demand the death penalty for Pierpont. Once during his argument he was interrupted by Pierpont, who red-eyed and angry, shouted:

"If you'd never heard of Matt Leach of the Indiana state police, you'd never heard of me."

Blames It on Dillinger.

Botkin declared that Pierpont owed his present predicament to John Dillenger, the smooth, imaginative jail breaker, to free whom three men broke into the jail here last October.

Pierpont had said that he was the ring leader in the prison break at Michigan City last fall and intimated that he had paid money to some one to insure the success of the break. But he denied that he killed Sherif Sarber.

Arkansas Bank President Tries to Commit Suicide

Hot Springs, Ark., March 10.—[U. P.]—Fred N. Rix, president of the Arkansas National bank, was shot and seriously wounded today. Police said he had attempted to commit suicide. He was an official of the Oaklawn Jocky club and the feature race of today's program was named for him.

HOLDUP VICTIM, POLICEMAN, NABS TWO, WOUNDS ONE

Lincoln Park Policeman Leroy Norton last night frustrated a holdup in which he was the intended victim and brought about the capture of two armed bandits at Lake Shore drive and Oak street. One of the bandits was seriously wounded by the policeman.

Norton, not in uniform, was sitting in his car in front of 69 East Oak street when the two men, pistols in hand, got into the rear seat. They ordered him to drive east. He obeyed, but as he crossed Lake Shore drive he swerved his car onto the sidewalk.

Leaping from the car, Norton fired several times at the robbers, who still sat inside. The man wounded is Victor Pusetelo, 25 years old. He was struck in the left side of the chest. His companion is Roy Cutrell, 25 years old. Both reside at 870 North State street.

Mrs. Frank Matthiessen, Wife of Steel Man, Dies

Mrs. Maude C. Matthiessen, of the Lake Shore drive hotel, died yesterday in the Passavant hospital. She was the wife of Frank Matthiessen, wealthy steel man, whom she married in 1927. She was the former Mrs. Maude Chapman Bush, of New York. Mrs. Matthiessen is survived by her husband and a sister, Mrs. G. W. J. Jones, of Los Angeles. Funeral arrangements will be announced today.

SILVER ISSUE PUT UP TO PRESIDENT BY HOUSE GROUP

Approves Two Plans for Remonetization.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 10.—[Special.]—The silver issue lay squarely before the administration today, placed there by the house coinage committee in response to strong congressional pressure for immediate legislation to rehabilitate the white metal.

By decisive votes, the committee favorably reported the so-called Dies and Fiesinger bills, both aimed at the remonetization of silver but approaching that end from different angles. Proponents of both measures announced their intention of seeking special rules to accord the bills legislative right of way, and a decision as to which of the measures will eventually reach the floor of the house is expected to be made by the rules committee.

Rainey Likes Them Both.

Although no indication as to the administration's attitude regarding the silver legislation has been forthcoming, Speaker of the House Henry T. Rainey [Dem., Ill.] declared today that he "had no reason to believe that President Roosevelt will be unfriendly." He had not consulted the White House as to its position on silver, Mr. Rainey stated, but was personally strongly in favor of both the measures presented to the house today.

"They are both awfully good bills," said the speaker, adding that he was anxious for the rules committee to grant them right of way.

The Dies bill, reported by a vote of 12 to 2, calls for the exchange of agricultural surpluses for foreign silver and the issuance of silver notes against the white metal accepted by the treasury. Farmers would be paid in these silver certificates for the excess farm commodities shipped abroad. The silver would be accepted at a premium from foreign countries not to exceed 25 per cent above the world price.

Backed by Chairman Somers.

The Dies bill is understood to have the backing of Chairman Andrew Somers [Dem., N. Y.] of the coinage committee.

The Fiesinger bill, which is said to have the support of Speaker Rainey, calls for the outright treasury purchase of 1,500,000 ounces of silver, in periodic quantities, and the issuance of currency against the stocks thus accumulated. The Fiesinger measure was reported out by a vote of 10 to 4.

Representative John J. Cochran [Dem., Mo.], who voted against reporting the bills, declared that he had done so "solely because I felt that legislation of such importance should not be sent to the house until the committee had an expression from the secretary of the treasury or the President on the subject."

"My thought," said Mr. Cochran, "was that if we delayed reporting the bills for one week, so as to hear the secretary of the treasury or his representative, such changes as might be necessary could be made in the committee rather than on the floor of the house.

"So far as I was able to learn there is no written report from the secretary of the treasury on the bills favorably reported today."

SPAIN DECREES DRASTIC STEPS TO CURB UNREST

MADRID, March 10.—(AP)—Minister of Interior Salazar Alonso announced tonight that the government would place guards on all public work projects halted by strikes in order to prevent possible sabotage.

In another effort to curb revolutionary movements and disorders the attorney general instructed presidents of all Spanish courts to apply drastic legal punishment to all associations openly urging revolution or planning uprisings.

Madrid authorities said they would assume control of subway trains and compel strikers to return to work. At least 15,000 workers are on strike here in protest against working conditions and pay.

One civil guard was killed and two civilians were wounded in Orense today when the guards mistook plainclothes officers pursuing robber suspects for extremists.

Rockford Priest Is Made Papal Chamberlain by Pope

Rockford, Ill., March 10.—[Special.]—The Rev. F. J. Conron, chancellor of the Rockford Catholic diocese and son of Mrs. Michael Conron, 7952 S. Elizabeth street, Chicago, has been made a papal chamberlain with the rank of monsignor by Pope Pius XI., Bishop Edward F. Hoban announced here today. The Rev. Leo Binz of Belvidere, Ill., has been elevated to the same rank.

SHOT IN STOMACH.

Herrin, Ill., March 10.—[Special.]—Walter Smith of Carterville is in the Carbondale hospital in a serious condition from a bullet wound in his stomach sustained in a shooting at Carterville last night. Walter Craddock, Carterville, said he had been bothered with people ticktacking his home. He heard noises last night and went out and shot Smith, who was a hundred yards away. He said it was an accident.

FEDERAL INCOME TAX COLLECTIONS MORE THAN TWICE YEAR AGO

Washington, D. C., March 10.—[Special.]—With early income tax collections running more than double the collections of a year ago, the bureau of internal revenue today warned taxpayers that they have only five more days in which to file their returns.

Meanwhile, the thousands of taxes already filed and paid indicate the first pickup in income tax revenues since the beginning of the depression. Between March 1 and 8, the treasury collected 19½ million dollars in income taxes, compared with only 9½ millions in the same period a year ago.

Almost all of this money, treasury officials said, has come from persons filing early returns, but some has been paid on back taxes. Whether this year's collection will hold their lead over those of last year, experts refuse to predict.

Income taxpayers must turn over almost half a billion dollars to the government during the next four months, the largest part of it in this month, if the income tax collections are to come up to the treasury's expectations. Official estimates call for 486 million dollars in income tax collections to be paid in between now and June 30.

Altogether the treasury hopes to get 8( ) million dollars from the income tax during this fiscal year. Only 377 millions has been paid in thus far. Predictions of increased collections during the remaining four months are based on reports of improved corporate earnings during 1933. These incomes are now paying taxes for the first time, all previous collections being based on 1932 earnings.

At the same time that it warned taxpayers to file their returns before midnight on March 15 on penalty of a fine, the bureau of internal revenue announced tax collections for the last six months of 1932. The collections from all taxes showed an increase of 567 million dollars, but the income tax yield dropped almost 29 million dollars. The total tax collections, one billion 398 million dollars came from the income tax.

CITY AND COUNTY POLICE WARNED TO END GAMBLING

Police heads in Chicago and 20 suburban towns in Cook county were ordered yesterday to halt gambling in their districts at once. The drives were given impetus by the confiscation of several hundred slot machines taken in raids last week in the city and in outlying communities.

Commissioner Allman summoned all his captains to a session in his office and informed them that from now on they will be held responsible for the existence of gambling in their districts. He said later that he is not as concerned over a "sneaking little handbook," as he is over the more vicious forms of gambling.

Capt. Daniel Gilbert, chief of the state's attorney's police, acting in behalf of Prosecutor Courtney, who was home ill, delivered an ultimatum to the police chiefs of a score of suburbs that grand jury action will be taken if gambling is not suppressed in their communities. The warning was given at a meeting in Capt. Gilbert's office. He asserted it was a question of "either clean up or be cleaned up," and added that violations could not exist without official condoning. The chiefs made various excuses for the gambling but promised coöperation in stamping it out.

ILLINOIS D. A. R. SPONSORS NEW LINCOLN MARKER

The creation of a park and monument to mark the spot where the young Abraham Lincoln first entered Illinois from Indiana with his family, will be one of the major projects considered by the Illinois chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution when it meets in Evanston this week. The thirty-eighth annual convention will be held Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday at the Evanston Woman's club with several hundred delegates expected.

Other subjects to be discussed include national defense, conservation of human resources, and the promotion of education among the underprivileged. Mrs. Julian C. Goodhue, state regent, will call the first session to order Wednesday. The program will feature an address by Mayor Charles Bartlett of Evanston, a pageant by the Evanston High School R. O. T. C., a state dinner at the Orrington hotel, and election of officers.

The Illinois D. A. R. is sponsoring the Lincoln memorial plan with the coöperation of Gov. Horner, State Director of Public Works Robert Kingery, and State Architect C. Herrick Hammond.

Four Robbers Get $1.50, but Leave Their New Car

Four gunmen executed an unprofitable bit of banditry yesterday when they exchanged their new automobile for loot of $1.50. The men drove into the Pure Oil garage, 35 East Wacker drive, through the exit door and stopped by a gasoline pump. Training three revolvers and a sawed off shotgun on an attendant, Kenneth Grate, they forced him to pump five gallons of gasoline into the car and surrender his money changer. As they sought to leave they headed toward the entrance and became alarmed when they saw the automatic doors were closed. Abandoning the car they fled through a side door.

PROF. GIDEONSE CITES DANGER IN PRICE TINKERING

Fears It May Lead to Another Collapse.

these cases. The extreme cases merely illustrate the consequences more clearly, however, and in a milder case they would tend in the same direction. The salaried classes, skilled labor, small businessmen and investors were the chief losers in the enterprise. It is not surprising that many German students should associate the rise of national Socialism as a middle class political reaction with inflation and the threat of its recurrence.

Redistribution of Income.

In England, where such matters are discussed with more frankness and insight, tariffs and monetary depreciation were quite deliberately discussed as alternative methods of reducing wages when the resistance of organized labor made a direct approach less promising. With us the problem is often presented as redistribution of income, but the classes that are to be the beneficiaries and victims of the financial operation are seldom specified, although the social and economic composition of such inflationist groups as the committee for the nation is a clear indication of the trend.

The experience of the last four years has once again made it clear that it is far easier to make monetary policy effective as an instrument for the control of price movements when the objective is to break a movement upward than when the aim is to initiate a movement in that direction. The most effective method of controling activity by monetary manipulation is to prevent booms, avoiding overinvestment and over production. At present, however, we are promoting a boom with all instruments at our disposal.

Ability to Check Process.

There is little doubt as to our technical ability to check the process. The price of control, however, might well be another collapse particularly if purely monetary factors are stressed. Whether the technical ability will be used is the question of a political character. Experience with the warnings of the federal reserve board in 1928 and later, is none too encouraging. It is not only a question of political courage, but also a matter of legitimate doubt as to the neglect of the time factor in inflation by an impatient democracy.

Historic examples of inflation illustrate the deceptive slowness of the early stages of an inflationary [or deflationary] process. Momentum only appears in a later period when control has to be disastrously abrupt to be effective. In other words, "control" must be exercised when the disagreeable consequences of the expansion are not yet visible to the political eye. This timelag is the heart of the political problem of control.

COSTS HIM 34C TO REMIT 8 CENTS IN SALES TAX

Pana, Ill., March 10.—[Special.]—A striking illustration of the manner in which the Illinois state sales tax sometimes operates was given by David M. Forsythe, owner of the Pana Nursery company. During February Forsythe's total cash sales were $4, this being the off season for nursery stock sales. This netted 8 cents sales tax. In order to remit the 8 cents to the state Forsythe paid 25 cents to a notary public for his affidavit, six cents for a money order and three cents for a postage stamp, totaling 34 cents to remit the eight cents.

ILLINOIS SCHOOLS TO GET $792,095 FROM STATE THIS WEEK

Springfield, Ill., March 10.—[U. P.]—A total of $792,095 will be distributed to counties throughout Illinois next week from the state school distributive fund, State Auditor Edward J. Barrett announced today.

It will be the first time in several years that the counties have received their full quota from the distributive fund, Barrett said. The money is made available from the sales tax collections which now go into the general revenue fund, and in the future will be paid in monthly instalments.

Previously the money was raised by direct property taxes and it was impossible to pay the counties in full because of delinquency in tax collections.

Budgets submitted by the various counties for the school year ending June 30, 1933, amounted to $9,562,1 8 after certain deductions for the state teachers' pension fund, tuition for children in orphanages, salaries of county superintendents of schools, and other small items. This makes $792,095 to be distributed each month to the counties.

FIRST SABBATH DRIVE ON SMOKE PLANNED TODAY

The first intensive Sunday campaign ever made against violators of the city smoke abatement ordinance will be conducted today, Frank A. Chambers, deputy smoke inspector, said yesterday. All of the 150 engineers provided by the Civil Works administration in its anti-smoke project here will be on duty together with the small regular staf of the department. The thorough "observation" planned for today was brought about by reports of a few individual inspectors that many hotels and apartment house furnaces were emitting large quantities of smoke last Sunday.

MEMBERS OF U. S. FOREIGN SERVICE AIDED BY BILL

Washington, D. C., March 10.—[Special.]—Officers and employés of the American foreign service who have been in sore plight due to the change in value of the dollar abroad will be aided by a bill passed in the senate this afternoon.

The measure which has already gone through the house but which must be returned for approval of slight changes, authorizes appropriation of sums necessary to meet losses sustained since July 15, 1933.

In allowing the President to use any sums necessary to enable him "in his discretion" and under regulations of the budget bureau, to make up the losses, the house bill said the Presidential action would be binding on all governmental officers except the controler general, but the senate objected even to this barrier and struck the controler's name from the bill.

Senators Simeon D. Fess [Rep., O.] and David A. Reed [Rep., Pa.] both said the condition of the foreign service officers was due to devaluation of the dollar, and forecast that similar conditions would apply in this country.

HONOR VETERANS OF MAIL TRAIN OF 50 YEARS AGO

Fifty years of mail service in the west was celebrated by the Burlington railroad in a ceremony held last night in the Union station. Railway veterans who served in 1884 during the first week of the inauguration of the first solid mail train in this country, related their experiences to a group of officials. The anniversary program was held just before a mail train left for Omaha at 9 p. m.

The veterans were James A. Warren of Paw Paw, Ill., retired postal clerk, 75 years old; Charles E. Marsh, of Galesburg, Ill., retired engineer, 73 years old, and T. L. Senseman, of Monmouth, Ill., retired postal clerk, 74 years old. They left on the mail train as guests of Albert Cotsworth Jr., passenger traffic manager of the Burlington.

The first solid mail train on the Burlington, intended to cut at least 24 hours from mail transit time to the Pacific coast, consisted of two mail cars and a business car. The average in recent years has been 10 cars. Each night's first class mail shipment now averages 60,000 pieces of mail.

DIES AS RESULT OF FALL.

Joseph Kesibe, 56 years old, 937 West Erie street, died at the county hospital last night of injuries incurred when he fell down a flight of stairs at the Novelty company store at 215 North Racine avenue on Oct. 9.

Deafened Discover New Way To Hear At Local Demonstrations

The deafened of Chicago are learning at daily demonstrations of the New Amplified Acousticon that they can hear again. Electro-acoustic engineers have perfected a simple inconspicuous instrument which carries sound direct to the auditory nerves through bone conduction.

Deafened people once able to hear only with extreme effort and discomfort hear conversation from all sides and as far away as ten feet clearly, naturally and without the slightest nervous strain. They enjoy concerts, radio, talkies, church services and the theatre. Hearing is clear and true. This instrument is very reasonably priced and sold on easy monthly payment plan, if desired.

Free demonstrations given at Acousticon, Suite 700, 180 North Michigan Ave., Chicago—or in your home or office by appointment. Booklet "Defeating Deafness" on request, Dept. 3-CT.

SENATORS ADD 350 MILLION TO TAXPAYERS' LOAD

Six New Farm Items Made Basic Commodities.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 10.—[Special.]—Six additional farm commodities were sought to be placed under control of the agriculture adjustment administration and added costs of 350 million dollars were sought to be imposed upon the taxpayers as the senate today passed a drastically amended house bill originally intended to add only cattle to the list of so called "basic commodities."

Of the new expenditures to be undertaken only 150 million dollars is intended to be restored to the treasury by a processing tax.

In the final vote in the senate 18 Democrats broke away from the New Deal with its policy of a managed agriculture and cast their ballots against the bill. Only with the votes of six Republicans with "liberal" leanings and the single Farmer-Labor member were the administration loyalists able to put the measure over. The count was 39 to 37.

Now Goes To Conference.

Already passed by the house, the bill now goes to conference. Unless the senate amendments are stricken out in conference committee, the measure will authorize the following:

Cattle, both beef and dairy, will become a basic commodity on which the AAA may operate to reduce production, pay benefits to farmers, and levy a tax upon processing. The sum of 200 million dollars is appropriated out of the treasury with which to begin benefit payments. Only three-quarters of that amount is expected to be replaced through processing taxes.

The inclusion of cattle as a basic commodity was said to have the endorsement of farm organizations and cattle men's associations, but numerous senators of both parties from cattle raising and cattle finishing states voted against the bill.

Adopt La Follette Amendment.

Under the leadership of Senator Robert M. LaFollette [Rad., Wis.] an amendment was adopted, 41 to 38, making a direct appropriation of 150 million dollars, not to be made up by a processing tax, for the following purposes:

To recompense the farmers for the slaughter of dairy and beef cattle suffering from tuberculosis, Bangs disease, or other bovine diseases; in conjunction with the federal emergency relief administration, to buy dairy cattle and give them to families not possessing cows, the milk and other dairy products to be used only for family purposes and up to the amount of 50 million dollars, to buy dairy and beef products to be distributed for relief purposes in conjunction with the federal surplus relief corporation campaign.

At the hands of other senators bound to see their states come in under the AAA act, the bill became a catch-all. In succession, peanuts, rye, barley, flax, and grain sorghum were voted in as basic commodities in addition to cattle. Since wheat, cotton, tobacco, corn and hogs, milk, and rice are already under AAA control the planned farm program now includes 13 of the country's major farm commodities.

Sigma Chi's Girl

MISS ISABELLE MULLIGAN.

Miss Isabelle Mulligan, a Northwestern campus beauty queen, will be the official "Sweetheart of Sigma Chi" in welcoming guests at the first annual formal grand ball to be held in the Bal Tabarin of the Hotel Sherman next Saturday night. Members of the Chicago Alumni chapter of Sigma Chi fraternity will be hosts to members and guest of Omega chapter of Northwestern university and Omicron Omicron chapter of Chicago university.

Miss Mulligan is a member of Pi Beta Phi sorority. Her escort will be C. F. Southward, president of Omega chapter of Sigma Chi. The grand ball will begin at 9 o'clock and will include a supper at midnight. Frankie Masters' College Inn floor show stars and ballet and Phil Levant's orchestra will provide music and entertainment.

Among the patrons and patronesses of the affair are Mr. and Mrs. William Tracy Alden, Mr. and Mrs. John T. McCutcheon, Col. and Mrs. George T. Langhorne, the Rev. Dr. and Mrs. Von Ogden Vogt, Mr. and Mrs. Carl R. Latham, and Prof. and Mrs. Horatio Hackett Newman.

LIQUOR FORCES CONSOLIDATED BY ROOSEVELT

Treasury Takes Over All Enforcement.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 10.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt today ordered the treasury department to take up the last tatters of federal liquor law enforcement and consolidate it with the work of enforcing liquor taxes.

Wiping out the remnant of the old prohibition bureau in the department of justice and the bureau of industrial alcohol in the treasury, the President moved to transfer the powers, personnel, and appropriations of these two agencies to Commissioner of Internal Revenue Guy T. Helvering and his superior, Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau Jr.

In making the shift, President Roosevelt used the governmental reorganization powers conferred on him by congress. He explained his action in a message to congress asking that congress by passing a joint resolution make his order immediately effective.

To Settle Old Cases.

Settlement of old liquor tax cases arising under the 18th amendment and not affected by its repeal were the only matters which the President's order would leave in the hands of Attorney General Homer S. Cummings.

If congress approves the President's plan, a new federal liquor squad charged with enforcing liquor tax laws against moonshiners and with protecting dry states from liquor imports will be built up in the treasury. Protection of dry states previously had been under the attorney general as part of the work left over from prohibition days. In his explanation message to congress President Roosevelt said:

"Pursuant to the provisions of Section 1 of Title III. of the act of March 20, 1933 [ch. 3, 48 stat. 8, 16], I am transmitting herewith an executive order consolidating the executive agencies which are engaged in the enforcement of the internal revenue laws.

Repeal Brings Action.

"The need for such a consolidation at this time springs primarily from the repeal of the eighteenth amendment. The tax and enforcement agencies of the government should be reorganized in harmony with the changes which have occurred in the laws relating to the manufacture, transportation, and sale of intoxicating liquors. The changes made by this order will permit a more efficient administration of the internal revenue laws as well as the laws carrying out the protective features of the twenty-first amendment.

"Because of the obvious desirability of accomplishing the proposed changes at the earliest possible moment, I recommend that the order be given consideration by congress with a view to the enactment of a joint resolution making its provisions immediately effective."

U. S. NABS 2 MORE CAPONE MEN FOR INCOME FRAUDS

De Grazias on Bond in Tax Case.

The federal government's income tax campaign against hoodlums was extended yesterday with the arrest of Rocco and Nick De Grazia, Capone gang leaders in the western suburbs. These hoodlums, who have been the booze and vice lords of Melrose Park and adjoining suburbs for years, were arrested on criminal information charging willful failure to file returns on their income for 1929 and 1930.

United States Attorney Dwight H. Green explained that the information was filed because the statute of limitations on misdemeanor cases will run out on March 15, the deadline for filing income tax returns. In a few days, he added, evidence will be presented to the grand jury and indictments charging the gangsters with felonies—wilful attempts to evade and willful failure to pay income tax—will be sought.

Similar to Levin Case.

This was the procedure employed against Hymie [Loud Mouth] Levin, Capone gang collector for the loop district, who was indicted on Friday, charged with failing to pay taxes of $28,274 on income of $176,338 for 1929 and 1930.

Rocco De Grazia is charged in the information with failing to file returns for 1929 and 1930, when his income was allegedly $97,011 and $51,347, respectively, and his unpaid taxes were $14,610 and $5,321, respectively. Nick De Grazia is charged with failure to file returns for the same years and his income was allegedly $52,478 and $25,865, with taxes due of $4,997 and $1,407.

The hoodlums were arrested by Clarence L. Converse, ace investigator of the internal revenue bureau's intelligence unit, and W. A. Sommers of the same agency.

Brothers Seized at Homes.

When the federal agents called at the home of Rocco, who lives in a sumptuous apartment in his own building at 1040 North Elmwood avenue, Oak Park, his wife said he was sleeping. De Grazia stuck his head out a window and said he would kill anybody who tried to come in, but when informed that he was wanted by government agents he came down meekly and unarmed. Nick was arrested at his home at 802 North 6th avenue, Maywood, and taken away over his protests for breakfast with his wife.

RUSSIAN DESIGNS AIRPLANE-DIRIGIBLE FOR STRATOSPHERE

[Copyright: 1934: By the New York Times.]

BY WALTER DURANT.

MOSCOW, March 10.—An airplane-dirigible to conquer the stratosphere has been designed by a soviet engineer, Anatol Savoch Tarasoff, 27 year old graduate of the Moscow Aeronautical institute.

The craft would have the form of a gigantic monoplane of duraluminum, 410 feet long, 111.5 feet high, and 187 feet wide, containing 2,471,000 cubic feet of helium or other elevating gas.

There would be six 1,000 horse power engines, with twin screws, arranged in tandem. The designer estimates a speed of 558.9 miles an hour for the craft. A crew of forty-five would have quarters in the wings. There would be no wheels because the landing speed would be less than five miles an hour, it is said.

BLUE EAGLE IS TAKEN FROM DRY CLEANERS

Washington, D. C., March 10.—(AP)—Out for stricter NRA enforcement the compliance board today cited a number of violations to the department of justice and ordered the surrender of Blue Eagles by a long list of dry cleaners all over the country.

Among those referred for possible prosecution was the Lafayette Car corporation, New York City, charged with selling for $873 a used car which under the retail automobile code should have sold for $1,007.

The dry cleaners charged with price violations included:

Majestic Cleaners, Wichita Falls, Tex.
Clean Well Dye Works, Seattle, Wash.
One Day Cleaners, Springfield, Ill.
Marcus Cleaners, 30 West Seventh avenue, Gary, Ind.
North Shore Cleaners and Dyers, Revere, Mass.
Varsity Cleaners, Norman, Okla.
Economy Cleaners, Ltd., San Jose, Cal.
Herrin Dry Cleaners, Herrin, Ill.
Detroit Dollar Cleaners, Detroit.

OFFICIALS URGED TO WIND UP CWA JOBS BY APRIL 1

Plans Laid for New Work Relief Program.

Public officials of Cook county were notified yesterday to report Wednesday which of their Civil Works Administration projects will have to be completed under the new work relief program which will take the place of the CWA on April 1. In a meeting at the CWA Headquarters, Lieut. Col. Dan I. Sultan, county CWA administrator, told the officials to try to finish essential projects by the end of the month, as a shortage of skilled labor is expected to result from the change due to limitations on working hours.

An invitation to submit Wednesday a list of materials needed for the projects, so that these may be purchased before the termination of the CWA on March 31, was applauded by the officials. The concensus was that few projects would be killed by the work relief plan, but that many would be greatly delayed.

65,000 Will Have Jobs.

It was estimated that 65,000 persons will be employed in Cook county under the new program. All of them must have been on relief rolls at the time of their assignment to CWA work. They will be paid the prevailing wage rates in their localities, with a minimum of 30 cents an hour, it was announced by Robert J. Dunham, chairman of the Illinois Emergency Relief commission, which will have general charge of the work.

No employé will be given more than 24 hours of work each week, and in the case of skilled workers receiving higher wages, none will receive more work than sufficient to provide for their actual needs. The minimum will be established for each worker by his wage rate and his family budget.

The same regulations will apply in downstate counties. To determine the proper rates of pay, Mr. Dunham instructed each county relief committee chairman to appoint a local wage committee consistng ofe one representative each from organized labor, business, and the local emergency relief administration. This is in conformance with orders from Harry L. Hopkins, federal CWA and relief administrator.

Workers will be allowed to make up time lost through no fault of their own within the succeeding 20 days after the time is lost.

Money Available.

The money for the work relief program is to come from the $950,000,000 appropriated by congress in its present session, which has been carrying the CWA along since Feb. 15. How much of this will be available for the new program after April 1 in the Chicago area could not be ascertained.

Approximately 115,000 workers will still be employed on CWA projects in Illinois at the end of this month, according to the demobilization schedules of Frank D. Chase, state administrator. The CWA office staf will continue to operate until its business has been wound up and transferred to the relief commission.

Problems relating to the transfer of CWA workers who are in need of assistance to the relief work will be taken up tomorrow morning at a meeting in the Hotel La Salle. The chairmen and social service directors of all county emergency relief committees will have their functions for the immediate future explained to them.

Status of CWA Projects.

Most of the CWA work at present is being devoted to repairing brick and asphalt streets and leveling the banks of the drainage canal. These projects, using common labor in the main, probably will continue on a reduced schedule after April 1.

J. Frank Lyman, superintendent of the Lincoln park system, said after the conference in Col. Sultan's office that various odd jobs were all that remained to be done under his jurisdiction by government paid men. Friday night the planting of 1,150 trees along the extended Outer drive from Montrose to Foster avenue was completed by CWA workers.

Supt. George T. Donoghue of the south parks said that the restoration of the Japanese pavilions in Jackson park, now about 50 per cent completed, would be about the only CWA project interfered with by the expected curtailment in skilled labor.

First White Child Born in Dakota Territory Is Dead

Yankton, S. D., March 10.—(AP)—John Stanage, 77, first white child born within Dakota territory, died here last night. He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Stanage. His father was a soldier of the United States army and was transferred from Fort Ridgely, Minn., to Fort Pierre, Dakota territory, in 1856, and it was at that fort that Stanage was born, March 20, 1857.

DISTILLERY IS FIRST TO CUT WORK HOURS AS PRESIDENT URGED

Washington, D. C., March 10.—[Special.]—The Schenley Products company, distillers, will go on the shorter work week Monday, the first company in the United States to comply with President Roosevelt's "Ten and Ten" proposal.

The Refractories industry yesterday anounced its readiness to go to the 36 hour week if units not represented at the code authority meetings agreed. Such agreement is momentarily expected.

Announcement of the action of the Schenley company was made in a telegram to Gen. Johnson by Grover Whalen, chairman of the Schenley board.

The Schenley company now has 8,500 employés in four states, New York, Pennsylvania, Indiana, Kentucky. The new edict, it was estimated, will return about 1,000 additional employés to the pay rolls.

SHOWS FURTHER DROP IN NUMBER OF AMEBIC CASES

Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, president of the Chicago board of health, yesterday submitted figures showing fewer cases of amebic dysentery reported this month than at any time since the epidemic became known. Only nine cases were reported this month, up to yesterday, as compared with 34 last month and a peak total of 120 in November. Cases reported for other months: August, 13; September, 14; October, 28; December, 71; January, 56.

FIND 3,000,000 ACRES SUITED TO REFORESTATION

State Survey Reveals Potential Wealth.

More than three million acres of Illinois land, largely unsuited for farming and not yet seriously eroded, has been found suitable for reforesting in the course of a state-wide survey being conducted by Gov. Horner's state planning commission.

This land and the trees which it can grow to provide an economic asset to the state in another generation is scattered over the state and might well be utilized for reforestation through a joint arrangement between the federal government, the state and individual farmers. Such is the present viewpoint of Col. H. L. Kellogg, state planning engineer in charge of the plan commission, whose offices are in the west parks commissioners' building.

4 Men Making Survey.

Under the state planning board set up by Gov. Horner, to operate with the national planning board of the federal public works administration, 40 men are going over the state to survey and tabulate existing resources as well as the potentialities. These men operate in some ten divisions, each of which has a particular task to accomplish in order that the state legislature may have a report next January. Robert Kingery, director of public works at Springfield, is chairman of the commission of ten appointees.

The development of systematic plan of reforestation in Illinois is the object of but one of the surveys now under way. This survey already has indicated that the state's failure to reforest waste lands of little value for farming will bring Illinois face to face with practically entire depletion of its woodlands in another 25 years.

Urges Reforestation.

"Unless planned efforts are made to equalize more nearly the production and consumption of timber," declares Engineer Kellogg, "this depletion is but a short distance away. Data compiled in our forestry division show that there are only about 3 million forested acres left with a timber stand of less than three and a half billion board feet.

"If two million acres of new timber were added to the three million now available the potential yield of hardwood alone would be a billion board feet, or 125,000,000 feet more than the state's domestic requirements. This possible volume, it is estimated, would maintain 667 portable sawmills employing 7 to 10 men each, and cutting an average of 6,000 board feet daily would give 5,000 men work the year around on rough lumber alone."

Since 93 per cent of the present forested land is owned by farmers, says Kellogg, it would seem that the best reforestation campaign could be made by either or all of three agencies: Federal or state bureaus and farmers.

The present survey, not only in forestation, but in other types of public works, is expected by the end of April to have assembled basic fact material from which the engineers can begin to pick out the vital information on which a state program is to be built.

Study Penal Needs.

One of the other surveys now in progress is that which will determine what will be the state's future needs in the maintenance of its penal institutions and toward the continued support of state dependents.

Still another survey concerns the study of public works in cities of 2,500 or more in the state, investigation of water and sewage disposal costs, studying the adequacy of facilities, and determination of what additional facilities would be necessary with population increases.

8 PUBLIC WORKS HEADS NAMED BY SECRETARY ICKES

C. M. Moderwell Choice for Chicago Area.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 10.—[Special.]—The skeleton of the organization which will carry President Roosevelt's national program of permanent public works was set up today by Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes.

Dividing the country in twelve districts, Secretary Ickes appointed today eight regional directors who will lay out permanent public works programs for their regions. Four other directors are yet to be appointed.

Charles M. Moderwell of Chicago, who until recently was a member of the state public works advisory board, was given charge of Chicagoland states by Secretary Ickes. The permanent public works system in Illinois, Michigan, Wisconsin, Iowa and Minnesota will be under his direction. Indiana is grouped with Ohio and three other states under Alfred Bettman of Cincinnati.

Pay Is $20 a Day.

Mr. Moderwell, like all other regional directors, will receive $20 a day for his work and will be required to give only ten days out of each month until further notice, according to Secretary Ickes. In other words, he is to receive $200 for a third of each month.

The district chairmen are to be the nucleus of the national planning board, which is mapping out the President's permanent public works program.

The planning board is to whip 3 billion 800 million dollars' worth of unfilled public works applications now lying before the public works administration into some semblance of a national plan, it is understood. From these projects and others initiated by the government the future development schemes will be picked out.

Other Directors Named.

Relief will be correlated with the public works by starting projects in areas where farmers need additional income for a living. This is part of the President's new relief setup.

The other state directors appointed by Secretary Ickes are:

Vincent M. Miles, Fort Smith, Ark., district No. 7, composed of Arkansas, Louisiana, Mississippi, and Oklahoma.

Kansas City Man Named.

J. C. Nichols, Kansas City, Mo., district No. 9, composed of Missouri, Kansas, Nebraska, Wyoming, and Colorado.

Marshall N. Dana, Portland, Ore., district No. 11, composed of Washington, Oregon, and Idaho.

Duncan McDuffie, San Francisco, Cal., district No. 12, composed of California, Arizona, Nevada, and Utah.

The New England states will comprise district No. 1; New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, and Delaware, district No. 2; Montana, North Dakota, and South Dakota, district No. 8, and Texas and New Mexico district No. 10.

MODERWELL FRIEND OF ICKES.

Charles M. Moderwell, whose appointment as director of the permanent public works plan in the central states was announced yesterday in Washington, is an old friend of Public Works Administrator Ickes. He is a Republican of progressive leanings.

Since 1902 Mr. Moderwell has been in the coal business in Chicago. He was the Progressive nominee for city treasurer in 1913. In 1918 he ran for congress in the 10th district and in 1930 was a candidate for the sanitary district board. In 1923 he was named president of the board of education by Mayor Dever, a Democrat, and held the post until 1925. He has been regional PWA adviser since last August.

CHICAGO FIRM LOSES FEDERAL HOUSING FUNDS

Washington, D. C., March 10.—[Special.]—An allocation of $1,333,000 in federal easy money to the Harms Park Housing corporation of Chicago was revoked today by Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes.

Revocation of the Chicago allotment by Secretary Ickes, who is also public works administrator, accompanied the recission of six other low cost housing allocations made by PWA. Together the seven revocations returned almost 24 million dollars which was given by Secretary Ickes to the new federal housing corporation.

The Harms Park development, which was to be handled by a limited dividend company, has been moribund for some time. In revoking its $1,333,000 Secretary Ickes said merely that the private sponsors of the plan had "failed to meet the PWA requirements to equity."

Other revocations were in Brooklyn, Hutchinson, Kan., Cleveland, Indianapolis, and two in Atlanta, Ga.

Ogden Mills and Family in City on Way to East

Ogden Mills, former secretary of the treasury, arrived in Chicago yesterday morning on the Overland limited of the Chicago and North Western railroad. He was on his way from the west coast to New York. He was accompanied by his wife, her son, Philip Fell; her sister, Mrs. Wister Randolph, and Emmett Shea, a private tutor to Philip.

KANSAS' M'GUGIN FLAYS TUGWELL FARM THEORIES

Assails His Collectivist Philosophy.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 10.—[Special.]—With an emphatic assertion that there can be no place in the traditional American scheme for compulsory government control of farm production, Representative Harold McGugin [Rep., Kas.] today carried forward his one man attack on the collectivist theories of Rexford Tugwell, assistant secretary of agriculture.

The planned agriculture visioned by Mr Tugwell in recent public utterances, according to Representative McGugin, can only be achieved by the adoption of the soviet system in this country. Before long, he warned, the people of the United States are going to face a decision on the future course of government.

"There is not going to be room for both the precepts of Americanism and sovietism," he declared.

Reads from Recent Speech.

Mr. McGugin read from a recent speech by Mr. Tugwell in which the latter declared that "for the first time we are preparing to build a land program which will control the use of that greatest of all natural resources not merely for the benefit of those who happen to hold title, but for the greater welfare of all citizens of the country."

"Government controling land not for the benefit of the individual owner, but for the greater benefit of all the people is not an American philosophy," the Kansas Republican declared. "That is the philosophy of Stalin and Marx. That is the philosophy of the Russian soviet."

"The soviet is controling all the lands of Russia for the benefit not of the man who happens to hold title, but for what the soviet thinks is for the general welfare. I am not yet ready to concede there is any occasion for the government to set up a superior ownership over the land of this country. I still believe that the man who owns a farm or home and pays taxes on it has a greater interest in that farm or that home than has all the rest of the 126,000,000 American people. I still believe that when a free-born American citizen pays the taxes on his farm, rears his family, lives an honorable life, and produces food to sustain mankind, he pays his full debt to society."

Interrupted by Pettengill.

Representative Samuel B. Pettengill [Dem., Ind.], interrupted Mr. McGugin:

"Assuming it is true, as has been stated, that the overwhelming majority of the cotton farmers of the south want government control to protect them against the small minority of their own group, would the gentleman give it to them, or would he require the unanimous consent of every single cotton farmer before he would put it in operation?"

"I would never use the government, as such, to prevent any man from performing the ancient and honorable occupation of producing food or clothing," McGugin responded. "I would never use government to make it a crime for man to produce cotton or wheat. My theory is that it is not the purpose or function of the government to step in and tell men what they can do with the land they own."

Resents "Slight Regard."

"I resent such a slight regard for the ownership of land as uttered by Mr. Tugwell," Representative McGugin went on. "'Happens to hold title!' I say to you that the man of America who owns a farm or a home does not just happen to hold title; he holds it because of his thrift and his hard work in earning the money to buy it. It is not something that just happened.

"Mr. Rexford Tugwell is the dominating influence in the department of agriculture and his interest is not in the welfare of the farmer of today. His basic and fundamental purpose is to use the agricultural adjustment act to nationalize the farms of this country."

Mr. McGugin pointed out to the house the "inconsistency" of striving to force American prices for manufactured and farm goods above the world level and at the same time seeking to regain foreign markets through lower American tariffs.

Attacks NRA, Too.

"Certainly the two principal pieces of New Deal legislation are the NRA and the AAA," he declared. "Both of those acts have for their purpose the forcing up of American prices of commodities above the world price level. Let us consider the NRA.

"Shorter hours of labor and higher wages in the United States is a program to which we are all glad to subscribe, but this much is certain, we cannot carry on this program without eventually increasing the present tariff rates. When the Hawley-Smoot bill was passed the British wage scale was 51 per cent of the American wage scale. Today the British wage scale is 35 per cent of the American scale. The German and French wage standards five years ago were 35 per cent of the American standard, while today they are 25 per cent of the American standard. If there is any hope for NRA to survive, it is certain that American industry and labor must have the American market for American consumed manufactured goods.

"Let us come now to the agricultural adjustment act. The purpose of it is to hold the American price of wheat above the world level. If we do that, we cannot ship wheat abroad. That is self-evident. Therefore, all there is left for American wheat is the American market. If the agricultural adjustment act survives, it simply means that the entire American market for food must be reserved for the American farmer. The same is true as to the NRA. If the NRA is to survive and we are to have higher wages and shorter hours, then the American market for manufactured products must be reserved for American industry. We cannot talk about junking present tariff laws unless we are then and there ready and willing to junk the NRA program and put American labor on a competitive basis with foreign labor. We cannot talk about a free market in America for food stuffs unless we are willing to have the American farmer go down to the same standard of living as the foreign farmer.

"European factories can produce manufactured articles more cheaply than American factories can, because they empoly labor longer hours and they are operating at sweatshop labor costs. Sweatshop labor in industry is what peonage is in agriculture, as it is being practiced in the production of foreign sugar. If we are going to declare as an economic principle that we must stop the production of that which the American farmer cannot produce as cheaply as it is produced by foreign competitors, with peon labor, we must take the position that American manufactured goods are not produced economically and that American factories should therefore compete with foreign factories operating with sweatshop labor and longer hours."

ROPER TO SPEAK

DANIEL C. ROPER. MAYOR KELLY.

Daniel C. Roper, secretary of commerce, will be guest speaker at the 33d annual banquet of the Irish Fellowship club of Chicago, to be held Saturday evening, March 17, at the Palmer house. His subject will be "Irish Fellowship in Action."

He will be introduced by George E. Gorman, president of the Chicago club. Also seated at the speakers' table will be Mayor Kelly, past president of the club; William H. Dieterich, United States senator from Illinois, and Patrick A. McCarran, United States senator from Nevada.

Music will be furnished by Jerry Conley and his orchestra, and Sara Ann McCabe, Irish radio soprano who will sing old Irish ballads and folk songs. The invocation will be given by the Rev. William J. McNamee, pastor of old St. Patrick's church in Chicago.

FIXING OF PRICES URGED TO PUT TEETH IN AAA

Olson Outlines Plans at Governors' Meeting.

Des Moines, Ia., March 10.—[Special.]—Teeth for the AAA program in the form of compulsory agricultural control and price fixing was the announced subject of a farm conference called here today by Gov. Floyd B. Olson of Minnesota and attended by one other governor, A. G. Schmedemann of Wisconsin—the remnants of what was to have been a conference of 15 governors.

Lieut. Gov. Clifford Townsend of Indiana was the only other official to appear. Gov. Clyde L. Herring of Iowa, who three times asked for a postponement of the conference, announced that he would attend as many of the sessions as his official duties would permit.

Program Is Completed.

The meeting was attended chiefly by state and national members of the Farmers' Holiday association and the Farmers' union. Completion of a program for the sessions tomorrow and Monday was the only business transacted.

In commenting on his program to strengthen the AAA program, Gov. Olson said today that he proposed "a plan of compulsory control and price fixing that will make possible getting a fair price for the farmer whether we call it parity price or cost of production."

No one pretends that the AAA program of Secretary Wallace will work in regard to wheat, for example, he continued.

Sponsored by Creamery Man.

The plan sponsored by Gov. Olson was originated by John Brandt, president of the Land o' Lakes Creameries. Based on the McNary-Haugens equalization fee bill, the Brandt plan calls for compulsory production control, payment of benefits, financing through equalization fees, retirement of submarginal land from production, and the sale of commodities at a fixed price through a billion dollars surplus commodity pool.

"We are not trying to throw overboard the production control plan of the AAA and Secretary Wallace but merely to work out a scheme that will make it more desirable for the farmers to sign up with Wallace," Gov. Olson said.

"Farmers would have to sell their products through the billion dollar pool to get the fixed price on butter fat, hogs, wheat, and so on."

Farmer Leaders Are Expected.

Among the farm organization leaders expected Sunday are A. J. Olson, president of the Minnesota Farm Bureau federation; W. L. Stockton of the Montana Farm bureau, and John A. Simpson, president of the National Farmers' union. Milo Reno, prominent in holiday association affairs, has been invited, as has Secretary Wallace.

The conference developed into farm organization meeting when 12 of the 15 governors declined to attend on the ground that the objects as announced by Gov. Olson were not in sympathy with the desires of farmers in their states. Sessions of the conference are being held in the Hotel Fort Des Moines instead of the state house as originally planned.

HARBORS PRISON PALS IN HOTEL; GUESTS ROBBED

How a paroled Michigan convict became manager of a north side hotel in Chicago and then harbored his old prison friends there while they victimized residents of the hotel was revealed yesterday by Lieut. Edward Kelly at the detective bureau.

The paroled convict is William A. Porter, 28 years old, arrested Thursday on charges of forgery and confidence game. According to Lieut. Kelly, Porter was released from the Michigan prison at Jackson three months ago after serving seven years for a Detroit bank robbery.

Porter came to Chicago, Kelly said, and got a job as manager of the Lancaster hotel at 944 Leland avenue.

Not long afterward, Lieut. Kelly charged, Porter communicated with five or six paroled convicts and either gave them rooms in the hotel for nothing or permitted them to share his room. After these men moved into the hotel, Kelly said, the rooms of several guests were rifled. Irving T. Hale was robbed of personal papers, and one of the paroled convicts, posing as Hale, was thus enabled to get a $300 personal loan from a downtown loan company, according to Kelly. Last week Merle L. Cripe was robbed of stocks. Lieut. Kelly charged that Porter, representing himself as Cripe, tried to negotiate a loan for $300 from the same loan company which had previously been defrauded. The loan company manager became suspicious, which led to Porter's arrest.

Porter will be arraigned in Felony court tomorrow.

KILLS SELF WITH RAZOR.

Adolph Rouse, 52 years old, 9132 Lincoln avenue, Brookfield, a plumbing contractor, committed suicide yesterday by slashing his wrist with a razor in the bathroom of his home.

24 PERSONS HURT IN 3 MILLION FIRE AT BIRMINGHAM

Birmingham, Ala., March 10.—(AP)—Twenty firemen and four spectators were injured today in a 3 million dollar downtown fire against which every fireman in the city and suburbs battled. B. O. Hargrove, chief of the Birmingham fire department, estimated the loss.

Maneuvering fire equipment and ambulances injured the spectators.

The fire originated in the "false" basement of Loveman, Joseph & Loeb company department store, which was destroyed. Melancon's department store was damaged by fire, smoke, and water.

Calder Furniture company and Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph company central office No. 4 still were burning this evening, but were under control.

Firemen said a short circuit apparently started the blaze. The first call was sent in shortly before 1 o'clock this afternoon, when a whisp of smoke was noticed on the first floor of the department store. The alarm was spread through the store and 4,000 persons quickly filed out.

JULIUS KLEIN, HOOVER AID, BACKS ROOSEVELT ON TARIFF PROGRAM

Ocala, Fla., March 10.—(AP)—Dr. Julius Klein, former assistant secretary of commerce under Herbert Hoover, expressed the opinion here today that President Roosevelt's proposal for having the tariff problem handled by the executive branch of the government, "is a move in the right direction."

Dr. Klein said the tariff problem requires negotiation with foreign governments and it cannot best be handled by congress, which he described as subject to great pressure from various conflicting interests.

Foreign trade, he said, will be more and more of a matter of negotiation.

HUTCHINS, WELK DISCUSS NATIONAL POLICY SESSION

President Robert M. Hutchins of the University of Chicago, chairman of the new private commission sponsored by President Roosevelt to compile a comprehensive review of the nation's views on tariff, international trade, foreign investments, and monetary policy conferred yesterday with Dr. William G. Welk, research associate of the group, concerning the hearing to be held at the Palmer house April 2. The organization is called the Commission of Inquiry on National Policy in International Economic Relations.

Leading industrialists, bankers, business men, and educators will be invited to appear at the hearing. There will be morning, afternoon, and evening sessions.

The first hearing was held in New York City. The information gathering staf also will hold sessions in Des Moines, Denver, San Francisco, Houston, New Orleans, and Washington in May.

Your dollar hits a new High

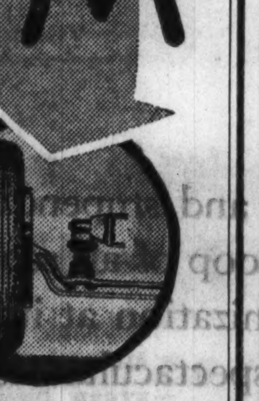
. . . in a GRAHAM

Unique Banjo Frame for greater roadability

In the Graham, the rear axle passes through the frame. The combined weight of axle and rear wheels helps to anchor the car to the road, especially over bumps and around sharp turns. The Banjo Frame works in harmony with the Outboard Springs, wide 61 inch tread, and the Geometric Steering Mechanism to give Graham unusual roadability and safety.

Ever have an "Outboard Spring ride"?

The Graham is the only car with Outboard Springs, placed outside the frame, both front and rear. This greater distance between springs means less tilting and sidesway. And the springs are long and flexible for smooth, level riding. The Graham does not "lunge," or nose down in front, when you're driving at high speed over choppy surfaces.



YOU'LL forget about a *de*valued dollar when you see and drive the new 1934 Graham. With new lower prices, starting at $695, your dollar hits a new high in purchasing power—buys far greater value than it bought last year.

The lower price speaks for itself. And the new Graham speaks for itself. A bigger, roomier car—116-inch wheelbase for the Six—123-inch wheelbase for the Eights. Clear-vision ventilation. High-styled interiors. Three-passenger comfort in both front and rear seats. More power and pick-up in the Six and Standard Eight . . . and a Supercharger in the Custom Eight, increasing power 42% without affecting economy. Take the wheel and see for yourself that the new Graham is a better car at a lower price.

Can 2,499,826 Men and Women Be Wrong?

As of December 31st, 1933, 2,499,826 men and women owed their mastery of one or more languages to 336 Berlitz Schools the world over. Why is there this overwhelming preference for Berlitz language instruction? Simply because the famous Berlitz Conversational Method is the only real way to master French, Spanish, German, Italian, Russian, English, or any other language.

SCIENCE VOICES OPTIMISM FOR FAMILY'S FUTURE

Speakers Cite New Views on Marriage.

BY KATHERINE KELLEY.

After seven scientists, experts in their fields, had turned a microscopic eye on the American family in an all day clinic in the Palmer house, 1,500 members of the Chicago Association for Child Study and Parent Education went home last evening satisfied that the American home is not going to the bow-wows. On the contrary, they learned that it is becoming a more enduring and healthier institution.

Heartening facts gleaned from the seven addresses brought to light changing attitudes on marriage and divorce, birth control, family affection and personality, as seen by the sociologist; a new respect for old age, and a stabilization of population, as seen by the economist; a definition of what is considered a good family by an educator; and new potentialities in human conduct within the family, as viewed by the philosopher. New trends in the physical and mental health of the family were discussed by the pediatrician, psychiatrist, and psychoanalyst.

Optimistic on Family's Future.

Two speakers, the sociologist and the philosopher, were agreed in the optimistic conviction that there is nothing in the future which threatens the permanency of the family, although both were quick to point out revolutionary changes in attitudes toward family relationships. These views on the family were advanced by Dr. J. P. Lichtenberger of the University of Pennsylvania, the sociologist, and Dr. Vivian T. Thayer, educational director of the Ethical Culture school, New York, the philosopher.

Said Dr. Lichtenberger: "Processes now going on in the family are different only in detail from those which have always existed, and which are likely to continue. What appears to be new is the greater realization of the possibilities of the application of human intellect to family life, such as voluntary monogamy and voluntary parenthood which seem to be the goal of social evolution.

"Those who possess normal racial and social qualities will inherit the future, and many of our perplexing problems will be solved by this automatic process. The progress of the future will be slow, but out of it will come a better, more enduring family life."

Changing Views on Marriage.

Dr. Lichtenberger first reviewed some of the changing concepts of marriage, showing how the old norms have changed. Certain hard and fast rules once thought necessary for a successful marriage relationship are fast losing their importance, he said, and attitudes toward the wife and mother, the "divine rights of husbands," birth control, and economic self-sufficiency are changing. No longer is it believed, he added, that a lasting marriage is necessarily a good one.

"The family may now devote itself to amenities, become the school for development of affectional and loyalty traits, the builder of personality, and the stabilizer of character," Dr. Litchtenberger continued. "The most revolutionary change in the family is the shift of marriage and the family from a coercive to a voluntary basis, with a continued voluntary choice and affection coming more and more to be regarded as the only ethical basis for matrimonial continuance.

"Voluntary parenthood will lighten the load of overburdened motherhood and diminish the tragedy of the unwanted child. It will eliminate the fear of parenthood, will enhance sexual compatibility and release finer emotions and sympathies. Divorce does not cause marriage disruption, but is its effect. Family integrity is the main guarantee of its durability."

SPEAKS ON FAMILY

PROF. J. P. LICHTENBERGER.

Sees New Development.

Speaking at the final session, Dr. Thayer saw in the future of the family a new development of human conduct.

"In a civilization as complex as ours, companionship is a real need," she said. "To the family of the past we are indebted for much of the true, the good, the beautiful. The family of today can perform the same function if we see the opportunity for new developments of human conduct."

Within another generation America will have become of age, with the result that old age will be venerated and respected instead of shelved and disregarded, Dr. Paul H. Douglas, University of Chicago economist, asserted. Within that generation, population, due to a falling birth rate, will have become stabilized at not more than 165,000,000, and in it will be a larger proportion of old people, he predicted.

"Those over 50 will assume much more importance," Dr. Douglas said. "America, which has always been a country dominated by youth, will come of age and the boisterousness of youth will disappear. It will no longer be a gloomy lot to be old, for life will not begin at 40, but at 50 or 60. The family is the only agency which can bring the various generations together. In the future old age will become the friend and companion of youth."

Mothers Hear Educator.

Many mothers heard Dr. Thomas E. Benner, dean of the college of education of the University of Illinois, enumerate the substantial ideals of conduct known to generations past, such as unselfish consideration for others and emphasis on higher values.

"In a good family," he said, "the child learns to be generous with family and friends. The child is treated as a personality and not merely as an intellect. He is not reminded that he is dull nor is he pushed toward precocity if he is bright. He is taught to know himself and have confidence. His emotions are balanced. The same holds true for his school life, but if the family has failed, there is little the school can do."

In round table discussions at luncheon, the mental and physical health of the family was examined by Dr. Bengt Hamilton, pediatrician of the Bobs Roberts Memorial Hospital for Children; Dr. Douglas C. Campbell, psychiatrist of the University of Chicago, and Dr. Karen Horney of the Institute for Psychoanalysis.

could be heard arguing. At one time during the argument it was reported that a suggestion had been made that Willett establish a $300,000 trust fund for his wife in full settlement. At this point Mrs. Willett left the chambers and hurried from the building.

The attorneys then left and Judge Desort conferred with Willett. Shortly afterwards Attorney Davis was summoned to the chambers and ordered to find Mrs. Willett and have her return. She appeared in five minutes and after another half hour of argument it was announced that the settlement had been reached.

"I am not receiving any money from Mrs. Hall nor from Mr. Willett in the alienation suit," Mrs. Willett told reporters, "but the terms of the settlement will never get into the newspapers."

Attorney Reeve, refusing to divulge the terms of the agreement, stated: "We have merely reached a settlement on the property and all the litigation will be terminated." Attorney Davis also declined to state the terms.

Court Crowd Disappointed.

Mrs. Willett's bill for separate maintenance was filed six weeks ago and several hearings were held before Judge Desort. The courtroom yesterday was filled with "fans" who had come to hear the final arguments and were turned away disappointed when the principals and their attorneys were closeted with Judge Desort.

Mrs. Willett's testimony during the hearings was that her husband had left her through no fault of hers and that she would take him back "in a minute." Attorney Davis did not refer to the alienation suit on his direct examination of her. On cross-examination Attorney Reeve brought out conversations between the Willetts in 1932 when they quarreled over Mrs. Hall.

Attorney Reeve attempted to bring out that Mrs. Willett started both suits "for money, not because of emotion." He was blocked in this line of questioning by Attorney Davis' objections.

Attorney Reeve also tried to show that Mrs. Willett had had an affair with Edmund Harris Jr., a young Baltimore architect, and that she had discussed a divorce with her husband for the purpose of marrying Harris before Mrs. Hall came into the picture. This type of questioning also was blocked by objections of Attorney Davis. Harris is defendant in a suit in the federal court charging misuse of the mails. It was charged that he wrote an extortion note to Mrs. Hall demanding $5,000 on the promise he would have the alienation suit withdrawn.

Panama Frees 8 Accused of Plot to Kill President

PANAMA CITY, March 10.—(AP)—Eight men accused of conspiring to assassinate President Arias last January were ordered released from police custody today by the superior judge, who stipulated that the case could be reopened later if new evidence were produced.

ARREST OF COSTNER, BANGHART LEADS TO DISCOVERY OF BONDS

Baltimore, Md., March 10.—(AP)—Last month's arrest of two members of the "terrible Touhy" gang found in a Baltimore apartment house resulted in the discovery of $10,000 in bonds, part of the proceeds of the $33,000 Maquon, Ill., State bank holdup in 19[illegible], federal officers revealed today.

The bonds were found in a safety deposit box in the vault of the Baltimore National bank, said James K. Cullen, chief assistant United States attorney.

The box had been rented to a man who gave his name as J. P. Johnson, but Cullen said he had reason to believe he was Rufus Costner, brother o Isaac Costner, the state of Illinois' chief witness in the Factor kidnaping case.

Isaac Costner and Basil [The Owl] Banghart were arrested here with two women. More than $10,000 in cash identified as part of the money taken in a Charlotte, N. C., mail truck holdup, was found in their possession. Federal officers also found some unrevealed evidence which eventually led them to the bank deposit box and the bonds.

Frank Sabier, Ed Halligren, and Edward Bennet now are serving life terms in the Joliet, Ill., prison for their part in the holdup. Authorities believe that a fifth participant remains at large.

GERMAN SQUARES THE CIRCLE; HERE IS HOW TO DO IT

Claims It Shows Way to Perpetual Motion.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, March 10.—A German scientist has succeeded in squaring the circle, thus showing the way to perpetual motion, according to today's issue of the Deutsche Allegemeine Zeitung. The newspaper keeps the name of the discoverer secret, but publishes his mathematical formula. He specializes in "musical geometry."

The formula follows: The area of a circle is equal to the square of the hypotenuse of a right angled triangle, whose one cathetus represents the longest side of an Oberl trapezium and whose short cathetus equals the distance from the center of the circle to the point of intersection of diagonals of the circle surrounding the trapezium. These two diagonals intersect in a section aurea and simultaneously at a right angle.

THINKS FORMULA BONA FIDE.

Prof. Harry S. Everett, Ph. D., secretary of the mathematics department of University of Chicago, who also conferred with Prof. E. P. Lane, Ph. D., professor of geometry, last night said the formula probably is bona fide. He declared that in order to construct this figure more advanced geometry would have to be employed than the ordinary ruler and compass permitted in elementary geometry. With elementary geometry it "simply cannot be done," except to a very close approximation.

Prof. Everett pointed out that some of the terms used in the formula are not common in the United States and could only surmise that an Oberl trapezium is the proper name of a particular type of trapezium. A trapezium is "a plane figure formed by four right lines, no two of which are parallel." A cathetus is commonly called the leg of a triangle. "A section aurea" or "golden section" is a particular way of dividing a line so that the shorter section is to the longer as the longer is to the whole.

No Elementary Geometry Problem.

"Squaring the circle is impossible, except by close approximation, in elementary geometry, using ruler and compass and ordinary axious and postulates," Prof. Everett stated. "There are a number of ways of accomplishing this by advanced geometry by using curves and other aids beyond a ruler and compass. Such solutions are nothing startling in mathematics. This is one of the three famous problems of antiquity which cannot be solved by elementary methods and we no longer waste our time on them. The other problems are duplication of the cube and trisecting an angle."

Prof. Everett explained that the proponent of the formula means by "squaring the circle" that he is going to construct a side of a square to determine how long it will have to be to have an area of the square equal to the area of a given circle.

Prof. Everett added that he could see no connection between the formula and perpetual motion.

QUIZ COSTNER ON HIS $25,000 ROBBERY LOOT

Witness Links Banghart with Mail Holdup.

Isaac Costner got $25,000 as his share of a North Carolina mail robbery last November, but yesterday in Judge Walter P. Steffen's courtroom he refused to explain what he has done with all the money.

The former Touhy gangster, who is a state witness in the trial of Basil [The Owl] Banghart for the kidnaping of John Factor, spent the morning under the cross-examination of William Scott Stewart, Banghart's attorney. Stewart turned to the mail robbery after he had failed to shake Costner's identification of Banghart as one of the kidnapers who abducted the wealthy speculator near The Dells roadhouse in Morton Grove last June 30 and held him until a $70,000 ransom was paid twelve days later.

Tells of Mail Robbery.

Costner told about the $110,000 mail robbery, which took place in Charlotte, N. C., with considerable reluctance. His testimony hinted that Banghart was a principal in the holdup, but none of the attorneys put the direct question. The cross-examination on that point ran as follows:

Q.—How much did you get from that mail robbery? A.—I don't remember.

Q.—You haven't any idea? A.—Well, I have an idea. It was about $25,000.

Q.—What did you do with it? A.—I don't remember.

Q.—Don't you remember what you did with any of it? A.—Well, I left $2,500 in a hotel room in Lexington, Ky. Ludwig Schmidt [another Factor kidnaper not yet apprehended] lost $10,000 in New Jersey trying to get it changed.

Q.—You didn't bury your part in a Mason jar, did you A.—No.

Q.—Isn't it true that you plan to get an easy sentence here and do your time in jail, then dig up your $25,000 and go merrily on your way? A.—No.

Q.—Well, what happened to the money? A.—They [the authorities] got $1,500 out of a safe deposit box and they took $500 from me when I was arrested.

$4,500 Accounted For.

And that was as far as Stewart got it, learning what did happen to Costner's share. Only $4,500 had been accounted for.

On re-direct examination, First Assistant State's Attorney Wilbert F. Crowley asked Costner if Charles [Ice Wagon] Connors and Schmidt were with him on the robbery. Costner nodded.

Q.—Where was Banghart on Nov. 15, 1933 [the date of the robbery]? A.—In Charlotte, N. C.

Q.—Did you see him there? A.—Yes.

Factor was to have been the star witness yesterday, but the short session was consumed by Costner and other witnesses who linked Banghart with the Touhy gang's attempt to collect an additional $50,000 ransom from Factor last Aug. 15. Three residents of Bellwood identified him as the man seen running out of the woods near Westchester on that day, when 200 police and federal agents failed to capture two men who were handed $500 in a decoy ransom package.

All this was of second hand importance, having been a part of the state's case in the trial of Roger Touhy, Albert "Polly Nose" Kator and Gustav "Gloomy Gus" Schaefer, who were sentenced to 99 years in Joliet penitentiary for the kidnaping.

But it went into the Banghart trial again. Mrs. Dora Landall of Bellwood, her son, 14 years old, and her niece, Marjorie Farrand, 12 years old, all testified that Banghart stumbled across a creek and into the yard of their home, then near 26th street and Mannheim road, Westchester, just after the unsuccessful trap was laid. He told them his wife had found him in the forest preserve with another woman and asked to be driven to his home in Oak Park. "My husband drove him away," said Mrs. Landall.

Factor to Repeat Story.

Helen M. Kemper, manager of the Washington Pine hotel, 5501 West Washington boulevard, testified that Banghart had an apartment at the hotel from July 18 to Aug. 19. He registered under the name of "L. Rogers."

Tomorrow the first witness will be Policemen Frank McKenna and Edward Meyer, who took $500 and a decoy package to the Mannheim road rendezvous with the kidnapers. Then Factor will take the stand to repeat, for the third time in court, the tale of his abduction and imprisonment. He was released after the payment of $70,000 ransom.

LOS ANGELES HAS QUAKE ON DATE OF 1933 DISASTER

Los Angeles, Cal., March 10.—(AP)—A light, brief earth shock was felt here at 3:03 p. m. [5:03 p. m. Chicago time] today. The Carnegie institution seismological laboratory at Pasadena said it was entirely local in character.

The quake came on the anniversary of the shock which last year caused a death toll of 121 and property damage of $75,000,000 in southern California.

Shock Farther North.

Chelan, Wash., March 10.—(AP)—Two distinct earth shocks were felt here today. The first, at 8 a. m., was of several seconds duration, rattled dishes, swung pictures on walls and spread alarm among workmen in the Chelan power plant.

Residents in all parts of the Chelan valley felt the tremors.

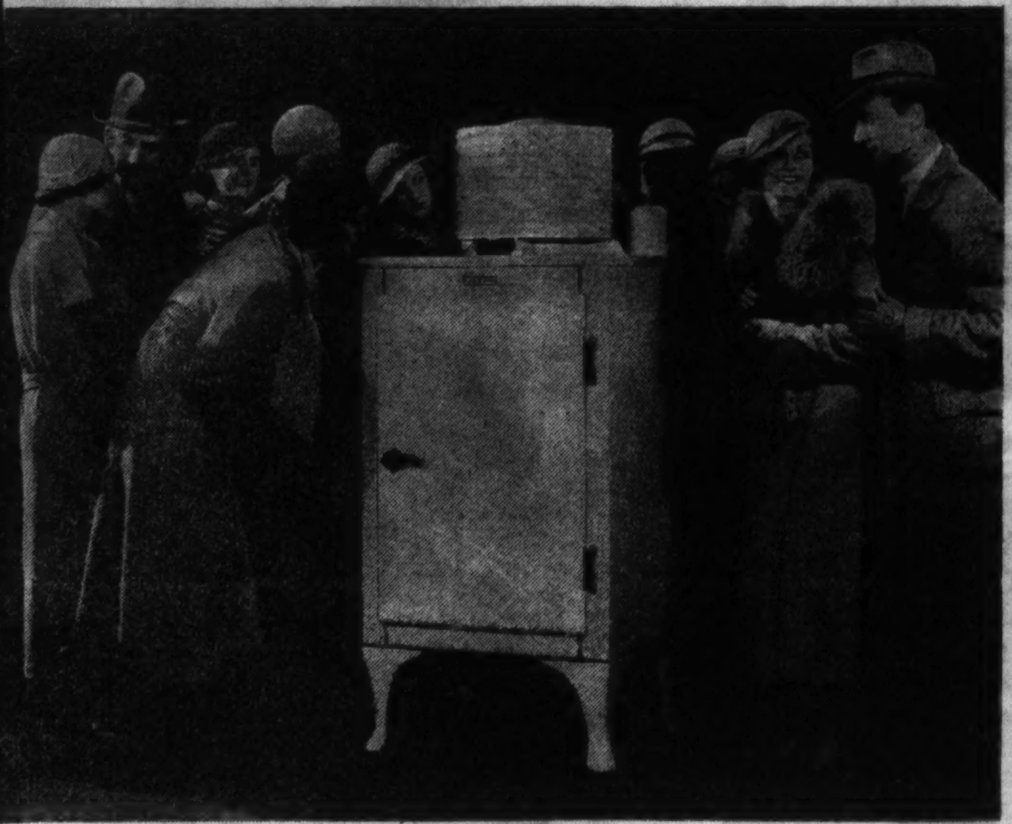
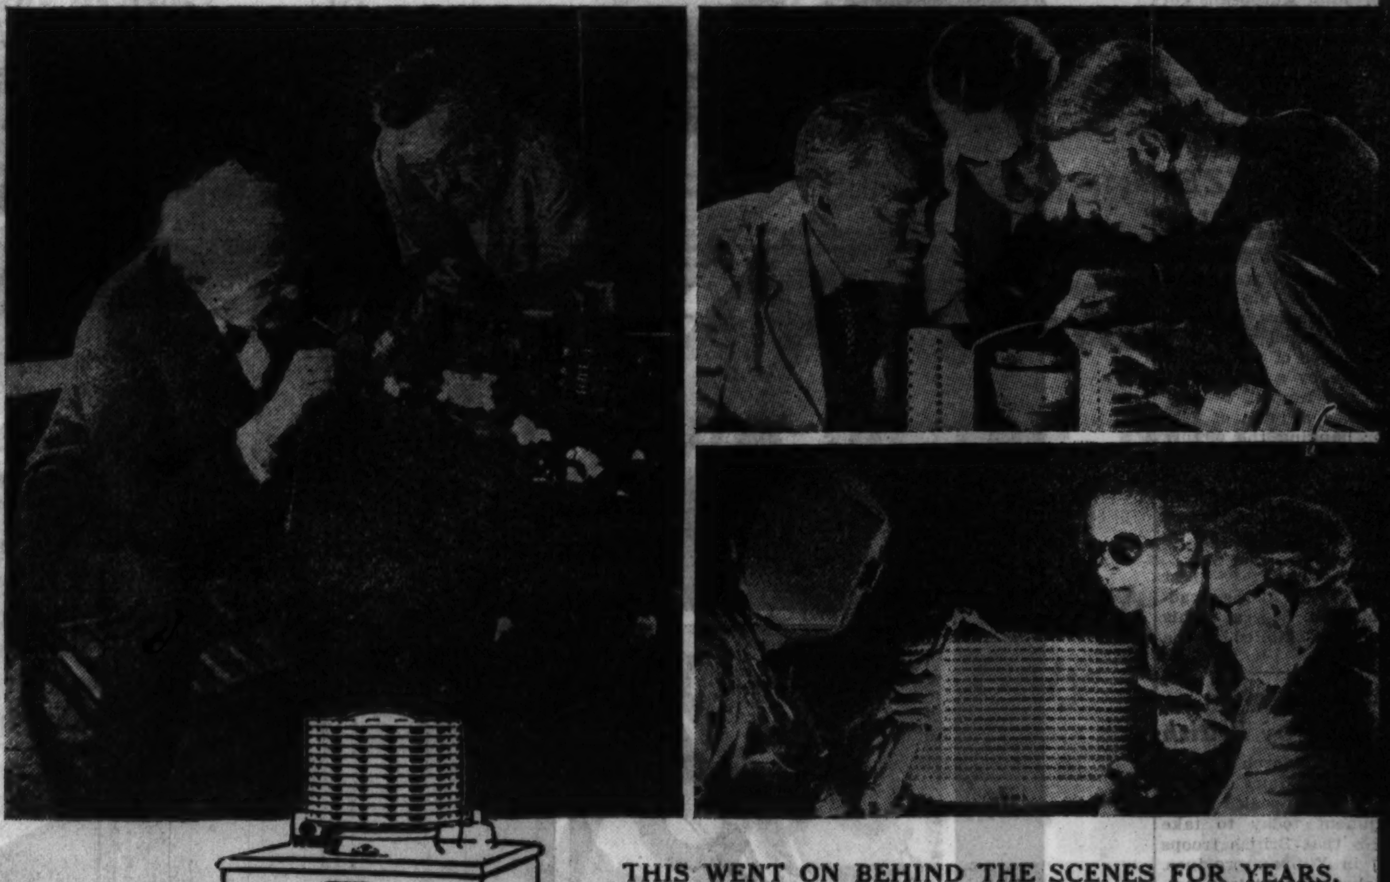
Behind the Scenes with Champions

YEARS OF HEART-BREAKING TRAINING — ENDLESS HOURS OF ARDUOUS WORK — GO BEFORE THE BRILLIANT PERFORMANCE OF CHAMPIONS

WHEN DEMPSEY FOUGHT, THIS IS WHAT YOU SAW. Spectacular performance won for Jack Dempsey an all-time record for popularity and the first and only million dollar gates ever known to boxing. Time brightens the glamour of this great champion.

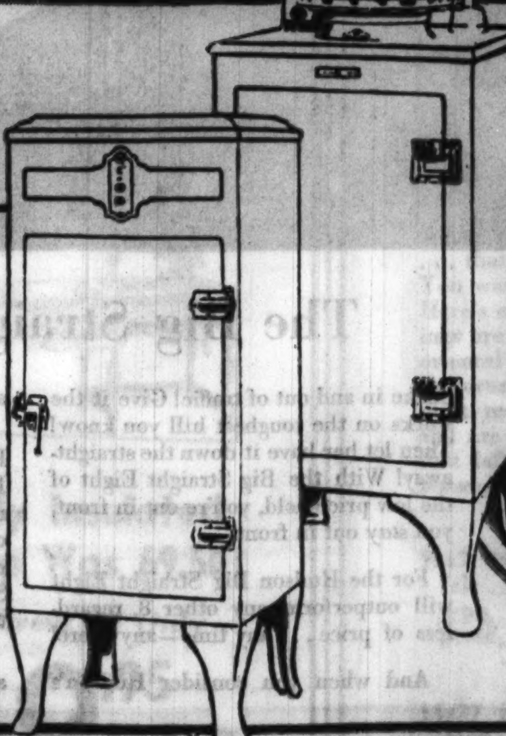
THIS WENT ON BEHIND THE SCENES FOR YEARS. Dempsey's fighting heart showed itself behind the scenes as well as in the arena. He trained religiously, denied himself foods and sweets, such as all young fellows crave, forfeited many of the pleasures which normal youth wants. Jack won the attributes which every great champion needs — class, consistent superiority, endurance.





AT AN R. COOPER JR., INC., SHOWROOM THIS IS WHAT YOU SEE. The General Electric Refrigerator has the heart of a champion. It shuns no work, fears no challenge. It can "take it" in the stifling days of summer. When many other refrigerators loll with fatigue, the Monitor Top comes back strong.

THIS WENT ON BEHIND THE SCENES FOR YEARS. It took fifteen years of research to perfect the Monitor Top. Edison and Steinmetz made discoveries which guided General Electric scientists in producing the famous Monitor Top.



THOSE who want refrigerator satisfaction, championship performance which they can brag about, economy of operation that wins a big hand, need look no farther.

Go to your nearest R. Cooper Jr., Inc. showroom or the General Electric dealer in your city and select the G-E Refrigerator best suited to your needs, or phone Franklin 5720 for representative. Put a championship refrigerator in your kitchen. It's just as low in cost as other kinds.

General Electric offers you both flat top and Monitor Top models. Prices begin at $111.00 (f. o. b. factory). Monthly terms.

PLAN TO EXPLORE BIBLICAL CITY IN ARABIAN DESERT

Experts Doubt It Is Lost Capital of Sheba.

PARIS, March 10.—(AP)—A possibility that the "20 towers or temples" which two explorers identified as remains of the queen of Sheba's fabulous capital may be another, even more interesting, city, was seen today by an eminent French authority on Arabia.

"Sheba's kingdom and its capital already have been discovered and have been known for many years to have existed in the southern part of Arabia," said Rene Dussaud, curator of oriental antiquities in the Louvre museum.

"Andre Malraux may have found something else intensely interesting—more interesting than the city of Sheba, about whom many fairy tales and legends have been woven."

Prepare to Return to Site.

Malraux and Capt. Corniglion Molinier, who reported to the French air minister that they had flown over and photographed the sand covered vestiges of the mysterious Sheba's headquarters on the northern edge of the Great Arabian desert, prepared, meanwhile, to return to the place.

Knowing that death might be the cost of their hazardous adventure, but also that their reported discovery was of paramount importance to archæology, the author-student and pilot made their plane ready once more at Djibouti, French Somaliland, for another flight to the area, about 1,000 miles southeast of Jerusalem.

This time they plan to land nearby and explore the mounds and valleys which they believe hold the secret of Sheba's land and further details of ancient civilization. Should anything go wrong in this daring project, they know it might cost them their lives—at the hands of fierce tribes in the district, or through thirst and starvation.

If they are successful in their 900 mile trip over the trackless desert they will throw light on a problem scholars have studied 2,000 years.

Area Unknown to Whites.

French archæologists, meanwhile, awaited further word from them, although some orientologists expressed doubt that Malraux and Molinier had really found the queen of Sheba's city.

Any vestiges of ancient civilization in the savage desert of southern Arabia, they said, is of utmost importance to those interested in ancient lore, since the region is one of the last really unexplored spots in the world. It is almost unknown to white men because of the hostility of Arabian tribes as well as the barrenness of the region.

In their first message to the ministry the explorers did not give details of the city's location. Experts here believe it might be in the region of Naith, which, they claim, would be more in keeping with old descriptions.

Many lives have been lost in trying to find the place. Four Europeans got to Mein, Liyr, and Mareb—mentioned as possible sites—but other expeditions have been captured by tribesmen or died from thirst in the hot, wind swept desert.

JULIUS MOESSEL AWARDED PRIZE BY ART LEAGUE

The Municipal Art league award for 1934 has been given to Julius Moessel, 1345 Madison Park, for his canvas, "Springtime," Paul Schulze, president of the league, announced yesterday. Selection of the winner of the annual competition is made by a vote of all the members of the league.

The award carries a prize of $200 and provides for hanging the picture in the municipal collection at the Art institute, an honor which has brought keen competition in the league contests for 30 years. The contests are limited to artists of Chicago and vicinity.

Mr. Moessel came to Chicago eight years ago after studying in the Academy of Art in Munich. Several of his paintings have been exhibited at the Art institute.

SOCIALISTS PLAN TO RUSH LONDON SLUM CLEARANCE

Aim to Build a Home for Each Worker.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, March 10.—A great slum clearance and rehousing scheme for London will be the first work of the Socialist party, which this week's election won a majority on the London county council.

The Socialists are losing no time in getting to work. A meeting of party members is to be held Monday to talk over plans. The first meeting of the new council next Wednesday will tackle the reorganization of committees and officials in line with new policies.

Herbert Morrison, "prime minister of London," who is leader of the Socialist party in the council, already has established himself at the council offices and is discussing plans with visitors and lieutenants. Morrison, who was minister of transport in the last labor government, has specialized in municipal government and is recognized as an expert.

Little Hope for Tax Cut.

He is a moderate Socialist and is not likely to try any rash experiments or go in for waste and excessive taxation, but he said today that he had little hope to reduce taxes because so much work was left to be done by the old conservative group.

At least 100,000 homes are needed immediately in London, he said, and the council's first task will be to provide them. The aim will be to build a house or flat for each family at prices which workingmen can afford to pay. This involves large schemes for slum clearance and it is intended to carry this through in definite stages. All slum areas will be scheduled for destruction.

Vested interests, such as slum landlords, will be dealt with sternly if they try to obstruct the progress, but they will be paid a fair price for their property at its present value.

"We shall not be difficult with anybody, but we will not tolerate anybody who tries to make difficulties for us," Morrison said. "London has told us to get on with the job and we intend to get on with it."

Another feature in the council's program is hospital service. London has under its control the largest hospital service in the world. Formerly these were known as "poor law infirmaries" under the old poor law and admission to them carried a stamp of pauperism.

A few years ago the name "poor law infirmaries" was abolished and they became "public assistance institutions." The taint of pauperism still clung to them, however, and their administration was little changed in many instances from the harshness of the old pauper institutions.

Plans New Schools.

Now it is intended to reorganize the whole system on modern lines, making the public hospitals in no particular different from the so-called voluntary hospitals, which really are supported entirely by charity.

The London school system is good, but necessary building has been held up for the last few years by excessive economy of the conservatives. Morrison proposes to catch up as much of this slack as possible in the shortest possible time. New buildings are badly needed to meet the growth of population, and many old ones need reconditioning.

"Labor will regard taxes as though it is the public's trustee and will try to get value for every penny spent," Morrison declared. "Harsh economy will be superseded by wise spending, but irresponsibility will not be tolerated in any department.

MRS. ROOSEVELT WALKS THROUGH SAN JUAN SLUMS

Followed by Naked Children.

SAN JUAN, Porto Rico, March 10.—(AP)—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt walked through the squalid San Juan slums today, talked with their poverty stricken inmates, and then conferred with welfare workers regarding remedies.

The wife of the President was told by relief workers that 82 per cent of the total population of Porto Rico had applied for some sort of aid from the relief administration. Of the total requests, 522,000 were granted.

Following the first lady through the narrow, grimy, puddle marked streets were the clamoring populace, barking dogs, squealing pigs, and naked children.

Shocked in Poor Home.

Once she stopped near a pool of dirty water swarming with flies, and asked a photographer to take a picture of it "to show really what it is like."

Again she was shocked upon entering the poor home of a mother suffering from tuberculosis and was told the family had not had relief or food for a week, eating only rice and beans shared by a neighbor. This was due, the woman said, to a change in the relief reporting forms in Washington.

Mrs. Roosevelt was deeply touched with the way the women tried their best to keep the humble possessions clean. She was impressed, she said, by the "amazing self-respect" and courtesy even in the waterfront huts and caves, which huddled under the old Spanish walls, and were dark and dank.

Small boys, unclothed and unashamed, ran after her, shouting "Presidental"—meaning the women president.

One plump woman to whom the President's wife talked could not remember the name Roosevelt, but said she knew the first lady because she had visited poor in the Porto Rican colony in New York.

Then Mrs. Roosevelt visited relief workers' offices in the basement of the capitol, and studied charts and reports there.

Of her tour today she said she had seen "about the most unhealthy conditions one possibly could find on the outskirts of a city; of course it can be understood in view of the recurrence of hurricanes in three of four years."

She expressed the hope "that a plan can be made to end the slum conditions that are a menace to the general health," and added that "Gov. Winship has said he must clean it up promptly."

Late today she held a conference with relief workers.

"I feel very hopeful about this island," she said afterward. She made no speech at the conference, merely asked questions.

Angry Over CWA Wage Cuts.

Relief Administrator Bourne said threats of strikes should be attributed to complaints from slum dwellers to recent wage cuts in the Civil Works administration, a reduction amounting altogether to almost half.

He said that where the island had been spending $1,200,000 a month for relif it was now to be allotted only $500,000.

A ripple was caused locally by the publication of a caricature of Mrs. Roosevelt on the front page of a leading newspaper. The drawing exaggerated every feature and was set off with a poetically eulogistic caption. The artist meant it to be complimentary, but English reading islanders thought it was an insult and a spirited controversy ensued.

Mrs. Roosevelt settled the argument herself by graciously autographing the cartoon for the troubled artist who drew it.

OUSTED FRENCH MINISTER CALLS CHARGES FALSE

PARIS, March 10.—(AP)—Eugene Frot, former minister of the interior, contemptuously described as "pure imagination" today the accusation that he had planned a coup d'etat during the recent rioting growing out of the $60,000,000 Stavisky pawnshop bond scandal.

Frot declared he saved the chamber of deputies from a mob which would have stormed the parliament building if police had failed to repulse the rioters with arms. He made his statement at a dramatic session of a deputies' committee investigating the scandal and the riots.

The former minister, whose friends once hoped they would see him the youngest premier France has had, also denied a charge that he headed a cabinet intrigue to oust Edouard Daladier, then premier and Frot's chief. He admitted his ambition to become premier, however.

The charges were made in an earlier hearing by Jean Chiappe, whom Daladier removed as prefect of Paris police as the riots were reaching a climax. Frot answered Chiappe face to face today and called the latter's testimony about a coupe a "lie." But the little Corsican hurled back the charges and refused to retract a word.

BREMER SLEUTHS PIN HOPES ON A CHURCH'S BELLS

Agents Strive to Locate Hideaway.

Fordyce, Neb., March 10.—The chiming of the bells of St. Boniface, the Catholic church at Menominee, a small village ten miles north of Fordyce, may be the clew by which federal officers will locate the hide-away house in which Edward G. Bremer, St. Paul, Minn., banker was held captive 22 days while his $200,000 ransom was being arranged.

Cedar county is in northeastern Nebraska along the Missouri river. For the last several days federal officers of the bureau of investigation have been combing the hills of the county in an effort to locate this hideout.

The bells of St. Boniface brought them to the county. It is now believed that the hide-out was within hearing of these bells.

Remembers Daily Chimes.

Bremer was unable to give any description of his kidnapers or of the place where he was kept prisoner. But he remembered that day after day he could hear the chiming of bells at two periods of the day. He told the federal officers of this fact.

They were chimes, he told them, not just a single bell. They were church bells.

The officers deduced that the bells were from a Catholic church somewhere. But there are hundreds of Catholic churches with bells.

"But not with chimes," some one suggested. "Find a Catholic church with chimes," was the order.

The federal officers figured the hide-out must be within three hundred miles of St. Paul, since less than seven hours was required in bringing Bremer back home after the ransom was paid. So the officers confined their search for a Catholic church with chimes situated somewhere within that circle.

Eliminate All But One.

A list of Catholic churches within that district was secured, letters were written to priests in charge of each of these. The answers indicated there were few Catholic churches with chimes in all that territory. Cursory investigation resulted in eliminating all but one.

That one is St. Boniface at Menominee, Neb.

As a result, the country around Cedar county is being searched and with a fine tooth comb.

The Reverend Father Ferdinand Krings is the pastor of St. Boniface. Father Krings is a German and likes to keep old world practices in his church. So the Angelus is rung regularly.

"But I cannot tell you one thing about this," Father Krings replied when asked about the case. "I am not permitted to talk on this subject."

"Who says you can't talk on this subject?" the priest was asked.

"I must not even answer that question," replied the priest.

"But tell us of your church bells," he was asked. "Do you have just a bell or are there chimes?"

Priest Tells of Bells.

There are two bells, and they ring together," was the answer. The bells of St. Boniface can be heard several miles in the quiet country air. And it is in that district that the search is being conducted.

That portion of Cedar county is ideal for a hideout. The country is in the Missouri river hills and is very rough. The roads are poor. There are no through trails in the county and few through automobilists pass that way. In the last three years the district has been hard hit by drouth and many farmers have left their farms and gone into town until times get better. For that reason there are many unoccupied homes and farms. Officers point out that the territory is ideal for a hide-out for kidnapers.

While the officers will not talk, the fact that the search is continuing indicates that the hide-out has not yet been discovered.

And—the bells of St. Boniface rang out this evening as usual.

[Copyright: 1934: By the New York Times.]

MONTE CARLO, March 10.—The king and queen of Siam left by auto for San Remo, Italy, today. They will leave there tomorrow night for Rome where they plan to stay three weeks. After visiting England in May they will go to the United States. In September the king intends to have an operation in New York by Dr. Wheeler, who previously attended him. It will be an operation for a cataract on his eye.

MILDRED HARRIS.

Asheville, N. C., March 10.—(AP)—Mildred Harris, former wife of Charlie Chaplin, was married here tonight to William P. Fleckenstein, owner of a tabloid musical show in which both are appearing at a local theater.

The ceremony was performed in the interval between first and second night performances.

Miss Harris was Chaplin's first wife. They were divorced several years ago.

Fugitive Is Unable to Find New Refuge.

Expresses Thanks to Greece.

In order to do it properly Insull issued further orders that two statements be prepared in Greek. The agent who was to have bought the tickets and written Insull's letters tonight said one was to have been an expression of thanks to Prime Minister Tsaldaris. The other was meant to be a public valedictory, distributed through the Greek newspapers to the Greek public expressing his appreciation for their hospitality.

That Insull will go by Thursday is by no means certain. There is only one means of his quitting Greece before then. That is on an American export line boat, the Exminister, sailing on Monday or Tuesday. It is a cargo ship with accommodations for passengers.

If Insull should buy tickets on the Aquitania, however, and show them to the Greek government, it is doubtful that the cabinet would hold him to a stop watch.

Fights Immediate Departure.

Every effort will be made by Insull's family circle to resist his departure within the next five days. Mme. Helene Kouryoumdjoglou, the fugitive's intimate friend and his professed hostess and adviser to both him and Mrs. Insull, tonight said:

"I'll go to Prime Minister Tsaldaris tomorrow. The Greek government can't expell Insull by Thursday, if there is nowhere to go. I will demand that governmental influence be used so he can get visas. He can't be kicked out when all countries have refused to have him. If the government means to enforce this order the cabinet will have to help Insull observe it."

It is perfectly true that Insull can not get a visa to any other country. He has been seeking a visa from various legations here for the last three days. They all refused, and it is partly for this reason that he reached his decision this morning to return to Chicago and face the music.

TRADE PACT SEEN AS CHIEF NEED OF U. S. IN FRANCE

The Market Is There; Main Obstacle Is Uncertainty.

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, March 10.—A commercial treaty between the United States and France is the primary condition for the extension of American trade with this country, according to the unanimous opinion of American trade officials and business men here.

In this field at least the mistakes of governmental policy on both sides have created a situation in which private initiative is helpless. There is no question but that new markets could be worked up in France and the old ones expanded, to the mutual profit of the two countries, but business men here say it is no use even to think about it while the present uncertainty exists.

Uncertainty Is Big Obstacle.

The great obstacle to the development of American trade here is not airtight quotas and insurmountable tariff barriers. What is really serious is that the American importer here or the American shipper at home can never be sure just what treatment he is going to get and, therefore, cannot calculate scientifically possible expenses and profits of any operation.

Whenever new trade legislation is put into effect in France, such as changes in the customs tariff or modification or extension of the import quota system, there regularly follows a period during which uncertainty prevails as to what treatment the United States is to receive finally. Weeks, often months, elapse before a decision is reached, and in the meantime it is the "worse favored nation clause" which is applied to American goods.

Such situations are constantly arising, and are frequently interpreted as discrimination by France against America—an important factor in the bitterness of Franco-American commercial relations, which is one of the things impeding trade expansion. In reality these situations are simply due to the fact that the United States has no established trade status in this country.

Past Failures Recalled.

President Roosevelt's announced policy of extending America's foreign trade through mutual concessions has aroused fresh hopes here that a Franco-American commercial treaty is at last in sight.

So far the history of America's trade relations with France has been a record of failures to achieve such an accord. When former Ambassador Walter E. Edge arrived in France he announced that he regarded the realization of a trade treaty between the two countries as the most important object of his mission. Negotiations, which had been carried on desultorily for many years, were resumed with fresh vigor, but once more they resulted in failure.

The stumbling block was the problem of tariff concessions. France was unwilling to accede to the request of the United States for most favored nation treatment as regards customs rates on the ground that such a concession could be made only in exchange for reductions by the United States of tariff rates on leading French exports. The United States government, on the other hand, maintained that its customs tariff, with its single scale of rates, applied to all countries alike.

As a result the United States is still without established trade rights in France, with the exception of the so-called consular convention of 1853, which has been amplified by the modus vivendi of 1910 and the provisional agreement of 1927.

U. S. Position Defined.

To understand Franco-American trade relations today it is necessary to follow the evolution of the present French customs tariff since its inception in 1892, with its double scale of rates—a general tariff and a minimum tariff. The general tariff was to be applied to countries having no commercial treaty with France. The minimum tariff was to mark the limit of concessions to be made in commercial treaties.

It was only in 1910 that the position of the United States was really defined by a modus vivendi providing minimum rates of duty for a number of American products and maintaining the prevailing general tariff rates on the remainder. It is this modus vivendi which is still largely employed today by the French government in determining the position of the United States whenever there is a doubt as to the real intentions of the legislative bodies.

The French customs reform of Aug. 30, 1927, involved the United States in new difficulties by imposing heavy products. A formal protest was lodged by the American government with the French authorities, in which the United States expressed its readiness to engage in negotiations in view of a commercial treaty.

An exchange of notes ensued, in which the two governments took definite stands. The French government, in exchange for reductions of rates for American goods, demanded such reductions or adaptations of the American tariff as might appear necessary to permit the sale of certain specific French goods on the American market. The American government, in reply, indicated that the tariff on imports did not envisage the conclusion of a treaty of reciprocity in regard to rates of duty.

Reach Provisional Pact.

This exchange of notes was followed by verbal negotiations, the outcome of which was a provisional arrangement pending the conclusion of a commercial treaty. A decree dated Nov. 15, 1927, gave a list of 471 items adversely affected by the reform of Aug. 30 on which the rates of duty were materially lowered.

Since 1927 there have been a number of more or less extensive tariff increases and a good many instances of isolated tariff changes. In practically all cases the French customs administration has employed the following method in applying the new rates to the United States:

1. Goods subject to minimum rates by virtue of the modus vivendi of 1910 have been maintained on the same basis.

2. All other goods have been subjected to the new general tariff, consequently goods formerly receiving the benefits of intermediary rates have had that relative advantage withdrawn, even when the new minimum rates have been higher than the intermediary rates in question.

U. S. Embassy Intervenes.

It is true that in the majority of cases intervention on the part of the American embassy or the American Chamber of Commerce in France has finally resulted in a readjustment of the position of the United States. But such readjustments have never been foregone conclusions and in many cases have been obtained only after long and persistent efforts.

In certain instances the French government has refused outright to make any readjustment outside of commercial treaty negotiations. And even when the best solution that could be expected was obtained a considerable amount of time and many customers were lost to American interests to the advantage of foreign competitors receiving most favored nation treatment by virtue of commercial treaties.

GIRL ASKS POPE'S CONSENT TO WED BUDDHIST RULER

Oriental Romance Hits a Religious Snag.

SAIGON, French Indo-China, March 10.—[U.P.]—The projected marriage of the young Buddhist emperor of Annam to a Christian commoner was carried to the pope at Rome today in an effort to reconcile the religious differences of east and west.

Bao Dai, the 21 year old ruler of the ancient oriental kingdom, proposes to wed Marie Nguyen Hou Nao, a westernized commoner of his own race who has been brought up in the Catholic faith. Marie, who is 18, appealed to the Vatican, asking permission to marry the Buddhist emperor.

Seek Compromise on Children.

The situation developed an extraordinary mixture of "east is east and west is west." The emperor's bride-to-be is the daughter of an Annamite who is the retired prefect and former governor of the commercial town of Holon, adjoining Saigon. While a native of the country, she is a naturalized French woman with western ideas. She was brought up in a Catholic convent in Paris and refuses to rejoin the Buddhist religion.

It is a case of true love and the young emperor, also educated in France, has shown no disposition to force his bride into a change of religion. However, the Annam laws provide that the children of the royal pair must be Buddhist if they claim succession to the throne.

The prospective empress, therefore, presented to the pope the difficult problem of a compromise whereby girl children of the union would be brought up Catholics, while male children would be Buddhists, entitling them to succession.

Spurns Bride from Harem.

The emperor himself has been strongly influenced by western ideas, having studied for six years in Paris. He refused the insistent suggestions of the country's mandarins that he marry some one of imperial blood from the royal harem, explaining that he prefers the more common, democratic ideals of the west.

The wedding, set for March 20, was expected to go through, although the attitude Rome would take was open to question. The emperor has caused his subjects perturbation by his western learnings, having shown a preference for dancing, tennis, ping-pong, and other occidental diversions.

POPE PIUS TO ELEVATE FRENCH NOBLEWOMAN TO SAINTHOOD TODAY

VATICAN CITY, March 10.—(AP)—Student priests and pilgrims from a dozen American countries made eager preparations tonight to attend the canonization ceremonies at St. Peter's tomorrow for Blessed Luisa de Marillac, co-founder of the Daughters of Charity.

Elevation of Blessed Luisa to sainthood has aroused the particular interest of Catholic America because the order which the new saint helped to found has numerous chapter houses there. Among them are found those of Chicago, St. Louis, Normandy, Mo.; Emmitsburg, Md., Baltimore, Philadelphia, Brooklyn, Niagara Falls, N. Y., New Orleans and Santa Barbara, Cal.

Tomorrow's ceremonies will start when Pope Pius enters the basilica in the sedia gestatoria, or portable throne, preceded by cardinals, bishops and officers of the Vatican armed forces. After hearing petitioning cardinals ask three times for Blessed Luisa's elevation to sainthood the pontiff will bring the ceremonies to a climax by pronouncing in Latin the words that will make her saint.

Blessed Luisa was born to a noble Parisian family in 1591. Both her father and mother died when she was 13. A few years later she married the Chevalier le Gras, who left her a widow in 1625. In the early years following this latest bereavement she became a co-worker of Father Vincent de Paoli, a charitable priest who has already been made saint. Between them they evolved the order of the Daughters of Charity.

Pope Urges Dominicans of World to Drive Out Heresy

VATICAN CITY, March 10.—(AP)—Pope Pius today exhorted the Order of Dominicans throughout the world, especially the lay members of the order, to rally to the standard of St. Dominic and drive out heresy. His exhortation was included in an apostolic letter to the Rev. Father Martino Gillet, general of the Order of Dominicans, commemorating the seventh centenary of Dominic's canonization. He recalled the reliance that the popes have placed on the Dominican missionaries to drive out heresy in the era of the inquisition and urged modern Dominicans to "follow the example of the founder."

Mexican Judge Frees Priest Held for Criticizing Regime

JUAREZ, Mexico, March 10.—(AP)—The federal judge today freed the Rev. Father Salvador Uranga of the Juarez mission, who was jailed Tuesday on a charge of criticizing the federal government while speaking in opposition to co-education in public schools.

Going Places

Buick

Buick is going places this year. Now, as always, the public is quick to take to the different as well as the new. In Buick, it recognizes a new kind of motoring which is finer as well as different. That is what the new Buick is built to deliver—with all the unfailing dependability and performance for which Buick is noted. . . . Without question, this finer motoring begins with the gliding ride as only Buick gives it, which is being more and more widely and favorably discussed as new Buick sales mount up. Safety and convenience and ease enter in, in the form of Buick's new center point steering, its new vacuum power brakes and its new automatic starting. . . . The rich luxury of body accommodations goes hand in hand with the alluring beauty of Buick's new styling in the symmetrical windstream manner. . . . The dominating feature of Buick ownership is satisfaction, gratifying and enduring. The buyer knows beforehand—by report if not by personal contact—that Buick owners regard their cars with something like the affection they give to a friend. Don't you want to own the car which will be a true friend as long as you have it and which this year is going places?

"I only regret that I have but one life to give for my country."
—Nathan Hale.

MOSCOW, BERLIN, WASHINGTON.

Stanley Baldwin's view of the creaking coaches of state might be of interest in America for its classification. "It is quite true," he said, "that the state coach of this country may be going through heavy ground and the wheels may be creaking, but are you sure the wheels of the state coaches of Moscow, Berlin, Vienna, and even the United States, are not creaking also?"

With examples of absolutism near by and at a distance Great Britain has been drawing back from the plunge the others took. It may not be true as Mr. Baldwin said that men and women everywhere are looking to Britain today as the last stronghold of freedom, but it may be that the British character will resist the counsels of folly and despair when they are in full control elsewhere.

That the United States should be given a rating with Moscow, Berlin, Rome, and Vienna need not astonish Americans even if they are taking the short view of their new developments. The tall talk about the American revolution is heard abroad. The statesmen of Great Britain have studied the purposes, procedure and probabilities of the planned society here. Long ago they realized that its tendency would be to pass on from emergency to a fixed scheme of life which might destroy the old values in American society, put the citizenship into squads, platoons and regiments for discipline and control and infuse the mass with some Muscovite or Teuton fever.

Americans are taking their prospects lightly. They now appear mercurial. If they can justly place reliance upon their fundamental reserve of common sense they may regain their balance. To the British the issue is at least doubtful. We can hope that the American optimism is better founded than the British skepticism. It may be remarked that the British have not yet cared to take the American chances, although they must accept some responsibility for the American conditions. Before they drew back from wayward courses and abandoned a radical government for a conservative one, they had set some examples. They had given the United States an illustration of governmental responsibility for individual upkeep. They had made the dole and taxes a menace to their security and furthermore, even under a conservative government, they managed to avoid the terms of a debt contract.

Before the United States denounced the obligations of its gold debts to its creditors and arranged for payment in debased currency, it had before it the example of the British failure to honor in full the obligations of contract. Repudiation, however disguised by other names, started in Europe. Great Britain is a party to it. Now the United States has undermined the foundations of dependable, honorable dealings between man and man, nation and nation. The uncertainty of the world springs largely from that.

DIZZY DEALING IN CONGRESS.

The Illinois legislature may not pass a bill which is not defined in its title and which is not restricted to the single object indicated by that title. This constitutional requirement was adopted because too many jokers had been attached to bills as riders in the older days. The legislators might vote to create a farm drainage district in St. Clair county and find that some bright boys had granted a corporation franchise. One old timer went home to explain how he came to vote for his own divorce.

Congress has no such limitations. It mixes its legislation at a dizzy pace and congruity has no voice in the matter. Preposterously irrelevant subjects are joined, often trickily and sometimes in downright bad faith. It was an old British parliamentary device to hand the king something he must have with something he didn't want tacked on to it, his supply bill, for instance, with something added to it which parliament wanted and he opposed.

Twice the United States has given effect to far reaching colonial policy by riders to other bills. The Platt amendment determines the relations of this country to Cuba and limits the power of Cuba in international affairs. It was attached to the army appropriation bill passed in March, 1901. At that same time the first civil government in the Philippines was authorized in the Spooner amendment to the army appropriation bill. Exaggerated as it may seem, congress could have tacked the whole industry control bill to an appropriation against the boll weevil.

Congress can log-roll various interests into support for a conglomerate bill. It can confuse the veto power just as parliament once confused the king. These practices give national legislation a deceitful and tricky aspect. They are too loose and flighty. They forbid the consideration and deliberation supposed to be inherent in national law making. If it is bad public policy to permit a state legislature to proceed in such fashion it is even worse that congress should do so. A procedure reform is needed.

THE NEW DEAL, SOUTHERN STYLE.

The President, in approving an appropriation of 40 million dollars for crop loans to farmers, said it would be the last appropriation of the sort he would favor. Hereafter farmers in need of such credits must apply to the newly organized production credit associations.

The government first made seed loans in 1921 as an emergency measure to assist farmers who had been victims of flood or drouth. The first appropriation was 6 million dollars. In all about 180 million dollars has been lent, of which approximately 70 per cent has been repaid. The interest rate was 5½ per cent. The costs of administering the loans have exceeded the amounts collected in interest.

The federal government never should have embarked upon this lending program, and certainly there can be small excuse for seed loans by a government whose principal policy toward agriculture is to bring about a reduction of the acreage seeded. Unfortunately the President's declaration cannot be regarded as marking a new policy toward lending to private citizens. He plainly states that the farmers are still to obtain government money, but instead of getting it directly on application of the farmer to the government the money is to be obtained from locally managed credit associations financed with government funds. The principal difference will be that the larger farmers, who may be expected to dominate the associations, will benefit most and the small farmers will suffer most from the change. There is little reason to think that the taxpayers will be any better off under the new plan than under the old.

In the corn belt the change will be of relatively small consequence. In the wheat belt the new policy may work a considerable hardship to the poorer farmers. The principal effect of the change will be felt in the cotton belt, because small farmers in the south were the principal beneficiaries of the seed loans, and, unless all signs fail, will have great difficulty in obtaining credit from the production credit associations.

Here is one more nail driven in the coffin of the impoverished share croppers and tenant farmers of the south. The AAA, by insisting upon acreage reduction, has threatened to deprive perhaps a million of these forgotten men of their means of livelihood. The Bankhead bill, which has the approval of the administration, is calculated to make the acreage reduction mandatory and thus prevent any change of heart on the part of Mr. Wallace from relieving the distress which acreage reduction must cause. Now, in order to make life still more difficult for such of the share croppers and tenants as survive the Bankhead bill, the government proposes to cut off the credit which these forgotten men have come to expect and without which many of them will be unable to put in a crop.

The political implications of the government's policies with respect to cotton deserve much more attention than they have received. It is already apparent that the administration is doing what the large landowners and cotton speculators want the government to do. The Negroes and poor whites of the south are not only unrepresented in Washington, they are misrepresented. Southern Democracy is in the saddle. It speaks for the relatively prosperous. Acreage reduction and credit withdrawal together are to reduce the production of cotton and thus fatten the pocketbooks of the richer planters and speculators. That is the fact, and it is no less heartless and no less threatening to law and order in the rural south because it happens to be called the New Deal.

Editorial of the Day

A NEW GAG THREAT?

[Boone, Ia., News-Republican.]

The press has apparently won the right to the freedom of utterance which it has always been guaranteed by the constitution. At least that provision is included in its code and has been signed by the President. The press may go on saying what it wants to, barring libel and obscenity, from which it was already prevented by strong laws.

But a new gag threat is apparent in that mechanical agencies upon which the press depends for its existence are in danger of being tampered with through the new bills presented to congress that are designed to control radio, telephone, and telegraph.

Just what form the proposed legislation will take is as yet uncertain. One bill proposes a commission to control wire and wireless communications. The radio is already checked to a certain extent because it is under a licensing system. If stations broadcast programs not considered desirable by the radio commission there is the possibility their license may not be renewed. Possibly a similar plan is to be applied to telegraph and telephone communications.

In this proposed legislation there is an intimation that new laws will be made controling what is sent over the wires. Does this mean that there will be a censorship of the facts supplied to the press also? Surely that hits at the freedom of the press.

With the government in control of all lines of communication regimentation of opinion would not be impossible. You have only to look at Italy to know that. When Mussolini came into power his first step was to oust dissenting editors, gain control of communications, and see to it that any information inimical to his aims was rigidly suppressed. Quite a few Italians who believed in their right to their own opinions died in the process, but now Italy goose-steps if Mussolini commands. Will the United States of America come to such a pass?

ON THE INHUMANITY OF MAN

Skokie Marsh, Ill.

Dear Sir: You will be grealy surprised, my dear sir, when I tell you that we have taken steps about the New Deal in this city.

When I say surprised I am reminded of the trifling circumstance of a noble lord who was immersed, as one may say, in the rapturous exercise of pressing the ruby lips of a parlor maid at the exact moment when his wife inopportunely glided into the room.

"Well, Allardyce," said her ladyship in a fine and freezing disdain, "I am surprised."

His lordship was an Oxonian whose flair for grammatical precision may fleetingly be described as passionate. He relinquished his embrace of the parlor maid with a poise and dignity conferred by four quarterings of nobility and, in a tone which was temperate yet conspicuously pedagogic, said: "No, my dear Olivia. You are not surprised. I am surprised. You are astounded."

Now that I have humored my slender proficiency in language I may resume by saying that if you are not surprised it must be the fault of my narrative, but this is neither here nor there, as the old gentleman said when he was told that his only trousers had been destroyed by fire.

Well, as I was on the point of saying when I was interrupted by the droll reminiscence of the noble lord, the leading merchant in our little city is Horatio Cuddles. Mr. Cuddles carries a complete line of groceries, men's and women's wear, choice hams and bacons, hay and feed, jewelry and notions, coal and wood, your patronage solicited and satisfaction guaranteed, to say nothing of his motto, which is that a satisfied customer is the best advertisment. Mr. Cuddles had been noticing, with a good deal of anxiety, that his stock of firewood was becoming distressingly gaunt. This opened his mind to doubts of a grave and alarming consistency.

Mr. Cuddles is a man of the most artless and prosaic simplicity, and yet, necessity being, as we are led to believe, the mother of invention, he was inspired to adopt an expedient which was not as devoid of guile as might be expected of one of Mr. Cuddles' Arcadian naïveté. He bored a hole about two inches in diameter in one of his lengths of firewood, filled it with gunpowder, tamped it snugly, and then corked it up with such nice craft as would deceive the most incredulous. He carefully laid this cannonball carelessly at the forepart of his woodpile.

Two evenings later Hap Moley, our village tosspot, was drowsing swinishly by the kitchen stove, his stockinged feet basking luxuriously in the oven while the forlorn Mrs. Moley puttered about with the evening meal for her sovereign when the roof of the stove ascended spiritedly to the ceiling, accompanied by a most astonishing thunderclap. There was a momentary storm of pigs' knuckles, skillets, and cast iron. Mr. Moley's eyes flew open with owlish gravity as one of the stove lids fetched him a whack on his shin. The next moment he was caressing his throbbing tibia, hopping deliriously about on his remaining leg while he bellowed his lamentations in a tragic baritone that rattled the window panes as far as Libertyville.

Now, it probably was Kismet in person that directed the footsteps of Mr. Quintus Oxley that evening. Mr. Oxley is our photographer. Mr. Oxley speaks of his workshop as his stewjo, he peers dreamily into the future when you are speaking to him, and is known to read books with such titles as Whither and Is This Russia? Mr. Oxley is the local administrator of the New Deal.

Having been interrupted in a pleasant cogitation on the subject of the proletarian periwinkle or perhaps the imprevalence of perspicacity by what apparently was a salvo of coast artillery, and being further stimulated to attention by Hap Moley's moans of anguish, Administrator Oxley determined to penetrate the situation with firmness and celerity. He mounted the decaying stairs which clung precariously to the side of a two story wooden building which in its turn leaned wearily against its next door neighbor. In the rear he found Mrs. Moley applying a torrid mustard poultice to her husband's lacerated shank while Hap regarded her movements with rueful interrogation. Administrator Oxley entered the room at the precise moment when the hot mustard caught a vigorous hold of Mr. Moley's bruised cuticle. Mr. Moley discharged a scream in lyric soprano which caused the administrator to recoil involuntarily. In so doing he seated himself abruptly in a chair containing the glutinous embrocation which Mrs. Moley was applying to the shinbone of her suzerain. With singular dexterity, however, Mrs. Moley laved the scorching poultice from her husband's aching limb and attended Mr. Oxley's postern with such delicacy that calm was presently restored and Mrs. Moley stood meekly repentant, an attitude which the administrator and Mr. Moley contemplated with obvious skepticism.

The sagacious Mr. Oxley, perceiving that the stove had exploded, reasoned with rare acumen that something had caused it. He questioned Mrs. Moley narrowly and brought out the fact that the firewood had been purchased by Mr. Moley from Cuddles' general store, where a satisfied customer always is the best advertisment. Mr. Moley felt himself obliged, under the circumstances, to corroborate this evidence, preferring a convenient falsehood to a confession of petty larceny.

Mr. Cuddles was summoned by Administrator Oxley to explain. I have described Mr. Cuddles' character. He is a man of worth, of gentleness, of sterling quality. He had tamped powder into the wood, but it was his wood. He couldn't deny that his wood was for sale. He couldn't prove that Mr. Moley had stolen it. He couldn't confess that he had laid an iniquitous and felonious trap for a fellow creature.

Administrator Oxley leaned his thoughtful brow against his artistic forefinger and rendered judgment.

Mr. Cuddles must pay thirty dollars to replace a stove which Mr. Moley had garnered from the city dump, pay his medical bill, as well as suitable compensation for Mr. Moley's involuntary idleness. Hitherto his idleness had been joyously voluntary.

PLUME.

CREDIT GOOD.

"I suppose you've been out with that Scotch fellow again!" roared an irate father as he caught his daughter creeping in late one evening.

"Yes, daddy," she answered meekly.

"Did he buy you anything?"

"Only an ice cream."

"O, he did, did he? Well, if that's all he thinks of you, you're not to go out with him any more. Here's fourpence to pay for the darned ice."

It was some time before the girl saw her Scotch friend, and when she did she held the fourpence out to him and said: "I'm awfully sorry, Jock, but father told me to give you this money to pay for the ice cream you bought me."

"That's all right," replied Jock. "A was na' in a hurry for it."—Everybody's Weekly.

WHEN CHICAGO HAD CHOLERA.

Whenever there arises a disposition to feel downhearted because of failure to control some disease such as cancer, we gain courage by remembering some of the health problems that have been solved—some of the diseases that have been far worse scourges than cancer is or has ever been. One of these is cholera. Cholera has been known to paralyze countries and kill by the ten thousand in a short space of time. Not so very long ago epidemics of cholera periodically swept over all the well inhabited parts of the North American continent.

The village of Chicago was chartered in 1833. One of the first acts of the village trustees was to order every householder to clean up his premises that the infant community might escape cholera. The next year the danger was thought to be great. The history of Chicago health contains this statement on June 6, 1834: "Fear of cholera impelled the trustees to direct the town supervisor to remove and abate all nuisances. This did not appear to be enough, since we find that on Aug. 5 next, in pursuance of their policy of cholera prevention, the trustees passed an ordinance making it a penal offense to throw straw, shavings, dung, dead animals, carrion, putrid meat or fish, entrails, or decayed vegetables into any sewer, ditch, drain, street, river, alley, or lot."

On Aug. 22 a special meeting of the board of trustees was held, the object being to take further action against cholera. It was evident the people could not be trusted to protect themselves. They were warned of the penalties for disobedience of the ordinance of Aug. 5. The commissioner of streets was ordered to clean up the village. A vigilance committee was appointed to inspect all premises and houses and to force the people to clean up. The supervisor was given power to order every man to work on the streets, cleaning ditches and drains and removing the filth from the streets and alleys. Any man who refused to work as he was ordered to do could be fined five dollars. Provision was made for a cholera hospital and a board of health was appointed.

The health history report for 1835 stated that they had no means of knowing the mortality from cholera during the date 1834, as no records of deaths were kept.

One good was accomplished by the cholera fright. That was the organization of a board of health. The legislature passed a special law, giving the village of Chicago the right to protect itself against cholera and other diseases. This action was taken Feb. 11, 1835. Action under this law was taken at a meeting of the trustees of the village held in the Presbyterian church on June 12. The first action of this first legally constituted board of health related to cleaning up the town—at that time the means of preventing cholera that was accepted as being about all that could be done. There has been progress in this century of Chicago's life.

TRY GETTING MARRIED.

Nervousness writes: I have become very nervous of late, due mostly from looking in the looking glass and seeing those superfluous hairs grow on my upper lip and the down around my chin. This almost drives me insane. Then, after a while, I decide it is natural for women to have hairs on their upper lip, and, as a matter of fact, have taken special notice of women and every one of them has. Of course, some have more than others. And then again I console myself by saying that no one ever gets as close as I have the mirror to me. I hope I will overcome this nervousness as I really have brought it on myself.

REPLY.

The marriage cure is the best one for the bearded lady condition. The year 1936 is a leap year. But women are coming into their own and the initiative may belong to women even earlier.

Superfluous hairs can be removed by the electric needle properly used. The cure of morbid fears is up to the subject. Medical service may help after a fashion, but the patient must do most of the job.

WHY TAKE THEM?

M. V. writes: I am one of those who cannot take calomel without disastrous results. Is there some milder remedy that can be used to advantage in occasional bilious attacks?

REPLY.

There are, but why take them?

Go on a very light diet for several days. Eat very little food except fruit and sour milk and not very much of that. Take a glass of warm normal salt solution before breakfast. Take an enema if need be.

ADVICE IN MARRIAGE.

H. M. writes: Should a girl who has had tuberculosis marry a healthy fellow, or would she better off with a fellow who also has had this sickness? Should she consider having children? This girl is in excellent condition and is considered an arrested case.

REPLY.

A great many arrested cases of tuberculosis marry and become parents without harming themselves or any one else.

Whether you should marry or not is a question for others to decide.

CURE IS DIFFICULT.

H. J. R. writes: What is atrophic rhinitis? Is it curable?

REPLY.

FROM ACROSS THE SEA

BY JOHN POWELL.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

DAIREN, Japanese Leased Area, South Manchukuo.—There have been many striking changes in Manchukuo since the writer visited here two years ago. At that time active warfare was proceeding between the Japanese army and numerous Chinese armies, remnants of the old Manchurian forces which owed allegience to Marshal Chang Hsueh-liang, the last Chinese ruler in the territory.

The most noticeable change is in the prosperity of this port of Dairen. Dairien has benefited tremendously from Japan's military occupation of China's northeastern provinces and is bustling with activity. There isn't a vacant shop in the city. Department stores are filled with customers buying up large stocks of new merchandise on display.

The merchandise is almost 100 per cent Japanese. One sees very little international goods, such as are available in the Chinese ports of Tientsin and Shanghai. For example, the writer failed to find any of the familiar brands of American tooth paste or smoking tobacco, and if there is a single article of American wearing apparel on sale in Dairen, it is not in evidence in the stores. Also there are no American pens, pencils, or office supplies excepting typewriters.

Dairen is a spear-head of Japanese economic and military penetration into the Asiatic continent and the business men and industrialists of the island empire are making the most of it.

There are various reasons why Dairen has jumped from almost complete stagnation to the heights of boom stage prosperity in the brief period of two years. First, Dairen has been the chief port of entry and exit for the thousands of Japanese soldiers who have seen service in Manchukuo. The numbers passing through here sometimes average 5,000 daily. The same also applies to military equipment, which frequently clogs the extensive municipal piers. This means the expenditure of large sums here by the soldiers themselves and also by the army for labor and food supplies.

But there are other and more important reasons. In 1931, the year of the outbreak of the Manchurian affair, the South Manchuria railway for the first time in its history lost money. The amount was comparatively small, about $1,500,000, but it constituted unmistakable evidence that the South Manchuria railway, half of which is owned by the Japanese government had been defeated in the long "battle of railways" in Manchuria, which had lasted for practically a quarter of a century.

The Chinese had completed their railway system, which roughly paralleled the S. M. R., and had begun work on an extensive new harbor at Hulutao, on the Gulf of Liaotung, which threatened to rival Dairen. The Russians also had improved Vladivostok and had reëstablished their complete control over the Chinese Eastern railway in north Manchuria. The Japanese monopoly which had existed at Dairen and in the 650 mile South Manchuria railway for so many years had been almost completely broken.

It was at this point that the Japanese army took the situation in hand and now, after two years of almost incredible military activity, Dairen's and the railway's prosperity have been restored. The unfinished jetties which the Chinese were constructing at Hulutao are gradually being washed away. The rival Chinese railways were taken over and now are being operated as a part of the Japanese system, suddenly expanded from 650 miles to more than 2,000.

As for the Russian port of Vladivostok, once a serious competitor of the Japanese port as an outlet for Manchurian raw products, it is now dead. Japanese interference with the Russian government owned Chinese Eastern railway has completely stifled Vladivostok, because the railway was the chief feeder of the Russian port.

Also, the cutting of the British-financed Peiping-Mukden railway at Shanhaikwan, where the Great Wall reaches the sea, has contributed much to the prosperity of Dairen. This city now controls the neck of the bottle through which must pass the trade of a territory about one-fourth the size of the United States.

INSURANCE.

Joliet, Ill., March 2.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Five years ago my brother left home and we haven't heard from him since. We have heard rumors of his whereabouts but have never been able to locate him. My mother holds two insurance policies on him. She wanted to drop these policies but was told by the insurance collectors that she would be foolish to do so because same will become collectible after seven years from his disappearance. 1. Is this true? 2. What efforts would the insurance company make to locate him? 3. Would he be declared dead by law or just by the insurance company? 4. If the policy were paid by the insurance company and later he should turn up, what would be the outcome?

F. C. R.

1. It is true that a person is presumed dead after seven years unexplained absence, but if you have heard rumors that the person is still alive, this might rebut the presumption of death; also some insurance policies stipulate against the liability of death on the presumption.

2. It would be wise for you to assume that they would make sufficient efforts so that they would locate him if he is still alive.

3. The company could insist on court proceedings.

4. Depends on facts that are not before us. You should recognize that the insurance solicitors are making a profit out of the continuance of the policy and hence are not in a position to give you disinterested advice. If a substantial amount is involved we would advise you to go over the wording of your policies with a disinterested broker.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

WAGE CLAIM.

Chicago, March 2.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—An Illinois corporation made a voluntary assignment of its assets to a trustee for the benefit of its creditors, owing me wages of $205 for clerical hire. The sale of the assets brought about $2,500. There were other salary claims which, including mine, totaled $900. After many efforts the trustee paid me 50 per cent of my claim on account. Since then the bank in which the trustee deposited the funds has gone into receivership. 1. Is my claim for salary due for clerical hire a preferred claim? 2. Does the law make a distinction between wages due for labor and wages due for clerical hire? 3. The trustee did not pay my claim in full as he claimed he wished to pay a dividend of 5 per cent to the general creditors. I did not consent to this. Had he a right to make a payment to general creditors without first paying preferred claims in full? 4. Would the trustee be personally liable for the claim due me for failure to pay same to me after proper demands had been made and he had sufficient money to satisfy all preferred claims?

A. M. E.

1. Wages to the extent of $600 earned within three months of bankruptcy are a preferred claim against the employer. This does not mean that they would be a preferred claim against the employer's bank.

2. The wording of section 104 of the bankruptcy act is "Wages due to workmen, clerks, etc." We see no distinction.

3. No.

4. Depends in part on what court orders he secured.

CONCERNING EXECUTIVES' SALARIES.

Chicago, March 3.—As an habitual reader of THE TRIBUNE I have noticed mention made now and then of the government investigating the high salaries of business men. Some such investigations have been made of the high salaries of movie stars, the tobacco manufacturing executives, railroad presidents, and others.

Now and then I notice that some comparison is made between these salaries received by business executives and the salary received by the President of the United States. It has frequently been said that the President receives $75,000 a year, whereas some railroad executives may get $150,000 a year and a moving picture star $1,000,000 a year, all of which is put forth to produce the effect that some are getting much more money than they are worth.

It seems to me that it is about time the public is told about the salary of the President of the United States and the salary of some of our governors. I do not have the exact figures before me, but I do know that the President of the United States is given, in addition to his salary, something around $100,000 to $150,000 for the upkeep of his home, which is the White House; another $25,000 or $30,000 for the upkeep of his automobiles and chauffeurs, and I believe there is a little item of $75,000 for traveling expenses. I am told on good authority by people in Washington that the total salary, therefore, of the President of the United States is in the neighborhood of $350,000, on which he pays no taxes.

Take the case of a typical governor in any state in the United States. In one case, that of Illinois, the salary of the governor of the state of Illinois is, I understand, $12,000 a year, which seems very niggardly, but when you add to this the fact that the governor is permitted to have an additional item of $40,000 for the upkeep of his gubernatorial mansion and additional money for his expenses, etc., I am reliably informed that the salary of the governor of the state of Illinois is in the neighborhood of $140,000, on which he does not pay taxes.

Please understand that I am not criticizing the public executives who get these salaries, as, no doubt, they are worth all they get, but it seems to me that it should be pointed out to the public the truth about their salaries, and especially the fact that these salaries are net to them on which they do not have to pay any 22 per cent surtaxes, etc. It should also be pointed out that when these gentlemen were private citizens they were compelled to pay for their own homes, buy their own cars, pay their own servants, chauffeurs, etc.

In closing I want to say that I am a firm believer of large salaries for business executives, providing they are business executives. Progress in industry and commerce always has been principally due to the superior ability of a few men, and most of the resulting income which is being received and enjoyed by the masses of the people is due entirely to the leadership and direction of a few. Mr. Edison invented the electric light and received millions as a result of his invention, but the great masses of the people received many billions as a result of the building up of the electrical industry, and so it goes. Reduce too much the number and size of the large prizes to be won in business and individual initiative will be stifled.

HOW ABOUT STARVATION?

Chicago, March 6.—Are there any firms in the city of Chicago who have not placed a ban against stout girls over 25? Are we supposed to find some painless way to commit suicide?

DISGUSTED.

MENANDER SAID IT FIRST.

Lombard, Ill., March 6.—In a letter to Voice of the People, signed by Burton L. Fryxell, attention is called to the error of attributing to Virgil (Vergil is better) the well known quotation from Terence: "I am a man, and nothing human is alien to me." Why not go a step further and give credit where it really is due? "The Self-Tormentor," the play from which the quotation is taken, is, as Terence himself states, a translation from the Greek of Menander's "Heautontimorumenos." Even the title is a translation. Terence wrote nothing original, and four of his six plays are translations from Menander. Most of Menander's plays have perished and of "The Self-Tormentor" only a few lines remain. But the noble sentiment, whether we get it by way of Greek or Latin, is Menander's.

WILLIS A. ELLIS.

COSTS IN MUNICIPAL COURT.

Chicago, March 6.—Our city council has pulled another fast one on its citizens. By an ordinance effective March 5, 1934, the council not only increased the filing fees and costs in the Municipal court, but in many instances doubled and tripled them.

Previously the costs for filing a case involving a sum up to $1,000 was $5, and under the new schedule the costs are $10. The appearance fees have risen from $2 to $8, depending upon the amount for which the suit is brought. As a matter of fact, the costs for filing appearances in certain cases in the Municipal court (always so elaborately described by Chief Justice Sonsteby of the Municipal court as "the poor man's court") is more costly than filing an appearance in our state courts.

Can any of my fellow citizens or brother attorneys suggest a remedy?

JULIUS MILLER.

FASTER FREIGHT.

Wheaton, Ill., March 5.—Recently one of your readers protested that we should not expect fast railroad travel, as it would interfere with the movement of freight. Then why not speed up the freight? Why not cut up the long, slow moving, unwieldy freight trains into smaller, fast moving units? The rails were never intended to be used for warehouse purposes.

Merchants and manufacturers don't want to tie up money in inventory. They want quick delivery. That is why the railroads have lost so much freight and passenger traffic. The roadbed is the railroads' most valuable asset. Why let it gather rust? The Union Pacific has shown the way with its M-10,000.

F. A. RITCHEY.

TOO MUCH BASEBALL.

Chicago, March 6.—In a few weeks the baseball season will be with us and every radio station in the Chicago area will be broadcasting the games. Often it will be impossible to get anything on the air but the baseball game. There is something radically wrong with a radio system which allows such duplication of service, such complete disregard for the wants and wishes of those who do not care to listen to the baseball games.

Joplin, Mo., March 2.—Formerly when a babe was in danger of being lost in the woods he was trained and instructed to remain in one spot until rescued. Modern practice seems to be to rush in any direction, just so you rush, regardless of consequences of its unknown destination.

GERMANY SEIZES A HIGH OFFICIAL OF B'NAI BRITH

Nazis Stirred by Speech of Jewish Lodge Head.

BERLIN, March 10.—(AP)—Dr. Benno Walter, vice president of the Jewish grand lodge, B'Nai Brith, of Germany, was reported in authoritative circles today to be under arrest by secret police.

A declaration he was said to have made in an address at Muenchen-Gladbach, that the German government would not dare to suppress the lodge because of its foreign connections, was understood to be the motive.

Five Lodges in Germany.

B'Nai Brith has about five lodges in Germany. Its grand lodge is in Cincinnati and there are chapters in the United States and some European countries.

Secret police refused to discuss the reported arrest, and non-German Jews would not reply to questons regarding the matter except to say they had heard Walter had been arrested.

Seven Nazi storm troopers, identified in an official report only as "young men," were sentenced to three to six years at hard labor by a Berlin special court today for kidnaping Otto Schlesinger, member of a prominent Chemnitz family of Jews.

Find Victim Mistreated.

The official account said the victim had been mistreated during his detention and that the abductors had tried to fire on police while escaping.

Other sources said Schlesinger had succeeded in arousing his wife's suspicion over his absence by sending her a telegram incorrectly signed.

For days the police were unable to trace the kidnapers, but when a fake ransom package was handed over at the gate of the zoölogical gardens in the heart of the busy Berlin west end, waiting storm troopers captured the seven youths.

Meanwhile secret police announced the dissolution of the big Sonnenburg concentration camp "for enemies of the state," but added that 2,800 political prisoners were still held in other Prussian camps.

40 Prisoners Freed.

Baden police said 40 prisoners were freed today from camps at Kislau and Ankenbuck, among them Adam Remmele, former Baden state president. All those released gave pledges that they had changed their minds about Hitlerism and were convinced the chancellor alone could save Germany.

Meanwhile Hermann Wilhelm Goering, premier of Prussia and federal minister, in a statement said rumors were being circulated about the secret police under his command which tended to discredit and undermine confidence in the body.

"The Prussian police does not resort to notorious methods employed by past and present political police in other European countries," he said.

ASSAILS HITLER.

Bernard S. Deutsch, secretary of the United Jewish conference, when informed of the arrest of Dr. Benno Walter, in New York said:

"This is in line with the indictment of Hitler made at Madison Square Garden. [A meeting of 20,000 persons held a mock trial of Hitler in Madison Square Garden on March 7 and found him guilty of crimes against civilization.]

"Reference was then made to the fact that Hitler is suppressing all those who criticize the policies of his government. It's all part of his persecution of the Jews."

GOERING PRAISES PRUSSIANISM AS SPIRIT OF UNITY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, March 10.—"The energies of 66,000,000 Germans are being united in a single fist like a powerful hammer. Germany will show that she is no longer the anvil, but is able to wield the hammer to force her own fate."

Thus spoke Gen. Hermann Wilhelm Goering, premier of Prussia and reichsminister of aviation, today in the town hall of Potsdam, "the cradle of Prussianism," as he inducted Gen. Friedrichs as mayor of Potsdam.

"It may be symbolical that the chief of Potsdam is a soldier whose duty it is to preserve the true Prussian spirit," Goering declared.

Though the German states are supposedly abolished, Goering sang the praises of Prussianism which, he said, prepared the way for the "true German empire in the seven years' war and in the Austro-Prussian and Franco-Prussian wars.

"Now again it must provide the foundation of the new German empire," he continued. "Outwardly Prussia may disappear from the map, but the greater spiritual Prussia will enforce the idea of a united Germany."

The mayor presented the freedom of the city of Potsdam to Goering, who, he said, had restored the Prussian soul to the country and enabled Prussia to resume her mission."

PRINCESS ILEANA LAUDS FASCIST RULE OF AUSTRIA

Speech in Beer Hall Is Cheered by Throng.

MOEDLING, Austria, March 10.—(AP)—In a crowded beer hall in this residential suburb of Vienna Princess Ileana of Rumania spoke to the women of Austria tonight on behalf of the Fascist heimwehr régime.

"We have real leaders now," declared her imperial highness, who is a daughter of the Dowager Queen Marie, a sister of King Carol of Rumania and the wife of Archduke Anton of Hapsburg.

"The best thing we can do is to go along with them," she asserted.

Police Patrol Streets.

The hall was jammed with men, women, and children. Many heimwehr [or home guard] members were present. Police armed with rifles patroled nearby streets.

There had been a long wait and long speeches, during which an immense quantity of beer was consumed, before Ileana—simply clad in a gray frock and wearing a little Styrian hat with the heimwehr feather and green ribbon—rose to speak. She was enthusiastically cheered.

"I thank you for greeting me so," she began.

"I hope you will understand the spirit of my words and overlook my errors [the princess spoke German clearly but with an accent].

"We have just gone through sad days in Austria and we women who remained at home, perhaps, feel it the most. But we can say now that God was with us.

Princess Pleads for Peace.

"Austria won. Now we need peace. I believe we women can do most in that direction. Each of us has a home, each has children, and each wants for her children happier and fairer days than we have experienced.

"Because we understand, we can reach out our hands to others. We must hold together and build the bridges of reconciliation. I don't mean by this to intrude into politics.

"The home comes first. But in a country where each home feels the crisis we all must help.

"The heimwehr is our opportunity. We have real leaders now. The best thing we can do is to go along with them—for Austria and for the home land with a whole heart and with all our love."

Strikes at Politicians.

VIENNA, March 10.—(AP)—Politicians were singled out by the heimwehr today as targets in a new Fascist cleanup of the country. At the same time the heimwehr relaxed its campaign against the Nazis, releasing many Nazi prisoners from jails or concentration camps.

The new move against the politicians was revealed in a proclamation, bearing the signature of Richard Steidle, federal commissar for propaganda, which appeared in Innsbruck newspapers. The proclamation served notice on "politicians who sat in upholstered chairs" during the recent civil war to clear out and make room for "youthful forces."

It was asserted that the politicians, including those of Chancellor Englebert Dollfuss' own Christian Social party, "still do not seem to grasp the fact that their time has gone. The heimwehr will deal most sharply with them in the future and will see to it that the heimwehr program—which is also Chancellor Dollfuss' program—will be carried out in pure and unadulterated form."

500 SOCIETY FOLK ATTEND WAR PLAY IN LAKE FOREST

More than 500 society folk filled the Deerpath theater in Lake Forest yesterday afternoon for the première of the civil war play, "Ellsworth of the Zouaves," written and directed by Louis E. Laflin Jr. The play was presented by the Gargoyle club at Lake Forest academy as one of the high lights in the academy's annual festivities. Assisting the students were members of the academy faculty and several Lake Forest residents.

The story is a portrayal of the life of Col. Ephraim Elmer Ellsworth, the first officer killed in the civil war. Although Mr. Laflin's second name is Ellsworth, his family bears no relation to that of the civil war hero. His grandfather, the late George H. Laflin, a Chicago pioneer, was one of the colonel's great admirers.

Andrew Rebori Jr. played the lead as Col. Ellsworth. Miss Patricia Wilson, a student at Ferry Hall, took the rôle of Carrie Spafford of Rockford, with whom the hero fell in love. Mrs. G. Corson Ellis, Mrs. Hermon Dunlap Smith, Mrs. Woodbury Ober, and Waldo Morgan Allen were among the other members of the cast.

BEG YOUR PARDON

THE TRIBUNE of March 8 stated that Martin Nemerovski, 8 years old, 3703 Arthington street, was killed in a freak motor accident by a truck owned by the Bowman Dairy company. The truck which killed young Nemerovski was owned by the Borden Farm Products Company of Illinois.

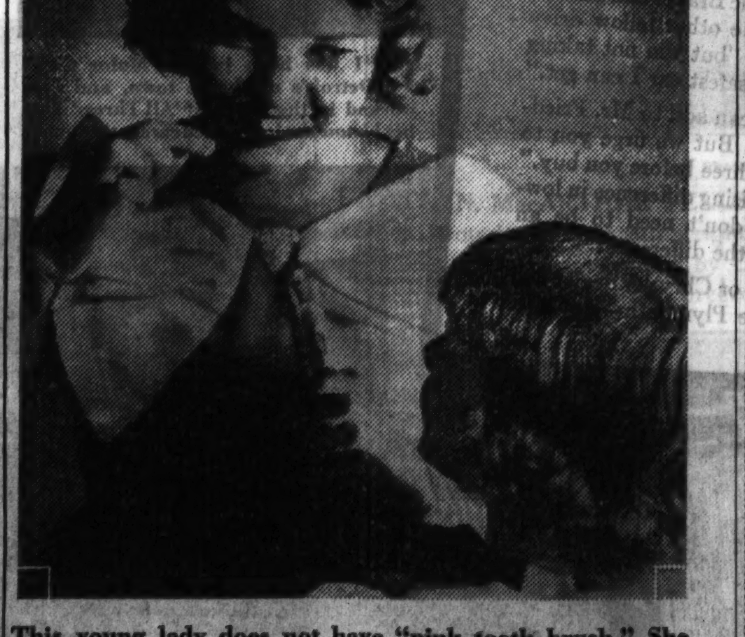
MASSAGE OF THE GUMS HELPS KEEP GUMS FIRM AND TEETH SPARKLING



This young lady does not have "pink tooth brush." She massages her gums with Ipana as well as cleans her teeth with Ipana. When she wants to smile—she can smile!

Many dentists recommend Ipana Tooth Paste for massaging the gums as well as for cleaning the teeth.

If you brush your teeth regularly, you have every reason to hope that they will shine out as clean teeth should.

But what if you find that after brushing, they look just as dingy and foggy as before!

"Look to the condition of your gums!" dental authorities now tell you. "Sluggish, tender gums may affect the appearance of the teeth as well as the soundness of the teeth."

Children in school, boys and girls in high school, people in dentists' chairs—all hear a great deal these days about massage of the gums.

Gum massage, your dentist will explain, stimulates circulation through the tissues—sends fresh blood coursing through the gums—aids in keeping the gums firm and healthy.

Modern foods are too soft to exercise the gums. But massage makes up for this lack.

"Clean your teeth with Ipana," your dentist will probably suggest. "Then put a little more Ipana on your brush or fingertip, and massage it directly into your sluggish, lazy gums. The ziratol in Ipana aids in toning and firming the gums."

Firm gums are not likely to bleed. And in avoiding "pink tooth brush," you are in little danger of gum troubles like Vincent's disease and gingivitis—you are safer from pyorrhea. Your teeth themselves are safer.

Entrust the health of your mouth to Ipana, the scientific modern tooth paste. And have sparkling teeth!

CUBA BREAKS UP STRIKES; DOCK WALKOUT ENDS

Phone Workers Straggle Back to Jobs.

HAVANA, March 10.—(AP)—Facing attack from all sides, various groups of strikers who have kept the island in a state of turmoil for a week were giving ground tonight. It appeared that the government was well on its way to success in efforts to restore normalcy without bloodshed.

Strikebreakers broke up the walkout of dock workers and the Cuban Telephone company began enrolling substitutes for striking employés.

The bombshell decree of President Carlos Mendieta, ordering all strikers throughout Cuba to return to their jobs by midnight tonight or suffer the consequences, apparently was the deciding factor in the situation.

Defy Syndicate Chiefs.

Many syndicates were reported collapsing as members returned to work in various lines against orders of syndicate chiefs.

Enrique Pedro, chief of the national police, declared that the strikes had been definitely broken, especially that of the dock workers. While a strong military guard protected them, 200 nonunion workers obtained jobs at the piers and unloaded an incoming vessel as strikers kept their distance.

Proprietors of various commercial houses formed unions against the strikers in various mercantile lines, following the formation of unions by the strikers.

See Radical Movement.

The government's main attention, however, was focused on the dock and telephone walkouts because officials considered them as the backbone of a radical movement for a general strike.

The telephone company today struggled to normalize the service, which was paralyzed two days ago by the strike.

Some workers committed acts of sabotage on company property last night, it was learned today. The cables to the Vedado section were cut and circuit boxes were destroyed in several uptown buildings. Officials expected that full service would not be resumed on the island system for several weeks but said repairs would be hastened.

100 Radicals Arrested.

More than 100 radicals have been arrested in Havana and the drive on agitators will continue.

It was learned that Col. Fulgencio Batista, commanding the army, expects a shipment of tear gas momentarily and this will be used instead of bullets against any disorderly demonstrations.

Barbers, butchers and a number of commercial employés went on strike at noon but the movement was classed as a minor one. After a barber shop was raided by strikers, soldiers were put on guard, and meat shops also were protected.

Gabriel Landa, secretary of communications, said tonight that the government had discharged 200 employés of that department because they had tried to organize a "little soviet" in the ranks of workers. In Camaguey province, the governor suspended five workers syndicates.

Dissension in army ranks was reported at Holguin in Oriente province.

System of Mass Education by Radio Launched in Italy

ROME, March 10.—(AP)—A system of mass education by radio was inaugurated today when Commendatore Giulio Santini, director general of elementary schools, spoke to hundreds of thousands of school children listening in from classrooms sprinkled over all Italy. Schools even in the most rural districts have been equipped with receiving sets to pick up lessons to be broadcast daily from Rome.

Japanese Reports Charge Soviets Seize Fishing Boat

TOKIO, March 10.—(AP)—Vernacular newspapers today printed dispatches from Seishin, Corea, saying soviet Russian authorities had seized a small Japanese fishing boat, the Tajima Maru, and its crew of 14 fishing off the coast southeast of Vladivostok.

GENEVIEVE BRADY IS AWARDED LAETARE MEDAL OF CATHOLICS

MRS. GENEVIEVE GARVAN BRADY.

South Bend, Ind., March 10.—[Special.]—The Laetare medal, which is bestowed annually by the University of Notre Dame upon an outstanding member of the American Catholic laity, was presented today to Mrs. Genevieve Garvan Brady, New York philanthropist and vice chairman of the national women's committee on welfare and relief mobilization. Mrs. Brady preceded Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt as chairman of the committee.

John McCormack, the tenor, was named recipient of the award last year and received the medal at the Notre Dame commencement exercises in June. Mrs. Brady is the eleventh woman to receive the award. The Laetare medal has been given annually for 51 years and has become recognized as the highest honor a Catholic lay person can receive in the United States.

In 1926 Mr. and Mrs. Brady were honored by Pope Pius XI. with the titles of duke and duchess, the highest honor conferred by the pontiff upon the laity in this country. During the war Mrs. Brady was active in assisting the allies and was decorated by the French government and the late King Albert of Belgium. For many years she has been a member of the national board of the Girl Scouts of America and is now chairman of the board, having succeeded Mrs. Herbert Hoover.

10 Slain as Mexican Indians Shoot Up an Inauguration

MEXICO CITY, March 10.—(AP)—Dispatches from Michoacan today said 10 persons were killed in the village of Ziranuato when a group of 2 Indians shot up the inauguration of a new municipal president.

RUSSIAN POLICE NAB GERMANS AS NAZI PLOTTERS

Priests and Protestant Clergymen Arrested.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WARSAW, Poland, March 10.—Alleging that they have uncovered a plot to spread the doctrines of National Socialism [Naziism] in Russia among soviet citizens of German nationality, Moscow headquarters of the G. P. U. [secret police] arrested a number of Germans. Twenty Catholic priests and several Lutheran pastors are among the prisoners.

One of the prisoners is a son of Bishop Meyer of Moscow, who was employed as a messenger for the Austrian legation and a Lutheran vicar of Kharkov.

Forms New Commissariat.

Few details have yet appeared in the soviet press, but the G. P. U. hints at sensational developments.

It is likely a theatrical trial will be staged by the G. P. U. since the central committee of the communist party at its last meeting decided to form a new commissariat to correspond to a ministry of interior.

The project, which is expected to appear in the soviet press in the coming week, involves a reorganization of the G. P. U. The special G. P. U. army will be converted into a federal police force. It will be headed by G. G. Yagoda, at present vice commissar of the G. P. U.

Similar to the decree abolishing the cheka, which in reality only changed the name of that organization to G. P. U., the new decree merely converts the G. P. U. into a commissariat of the interior.

Homosexuality Criminal Offense.

Today the soviet press published a new decree making homosexuality a criminal offense. The decree prescribes 3 to 5 year sentences. According to the Moscow correspondent of the Polish Telegraph agency, the decree has caused a sensation in Moscow since soviet laws concerning sexual matters are lax and punishment is only provided for rape offenses against minors.

According to soviet official circles, the decree is inspired by military authorities who allege that homosexuality is widespread among artistic circles in Russia. They charge that foreign spies are succeeding in using these individuals for anti-soviet activities. The correspondent reports many arrests among these circles in leading soviet cities.

FRANCE AIMS TO HAVE 6,000 AIRPLANES BY THE END OF THIS YEAR

PARIS, March 10.—(AP)—A rapid expansion of France's air force was forecast tonight when the finance committee of the chamber of deputies approved a government request for 980,000,000 [about $63,700,000] for new aviation equipment in 1934 and 1935.

Gen. Victor Denain, minister for air, spoke in behalf of the project. He told the committee that France will have 6,000 military and civil planes by the end of the present year. At present there are about 5,300 planes in France.

The special air program followed close on the announcement by the government yesterday that it needs a bond issue of three billion francs [$195,000,000] to make France invincible in the air and on the land and water. A bill providing for this issue was introduced in parliament.

The chamber today voted on appropriation of 75,000,000 francs [$4,855,000] for new gas masks for the army. Special civilian training in the use of a gas masks and emergency shelters during air raids was ordered by the government.

Government of Brazil to Pay Half of Farm Debts

RIO DE JANEIRO, March 10.—(AP)—President Vargas created a "chamber of economic readjustment" today to direct a farm mortgage relief program under which the Brazilian government will assume 50 per cent of farm mortgages and declare a 30-year moratorium on the remaining 50 per cent. He also signed regulations authorizing the issuance of $40,000,000 in obligations to be given mortgage holders for half the value of mortgages.

URGE VIENNA TO BAN 'SHAMEFUL' MAE WEST FILM

VIENNA, March 10.—(AP)—The semi-official Reichspost vehemently demanded today that the film "She Done Him Wrong"—starring blond Mae West—be suppressed in Vienna. The movie in which the American actress is featured as "Lady Lou" opened here yesterday.

Vienna, the newspaper pointed out, can again call itself "Christian Vienna" as a result of the crushing of the Socialists.

But, it was added, if the capital is to continue rightly bearing this name, such a "shameful film" as the West picture must vanish from the screen. The Reichspost said the picture was "nothing but uncouth and clumsy eroticism, appealing to the basest instincts."

IDENTIFIES HEART VICTIM.

Chester Gerszewsik, 2939 Allen avenue, yesterday identified the body of a man who dropped dead of a heart attack while picking up coal along the Chicago and Northwestern railroad tracks in the Albany Park district as that of his father, Thomas, 71 years old.

BYRD SHIP BATTLES TERRIFIC GALES AND SNOW IN ANTARCTIC

S. S. BEAR OF OAKLAND, en route to Dunedin, New Zealand, March 10.—(AP)—[By Mackay Radio.]—Fighting its way northward through blizzards and the darkness of approaching winter, this vessel of the Byrd Antarctic expedition rolled and pitched today in some of the worst weather recorded in polar history.

The ship vibrated all over as the terrific gales lashed it from stem to stern and tons of seething water broke continually over the decks. Officers said "the efficient manner in which the members of the crew have carried on their duties in this historical passage speaks volumes for the American youth of today."

The sturdy old barkentine left the Bay of Whales Feb. 26 after a long struggle with the ice pack of the fast freezing Ross sea.

DUBUQUE MAN ENDS LIFE.

Dubuque, Ia., March 10.—[Special.]—Sam Peaslee, 33, son of a prominent local manufacturer, committed suicide last night by shooting himself with a revolver.

Alfonso Wins Possession of $55,800 in Securities

LONDON, March 10.—(AP)—Former King Alfonso of Spain today won a long pending action against the Bank of Vizcaya, the high court here having awarded him possession of securities valued at approximately £11,000—$55,800—which both Alfonso and the bank had claimed. Alfonso contended that the securities were his own property and purchased with his own funds some years ago. The bank claimed that Alfonso's only rights were governed by Spanish law and his only remedy was to sue the bank in Spanish courts.

SUFFERS STROKE IN AUTO.

Dubuque, Ia., March 10.—[Special.]—Ferdinand Grimme, 70, Sherrill's Mound farmer, died at the wheel of his automobile while driving here today. Physicians said he suffered a paralytic stroke.

MEXICANS STONE CHINESE STORE OWNERS; JAIL 12

TIJUANA, Mexico, March 10.—(AP)—About twelve "White Guards," members of the Nationalistas and Agrarians, were reported under arrest today at Ensenada following new outbreaks between Mexicans and Chinese merchants who attempted to open their stores, which were closed a month ago. Those arrested, it was said, were charged with rebellion.

Edmundo Guajardo, legal advisor for the Chinese, was reported to have advised the merchants to reopen their stores. The Chinese were stoned, reports said.

Since the trouble between Chinese and Mexicans started at Ensenada more than 200 Chinese have moved.

"I KNEW WHICH LOW-PRICED CAR TO BUY—I helped build ALL THREE!"

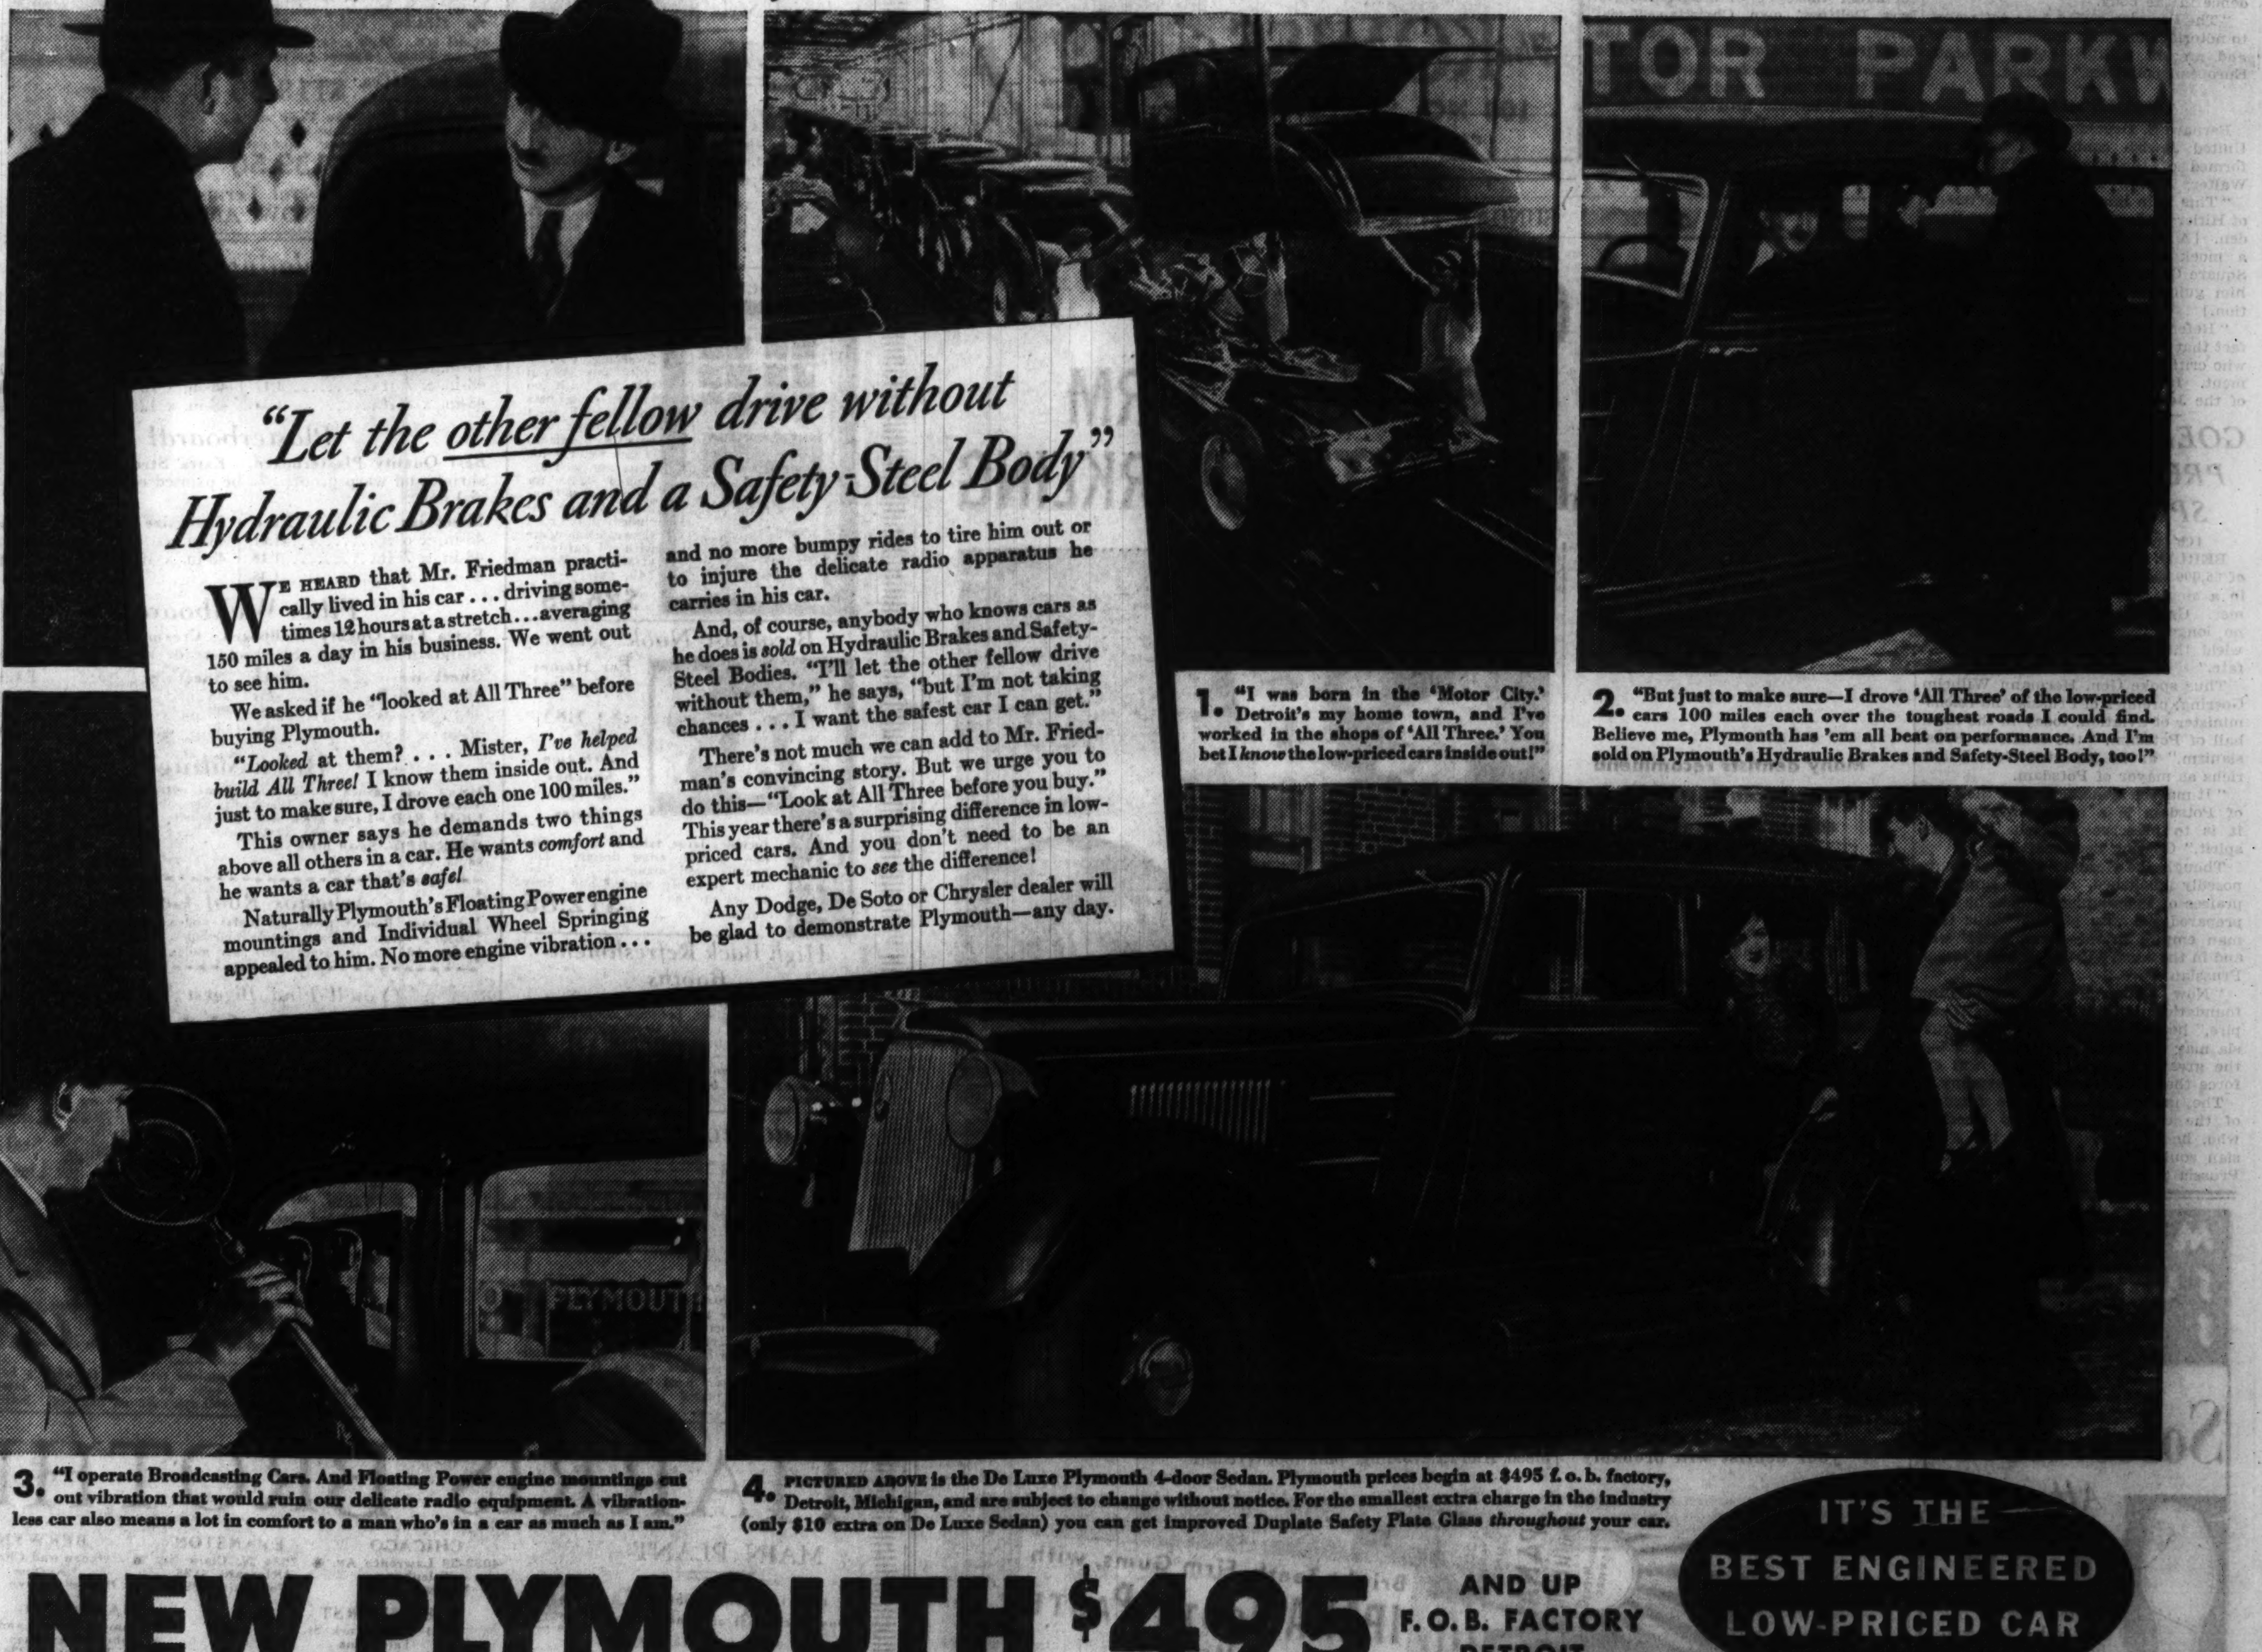
READ THIS CERTIFIED INTERVIEW WITH B. V. FRIEDMAN OF DETROIT, MICHIGAN



"Let the other fellow drive without Hydraulic Brakes and a Safety-Steel Body"

WE HEARD that Mr. Friedman practically lived in his car . . . driving sometimes 12 hours at a stretch . . . averaging 150 miles a day in his business. We went out to see him.

We asked if he "looked at All Three" before buying Plymouth.

"Looked at them? . . . Mister, I've helped build All Three! I know them inside out. And just to make sure, I drove each one 100 miles."

This owner says he demands two things above all others in a car. He wants comfort and he wants a car that's safe!

Naturally Plymouth's Floating Power engine mountings and Individual Wheel Springing appealed to him. No more engine vibration . . . and no more bumpy rides to tire him out or to injure the delicate radio apparatus he carries in his car.

And, of course, anybody who knows cars as he does is sold on Hydraulic Brakes and Safety-Steel Bodies. "I'll let the other fellow drive without them," he says, "but I'm not taking chances . . . I want the safest car I can get."

There's not much we can add to Mr. Friedman's convincing story. But we urge you to do this—"Look at All Three before you buy." This year there's a surprising difference in low-priced cars. And you don't need to be an expert mechanic to see the difference!

Any Dodge, De Soto or Chrysler dealer will be glad to demonstrate Plymouth—any day.

1. "I was born in the 'Motor City.' Detroit's my home town, and I've worked in the shops of 'All Three.' You bet I know the low-priced cars inside out!"

2. "But just to make sure—I drove 'All Three' of the low-priced cars 100 miles each over the toughest roads I could find. Believe me, Plymouth has 'em all beat on performance. And I'm sold on Plymouth's Hydraulic Brakes and Safety-Steel Body, too!"

3. "I operate Broadcasting Cars. And Floating Power engine mountings cut out vibration that would ruin our delicate radio equipment. A vibrationless car also means a lot in comfort to a man who's in a car as much as I am."

4. PICTURED ABOVE is the De Luxe Plymouth 4-door Sedan. Plymouth prices begin at $495 f. o. b. factory, Detroit, Michigan, and are subject to change without notice. For the smallest extra charge in the industry (only $10 extra on De Luxe Sedan) you can get improved Duplate Safety Plate Glass throughout your car.

DEMOCRATS AND G. O. P. DIVIDE UP ASSEMBLY SEATS

Avoid Contests in Fifteen County Districts.

In fifteen of the nineteen senatorial districts in Cook county candidates receiving the nomination for state representative in the April 10 primary will be assured of election without contest in November unless independent candidates are entered against them. Contests are assured in the other four districts.

This situation was disclosed yesterday when Democratic and Republican senatorial committees filed resolutions with the county clerk fixing the number of candidates to be nominated by each party for the three house memberships in each district. Their resolutions show that in the "setup" districts the two parties will nominate only three candidates between them. In the other four districts there will be contests as four candidates will be nominated, two by each party, for the three seats. These districts are the 5th, 6th, 7th, and 31st.

Seek to Increase Majority.

The Democrats are seeking to increase their majority in the house, the resolutions disclose, by trying to elect two representatives in the 5th, 6th, 7th, 17th, and 29th districts where the party division now stands at two Republicans and one Democrat. The Republicans are refusing to fight in the 17th and 29th districts by nominating only one candidate, but will give battle to keep their two seats in the 5th, 6th and 7th districts.

In the normally Republican 5th district, which includes the 6th and parts of the 3d and 7th Chicago wards on the south side, Representatives William J. Warfield and Josephine Perry, both Republicans, will, if they win the nomination, find two Democrats contesting with them for the three seats. A similar situation exists in the 6th district, which takes in Evanston and parts of several north side Chicago wards, where two other Republican representatives, Arthur E. Fischer and Drennan J. Slater, are seeking reëlection.

Mrs. Ickes Not a Candidate.

In the 7th district, which circles Chicago, taking in nearly all of the county on the north, west and south, Mrs. Anna Wilmarth Ickes, wife of the secretary of the interior and one of the two Republican representatives from that district, is not a candidate for reëlection. Her colleague in the house, Frank E. Foster of Harvey, is a candidate for one of the two Republican nominations. Two Democrats will be in the field here also.

In the fourth contest, the Republicans are seeking to wrest a seat from the Democrats in the 31st district. Two Democrats and one Republican now represent the district, which lies along the lake front between Goethe street and Devon avenue. The Republicans are out to capture another seat. The Democrats, who will have a fight to remain in the house, are Pierce L. Shannon and Mason S. Sullivan.

In the 17th and 29th districts, in each of which the Republicans are voluntarily dropping a seat, two of the sitting Republican members are not candidates for reëlection. They are Roland V. Libonati [17th] and Robert M. Woodward [29th]. Representatives Peter C. Granata [17th] and Joseph E. Farina [29th], Republicans, are seeking renomination. The 17th district lies in the near west side; the 19th takes in part of the far west side and Cicero, Berwyn, and Riverside.

Instructions Are Followed.

The lineup of candidates indicates that the Democratic senatorial committees apparently followed instructions in fixing the number of Democrats to be nominated in each district at two with the exception of the 1st and 3d districts. In each of these the Democrats have only one representative, and by their resolutions are consenting to let the Republicans continue to have the other two.

The situation in the 1st district illustrates the ease with which some of the representatives will win their seats. Here, Representative Harry L. Williams, Democrat, is the only candidate for the Democratic nomination. In the 3d district, Representative George Garry Noonan and four other candidates are contesting for the Democratic nomination.

While the Democrats will have two nominees in all the districts but two, the Republicans will have two candidates only in six of the 19 districts, the 1st, 3d, 5th, 6th, 7th, and 31st.

Vacant Store Is Damaged by Dynamite Bomb Blast

The front entrance of a vacant store at 3715 Roosevelt road was wrecked early yesterday by a dynamite bomb which also broke windows in adjacent shoe and furniture stores. Irving Singer, who operates two delicatessen stores on the northwest side, said he planned to open a third store in the building which was bombed. Questioned by Sergt. John Kelly of the bomb squad, he could give no reason for the blast.

BOARD TO DECIDE COMMITTEE POST CONTESTS TODAY

Complete Hearings on 75 Objections.

The board of election commissioners yesterday completed hearings on objections raised against petitions filed by candidates for ward committeemen. After the last case had been heard the board members went into an executive session, but announced after a few hours that their rulings would not be made public until today.

Objections had been filed against 103 petitions, but a number of those whose petitions were attacked withdrew, bringing the number of cases actually heard to about 75.

Kenlay Withdraws.

Among those withdrawing petitions, according to his own announcement, was Floyd M. Kenlay, former husband of a daughter of the late Mayor Cermak, who had filed for the Democratic committeemanship in the 44th ward. The election board said it could find no record of the withdrawal and proceeded with a hearing on an objection to his petition.

The board rooms were jammed during the hearings. Nearly 400 Negroes appeared to testify that they had legally signed the petition of Edgar G. Brown, Democratic candidate for 2d ward committeeman. An objection to his petition had been filed by Joseph T. Tittinger, the present committeeman.

G. O. P. Slate Indorsed.

An indorsement of the county slate set up by the regular Republican organization was announced yesterday by R. W. Ibenfeldt, secretary of the Republican citizens' committee. This committee, of which Orville J. Taylor is chairman, was organized two months ago to assist in harmonizing the various Republican factions.

The "rebel" Republicans, who are opposed to the regular slate, opened headquarters for a young men's division in the Hotel Sherman. They also announced that Mrs. Donald I. Graham will head the woman's organization for them.

At a forum held by the Illinois League of Women Voters at the Palmer house, the April 10 primary was discussed by Newton Jenkins, head of a Republican faction; Prof. Jerome Kerwin of the University of Chicago, and Mrs. W. W. Ramsey, chairman of the league's committee on nominations and elections.

LEAVES TO HELP PROSECUTION OF BOND LOOT CASE

Assistant United States District Attorney Edward A. Fisher left yesterday for San Antonio, Tex., under orders from Attorney General Cummings to appear in federal court there on Monday to aid the government's prosecution of Z. D. Bonner, former president of the Commercial National bank of San Antonio, and seven others who are charged with violating the national banking laws.

Bonner is charged with buying $500,000 worth of bonds alleged to have been stolen in the Clark and Adams street mail robbery on Dec. 6 of last year and selling them to his bank. The seven others named with Bonner in the indictment are John H. Cunningham, a San Antonio attorney; Harry N. Royster, stunt flyer and reputed air messenger of the gang; Izzie Lazarus, James Diaze, Louis Fishman, John Morrow, and Sol Stern—all alleged dealers in the stolen bonds.

Lazurus, Diaze, Fishman, and Stern, who have been held here charged with possession and conspiracy to sell the stolen bonds, were ordered removed to San Antonio to testify in the trial by Federal Judge Philip L. Sullivan.

WILLIAM MALONE QUITS MALLORCA; GOES TO GERMANY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PALMA, Mallorca, March 10.—William H. Malone, former chairman of the Illinois tax commission, left Palma today for Germany. Malone, who is being prosecuted by the American government on an income tax charge, had planned this trip to Germany for some months. Recently he told THE TRIBUNE correspondent that he would not return to Chicago until he had made it. He will visit Martin Polka, a business associate. Malone steadfastly denies that he owes any income tax, declaring that the suit was brought for political reasons.

Gets Bridewell Term for Tampering with Meters

Judge Francis Borrelli in the Desplaines street court yesterday sentenced John Coleman, 45 years old, to serve 180 days in the Bridewell on three charges of tampering with gas meters. D. J. O'Connell, inspector for the People's Gas, Light, and Coke company, said he found five meters in West Madison street restaurants which Coleman had altered so they would register about one-third of the normal flow of gas. Judge Borrelli said Coleman, formerly a superintendent of a Texas gas company, testified he had hit upon the idea of changing meters in restaurants to pay for his meals.

TAXES IN 19 PARK DISTRICTS DOUBLE IN 7 YEARS' TIME

1,300% Rise Shown in Ridge Area.

The taxes which property owners must pay for the operation of the 19 independent small park districts in which they live respectively in the city more than doubled between 1926 and 1932, inclusive. This was disclosed yesterday in tabulations prepared by the Citizens' Committee on Public Expenditures, of which Ernest R. Graham, the architect, is chairman.

The comparative figures show that the 1926 tax totaled $948,387, while the figure was increased to $2,079,463 for 1932. Taxes for 1933 will not be extended until next year.

Tax Skyrockets.

John O. Rees, technical director of the committee whose members are civic leaders interested in reducing the cost of government, would not comment on the significance of the figures. However, the tabulations showed that the tax burden in the seven year period tripled in three of the park districts and quadrupled in two.

In one instance—that of the Hollywood park system—the district's taxes were boosted 1,300 per cent in the seven years. In another, the Ridge park district, the jump was 561 per cent.

With a separation of corporate taxes from bond and interest taxes it is seen that the tremendous increase is in the latter classification. Bond and interest taxes increased almost 357 per cent, while corporate taxes were reduced approximately 9 per cent in the same six year interval.

Classification of Taxes.

Corporate taxes are levied and disbursed for operation and maintenance of the park systems, for salaries, labor, purchases and miscellaneous items. Bond and bond interest taxes are levied to meet the requirements of bond issues sold for construction of buildings, landscapings, paving, recreational grounds and even sewer systems.

It is asserted that credit for the fact corporate taxes did not keep pace with the rising bond and interest tax cost should not go to the park boards for any substantial efforts on their part to economize. On the contrary, it is declared that lesser increase is attributable to the fact that assessment values began dropping and continued after 1930, and to the fact that there is a limitation of a 15 cent tax rate for raising corporate taxes. Bonds may be issued up to 5 per cent of the assessed valuation of property within a park district.

Tax Tabulation.

The list of the small park districts with a table of their tax extensions for the years 1926, 1929 and 1932 show the trend in the tax burden placed upon the property owners:

The Ridge	129,284	52,849	19,541
West Pullman	21,420	32,028	18,780
Totals	$2,079,463	$1,515,159	$948,387

Total of bond and interest fund extensions in above districts, for 1932, $1,520,779; for 1929, $796,061; for 1926, $332,530.

Total of corporate extensions in above districts, for 1932, $558,684; for 1929, $1,019,097; for 1926, $615,857.

Each of the above park districts is administered by a board of five commissioners elected by the taxpayers within the district. Each has its own staf of employés, its own supervisors, lawyers and technical help. Each has the power to levy and spend taxes, and none is required by law to maintain a strict budgetary system of accounts and records.

Consolidation Sought.

At the April 10 primary four weeks hence the voters of the city can vote to consolidate these park districts, together with the major west, south and Lincoln park systems, into one park district under a single administration of five commissioners to be appointed by the mayor.

Civic groups last week organized a campaign committee to educate the public to the economical and administrative benefits which would come at once if the park consolidation act, which the state legislature voted last year to authorize the referendum, is voted upon favorably.

REP. SHOEMAKER OUT FOR SHIPSTEAD'S SEAT IN SENATE; 'DEMANDED'

St. Paul, Minn., March 10.—(AP)—Congressman Francis H. Shoemaker, Red Wing, today filed with the secretary of state as a candidate for the United States senate to oppose Senator Henrik Shipstead. Both are Farmer-Laborites.

The filing was made by the congressman's secretary and enters Shoemaker for the endorsements of the Farmer-Labor party at its convention to be held here March 27.

Accompanying the filing was a statement in which Shoemaker said he was "complying with a demand that comes to me from all parts of Minnesota."

Shoemaker, who several years ago served a term in a federal penitentiary for violation of the postal laws, is facing a charge of assaulting a taxi driver in Washington and a $100,000 damage suit filed against him by the taxi driver.

ELECTION FRAUD CASE CONTINUED FOR SIXTH TIME

Charges of fraudulent canvass against Mrs. Vivian Lyon, 5000 Cornell avenue, wife of former State Representative Sidney Lyon, and three other election officials of the 30th precinct of the 4th ward were continued yesterday for the sixth time by Judge J. G. Van Keuren, sitting in the County court. The alleged fraudulent canvass was made in the general election of Nov. 8, 1932. Judge Van Keuren in granting the continuance until March 24 said he expected by that time to have a ruling from the Illinois Supreme court on similar cases which have been appealed. Assistant State's Attorney John F. Cashen Jr. also requested a delay to enable him to present further evidence.

OIL TANK BLAST RAZES BUILDING; 4 MEN MISSING

Newark, N. J., March 11 [Sunday].—(AP)—Four Negro workmen were reported missing after a terrific explosion of a 2,000 gallon high flash oil tank wrecked a four story building at the Reilly Tar and Chemical company plant early today.

The explosion, accompanied by fire shook the entire eastern section of the city. The flames lifted meteorlike into the air, lighting up the snow covered meadows and engrossing three other buildings in the immediate neighborhood.

All available fire equipment in this section of the city was rushed to the scene and a search was begun of the ruins after the fire was brought under control.

FLAMES DAMAGE RUMSEY MANSION IN HURON STREET

Two fires attacked the old Rumsey mansion at 40 East Huron street last night and routed nearly fifty patrons from the Southern Tea shop on the first floor and more than twenty residents living on the two upper floors. The blaze originated in a flue. The first blaze was put out quickly, but a second fire started and firemen had to work fast to prevent the flames from spreading.

Damage was estimated at $1,000, chiefly from water and smoke, by Anna S. Bock, owner of the tea room. The building, now owned by the McCormick estate, was built in 1875 as a home by Julian S. Rumsey, civil war mayor of Chicago.

LAST OBSTACLE TO 1934 FAIR IS DISPOSED OF

Sign Contract Ordinance with Park Board.

The last legal obstacle to the 1934 World's Fair was disposed of yesterday by the signing of a contract ordinance with the south park board, which clears the way for full speed operations to complete the Exposition in time for the opening on June 1.

Until President Rufus C. Dawes of the Fair penned his name to the contract yesterday afternoon the huge project was practically nonexistent, legally. The contract was approved by Mayor Kelly, chairman of the park board, and the other members on Thursday and a special meeting was held yesterday to pass the supporting ordinance. An official copy was then sent to the Administration building at the Fair grounds for Mr. Dawes' signature.

400 Contracts Validated.

More than 400 contracts with exhibitors were validated by yesterday's formal ratification. The present skeleton organization of the Fair, it was said, will now be replaced by a full staff that will direct the manifold activities.

From now until June 1 the Fair grounds will be a scene of activity, with 7,500 men employed on projects involving the expenditure of more than $5,000,000, Fair officials said last night. A total of $550,579 received by A Century of Progress from exhibitors, concessionaires, and advance ticket sales, which has been held in escrow, is now released as a result of yesterday's action, for operating expenses and rehabilitation of buildings and grounds.

Favorable action by congress on a request for an appropriation of $400,000 for the federal government's own exhibit is expected soon, Maj. Lenox R. Lohr, general manager of the Exposition, said. The department of state had withheld its invitations to foreign countries to participate pending the completion of negotiations with the park board, and these may now be sent out.

Repeal Causes Change.

The 1933 and 1934 south park-Fair contracts are essentially the same, according to the officials. The most important change—caused by repeal of prohibition—is the addition of a clause in the ordinance which governs the sale of alcoholic beverages on the grounds. Each vendor must obtain a license costing $500 from the state liquor commission, and must also pay the Fair corporation $250, which will be turned over to the park board.

The Fair will receive a percentage of the receipts from each place selling liquor and has authority to restrict the liquor business as it sees fit. State and city liquor laws will also be enforced.

"The south parks expect to receive the $250 fee from between 50 and 80 places selling liquor," said George T. Donoghue, park superintendent. "This will enable us to employ 25 additional policemen in case the sale of liquor creates a greater police problem."

The new ordinance also removes Soldier field from the Fair's jurisdiction. This was done at the request of Fair officials, one of whom said last year's arrangement in this respect was "a pain in the neck."

The work that must be done by the Fair, such as repairing streets, is limited to $30,000 this year by the contract. In 1933 approximately $150,000 was spent in this manner, including building of viaducts and other work not necessary this year.

Park Board Reduces Bond.

The "faithful performance" bond required of the Fair was reduced from $1,000,000 to $275,000 in the new contract. The original bond was fixed in 1930, when it seemed that the Exposition might not prove dependable, and this fear became groundless last year, it was explained. The bond insures removal from the grounds of buildings and other improvements.

At present the Exposition shapes up as a $40,000,000 show. The estimated cost of the production last year was $37,000,000.

More than 22,000,000 persons attended the 1933 Fair, 9,000,000 of them from outside of Chicago. In pointing out the financial value of the Exposition to Chicago, President Dawes said that 1,560 conventions were held in Chicago last year, attended by 1,500,000 visitors, who spent $95,000,000. Stores increased their sales from 40 to 60 per cent, he added.

Thousands of workers in manufacturing plants in other cities will owe their employment to this year's Exposition. It has been estimated that for each man employed on the Fair projects here an additional 10 to 15 men will be employed elsewhere.

The interest of Chicagoans in the 1934 Fair was shown by the first week's sale of souvenir tickets at Marshall Field & Co. Placed on sale last Monday in special booths on the first floor, the tickets have sold at an average of 2,000 a day, and it has been necessary to add extra sales places. The tickets are in bargain books containing five general admissions and five concession admissions.

BLIND MAN ASKS DIVORCE; NAMES BLIND VIOLINIST

Claude Judge, a blind cabaret entertainer, filed a divorce bill yesterday in the Superior court charging that his wife, Mildred, who is also blind, ran away with another blind man.

Attorney Herbert A. Ellis, who filed the bill, explained that Judge, his wife, and the other man, identified only as John Doe, had a blind vaudeville act. Judge played the banjo, his wife sang and John Doe played the violin. While the trio was playing in California theaters, the attorney said, Mildred and the violinist suddenly decamped together.

Judge is now playing in a north side cabaret. He is 29 years old and lives at the Revere House, 427 North Clark street. In his divorce bill he expressed the belief that his wife, who is 24 years old, and the fiddler are now in Portland, Ore. The Judges were married June 14, 1929.

'93ers Meet Wednesday to Draft Plans for Fair

Members of the Association of Ninety-Three'ers will hold a "Do You Remember When" dinner Wednesday evening in the Boston Oyster house of the Morrison hotel to make plans for their participation in the 1934 A Century of Progress. The organization maintained a booth at last year's Fair at which 40,000 persons who attended the 1893 exposition registered. The dinner program will consist mainly of reminiscent stories and music, the president, D. E. Ward, announced.

Sentence Third Vice Ring Leader to Year in Jail

Judge Harold P. O'Connell in the Women's court yesterday imposed the third jail sentence in the investigation of the vice ring which employed escaped inmates of the Geneva School for Wayward Girls. He sentenced Walter Harris, alias Curly Pugh, 28 years old, 318 East 55th street, a Negro, to one year in the House of Correction and a fine of $1,000.

NEWS CARRIERS' ANNUAL BANQUET ATTENDED BY 600

Publishers Among Speakers on Anniversary.

Some 600 members of the Newspaper Carriers' Association of Chicago held their 14th annual banquet in the Gold room of the Congress hotel last night, talked shop, and heard and saw leading stars of the stage, radio, and screen.

The dinner marked the 28th anniversary of the founding of the association. Officers of the association, headed by Joseph Epstein, president, and editors and circulation directors of THE TRIBUNE, the Daily News, and the Journal of Commerce were present. P. T. Hummelgaard, vice president of the association, acted as toastmaster, and Paul Ash, orchestra leader, served as master of ceremonies.

From beginning to end, the banquet was a lively success. Talks were made by Mr. Epstein, Mr. Hummelgaard, Col. R. R. McCormick, publisher of THE TRIBUNE; Frank Knox, publisher of the Daily News; Louis Rose, director of circulation for THE TRIBUNE, and Max Annenberg of New York.

Mr. Epstein, in his address, described the duties of paper carriers, how they get the newspapers to the homes of readers in spite of the worst possible weather conditions. Col. McCormick discussed the carrier work and its relation to the newspapers and the public.

The entertainment program of the banquet was varied. There were singers, dancers, comedians, and orchestras. Entertainment was furnished by the Hotel Sherman, the Palmer house, the Morrison hotel, the Drake hotel, the Chicago, State-Lake, Palace, and Oriental theaters, and the Chez Paree night club.

The entertainers included the Duncan sisters, Romo Vincent, Frankie Masters, Verne Buck, Freddie Bernard, Martha Raye, Ruth Dennen, Carmine Di Giovanni, Jackie Heller, Irene Beasley, Pat Kennedy, Barbara Blane, Frances Willer, Beuvell, and Tova, Roth and Shay, the Eight Evans Co-Eds, and Shelia Barrett.

Bee Wedged in Ear Blinds Illinoisian After Removal

Bloomington, Ill., March 10.—[Special.]—A bee has blinded Clayton Moore of Littleton, Ill. When the bee flew into his ear several months ago Moore went to a physician, but the insect could not be dislodged. A week ago the bee was removed, but Moore became violently ill and lost his sight.

Gunmen Steal Pay Roll from Evanston Laundry

Two gunmen yesterday took a $650 pay roll of the French Hand laundry, 806 Dempster steret, Evanston, from two employés of the concern who were returning with the money from the Evanston State Bank and Trust company. The bandits drove up as Willian Reimer, 3438 Drummond place, and Arthur Cleland, 1739 Winona avenue, were parking a laundry truck, in which they had diven to the bank, at a side entrance of the laundry on Sherman avenue. The robbers forced them to hand over a canvass bag which contained the money.

FIRE DESTROYS MANSION.

Herrin, Ill., March 10.—[Special.]—The home of the late Dr. Hosea Ferrell of Carterville, father of Attorney Hosea Ferrell at Marion, was destroyed by fire today. Both the Herrin and Carterville fire departments were called to try to save the forty year old mansion, one of the landmarks of Williamson county.

DEMAND $20,000 OF FATHER AFTER GIRL IS RELEASED

Swampscott, Mass., March 10.—(AP)—Angelo Lopriore, whose daughter Elsie, 18 years old, reported she was kidnaped Tuesday night and questioned about her father's finances, received today a letter threatening death to his daughter and demanding $20,000.

The letter, mailed in Boston and signed "four masked men," declared the writers to be the slayers of a Boston girl found murdered in a south end bakeshop. The reference apparently was to the slaying of Ethel Zuckerman, 18 years old, found pinned to the floor of a bakery by a knife thrust through her throat. The writer asserted the Boston girl had refused to give money demanded.

The letter arrived while the police were still investigating Elsie Lopriore's story of being kidnaped Tuesday.

Farmers to Get 3.4 Cents a Quart for February.

BY PAUL POTTER.

The prices which the Agricultural Adjustment administration will require all milk distributors in the Chicago area to pay dairy farmers for milk delivered during February were announced last night by Frank Baker, local milk administrator. Milk consumed in Chicago and the suburbs during the period totaled 42 million quarts, Mr. Baker said.

The price to be paid by the distributors for fluid milk and for milk used for cream from Feb. 5 to 28, inclusive, is set at $1.57 a hundred pounds [3.4 cents a quart] and applies to 90 per cent of the dairy farmers' "base" or quota assigned them by the milk administrator. For all milk delivered in excess of this quota the companies must pay 89 cents a hundredweight [1.9 cents a quart].

Government Takes 1c.

For every 46.5 quarts [100 pounds] of milk the farmers delivered to dairies during the February period the government administrator is collecting 1 cent to create a fund to pay for the price fixing efforts. An additional 3 cents per 46.5 quarts is collected from the farmers' checks. Those farmers who are members of the Pure Milk association pay this money to their coöperative for administration costs, testing of their herds and milk, guarantees, and other expenses. A similar amount collected from the nonmember farmers is placed in a fund administered by Mr. Baker to give these farmers similar "benefits." PMA members pay still another assessment into a reserve fund for members who lose their Chicago market.

The first operations of the new federal milk pool scheme, as disclosed yesterday, are being watched nationally by dairymen, since this is the first application of Secretary of Agriculture Wallace's plan which he hopes will give all dairy farmers "an equal break" in the milk market. Milk companies failing to report their milk receipts and sales to the administrator are subject to loss of their federal milk license and possible fines of $1,000 a day for operating without the license.

May Lead to Court Fight.

The first breach of the AAA milk license, alleged to have been made by the People's Dairy of Cicero and L. V. Shissler of Lombard, is to be aired before the AAA, sitting both as judge and prosecutor, tomorrow morning. It will be a public hearing, at 610 South Canal street, and according to attorneys for the defendants may lead to a court fight in which the constitutionality of the AAA powers will be questioned.

Chicago milk companies, whose union drivers voted down a proposed pay cut last Friday, plan to meet tomorrow morning to determine their next move in seeking to reduce the costs of retail milk distribution. Dr. F. D. Walmsley, chairman of the dealers' committee bargaining with the union officials, said last night no plan of action had been formulated. Several dairies announced yesterday they were reducing the number of their milk routes and releasing union drivers.

Announcement also was made that H. Stanley Wanzer of Sidney Wanzer & Sons dairy, resigned yesterday as president of the Milk Council, Inc. Mr. Wanzer said his action was necessitated by pressure of his own business affairs.

Another bombing of an independent dairy plant was reported yesterday. The Elgin Home Dairies, Inc., 856 Preston avenue, Elgin, was bombed early yesterday. G. S. Abraham, manager, said the company had been selling milk at less than the generally accepted prices.

Grocer Shoots Robber After Holdup in Store

Henry Chott, 37 years old, grocer at 3635 West 31st street, last night shot and seriously wounded one of two men who had entered his store and robbed him of $4. The men demanded more money and Chott told them it was in his living quarters behind the store. They started back with him, but on the way he seized a gun and shot one of the pair, an unidentified youth about 20 years old, who was taken to the Bridewell hospital. The second man escaped.

G. E. Warr, Coffee and Tea Merchant, Is Dead at 65

George E. Warr, 65 years old, 1006 South Clinton avenue, veteran tea and coffee merchant, died yesterday at the Frances Willard hospital. He had been for nearly forty years secretary of Ivy Oak lodge, Order of Sons of St. George. He is survived by his wife and a daughter. Funeral services will be held at 124 Madison street, Oak Park, at 2 p. m., Wednesday.

Nebraska Woman Is Dead After Nose Bleeds 53 Days

Nebraska City, Neb., March 10.—(AP)—Mrs. Charles Dickman, 30, whose nose bled for 53 days, died today at a hospital here. The nosebleed started after a coughing spell and continued without long interruption until Mrs. Dickman's death. Half a dozen blood tranfusions were given here, but to no avail.

Playmate Calls Help

Betty Colson, 7 years old, 1423 Judson avenue, Evanston, was drowned yesterday when she slipped into an air hole in the ice on Lake Michigan at the foot of Dempster street. She was the daughter of Melvin E. Colson, a salesman employed by the Armstrong Cork and Insulation company. Her playmate, Betty Vance, 10 years old, 1245 Judson avenue, Evanston, searched the shore for a board or a stick to effect a rescue and, failing to find anything, summoned help from a nearby house. Both girls were pupils at the Miller school in Evanston.

BOSTON AUDIENCE CAPTIVATED BY JERITZA IN OPERA

Boston, Mass., March 10.—Mme. Maria Jeritza, international opera star, captivated a large and distinguished audience at the Shubert theater here tonight in the title rôle of the world premier of Rudolf Friml's operetta "Annina."

The famous Viennese diva revealed herself as a scintillating and capable actress in her first American adventure into lighter music.

"Annina," which concerns the love affair of a young American with a Venetian marchese, also marked the introduction to this country of William Thiele, one of the foremost European stage directors, who collaborated with Rowland Leigh and John Shubert in the book.

The settings by Watson Barratt won enthusiastic applause. Paul Haakon's dance, Parantella, in the first of the two acts also was well received.

Songs in the operetta that appeared destined to become hits were a love duet, "Romance" and "Longing."

STORM LASHES COAST FROM DIXIE TO NEW ENGLAND

New York, March 10.—[Special.]—Still another snowstorm, the second in three days, pelted the eastern seaboard today from New England to North Carolina.

In New York it was accompanied by freezing weather. The city's streets were coated to a depth of two inches. Street cleaning forces were kept busy at snow removal throughout the day. Snow sweepers kept most of the street car lines clear, and the railroads were not seriously affected, although the falling snow reduced visibility and caused some trains to run behind schedules.

The new storm was caused by a low pressure area that was centered off Cape Hatteras and moving rapidly northeastward. This disturbance resulted in storm warnings being ordered by the weather bureau from the Virginia capes to Boston.

Bust of S. B. Cobb Stolen from Cobb Hall at U. of C.

Hyde Park sleuths were asked last night to solve the mystery of a missing bust—a bust of S. B. Cobb that stood in Cobb hall, on the University of Chicago campus. The bust disappeared Thursday and because it weighs 75 pounds, university officials are naturally certain it was carried away. Search of near by fraternity and sorority houses failed to reveal the statuary. For years the bust has been a plaything for prankish students who decorated it with mustaches, decrepit hats and who sometimes put cigarets into its mouth.

Lutherans Plan World's Fair Charities' Convention

Plans for a World's Fair convention of the Lutheran Charities' Conference of the United States, to be held at the Morrison hotel July 10 to 13, were discussed by members of the local committee in charge of the conference meeting at the hotel yesterday. Attending the convention will be 700 delegates, including pastors, laymen, social workers, and deaconesses, according to the Rev. H. C. Brauer, local chairman. Dr. E. Duemling of Milwaukee, Wis., is president of the conference.

A. E. Fechter, 71, Veteran Drug Store Owner, Dies

A. E. Fechter, 71 years old, who for many years had conducted a drug store at 521 North Clark street, died yesterday at his home, 444 Diversey parkway, after an illness of eleven weeks with diabetes. Mr. Fechter was a Mason, a Knight Templar, an Elk, and a member of the Chicago Veteran Druggists' club. His widow and a daughter survive. The funeral will be conducted by the Chicago commandery, Knights Templar, in the Acacia mausoleum at 2:30 p. m. Tuesday.

Sen. Huebsch in Hospital; Illness Laid to Overwork

State Senator Arthur A. Huebsch [Rep., 7th] of Brookfield, who suddenly became ill Friday night while addressing the Du Page County Bar association in the Medinah Country club at Itasca, was removed to the Presbyterian hospital yesterday morning. At the hospital it was said his illness had been caused by overwork and lack of sleep and that a few days' rest would be all he needed. Senator Huebsch is an attorney and a former village president of Brookfield.

UNVEIL PLAQUE OF A. J. CERMAK AT SERVICES TODAY

A plaque of the late Mayor Cermak will be mounted in the living room of the Cermak home at 2348 Millard avenue today as part of the services commemorating the first anniversary of the mayor's death. The plaque, which was modeled by Jerry Rudolph, sculptor, a member of the Bohemian Art club, will be unveiled at 3 o'clock this afternoon at the residence. Measuring about three feet by two feet, the plaque is made of bronze and shows the former mayor in profile.

Speakers at the unveiling will include Mayor Kelly, County Judge Jarecki, and the Rev. Frank Columas Vesely of St. Procopius church.

Earlier this afternoon, special services will be held by the city council at 1 o'clock in the Bohemian National cemetery, Bryn Mawr avenue and Pulaski road. The aldermen will place a wreath at the Cermak mausoleum. Jaroslaw F. Smetanka, Czechoslovakian consul, and George B. Weiss of the Probate court, representing Gov. Horner, will speak.

IOWA GOVERNOR SIGNS BILL FOR OLD AGE PENSION

Des Moines, Ia., March 10.—(AP)—Iowa became today the 29th state to provide old age pensions for its needy. Gov. Clyde L. Herring signed the pension bill passed a few days ago by the special session of the general assembly.

The new law, effective Nov. 1, 1934, allows pensions to worthy, needy persons more than 65 years of age, citizens of the United States, and of Iowa.

The payments are limited to a maximum of $25 a month and the funds will be raised through a head tax payable by all persons more than 21 years of age.

First National Bank Pays $904,424 Taxes for 1932

Payment by the First National bank of personal property taxes for 1932 amounting to $904,424 was announced yesterday. C. Z. Meyer and J. J. Buechner, auditors of the bank, appeared in the collection office of County Treasurer Joseph B. McDonough, 105 South Dearborn street, and turned over $427,707 in tax warrants and a check for $476,717. Yesterday was the deadline for filing personal property tax schedules for 1933 in seven townships, Rogers Park, Calumet, Worth, Maine, Niles, Leyden, and Norwood Park.

Victims Point Out 3 Held as Robbery Gang Members

Additional identifications of members of a robber band held at the Woodlawn police station were obtained from three victims last night. The robbers pointed out are Leslie Kidd, 25 years old, 9846 Wallace street; Harry Kareftt, 30 years old, 3608 West 66th street, and Walter Lane, 26 years old, 3619 West 66th place. With two other men and two women belonging to the gang, they will appear at the detective bureau showup this afternoon. The men have been identified in other holdups.

Robinson Mayor Resigns to Continue Beer Sale

Robinson, Ill., March 10.—[Special.]—Because the state liquor law prohibits city officials from having any connection with the distribution or selling of alcoholic beverages, Mayor L. S. Heath resigned today. Mayor Heath is distributor of a popular brand of beer in connection with his long established ice cream and bottling business and decided that his business meant more than his job as mayor. He was succeeded by Alderman W. H. Masters, mayor pro tem.

Girl, 8 Years Old, Burned in Apartment Fire, Dies

Mary Louise Horan, 8 years old, died yesterday at the Children's Memorial hospital of burns received Wednesday night when fire swept a three story apartment house at 1316 George street in which she lived. Her sisters, Aileen, 4 years old, and Loretta, 7 years old, and her brother, Edward, 10 years old, who were rescued with her from the burning building, are recovering from their burns.

Handkerchief Is Removed from Throat in Operation

Litchfield, Ill., March 10.—[Special.]—The first operation of its kind performed at the local hospital was to remove a handkerchief from the throat of Mrs. Eunice Heltsley, 78, of Benld. The woman swallowed the handkerchief while cleaning her teeth.

RUN OVER BY TWO HIT-RUN DRIVERS, BERWYN MAN DIES

Occupants of Cars Linked to Store Holdup.

Ladislav Rolnik, 63 years old, 1345 South Harvey avenue, Berwyn, was killed last night when he was struck by two automobiles at 14th street and Ridgeland avenue, Berwyn. The drivers of both cars fled after the accidents.

Witnesses told the police that the first car moving north at high speed, struck Rolnik. The driver then swerved in, turning into 14th street, striking a light pole and smashing his headlights. He was able to resume his journey, however.

Linked with Holdup.

Almost immediately the second car appeared and, after it too had run over the body of Rolnik, was driven east into 14th street. Berwyn police were of the opinion that the occupants of the first car were two youths who had robbed a National Tea company store at 6500 West 16th street, Berwyn of $10 a few minutes before. They also advanced a theory that the second car was occupied by confederates of the pair.

Hit and run cars took two more lives by midnight. The victims were Roy Gundy, 41 years old, 2718 Warren boulevard, a brakeman, and James Gough, 76 years old, of 4054 Carroll avenue.

Gundy was struck by an automobile as he was crossing Washington boulevard at California avenue. He died later in the Washington Boulevard hospital. Gough was run down at Lake street and Karlov avenue. He died in the county hospital. Police are trying to find the drivers of both cars.

Girl Killed in Crash.

Miss Marie Bregovy, 21 years old, 4611 South Damen avenue, was killed last night when the automobile in which she was riding cracked up street and Wacker drive. John Reiker, 23, of 15 North Knight street, Park Ridge, suffered a possible skull fracture and is in the county hospital. John Thoel, 25, 5216 Loomis street, driver of the car, and Miss Virginia Rozanski, 22, of 4849 South Lincoln street, were shaken up and scratched. The scene of the accident is known to police as a danger spot. Thoel told police he did not see the "L" substructure.

Mrs. Selma Graham, 26 years old, 3844 Raymond avenue, Brookfield, died yesterday in the Garfield Park hospital of injuries incurred Wednesday in an automobile accident at Lake street and Karlov avenue. Her son, Lee, 2 years old, and Frank Van Baskirk, 23, 3842 Raymond avenue, Brookfield, driver of the car, were slightly hurt.

Chauffeur Is Accused.

Police said that Van Baskirk drove his machine into a motor truck when the truck driver attempted to turn into Karlov avenue ahead of him and cut him off. The truck chauffeur, Jack Ellisson, 28 years old, 5325 Potomac avenue, was charged with reckless driving.

These deaths increased the Cook county motor toll for the year to 235.

She had lived in Mount Prospect since she was five years old, when her family settled there after coming from Schulenburg, Hanover, Germany, where she was born. She is survived by 132 descendants—six sons, three daughters, sixty-three grandchildren, sixty-eight great-grandchildren, and two great-great-grandchildren.

CUSTOMER KILLS TWO MEN TRYING TO HOLDUP STORE

Baltimore, Md., March 11.—[Sunday.]—(AP)—Two bandits who attempted to hold up a crowded confectionery store were shot to death by a customer here early today.

Joseph Kelly, 32, was the customer who answered the command "throw 'em up" with deadly fire. Firing eight shots from an automatic, he put four bullets in each of the men. Kelly said he was in the real estate business.

There were a number of young women in the store when the robbers entered. Several of them screamed and Miss Leah Maged, 20 year old daughter of Mrs. Saarah Maged, the proprietor of the store, fainted.

Bomb Blast Damages Grocery in 14th Place

A small blomb was exploded early today at the front entrance of a basement grocery at 1443 West 14th place. Damage was estimated at $100. Frank Brudnicki, the owner, and his wife and five children, who were sleeping in the rear of the store, were shaken by the blast. About the only clew Brudnicki could give for the bombing was his refusal to buy alcohol from a bootlegger in the district.

FRANK LISTS 10 'DON'TS' FOR FARM CLASS

Talks at Agricultural Graduating Exercises.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Madison, Wis., March 10.—[Special.]—An agricultural decalog comprised of "don'ts" today was given by Glenn Frank, president of the University of Wisconsin to 33 students graduating from the institution's short course.

Dr. Frank's admonitions follow:

"Don't begin your career as a farmer in a defeatist mood.

"Don't be deluded into thinking there is such a thing as 'the farm problem' that can be solved by a single remedy.

"Don't trust too much to politics for a solution of current agricultural difficulties.

On Farm Legislation.

"Don't think that farm legislation is the only legislation that affects the farm, for the farm is a part of the whole economic and social order, and any legislation that affects the social and economic order affects the farm.

"Don't think of the farmer as a grower of foodstuffs only, but as a producer of industrial raw products as well.

"Don't cling to an obsolete individualism, but realize that there must be developed a new individualism safeguarded by the protecting wall of coöperative action.

"Don't lose interest in the problems of production just because the problems of distribution happen to be the more pressing at the moment.

Strong for Coöperatives.

"Don't let anything keep you out of the coöperative movement.

"Don't let your interest in the one coöperative you are interested in blind you to the larger interests of the coöperative movement as a whole, but remember that the coöperative movement may be killed by coöperatives that do not know how to coöperate with other coöperatives.

"Don't fail to follow throughout your life the latest results of research in your particular field."

U. OF I. PRESIDENT MAY BE ELECTED HERE ON TUESDAY

4 Faculty Members Are Leading Candidates.

A new president of the University of Illinois is expected to be chosen in Chicago Tuesday at a meeting of the university's board of trustees. Since Dr. Harry Woodburn Chase resigned to become chancellor of New York university, Dean Arthur H. Daniels of the graduate school has been acting president. The board is almost ready, according to reports yesterday, to pick a permanent successor to Dr. Chase. Four members of the faculty are the most prominent candidates.

Rumors that politics might affect the choice of the new president were brought forward during the day. The board has a majority of Democrats.

One of the candidates, Dean Charles Manfred Thompson of the college of commerce, is a Republican who several years ago was mentioned for governor.

Legal Counsel Is Candidate.

Another leading candidate, Prof. Sveinbjorn Johnson, the university's legal counsel, is a former attorney general of North Dakota and a former justice of that state's Supreme court. From 1920 to 1922 Johnson was chairman of the Democratic state central committee in North Dakota. He resigned from the bench in 1926 to become professor of law at the University of Illinois.

Reports were that if Prof. Johnson is made president, Trustee Walter W. Williams of Benton, a Democrat, will succeed to the post of university counsel.

The other leading candidates for the presidency are Dean Albert J. Harno of the college of law and Prof. Arthur Cutts Willard, acting dean of the college of engineering.

When the trustees meet Tuesday they will have for their guidance the results of a poll taken by the university senate, composed of members of the faculty of full professorial rank and the university administrators.

Quite a Spectacle.

The group was asked to vote its choice of the four above named professors. No meeting was held for the purpose. Instead, tally slips were distributed by members of the faculty and called for again after the voters had marked their preference.

"It was quite a spectacle," one observer said yesterday, "to see $10,000 a year men running around like messenger boys."

The closest secrecy has been maintained on the result of the poll. In Urbana persons usually informed on university politics confessed themselves without information.

For several months after Dr. Chase resigned the trustees looked for his successor among professors and heads of other colleges, but it was finally decided that since "home talent" would be more familiar with the university's problems a member of the faculty should be selected.

Strong Support for Johnson.

Prof. Johnson is known to have strong support. He is 50 years old and was born in Iceland. He was brought to this country when 4 years old. He took his degrees at the University of North Dakota and practiced law in Grand Forks before entering politics.

Dean Thompson was born in Fairfield, Ill., and is a graduate of the university. He began teaching there in 1912. In addition to heading the college of commerce, he also directs the bureau of business research.

Dean Harno was born in Holabird, S. D., and took his undergraduate work at Dakota Wesleyan university. He was graduated from the Yale law school in 1914 and came to the University of Illinois in 1921.

Prof. Willard was born in Washington, D. C., and was graduated in chemical engineering from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. He came to the University of Illinois in 1911.

Begin Plea for New Trial of Ghost Writer's Suit

Arguments on a motion for a new trial of the suit brought against Arthur Cutten, wealthy grain speculator, by John R. Mauff, former official of the Chicago Board of Trade, for his services as propagandist and ghost writer, were begun yesterday before Circuit Judge John Prystalski. Mauff brought suit for $50,000 and was awarded $10,000 by a jury last Feb. 1. Attorney James G. Condon, representing Mr. Cutten in seeking a new trial, argued that Mauff had failed to show the value of his services during the trial. The arguments will be resumed on March 17.

Prepare for 60th Anniversary

MR. AND MRS. HIRSCHELL ETS HOKIN.

Here Since 1882

Mr. and Mrs. Hirschell EtsHokin, 1404 Independence boulevard, will observe the 60th anniversary of their wedding next Sunday. A dinner in their honor will be held in the Covenant club at 5:30 p. m.

The EtsHokins have been residents of Chicago since 1882. Mr. EtsHokin, who was for many years a principal of Hebrew schools in the city, is 78 years old. Mrs. EtsHokin is 77. The couple have nine living children, twenty grandchildren, and seven great-grandchildren. One of their sons, Lieut. Samuel EtsHokin, was killed in the world war.

THOMAS JORDAN WEDS CORNELIA H. INGERSOLL

New York, March 10.—(AP)—Cornelia Howard Ingersoll of New York and Thomas L. Jordan of New Orleans, La., members of families prominent in this country since the founding of the 13 colonies, were married here today in the chapel of St. Bartholomew's church.

They will live in New Orleans, where Jordan, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Clarendon Jordan of Jordan Springs, Va., is in the shipping business.

The bride wore the wedding gown of her aunt, Mrs. Samuel E. Kramer of Cleveland. On her paternal side, the bride is a direct descendant of Jonathan Edwards, and she belongs to the Ingersoll families of Stockbridge and Lee, Mass., who settled in Salem in 1700.

On her maternal side, she is descended from Elder Brewster of Plymouth and from Gov. Thomas Dudley of the Massachusetts bay colony. Another ancestor is the Rev. James Fitch, who founded Norwich, Conn. Jordan is a descendant of Samuel Jordan, who landed in Jamestown in 1609 and was a member of the first Virginia house of burgesses.

EMPLOYES BACK COMPANY UNION IN PHILADELPHIA

Philadelphia, Pa., March 10.—[Special.]—The Edward G. Budd Manufacturing company's accountants announced today that 3,152 employés voted for self-organization by a plan of employé representation proposed by nineteen employé representatives, while 1,995 cast ballots for organization through the United Automobile Workers' Federated union of the American Federation of Labor. Scattered ballots totaled 525.

The election took place in the company's plant on the company's time under the supervision of the employer's accountants. The voting proceeded despite orders from Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, NRA administrator, to postpone it ten days until union protests that the balloting arrangements were unfair could be investigated. The union contended 800 men not yet reinstated after a recent strike should be allowed to vote.

Port Arthur, It Seems, Has Had Quite a Bit of Snow

PORT ARTHUR, Ont., March 10.—(AP)—If all the snow that blanketed Port Arthur between Oct. 15, 1933, and Feb. 28, 1934, were packed into cubes one foot square and placed end to end, there would be a band of snow around the world and enough for another quarter lap. Statisticians here estimate the snowfall in Port Arthur during that period at 49 inches, or nearly 4,000,000 tons.

Open Keokuk Lock on Mississippi River March 15

Rock Island, Ill., March 10.—[Special.]—The Keokuk, Ia., lock of the Mississippi river will be opened for the 1934 navigation season on March 15, it was announced today. Until April 2 the hours of operation will be 8 a. m. to 4 p. m. But after that date it will be operated on 24 hour schedule.

TELLS OF GIVING UP WIFE TO KIN AT DEATH QUIZ

Rockford, Ill., March 10.—[Special.]—Because he loved both of them, John Holcomb "stepped out of the picture" to let his wife and his brother marry 24 hours before the tragic death at their own hands yesterday, he told a coroners jury here today as it investigated the double suicide of Mr. and Mrs. Ray B. Holcomb of Pecatonica.

Holcomb told the jury that he first became aware of their romance six weeks ago and that he let his wife divorce him here Thursday so that she and his brother could be happy. He believed that they had killed themselves because they believed they had "hurt him too much."

The newly married couple were found dead in their home at Pecatonica last night, both having fired shotgun slugs through their heart after an apparent suicide pact. The coroners jury returned a verdict of suicide today after hearing all evidence.

Judge Denies Nonsupport Plea of a Working Wife

Denver, Colo., March 10.—(AP)—Mrs. Sarah Jean Roop of Denver, learned from Judge H. A. Calvert today that she had worked herself out of a divorce. She sued for a decree from G. E. Roop, charging non-support. Judge Calvert denied her petition today, asserting that since she had a job when she was married and continued to hold it afterwards there was an implied understanding she would support herself.

SEE 50 PER CENT JUMP IN GRAIN TONNAGE ON RIVER

Illinois Navigation Opens This Week.

Peoria, Ill., March 10.—[Special.]—With the opening of navigation on the Illinois river next week, grain will begin to move southward, with the prospect that the tonnage of last season will be increased by 50 per cent or more. Grain men are forecasting that 90 per cent of the total will go south to St. Louis, Memphis and New Orleans, with the short end moving into Chicago.

An outstanding reason for this trend of traffic away from Chicago is the difficulty in reaching the grain concentration center on the Calumet river by barges designed for river service. The sea barges cannot safely navigate Lake Michigan from the mouth of the Chicago river to the mouth of the Calumet nor can they be pushed through the narrow channel of the Sag canal with economy. Of the two million bushels of grain moved on the Illinois river last season by two barge companies, less than 5 per cent of it went into Chicago, while several elevators are located on the Chicago river and its three branches, only one or two of them are equipped to unload barges, the vast bulk of Chicago elevator capacity being on the Calumet.

Channel Improvements Seen.

Steps are being taken to improve the Calumet-Sag channel so that Chicago may enjoy the maximum benefits from the lakes-gulf waterway. Secretary of the Interior Ickes is said to have indicated that he would favor the expenditure of the Public Works administration funds for this purpose. The plan calls for the creation of "lie-bys" in the Sag canal to permit barges to pass; straightening of the Little Calumet river between Blue Island and Lake Calumet and the remodeling of bridges now having extremely low headroom. Army engineers estimate that the plan would cost $2,800,000. Secretary Ickes has asked that the city of Chicago coöperate in securing rights of way for these improvements and in the alteration of bridges before allotment of funds will be made. These conditions are now in process of being made and work is likely to begin soon.

Added importance to the Illinois river grain trade this season will be the formal opening of navigation on the Missouri river, which will permit Kansas grains to reach Peoria and Chicago markets. Grain will probably begin to move out of the Missouri river from Kansas City east and southward, within sixty days.

Revolution in Grain Handling.

That a revolution in grain handling is working itself out by reason of the new waterway was indicated by a grain raiser from La Salle county, near Streator, who visited the Peoria board of trade on Friday. He stated that before the world war rates on grain from his station to Chicago were 5 cents per hundred weight. These rates were moved upward until during the peak of high prices they reached 12 cents per hundredweight. Since that time they have been reduced ½ of 1 per cent, standing now at 11½ cents, against 6 cents from Ottawa and 4 cents via barge lines.

"I trucked my grain last year to the river at Ottawa," the grower stated, "and while it was not profitable I had 2 or 3 cents more per bushel for it than I would have received at my local station. It's easy to see why the owner of a small private elevator at the country station is opposing the waterway, for he is fighting for his existence, and in many cases will lose, just as the small stock yards for assembling livestock at the country stations have lost. Trucks will take grain to concentration centers along the river, just as they now take livestock to the larger markets."

JUDGE REFUSES WRIT TO PREVENT BALLOT RECOUNT

Superior Judge James J. Kelly yesterday denied petitions for writs of prohibition and mandamus to prevent the recount of ballots cast in the general election of Nov. 8, 1932. One writ asked that County Judge Jarecki be prohibited from proceeding with the recount he ordered last January at the request of a group of citizens and the second sought to compel the board of election commissioners to destroy the ballots of the election.

The petitions were brought by Miss Belle Friedman, suing as a taxpayer. She alleged the recount would place an unnecessary burden on taxpayers. A similar action is pending before the Illinois Supreme court. John R. Donovan, also suing as a taxpayer, is seeking a writ of mandamus to compel Judge Jarecki to expunge his order for the recount.

2 Beer Flat Operators Fined $50 After Raid

Two operators of a beer flat at 6219 Blackstone avenue, which was raided upon complaints of parents that liquor was being sold to Hyde Park High school students, were each fined $50 yesterday by Judge Harold P. O'Connell in the Women's court. They were charged with selling liquor without a license. The defendants, Mrs. Sena Maloney, and her husband, Thomas, admitted selling liquor but denied they had sold it to students.

OUT OF THE MASS GROUP INTO THE CLASS GROUP

... for a few dollars more a month!

*The 2-Door Sedan—List Price at Pontiac, Michigan, $725.

The whole ideal of American life is built around the philosophy that tomorrow must be better than today!

Very few of us are content to stay where we are. Within us all—in good times and bad—there is an almost ceaseless striving for advancement.

And nowhere is this more evident than in our appraisal of motor cars. For, somehow, it has come to be accepted that a man's motor car is an indication of how well he is faring in the battle of life.

And well may it be so—for a man is seen in his motor car more often than in his home!

Those of us who sell Pontiacs are made keenly aware of this. Day after day, we hear people say—"I'm so glad I decided to purchase a Pontiac Eight! It is such a satisfaction to feel that we have something more than mere transportation."

Perhaps you would call it Pride. But call it what you will, it is one of the finest traits of the American family.

This extra measure of satisfaction, of course, is strictly a plus value when you buy a new Pontiac Straight Eight.

For, purely on the basis of what the car itself provides—it is the most logical car in America for anyone to buy.

First of all, Pontiac is a big car—with a wheelbase of 117 inches—and big, roomy bodies by Fisher.

It is alert, fast and dynamic. Few cars in the world can pass it on the road—and very few will even try!

It rides, with its new "Knee-Action" wheels, with amazing comfort on any road.

It is safe—as is indicated by its big, mechanical, Bendix brakes—light as a feather to the touch—yet powerful beyond every need.

Certainly, it's a pleasure to own the new Pontiac. For it is unmistakable that the man who drives a Pontiac has gone out of the mass group into the class group—in every conceivable way.

And yet—it costs practically nothing to take this step to the Pontiac Straight Eight. When bought on time payment, the difference between the cheapest cars and the Pontiac is frequently not more than a few dollars a month.

Arrange now for a demonstration of the great, new Pontiac car. Then let your nearest dealer show you how easy it is to step up to "Straight Eight" ownership!

MICHIGAN WINS BIG TEN INDOOR TRACK TITLE

ALONG THE TRAIL TO CONFERENCE TRACK CHAMPIONSHIPS

Willis Ward, Michigan's star Negro athlete, wins the 60 yard dash in the Western conference indoor track and field meet at the University of Chicago fieldhouse last night. Ward's victory in this dash, along with his firsts in the hurdles and high jump, helped the Wolverines carry off the team championship with 37½ points. The sprinters (left to right) are: Stapf, Ohio State, third; Barnes, Michigan, sixth; Ward, the winner; Lamb, Michigan, second; Russell, Illinois, fourth, and Portman, Illinois, fifth.

Defending champion in pole vault forced to be satisfied with tie for third place in the 1934 conference meet. Irving Seely of Illinois clears bar at 12 feet 6 inches, but his effort is surpassed by both Steve Dwich of Indiana and John Roberts of Chicago.

NAME 24 BOXERS FOR INTERCITY GOLDEN GLOVES

Team Begins Drill on Thursday.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

The Chicago Intercity Golden Gloves team will report at the Illinois Athletic club Wednesday to prepare for the seventh annual competition against New York. The intercity bouts will be held at Madison Square Garden March 28.

Although the boys are reporting to Head Coach Johnny Behr Wednesday actual training will begin Thursday morning. The intercity squad of 2 boys and the eight Novice champions will leave for New York on a special train on March 22.

Here's the Squad.

The personnel of Chicago's intercity squad follows:

Flyweights—John Brown, C. Y. O.; Patsy Urso, Grand Rapids, Mich.; Jesse Robinson, C. Y. O.

Middleweights—Bill Treest, Joliet, Ill.; Fred Caserio, Trafton's gym; Anthony Zale, Gary, Ind.

Light heavyweights—Ario Soldati, Rockford, Ill.; Peter Gregaitis, Grand Rapids, Mich.; Cooney Tucker, Fort Wayne, Ind.

Heavyweights—Otis Thomas, Savoy A. C.; Max Marek, Notre Dame, Ind.; John Logan, C. Y. O.

Because of an agreement which was made last year with the officials of the New York tournament, the contestants from Detroit and Cleveland are not eligible this year for the intercity competition. All of the champions, however, will appear against the champions of Poland in the fourth international Golden Gloves tournament at the Chicago Stadium on May 18.

Prolong Stay In East.

Behr, George Young and a corps of seconds and rubbers will be in charge of the Golden Gloves team during the time the boys are at the Illinois Athletic club. The training period in Chicago will be shorter this year because the team will be given more time in New York. The length of the stay in New York will help the boxers in that they will have less trouble making weight and they also will become accustomed to their environment.

Wherever boxing fans congregated yesterday the finals of the seventh Golden Gloves tournament were the topic of discussion. For the first time since 1931 all seats in the Stadium were sold and in addition hundreds purchased general admission tickets and stood in the first and second balconies. This great throng was repaid by the most spectacular series of bouts in the history of Chicago amateur boxing.

Marek Gets the Cheers.

The final match of the night—the clash between Max Marek and Otis Thomas for the heavyweight title—was the most spectacular three round bout of the show. Marek, a 175 pound champion last year, National A. A. U. champion, C. Y. O. champion and a winner in the international Golden Glove bouts against Ireland last summer, was beaten by the rugged Negro boy, Thomas, who began fighting only six months ago. But Thomas, although none disputed his victory, was groggy and all but out on his feet at the final bell.

Marek was knocked down in the first round. Despite this handicap and Thomas' superior punching in the second round, Marek made a comeback which had the thousands of people standing and cheering throughout the final round. Marek was cheered to an echo as he left the ring.

Treest Beats Caserio.

Prior to this sensational climax, Freddie Caserio, twice a Golden Gloves champion in the middleweight division, was beaten by Bill Treest of St. Charles, Ill. While there were no knockdowns in this bout, it was almost as spectacular as the Thomas-Marek fight. Caserio won the 1931 middleweight title. In 1932 he was the National A. A. U. champion and a member of the United States Olympic boxing squad. Last year Caserio again won the Golden Gloves 160 pound title and defeated the Irish champion.

Treest was the welterweight alternate on the 1932 team and last year was beaten by Caserio in the finals. Friday night, after an indifferent start in the first round, Treest fought the greatest bout of his life. His victory, after his long quest for a diamond studded Golden Glove, was cheered by the crowd.

Louis Most Adept.

The team from Cleveland, sponsored by the Plain Dealer, won the trophy for the out of Chicago boxers. Four Cleveland boys won championships while two from Detroit were victorious. Joe Louis, the great Negro light heavyweight from Detroit, probably was the most expert of all the army of amateur boxers who paraded at the Stadium. His victory Friday night climaxed his career. Louis will be back at the Stadium for the international bouts against the champions of Poland.

The Catholic Youth Organization boxers won the team trophy for Chicago boys.

GRIMM HAPPY AS CUBS REVEAL RESERVE POWER

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Avalon, Cal., March 10.—Mr. Charles Grimm, who manages the Cubs, sized up the situation today after rounding out the first six day week of spring training and declared himself well satisfied. The usual minor mishaps have been encountered but the boys have passed through the dangerous stage of conditioning without meeting with any complications which might upset the pilot's plans for his regular lineup. Grimm also is singing the praises of fresh reserve strength, which is a thing of importance and an article he didn't possess last season.

For today's drill Grimm went back to the usual batting, throwing, and fielding program. He had intended to put on the second of the intracamp games but gave this up after yesterday's four inning exhibition. The fellows didn't show to advantage, especially those who had to play strange positions because of a shortage of talent. Games also furnish too much loafing time for pitchers not involved in the struggle. However, the second and last camp battle will be put on tomorrow, mainly to give the island natives something to see on their day of leisure.

Lee and Ward to Work.

Two of the pitchers billed to work tomorrow are Bill Lee from the Columbus, O., team and Dick Ward, who won 25 games for Los Angeles last season. Grimm is counting on one of these two taking a regular starting rôle during the summer and wouldn't be surprised if both proved able to shoulder such an assignment. The only other new pitcher on the roster is Roy Joiner from the Oakland club. He is a southpaw, something the Cubs must have if only for batting practice. Because of this Grimm may have to retain nine pitchers instead of eight, as planned. That would mean the release of one of three extra infielders.

Fans Have Pennant Clinched.

Since the acquisition of Chuck Klein, well known as a murderer of all sorts of pitching, there have been various predictions as to what the Cubs are going to do this summer in the National league pennant affair.

Most of the predictions have been along lines favorable to those vitally concerned in the financial welfare of the Chicago organization. Men involved in such investments naturally purr like a contented kitten when they are reminded that prospects seem excellent for the collection of some loose change. And for the Cub officials these prospects appear unusually rosy because of what has been said by the experts, both in the papers and in the barber shops. The unanimous opinion apparently is that the Cubs are such a cinch for the flag that the world series tickets might as well be ordered now instead of waiting for printing rates to go higher.

Remember Five Have Chance!

There are a few things to consider in a sane way, before taking the predictions too seriously. The chief one is that the Cubs will be only one of five teams which at this stage can be figured to have an actual chance.

It will be recalled that last season the Cubs, despite the brilliant and unexpected progress made by the Giants, weren't very far in arrears at the finish. They did that despite a chronic weakness in the attack throughout the race. They were constantly nosed out in close games. That Klein now is going to do a few bits of hammering in the Chicago club's behalf is figured to be the item that will correct this flaw. It will, provided weakness doesn't crop out in a new spot, and weakness can mean an unexpected occurrence such as a serious injury.

They're an Unlucky Outfit.

The Cubs, as is proved by baseball history of the last ten years or so, are notoriously unlucky about mishaps. They have had so many bones broken on training trips that such an un-

White Sox to Meet Angels in Opener Today

BY EDWARD BURNS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Pasadena, Cal., March 10.—On this, the first anniversary of the big Los Angeles earthquake, Manager Lew Fonseca of the White Sox faced the opening of the 1934 exhibition season without a tremor. Tomorrow Mr. Fonseca will take his healthy squad to Wrigley field, Los Angeles, whereon the lads will battle the Los Angeles Angels, champions of the Coast league.

Four former Chicago Cubs will be on the lineup sent forth by Manager Jack Lelivelt of the Angels. The entire outfield will be composed of ex-Cubs—Jigger Statz, Marvin Gudat, and, of more recent memory, Frankie Demaree. Gilly Campbell, a Cub all last year, will do the catching.

Both Lineups Named.

Here are the complete lineups announced by Managers Fonseca and Lelivelt:

WHITE SOX.	LOS ANGELES.
Swanson, rf	Statz, cf
Uhalt, cf	Reese, 2b
Bonura, 1b	Gudat, lf
Simmons, lf	Demaree, rf
Appling, ss	Oglesby, 1b
Dykes, 3b	Lillard, 3b
Hayes, 2b	Ditmar, ss
Pasek, c	G. Campbell, c
Stine, Gallivan, and Wyatt, p.	B. Nelson, Thomas, and J. Campbell, p.

The Sox will be given a day off Monday, win or lose, in their contest with the Angels. Manager Fonseca issued orders to leave all equipment in Los Angeles and told his proteges to do anything they wished to amuse themselves Monday.

Continue Series Tuesday.

Constant good weather, vastly better than in nearby boastful Los Angeles, has enabled the zealous Comiskeys to get far ahead of their training schedule. Once during the last week they worked under a sun that brought the temperature up to 87 degrees and yesterday the mercury registered 92 at the ball park. Hence, the abandonment of training cares

FIELDER JONES, EX-SOX MANAGER, SERIOUSLY ILL

Portland, Ore., March 10.—(AP)—Fielder A. Jones, 63, who managed the Chicago White Sox in the American Baseball league from 1903 to 1908, was reported dangerously ill in a hospital here today.

He is suffering from inflammation of the membrane surrounding the heart and his condition has been serious for two or three days, his physician said. Hope, however, is held for his recovery.

Jones, who received his first professional baseball experience in the Oregon State league in 1893, has lived in Portland since his retirement 24 years ago.

He played in the outfield for the White Sox from 1900 to 1908, managing the club the last five years of that time. He later was manager of the St. Louis team in the Federal league.

TENNES SCORES THIRD WIN IN OUTBOARD MEET

Palm Beach, Fla., March 10.—(AP)—With Horace Tennes, 21 year old Northwestern university engineering student, winning his third first place of the series, American drivers today took the first three places in the fourth event of the international class X outboard series.

Tennes sped over the ten mile, six lap, course at an average speed of 35.114 miles an hour.

Walter Everett, the Tulsa flier, finished second to Tennes, with an average speed of 33.33 miles an hour, and Philip Ellsworth of Bucknell, came in third with 32.21 miles an hour average.

Eleven boats started in the international race, with five finishing, the fourth place going to C. J. Turner of England, and fifth to Kurt Oldenburg, the Swedish contender.

Mangin Wins First Match in Indoor Meet

New York, March 10.—(AP)—American and French favorites survived the first round of play in the United States indoor tennis tournament today although some of the seeded players encountered unexpected opposition.

Playing on the courts of the Seventh Regiment drill shed, Gregory S. Mangin, the defending title holder who is seeking his third consecutive United States indoor crown, led the field. Under the handicap of virtually having to play with one eye—his right eye swollen and infected by a cinder—the champion defeated E. Ramey Donovan, Fordham university star, 6-2, 7-5.

Appel Gives Borotra Battle.

Jean Borotra, one of France's most brilliant players, struggled through a bitterly fought first set with Kenneth B. Appel, Orange, N. J., finally pulling out victory in the 14th game, 8-6. Borotra took the second set, 6-3.

Christian Boussus and Andre Merlin, French Davis cup players, also moved up to the second round. Merlin, his country's indoor champion, overcame Albert Law Jr., New York, 3-6, 6-1, 6-1. After suffering a fall in the first set which he won, 6-3, Boussus limped through the second set to win, 6-2, and eliminate Jack Pittman, New York.

Frank X. Shields, nationally ranked at No. 1, Lester R. Stoefen, California, and Berkeley Bell, Texas, among the seeded players, made short work of their opponents. Shields dropped a game in each of his two sets with Merritt Cutler, New York; Stoefen defeated Julius Seligson, former intercollegiate star, 6-3, 6-1, and Bell whipped Norman Comes, Hackensack, N. J.

Lott, Wood Triumph.

George M. Lott Jr., Chicago, and Sidney B. Wood Jr., New York, won victories over Allan W. Swazye, New York, and Julius Abrams, New York, respectively. The Chicagoan won both sets at 6-4, while Wood was slightly pressed to win 7-5, 6-4.

Dr. Eugene McCauliff, New York, and Frank J. Bowden, New York, scored easily, the former defeating Leonard Straus, Rutgers university, 6-0, 6-2, and Bowden defeating Carlisle Norwood IV., New York, 6-1, 8-6.

Babe Ruth Goes a-Fishing, Catches Big Gulf Storm

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 10.—[Special.]—George Herman Ruth, the great man of baseball, and three New York sports writers attached to the Yankees' training camp here, experienced a nerve-wrecking two hours this afternoon when the boat in which they were fishing in the Gulf of Mexico encountered a storm 20 miles off shore.

For more than two hours the Sea Perch, a 30 foot motor boat commanded by Capt. Horace Roberts, battled through a gale, the boat's compass out of order. In almost total darkness, Capt. Roberts steered the little craft mostly by instinct through waves which threatened to capsize the boat a dozen times. The Sea Perch finally was brought to its pier, Ruth and his fishing companions drenched and suffering from the cold.

As soon as Ruth reached shore he scooped up a handful of sand.

"Boy, O boy," he croaked, "I sure thought that I never again would get my paws full of anything but water."

The home run slugger hurried to his apartment, where he went to bed immediately.

MRS. HILL WINS RADIUM SPRINGS GOLF WITH BIRDIE

Albany, Ga., March 10.—(AP)—Over a rain soaked course which made scoring difficult Mrs. Opal Hill, Kansas City, scored a birdie four on the eighteenth hole to defeat Kathleen Garnham, London, England, in the finals of the third annual Radium Springs invitational golf tournament for women.

The two made the turn all square, each carding a 40 for the first nine. Coming up to the eighteenth the players were still deadlocked. Mrs. Hill's birdie won for her.

F. L. Garard, Skokie Golfer, Wins in Bermuda Tourney

BERMUDA, March 10.—[U. P.]—F. L. Garard, of the Skokie Golf club, Glencoe, Ill., won the Belmont hotel golf championship today by defeating I. E. Carpenter, of Boonton, N. J., 5 and 4.

Notre Dame Is Beaten, 21-20, at Marquette

BY CHARLES NEVADA.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Milwaukee, Wis., March 10.—Marquette's basketball team closed its season tonight by beating Notre Dame, 21 to 20, before a capacity crowd of 6,200 in the auditorium. The Hilltoppers thus became the second quintet to whip the Irish, Pittsburgh having done so twice.

The victory was number 15 in 19 attempts for Marquette. Cy Rubado of Madison was the team's leading scorer with three baskets, and his ball handling in the critical moments kept the visitors in check.

Joe Voegele, Peoria, senior, was the big man in Notre Dame's attack, collecting three field goals and as many free throws. The Irish felt the loss of Ed Krause who went out on fouls in the last five minutes. He committed his fourth foul on Ray Morstadt, who made the free throw and gave Marquette a 20 to 18 advantage. The Hilltoppers led at the half, 14 to 10.

The defeat was Notre Dame's third in 23 games this season and also its third in its last 34 starts. Marquette missed ten free throws.

Fuqua Breaks 440 Record.

Table of Points

Michigan	37½	Minnesota	9
Indiana	33 1-5	Northwestern	9
Illinois	18	Purdue	6
Ohio State	16	Wisconsin	4 2-5
Chicago	12 7-10	Iowa	4 1-5

Willis Ward, Michigan's great Negro athlete, led the Wolverine team to the 1934 championship in the 24th annual Western conference meet at the University of Chicago fieldhouse last night. Ward's victories in the 60 yard dash, the 70 yard high hurdles, and the high jump gave his team 15 points toward its winning total of 37½.

Indiana, which had nosed out Michigan to win the title the last two years, made a gallant stand which netted 33 1-5 points, but fell before the onslaught of Ward and the well balanced Ann Arbor squad.

The Illinois team took third with 18 points, Ohio was fourth with 16, and Chicago placed fifth with 12 1-5 points.

Only one record was broken, and that went, appropriately enough, to an Indiana man, Ivan Fuqua, who ran the quarter mile in 49 4-10 seconds, chipping the mark of 50 seconds set by Edwin Russell of Michigan in 1932. Fuqua's time was one-tenth of a second slower than the American indoor record, held by Alex Wilson of Notre Dame.

Ward's Best Ruled Out.

Ward, who equaled the 60 yard dash record, climaxed his busy evening with a record breaking leap in the high jump, but the effort was disallowed when it was ruled that his preceding approach to the bar, which ended in his slipping at the pit, should be adjudged a try. His record thus was made on a fourth attempt and not allowed. In the final try he cleared 6 feet 5⅛ inches, one-eighth of an inch above the mark set by Charles McGinnis of Wisconsin in 1927.

Charles Hornbostel, Indiana star, for whom hopes of a new mark in the 880 had been held, failed to break his own record of 1:53.9 in that event, though he won handily.

Score in Nine Events.

Michigan scored points in every event but the shot put. In addition to Ward's three firsts, the Wolverines captured the two mile, which was won by Neree Alix, a sophomore, and added two second places, one third and a tie for another third, two fourths and two fifths. Indiana won four first places, one second and three thirds. The Hoosier victories were those of Fuqua in the 440, Hornbostel in the 880 and one mile, and of Steve Divich in the pole vault. Hornbostel's mile race was an extremely fast performance, 4:16.7.

The other two individual championships went to Bill Freimuth of Minnesota, who won the shot put, and the Ohio State one mile relay team. Illinois and Chicago made their bids on place points.

The usual Indiana surprises turned up in the persons of Bill Smullen, who placed third in the two mile, and Divich, who had not been regarded as dangerous in the pole vault. The usual misfortunes of the meet were visited this year upon Jack Fleming of Northwestern, who was disqualified in the finals of the 440, and Ken Sandbach of Purdue, who was disqualified in the finals of the hurdles.

Fuqua Steps Out.

Fuqua, who was the defending champion in the 440, opened up in the first few yards, eased off at the half way mark, and finished with a tremendous burst of speed. He was 15 yards ahead of Iowa's captain, Sidney Dean, who took second.

Hornbostel was 60 yards ahead of the field in the mile run. The scholarly looking Hoosier led after the first two laps and held the hard pace without competition. His time, 4:16.7, was only four and one-fifth seconds slower than the record set by his former teammate, Henry Brocksmith, in 1932. Duke Hobbs, Hoosier sophomore, nosed out Farley of Northwestern, for third, Popejoy of Purdue taking second.

Hornbostel was content to trail during the first two laps of the half mile, then he forged ahead at the third turn and then went out so fast that he appeared certain to break the record. With a lead of 25 yards, he appeared to slow up near the finish, however, and was timed in 1:55.1. Harvey Smith of Michigan, who took second, was coming fast at the end, and distanced Duke Hobbs of Indiana. Jack Fleming, Northwestern sophomore, was ruled out of the race when he stepped out of his lane in the chute.

Ward Ties Record.

Ward was a yard behind at the 40 yard mark in the sprint. His teammate, Bob Lamb, finished second, ahead of Walter Stapf of Ohio State and Russell Hunter and Crain Portman of Illinois. The record was first established by George Simpson of Ohio State and later equaled by Judd Timm, Illinois; Eddie Tolan and Don Renwick of Michigan, and Don Bennett of Ohio State. Stapf also equaled the mark in winning the second semifinal heat.

The big Negro was a yard ahead at the finish of the hurdles, with Bob Clark of Wisconsin, who had not been rated that good, second, ahead

ROOKIE PITCHERS FALTER; MACKS WHIP GIANTS, 7-2

Coleman Triples in Fifth with Bases Full.

Miami, Fla., March 10.—(AP)—Two of the world champion New York Giants' rookie pitchers, Al Smith and Jack Salveson, had one bad inning each today and the Philadelphia Athletics evened the spring exhibition series by winning the second game, 7 to 2.

Salveson was hammered for four runs in the first inning on singles by Harold Warstler, Wingfield, and Ray Radcliffe, and doubles by Roger Cramer and Ed Coleman. In the fifth inning, with Smith pitching, Coleman connected for a triple, clearing the loaded bases. Score:

New York [N.]	000	200	000—2	8	1

BLUEGE, TRAVIS ARE RIVALS.

Biloxi, Miss., March 10.—(AP)—Young Cecil Travis and the veteran Ossie Bluege may share the work around third base for the Washington Senators this season.

Manager Joe Cronin hopes to alternate the pair to get the benefit of Bluege's defensive strength and Travis' batting power. Travis, who swings from the left, would start against right-handed pitchers and Bluege, a right-hander, against southpaws.

TIGER LINEUP TAKES FORM.

Lakeland, Fla., March 10.—(AP)—The opening lineup of the Detroit Tigers began to take form today. Right field will be handled by Gerald Walker; Pete Fox will be in center with Goose Goslin in right.

Hank Greenberg will be at first base, with either Marvin Owen or Flea Clifton at third, and Charley Gehringer or Bill Rogell at second.

FRISCH STRESSES BUNTING.

Bradenton, Fla., March 10.—(AP)—Hard work and more of it is the program for the St. Louis Cardinals, enjoying their first spring training under Manager Frankie Frisch.

Today Frisch drilled his charges on bunting, with regular pitchers in the box, fielders in position, and runners on base. Everybody perspired.

BROWNS PLAY GAME TODAY.

West Palm Beach, Fla., March 10.—(AP)—Manager Rogers Hornsby of the St. Louis Browns will get his first look at the newcomers to the club in competition tomorrow when the first intra-club game will be played.

Gray, McAfee, and McDonald will pitch for the regulars, with Newsome, Knott, and Coffman doing the mound work for the Yannigans. The lineup of the regulars follow: West, cf; Strange, ss; Burns, 1b; Campbell, rf; Clark, lf; Clift, 3b; Bejma, 2b, and Heath and Delmas, c.

CLEVELAND PITCHERS READY.

New Orleans, La., March 10.—(AP)—When the Cleveland Indians' infielders and outfielders trot out for their first exercises next week they will find the pitching staf ready to sharpen batting eyes.

The holdouts, Wes Ferrell, and Willis Hudlin, pitchers, have not yet appeared. Monte Pearson is on the way.

REDS ARE NUMEROUS.

Tampa, Fla., March 10.—(AP)—Rain caused the first halt in training activities of the Cincinnati Reds today, giving Manager Bob O'Farrell plenty of time to worry about reducing the roster.

There are 54 players in camp with more en route, and with Cy Johnson, Ray Kolp, and Joe Morrissey still holding out. The number must be cut to 23 by June 15.

MORGAN JOINS RED SOX.

Sarasota, Fla., March 10.—(AP)—The veteran Joe Judge swung with a vengeance during today's batting practice in the Boston Red Sox camp, which witnessed the arrival of Eddie Morgan, shunted from Cleveland to New Orleans last year. Morgan has high hopes of relieving Judge of the first base job.

A heavy rain halted practice.

YANKEES SIGN CHAPMAN.

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 10.—(AP)—Ben Chapman, fleet outfielder of the New York Yankees, informed Manager Joe McCarthy he had signed his contract for 1934 and would arrive in camp on Monday.

Chapman's capitulation reduced the Yankee holdout list to two—Catcher Bill Dickey and Infielder Lyn Lary.

DODGERS WELCOME REST.

Orlando, Fla., March 10.—(AP)—Rain forced Manager Casey Stengel to call off two scheduled workouts for the Brooklyn Dodgers today.

The Dodgers have been driven through two workouts daily in the hot sun ever since last Sunday, and they were ready for a vacation.

San Francisco Six Day Bike Race Opens Tonight

San Francisco, Cal., March 10.—(AP)—The first six-day bicycle race here since 1917 starts tomorrow night. A wooden saucer, expected to develop exceedingly high speed, has been banked at a 52 degree angle on the turns and 32 degrees on the straightaway. It will be thirteen laps to the mile. Entrants include Pete Van Kempen of Holland, who is paired with Jack McCoy of San Francisco, and Franz Duelberg of Germany, who has Steve O'Connor of Ireland as a partner.

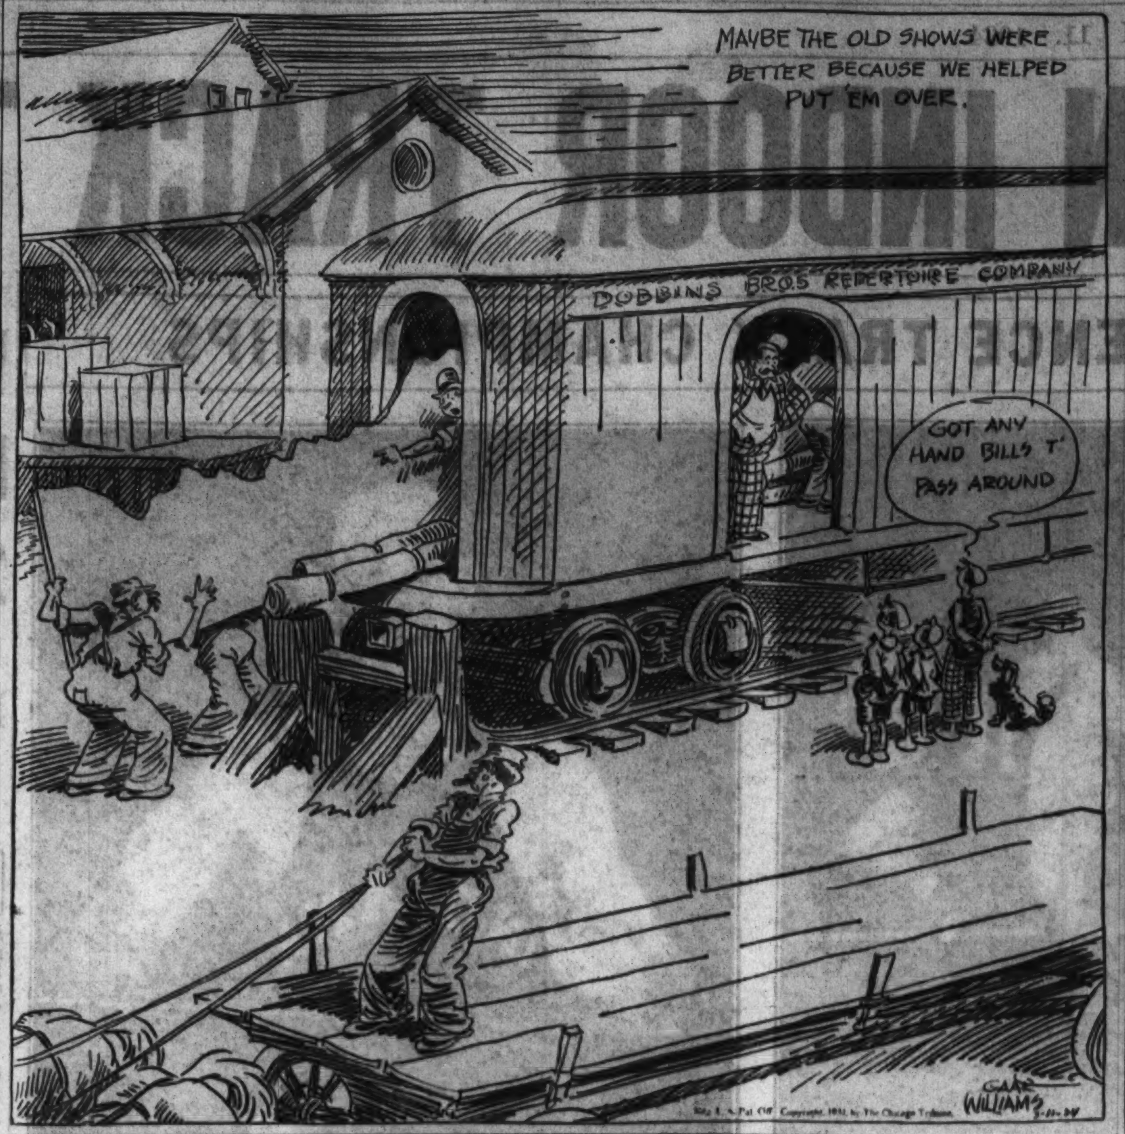
J. H. Whitney's Craftsman Wins English Steeplechase

HURST PARK, England, March 10.—(AP)—Craftsman, owned by John Hay Whitney of New York, and quoted at 9 to 4, today won the Garrett Moore steeplechase over two miles and 240 yards. The American owned jumper finished four lengths in front of G. Padley's Sea Lord and eight others. The victory carried with it a purse of 150 sterling.

Wales Defeats Ireland in Rugby Match, 13 to 0

SWANSEA, Wales, March 10.—(AP)—Wales today defeated Ireland, 13 to 0, in an international rugby match.

AMONG THE FOLKS IN HISTORY



Grimm Happy Over Reserve Power of Cubs

happy affair is almost looked upon as part of the year's work. Pitchers have developed arm complaints. Men have dropped out time and again during the race because of something unforeseen. Last year it was Cuyler with a fractured foot. Stephenson went out later with a smashed hand. Hack followed with a similar injury. These things are mentioned merely to warn those inclined toward overenthusiasm.

Still another thing to be figured about the Cubs is their pitching. Mention has been made previous to this that the pitchers for the most part did better last year than expected. That is what kept the Cubs up in the fight until the waning days of the season. It is possible that this year the pitching may be better than in 1933. If it turns out that way, the Grimm aggregation will be hard to head off. But the staf could easily turn the other way. Three of the pitchers are well along in years. If the pitching falters all the hitting of Klein, Cuyler and Stephenson put together will not offset the mound weakness.

Cubs Must Beat These.

Nobody need figure much to determine the four teams primed to give the Cubs a battle. The Giants, being world champions, naturally must be considered. The Pirates have been threatening for several years and now apparently are a bit stronger than ever. The Cardinals were fairly formidable last season and might come up with some new strength. It is common for them to uncover some phenom. Then there is Boston's Braves, who chased the contenders down the stretch last fall. One of these teams, getting a few breaks in the luck, is the one that will win.

THREE NEW YORK RACE TRACKS TO USE BAHR GATE

New York, March 10.—[Special.]—Presidents George H. Bull of Saratoga, John E. Cowdin of Aqueduct and Edward P. Kilroe of Jamaica today notified the Jocky club that they will put the Baby Bahr starting gate into operation at their courses this coming season. Joseph E. Widener, president of Belmont Park, already has the same gate in use at his Hialeah Park in Florida and his agreement is considered a matter of course. No statement could be made on behalf of the Empire track, due to the recent death of James Butler, late owner and president of the course, but it is considered likely it, too, will follow suit.

Arizmendi Defies Heat; Trains for Canzoneri Bout

Los Angeles, Cal., March 10.—(AP)—In spite of the heat wave which sent the temperature to the ninety mark, Baby Arizmendi went through a final workout today for his junior lightweight bout of ten rounds with Tony Canzoneri here Tuesday night. Canzoneri, former lightweight champion, did little work today. His trainers point out he easily made weight for his recent bout with Pete Nebo at Kansas City, and the warm weather has aided him in getting down to the 130 pound limit.

Brown Swimming Team Wins New England Title

Boston, Mass., March 10.—(AP)—The Brown university swimming team captured the New England intercollegiate title at the University club pool tonight, scoring 45 points. Springfield college, with 36 points, was the runnerup. Wesleyan was third with 15. Amherst and Williams tied for fourth place with nine, Bowdoin had three, and Massachusetts Institute of Technology, one.

Harry Stevens, Hot Dog King, Reported Improving

New York, March 10.—(AP)—Harry Stevens, dubbed the hot dog king by ringside and baseball fans, was reported "much better" today. He is suffering from pneumonia. Frank Stevens, one of the aged concessionaire's sons, said: "Father passed a very good night and has taken a great turn for the better."

Illini Swim Team Defeats N. U., 44 to 40

Champaign, Ill., March 10.—[Special.]—Led by Charles Flachmann, who won three dashes, Illinois defeated Northwestern in a dual swimming meet by a score of 44 to 40 tonight.

Earl Jansen, sophomore diver, put the Illini in a tie for first when he proved superior to Wilkie and Loughborough of Northwestern in the fancy diving contest.

When Flachmann, followed by Hewitt, led Highland of Northwestern to the finish in the 220 yard dash, victory for the Illini was assured, although Northwestern won the closing event, the 300 yards relay.

Flachmann's time in the 100 yard dash, 52.40, equaled the national collegiate record and bettered the Big Ten mark, setting a new tank record. He also set a new tank record in the 50 yard dash.

It was the first victory of the Illinois swimmers over Northwestern since 1922.

400 YARD RELAY—Won by Northwestern [Kohlmeyer, Hahn, Rollinger, Highland]. Time, 3:50.

200 YARD BREAST STROKE—Won by Horn, Northwestern; Van Tuin, Illinois, second; Taylor, Northwestern, third. Time, 2:44.

150 YARD BACK STROKE—Won by Miller, Northwestern; Larson, Illinois, second; Hollenbeck, Northwestern, third. Time, 1:52.

50 YARD FREE STYLE—Won by Flachmann, Illinois; Rollinger, Northwestern, second; Crosby, Illinois, third. Time, :24. [New tank record].

440 YARD FREE STYLE—Won by Hewitt, Illinois; Hahn, Northwestern, second; Starrett, Illinois, third. Time, 5:27.2.

100 YARDS FREE STYLE—Won by Flachmann, Illinois; Highland, Northwestern, second; Dalyrymple, Illinois, third. Time, :52.4 [new track record].

FANCY DIVING—Won by Jansen, Illinois, 118.30; Wilkie, Northwestern, second, 113.85; Loughborough, Northwestern, third, 99.95.

300 YARD RELAY—Won by Northwestern [Hahn, Horn, Rollinger]. Time, 3:23.10.

GEORGIA VEATCH KEEPS WESTERN BILLIARD TITLE

Miss Georgia Veatch, Chicago school teacher, retained her women's western amateur pocket billiard championship yesterday when she defeated Miss Dorothy Jenkins of the Sheridan Recreation in the third block of their 200 point challenge match at the Allerton club, 701 North Michigan avenue. The final score was 200 to 182.

Miss Veatch won the three blocks, the first 50 to 43, the second 75 to 68, and the third 75 to 71. Miss Veatch, who was runner-up in the national tourney last January, automatically qualifies for the national tournament in the fall.

George Gibson Is Named Carleton Football Coach

Northfield, Minn., March 10.—(AP)—George Gibson, former University of Minnesota football player and assistant coach, today was appointed football coach at Carleton college here. He will take over spring football practice April 10. In addition to his coaching duties, Gibson will be an instructor in the geology and physical education departments. He succeeds Elmer Lampe, who resigned last fall.

Minnesota Wins Fifth Straight Rifle Meet

Minneapolis, Minn., March 10.—(AP)—The University of Minnesota rifle team today scored its fifth victory against Big Ten opposition this year by defeating Iowa 1,393 to 1,389. The Gophers, the 1933 conference titleholders, have only to defeat Ohio State next Saturday to be assured of another championship.

Belloise Wins 8 Round Decision from De Grasse

Brooklyn, N. Y., March 10.—(AP)—Mike Belloise, 126¼, New York, outpointed Pete De Grasse, 126¾, in the eight round feature bout here tonight.

Monday, to prevent the athletes from training too fine.

The three game series with the Angels will be continued Tuesday and Wednesday. On Tuesday Catcher-Coach Muddy Ruel will be on the coaching lines. He wired Owner Comiskey this morning that he planned to fly west from St. Louis, scheduled to arrive here some time Monday afternoon.

Manager Fonseca said he immediately would give Ruel the job of taking over the squad of young pitchers, they to be his pupils without interruption from any one.

There were no new developments reported in the White Sox dickering with the Sacramento club. Several coast league observers have forwarded the opinion that Outfielder Steinbacker would be a better acquisition for the Sox than Outfielder Bordagary because the former is a left handed hitter. The Sox as now constituted are overloaded with right handed hitters or batters. The two players are reported about equal in defensive skill.

It is practically certain that the Sox will close several deals before they open their series with the Cubs on March 17. While the present drive is for an outfielder, the team hasn't given up the idea of getting another infielder and a left handed pitcher.

The health of Owner Comiskey is better than it has been in ten years, according to his personal diagnosis. His greatly improved condition has enabled him to take an especially active part in the pow-wows anent the possible purchase of players.

ST. JOSEPH'S OF DEWITT TAKES IOWA PREP TITLE

Davenport, Ia., March 10.—[Special.]—St. Joseph's of Dewitt won the Iowa Catholic High school basketball title for the first time in the school's history when it defeated St. Ambrose, the favorite, 19 to 14, in the finals of the state tournament. Dewitt will represent Iowa in the national Catholic tournament at Loyola university, Chicago, later this month.

The Dewitt team comes from a school of less than 100 pupils.

At the end of the first quarter St. Josephs had an 8 to 4 lead which they increased to 18 to 9 at half time. Franks, guard, led the attack with 10 points.

In the game for third place and the consolation cup, Des Moines Catholic academy defeated St. Matthews of Clare, 27 to 23.

Rutgers Swimming Team Captures Eastern Crown

Newark, Del., March 10.—(AP)—Rutgers university tonight ran away with the Eastern Collegiate Swimming association championships. The annual meet was featured by Rutgers' Harold White, who set a new association record of 2 minutes 36.8 seconds in winning the 200 yard breaststroke. New York university was second in the final team standings with 21 points, trailed by Pittsburgh with 17, Carnegie Tech with 12, City College of New York with 9, George Washington with 6, Lafayette with 5, Manhattan with 3, and Swarthmore and Lehigh with 2 each.

Packers Sign Schwammel, Oregon State Tackle

Green Bay, Wis., March 10.—(AP)—Adolphe John Schwammel, Oregon State, one of the outstanding linemen in Pacific coast college circles last year, was signed today to play with the Green Bay Packer football club. Schwammel is a tackle. He will be graduated from Oregon State in June.

Milan Rifle Team Wins Quadrangular Shoot

Rock Island, Ill., March 10.—[Special.]—Milan's riflemen won a quadrangular shoot with 984 points. Aledo was second with 969, Muscatine was third with 967, and Monmouth last. Paul Poe of Milan broke 200 consecutive birds. As far as known, it is the first time in several years that such a record has been made.

CANADIENS BEAT OTTAWA, 3-2, IN OVERTIME RALLY

Frenchmen Tighten Grip on Second Place.

MONTREAL, March 10.—(AP)—The Montreal Canadiens came from behind to overcome Ottawa's two goal lead tonight and then defeated the Senators 3 to 2 in an overtime game before 4,000 fans. The victory left the Canadiens more firmly settled in second place in the National Hockey league's Canadian division.

The Senators did all their scoring in the second period, when Max Kaminsky and Allan Shields tallied. Aurel Joliat got one goal back 40 seconds after the third frame started and less than two minutes before the period ended Johnny Gagnon scored on a double pass from Howie Morenz and Joliat.

"Pit" Lepine won the game after three minutes of overtime play, dashing through the Ottawa defense alone to score. Lineups:

TORONTO, 8; AMERICANS, 5

TORONTO, March 10.—(AP)—The Toronto Maple Leafs knocked the New York Americans loose from another of their faint chances of getting into the National Hocky league playoffs by taking a featureless game, 8 to 5. The defeat left the Amerks with nothing more than a mathematical chance of tying the Montreal Maroons for third place in the Canadian division.

Red Horner and Buzz Boll divided four of the Toronto goals while Harvey Jackson, Alec Levinsky, Carlie Conacher, and Bill Thoms were the other marksmen. The front line of Conn, Eddie Burke, and Dede Klein was the most effective for the Amerks, Burke and Klein each getting two goals. The fifth was scored by Red Jackson. Lineups:

HAWKS INVADE DETROIT

The Blackhawks will leave this morning on their final road trip of the regular season, bound for Detroit, where they play the Red Wings tonight. The Wings defeated them here Thursday. Following their Detroit visit, the Hawks will engage the Montreal Maroons Tuesday night and then meet the leading Toronto Maple Leafs at the latter city Thursday night. As if that isn't enough, the Hawks, who have Stanley Cup aspirations, return to the Stadium next Sunday, when they again face the Maple Leafs in the final game of the season.

There still remains a slight chance for the Hawks to improve their position in the league race. A victory tonight, while the New York Rangers lose to the Maroons, would elevate the Chicagoans into second place by 1 point.

Graboski to Sign Contract.

Before leaving, Manager Tommy Gorman announced that Jo-Jo Graboski, the sensational young amateur star from Oshawa, Ont., will accept the contract offered him and will sign on the team's return. Jo-Jo, who has spent the most hectic ten days of his young life since called by the Hawks for a tryout, will put in as busy a week as will his new team mates.

Word had just come to Manager Gorman from W. A. Hewitt, secretary of the Ontario Hocky association, that permission was granted to Graboski to play in a couple of games at the Coliseum this week, when another telegram arrived, informing Jo-Jo that his brother, Will, was taken ill and they needed him on the Oshawa Majors. The latter team will meet the Gravenhurst sextet in the Ontario Hocky association playoff. On receiving the news, Jo-Jo left by plane—his second air ride in five days—for Oshawa, a little town near Toronto.

Graboski will return to Chicago in time to take his place in the lineup of the Baby Ruths, when they meet the London collegians of London, Ont., Tuesday night, and will be in the Blue Ribbons lineup for his final amateur appearance, when the local team battles the All-Stars Thursday.

To Make Debut Against Leafs.

The 19 year old one eyed star will make his professional debut in the Hawk-Maple Leaf encounter here next Sunday. Gorman has been using him at center, between Johnny Gottselig and Lola Couture, and that is where he will start against the speedy Leafs.

Maj. Frederic McLaughlin, boss of the Hawks, leaves tonight for Toronto for the meeting of the board of the National Hocky league. The league governors will gather tomorrow to decide dates and other incidentals having to do with the Stanley Cup playoffs.

PLANS AUTO TRACK.

Will H. Pickens of Los Angeles contemplates building a big stadium for an annual Thanksgiving day automobile race. A brick speedway is the hope of the promoter.

GALS VOTE FOR HIM

Jules Audy, blond young Frenchman, is the idol of feminine fans at the six day bike races. The annual spring grind starts tonight at the Chicago Stadium.

Baby Ruths to Battle London Sextet Tonight

The final international amateur hocky series before the midwest and national championship tournaments will be played this afternoon at the Coliseum when the Baby Ruths meet the London six of Ontario, Canada, in the first of a two game series, total goals to count. The battle will start at 3 o'clock.

The two game series will be the hardest test the Baby Ruths has been put to this season. The visitors are one of the best senior clubs playing in the Ontario league. The club, coached by Bill Marsden, recognized as one of the ablest coaches in Canada, will display the type of game that is played by teams who are competing at present for the Allan cup, emblematic of the championship of Canada.

Ruths Lose Stars.

The Baby Ruth club will be without the services of their two star forwards, Chick Deacon and Gus Saxburg, who during practice received severe body bruises and probably will not be allowed to play.

After the Ruth-London clash the annual Hockey Writers-League Officials game will be staged, and the former will place one of the strongest teams they can muster on the ice.

Resume A. A. U. Play.

In the evening the remaining quarter finals games in the Central A. A. U. tournament will be staged, starting at 6 o'clock with the Whiting Macks of Indiana meeting the Litsinger Motors in a replay. Their last game ended in a scoreless overtime battle. Immediately following, Jones & Baumrucker meets the Vodrazka Hornets, and the windup will have the tournament favorites in the Shamrocks and the C. Y. O. All-Stars.

RACES AT METRIC DISTANCES ADDED TO PENN RELAYS

Philadelphia, Pa., March 10.—[U.P.]—Program for the annual Penn relay carnival April 27 will be altered to provide for a 100 meter dash and a 110 meter high hurdles race instead of the traditional 100 yard dash and 120 yard hurdles event.

The change was announced tonight by H. Jamison Swarts, manager of the meet, as a result of a recent decision of the I. C. A. A. A. A. to adopt metric distances.

All relay events, however, from one-quarter mile to four miles, will be run at linear distances. Swarts said insufficient time remained for changing the layout of Franklin field to provide for metric relays.

Men and Girls Teams Enter A. A. U. Tourney

Entries from outstanding men's heavyweight and girls basketball teams are being received in record numbers for the Central A. A. U. tournament, which opens March 19 at the Arcadia Gardens. Entries close next Saturday with Arthur Morse, supervising the tournament for the Six Point Organization, at 221 North La Salle street.

Ontario Golf Tourney Is Set for June 28 to 30

The Ontario Golf association will hold its amateur championship tournament at the Essex Country club of Windsor from June 28 to 30, inclusive, according to an announcement made yesterday. A field of eighty golfers will qualify in flights of sixteen. The tournament will be open to American players this year.

Sunset Ridge Stampede Will Be Held June 13

The Sunset Ridge Country club Stampede, one of the established invitational tournaments in local golf, will be held June 13, according to an announcement by the Chicago District Golf association yesterday.

STREET PICKS GIANTS TO KEEP LEAGUE TITLE

Woodland, Cal., March 10.—(AP)—Charles [Gabby] Street today predicted the Giants would win the pennant again and that Brooklyn is "a safe bet to finish last."

Street, who won a world's series and two National league pennants for the St. Louis Cardinals, is the new manager of the San Francisco Mission club.

"I like the Giants to repeat," Street said. "They're coming back with the same team. They'll be as strong, if not stronger. I have a lot of respect for Bill Terry as a manager. He's a hustler of the first rank."

Street expressed the opinion the Giants would have to beat the Chicago Cubs for the pennant. "The addition of Chuck Klein to the outfield should improve the Cubs just 25 per cent. From there it looks like St. Louis and then Pittsburgh."

M'CLUSKEY SETS NEW U. S. 5,000 METERS RECORD

New York, March 10.—[U. P.]—Joe McCluskey, distance runner from the New York Athletic club, smashed the American native indoor record for 5,000 meters in that event tonight at the annual Metropolitan A. A. U. track and field events.

McCluskey raced the distance in 14:48.4 to set also a new championship mark. The old American mark of 15:05.8 was made in 1912 by G. V. Bonhag.

The world record was set by Willie Ritola at 14:23.2 in February, 1925.

The meet record which McCluskey bettered was set last year by Lieut. George Lermond at 15:32.

J. E. Vaughan, McCluskey's teammate, was second. James Mallon, 69th Regiment A. A., third.

Rockford High Swimmers Defeat Culver, 38 to 37

Culver, Ind., March 10.—[Special.]—Culver Military academy lost a dual swimming meet to Rockford High School of Illinois today which was decided by the final relay. It was Culver's third successive defeat by Rockford. The score this time was 38 to 37. New pool records were established by two Rockford men, Shoemaker who won the 100 yard breast stroke in 1:13.6 and Ogilby who defeated Llewellyn of Culver in the 220 yard free style in 2:32.6. Shoemaker was also responsible for winning the final event, the medley relay.

Schuessler A. C. Five Leaves Today for A. A. U. Tourney

The Schuessler A. C. basketball team will leave today for the National A. A. U. basketball tournament at Kansas City, where they hope to duplicate their performance of the last two years. Two seasons ago the Schuesslers won third place and last year they reached the third round. On the squad making the trip are Bill Young, Earl Keth, Leonard Rumpf, Augie Vander Muelen, Vince McGowan, Mary Hadam, Bob Peterson and Ray Pflum.

13 TEAMS FACE 6 DAY BIKE RACE STARTER TONIGHT

Chicagoans Prominent in Field at Stadium.

Chicago's 31st international six day bicycle race will start at 9 o'clock tonight in the Chicago Stadium, 13 teams competing. The field will be made up of 16 American riders and 10 foreign stars. The foreign riders hail from Germany, Italy, Belgium, France, Switzerland, and Canada.

Chicago boys will play a prominent part in the race. One team will be made up of Tony Schaller, Chicago's outstanding cyclist, and William [Torchy] Peden, the giant Canadian redhead. They should rank as one of the outstanding combinations in the race.

Rodman Pairs with Trieste.

Jerry Rodman, young Jewish rider from the west side and a protégé of Carl Stockholm, will turn professional to compete. Rodman will be paired with Eddie Trieste from the south side. Steve Wagner and Pete Smessaert, promising riders from the north side, will make up another Chicago team.

Bobby Thomas of Kenosha, Wis., will ride the race with Alfred Letourner of France. Reggie McNamara, looked upon as the greatest of all six day riders, returns to ride in his 101st six day grind. McNamara just rode the New York six day race in Madison Square Garden with Dave Lands as his partner and he will be paired with Lands in this race.

Wissel Back Again.

The international flavor of a six day bicycle race is always one of its most interesting angles. There will be a German team in the race, Ewald Wissel and Franz Lehmann. Wissel won the last race in the Stadium with Jimmy Walthour as his partner. It was intended to have Walthour and Wissel race as a team again, but Wissel asked to ride with his countryman and Manager John Chapman put them together.

Italian bicycle fans will have a strong team to root for in Edoardo Severgnini and Tino Reboli. These riders finished third in the recent New York race. Severgnini is a veteran, while Reboli is a youngster who is looked upon as one of the brightest prospects in the game.

There are thousands of Belgians in Chicago and the Belgians are great bike fans. In this race they will have Gerard Debaets and Fred Ottevaere to root for. Ottevaere, a Belgian-American youngster from Detroit, will be making his first appearance in a Chicago race.

Other riders making their Chicago debuts are Jerry Rodman, Chicago; Frank Keating, New York; Laurent Gadou, Montreal; Franz Lehmann, Germany, and Fred Zach, Switzerland.

Four Series of Sprints Daily.

There will be four series of sprints each day. The first will be at 3 o'clock in the afternoon, the second at 9 at night, the next at 11 and the final series at 1 o'clock in the morning. There will be ten sprints in each series. The points will score 6 for first, 4 for second, 2 for third, and 1 for fourth. On the final night of the race, next Saturday, there will be one hour of sprinting between 11 and 12 o'clock. During that hour there will be a sprint every mile for points, the points scoring 72 for first, 4 for second, 2 for third, and 1 for fourth.

Previous to the start of the six day bicycle race tonight there will be a one hour amateur team race with 15 teams competing. This race will start at 7 o'clock.

The pairings:

McNamara and Lands, Spencer and Grimm, Peden and Schaller, Debaets and Ottevaere, Letourner and Thomas, Audy and Winter, Reboli and Severgnini, Wissel and Lehmann, Trieste and Rodman, Walthour and Ritter, Smessaert and Wagner, Keating and Hopkins, Gadou and Zach.

STAGE LINERS WIN OPENER IN A. A. U. TOURNEY

Kansas City, March 10.—(AP)—Southern Kansas Stage Lines of Kansas City, Missouri Valley A. A. U. champions and a favorite to win the national championship, easily went through the first round of the A. A. U. basketball tournament tonight by defeating the Ivandale club, Kansas City, Kas., 50 to 14.

The Liners recently took the Missouri valley title away from the defending champion, Tulsa Oilers. Paul Burks, their star forward, scored seven field goals before he was withdrawn in the latter part of the first half.

Rockhurst college of Kansas City, sponsor of the tournament, defeated the Paris, Mo., Athletic club, 33 to 19. The White Eagle team of Kansas City defeated the St. Joseph, Mo., Jeromes, 32 to 30.

JACKSON LEADS MICHIGAN STATE TO TRACK TITLE

Scores 12½ Points in Central Meet.

Table of Points

Mich. State	32½	Marquette	9
Notre Dame	21½	Butler	5
Pittsburgh	14½	Kalamazoo	5
Western State	14	Hillsdale	5
Mich. Normal	12½	Loyola	2

Notre Dame, Ind., March 10.—[Special.]—Paced by Alva Jackson, 6 foot 4 inch Negro from Gary, Michigan State won the eighth annual Central Intercollegiate conference indoor track championship here today.

Jackson scored 12½ of the winner's 32½ points, taking high point honors for the day. He won both hurdle races and finished in a tie for second in the high jump at 6 feet 1⅛ inches. He won the 60 yard high hurdles in 8 seconds flat and the 65 yard low hurdles in 7.3 seconds, one-tenth of a second over the C. I. C. record.

Sears Sets New Record.

Ray Sears, Butler's distance ace, won the mile run in record time, 4 minutes 17.3 seconds, to score Butler's only points. Sears simply ran away from the field after taking the lead on the first lap. His mark shattered the former gymnasium record of 4:21, which was made by Kennedy of Notre Dame in 1924, and the C. I. C. record of 4:21.5, which was made by Swartz of Western State in 1933. He did not make his expected appearance in the two mile run against Ottey.

Pittsburgh took third place behind Notre Dame largely by virtue of a great mile relay performance. The Panthers won in the record smashing time of 3 minutes 24.2 seconds. This mark is four-tenths of a second better than the previous gymnasium mark and one and one-tenth seconds better than the old C. I. C. record. Both former records were held by Notre Dame.

State Scores in 11 Events.

Michigan State scored in seven of the eleven events. Notre Dame scored in eight events and could have won the mile relay, but took only one first, that by Vincent Murphy in the high jump.

Ralph Metcalfe of Marquette won the 60 yard dash in 6.3 seconds, one-fifth of a second over the world mark he made here last year.

Michigan Normal, last year's champions, finished in fifth place. Ray Lowry, who has vaulted 13 feet 8½ inches, cleared only 13 feet ½ inch to win Normal's only first in the meet.

Summaries:

POLE VAULT—Won by Lowry, Michigan Normal; Pelucha, Pittsburgh, and Edwards, Notre Dame, tied for second; Legrande, Marquette, fourth. Height, 13 feet ½ inch.

MILE RUN—Won by Sears, Butler; Hurd, Michigan State, second; Young, Notre Dame, third; King, Notre Dame, fourth. Time, 4:17.3. [New C. I. C. and gymnasium record.]

SHOT PUT—Won by Davis, Hillsdale; Bonavita, Pittsburgh, second; Elser, Notre Dame, third; Rockwell, Michigan Normal, fourth. Distance, 47 feet 1⅝ inches.

60 YARD HIGH HURDLES—Won by Jackson, Michigan State; Fagan, Notre Dame, second; Carlton, Kalamazoo, third; Guay, Pittsburgh, fourth. Time, :08.

WRESTLING AND VOLLEY BALL ON J. O. Y. PROGRAM

Jewish Organized Youth wrestling and volley ball will occupy the center of the stage at the Jewish People's institute this afternoon.

Zack Malkov, light heavyweight professional wrestler, has offered his services as a coach to the J. O. Y. mat entrants and will begin by aiding the staff this afternoon, when all entrants to the tournament to be held March 20, 22, and 24, will assemble in the gymnasium of the J. P. I. for their physical examinations and training chores.

The captains or directors of all teams entered in the volley ball tourney will meet at 2 o'clock this afternoon to draw pairings. The volley ball contests will extend over a period of two weeks, on Monday, Wednesday, Saturday nights, and on Sunday afternoon at the J. P. I.

Some of the outstanding teams entered for the volley ball tourney are those from the J. P. I., Deborah Boys' club, American Boys' Commonwealth, Franklin Park, and others.

Divich surprised even his coach with a first place in the pole vault, the first event to be completed. Divich, who had competed only once before this season, cleared 13 feet 2 inches. Irving Seeley of Illinois, who did 13 feet 8 inches for second place in the meet last year, had to be content with 12 feet 6 inches and a tie with Hunn of Michigan and Jones of Purdue. John Roberts of Chicago was second with 13 feet.

Michigan Sophomore Scores.

Alix, a short but sturdy Michigan sophomore, won the two mile race in 9:32.9, 14½ seconds slower than Brocksmith's record. He was five yards ahead of Wayne Slocum of Minnesota at the finish. Bill Smullen, one of Indiana's unknowns, took third. Fourth place went to Bob Milow of Chicago, who fell early in the race and made a fine recovery.

60 YARD DASH—Won by Willis Ward, Michigan; Bob Lamb, Michigan, second; Walter Stapf, Ohio State, third; Hunter Russell, Illinois, fourth; Crain Portman, Illinois, fifth. Time, :06.2. [Equals Big Ten record, established by George Simpson, of Ohio State in 1929 and tied by Timm of Illinois, Tolan of Michigan, Renwick of Michigan, and Bennett of Ohio State.]

70 YARD HIGH HURDLES—Won by Willis Ward, Michigan; Robert Clark, Wisconsin, second; Joe Schoeninger, Illinois, third; Don Cook, Ohio State, fourth; Art Jens, Northwestern, fifth. Time, :08.8.

Cornell Track Men Defeat Harvard, Dartmouth Teams

Boston, Mass., March 10.—(AP)—A double victory by Paul Vipond, Cornell miler, enabled the Ithacans to gain their first triangular victory over the Harvard and Dartmouth track and field forces since 1924 tonight at the Boston Garden. The final scores were Cornell, 45⅓; Harvard, 39½, and Dartmouth, 31. Vipond captured the mile in handy fashion, and, after a 90 minute rest, came back to beat out Johnny White, Harvard's outstanding middle distance performer, by two yards with a strong finish in the 1,000 yard event.

West Virginia Clinches 2d Straight Boxing Title

Morgantown, W. Va., March 10.—(AP)—West Virginia clinched its second consecutive eastern intercollegiate conference boxing championship tonight with a 6 to 1 victory over Pitt. Pitt's point came in the 145 pound class, where West Virginia forfeited. The Mountaineers were unbeaten in conference competition during the last two seasons.

Plan Changes in Big 10 Football and Basketball

Sentiment in favor of modifying the present rotating basketball schedules of the Western conference to permit natural rivals to meet each other every year developed yesterday at a meeting of the conference athletic directors at the Windermere hotel.

Among several plans suggested, the one which appeared to be favored would reduce the number of rotating games to four home and home contests each year. Two home and home games would remain constant. Under this plan, it was pointed out, Michigan could meet Ohio State every year, rather than two years in every three, and Chicago could meet Illinois and Northwestern each season. No formal recommendation was agreed upon.

Directors also discussed the possibility of equalizing the amount of football practice allowed every fall. Several schools now have the advantage of two practices daily until about Oct. 1, while Purdue and others go on a single practice program a few days before or after Sept. 15, the opening of the practice season.

IOWA SWIMMING TEAM WINS OVER MINNESOTA, 48-36

Minneapolis, Minn., March 10.—(AP)—Iowa defeated Minnesota in a swimming meet tonight, 48 to 36, with victories in free style races and fancy diving largely responsible.

Principals in the Hawkeye triumph were Jacobsmeyer, first in the 100 yard free style, second in the 220 yard free style, and member of the winning 400 yard relay team; Ernest, who took the 60 yard dash and swam in the relay; and Grove, victor in the 440 and third in the 200.

The summary:

400 YARD RELAY—Won by Iowa [Ernest, Sieg, Close, Jacobsmeyer]. Time, 3:43.5.

200 YARD BREAST STROKE—Won by Rush, Minnesota; Wehmeyer, Iowa, second; Andre, Minnesota, third. Time, 2:38.9.

150 YARD BACK STROKE—Won by T. Anderson, Minnesota; Webb, Minnesota, second; Hurley, Iowa, third. Time, 1:46.9.

MEDLEY RELAY—Won by Minnesota [T. Anderson, Rush, Swenes]. Time, 3:10.

RUTGERS KEEPS EASTERN SWIM TITLE; N. Y. U., 2D

Newark, Del., March 10.—[U. P.]—Led by Walter Spencer, Rutgers university retained the Eastern College Swimming association championship by amassing a total of 40 points here tonight.

The New Brunswick school won six of the nine scheduled events with Spence leading with victories in the 100 and 220 yard free style events, besides swimming anchor on the winning free style relay team.

Second place went to New York university which totaled 21 points, with Pittsburgh scoring 17, Carnegie 12, City College of New York 9, and George Washington, 6.

Spence set a new pool record in the 100 yard free style doing the four laps in 56 seconds flat. He failed to lower the association mark of 55.2 made by Kremer of the New Jersey school last year.

Harvard Rallies to Beat Yale Polo Team, 13½ to 12

New Haven, Conn., March 10.—(AP)—A well-mounted Harvard trio came from behind in the last two minutes of play to defeat Yale, 13½ to 12, in polo today. With the Elis leading, 12 to 11½, Ed Gerry scored once to put Harvard ahead for the first time, and then scorced again, just as the gong sounded, to clinch it. The game was played before about 300 persons in the Yale Armory.

Lovelock Ties in Slow Mile; Oxford Wins

LONDON, March 10.—(AP)—Jack Lovelock, New Zealand Olympian who holds the world record of 4:07.6 for the mile, helped Oxford defeat Cambridge today in the 66th annual intervarsity track and field meet, but his performance indicated a knee operation last fall had robbed him of much of his speed.

He ran a dead heat with a teammate, A. B. Leach, in the mile in the slow time of 4:23.3.

Yanks Are Stars.

"I think the knee will be all right in time," he said later, "and I could have done a little better today." A teammate, however, expressed the opinion that Lovelock's best running days were behind him and an inspection of his left knee showed the injury to be more serious than is generally admitted.

With Lovelock failing to better the inter-varsity mile record of 4:17.8, the crowd gave most of its attention to three former United States college stars who contributed five of the seven first places Oxford won in eleven events.

Stanwood Triple Winner.

Charles Stanwood, former Bowdoin star, was the outstanding performer with victories in the high and low hurdles and the high jump. N. Pen Hallowell, formerly of Harvard, with a new meet record of 1:54.1 for the half mile and W. H. Elkins, formerly of the University of Texas with a victory at 11 feet 3 inches in the pole vault, were the other American point scorers. Elkins, who was a star quarterback at Texas and never vaulted before he came to Oxford, also took a third place in the broad jump. F. A. S. Gentry, formerly of the University of Virginia, was second in the shot put. Only first places counted, however.

PENN STATE TO HOLD EASTERN MAT TOURNEY

State College, Pa., March 10.—[Special.]—Penn State, host to a national or an eastern intercollegiate boxing or wrestling tournament every year since 1929, again will be the site of the Eastern Intercollegiate Wrestling association tournament. It will be staged next Friday and Saturday.

More than 60 wrestlers, representing the eight member institutions in the association, which includes Lehigh, Cornell, Pennsylvania, Princeton, Yale, Columbia, and Syracuse in addition to Penn State, are expected to enter the championship competition, with the possibility that Harvard and Navy, elected to the association last year, also will send teams. Lehigh will defend the team championship won last spring.

Dual meets have brought out several outstanding men in the various weights. Capt. Max Hurwitz of Cornell, 135 pounder; Julian Gregory, 145 pounder, and Capt. Houghty Hooker, 155 pounder, both of Princeton; Bob Ellstrom, 115 pounder, and Clyde "King" Cole, heavyweight, both of Penn State, are the 1933 champions who will be defending their titles.

BUD DEACON OF STANFORD BEATS VAULT RECORD

Stanford University, Cal., March 10.—(AP)—Bud Deacon, of Stanford, vaulted 14 feet 2¾ inches to better the accepted world's record in a track and field meet today.

His former team mate, Bill Miller, two years ago set the present recognized mark of 14 feet 1⅞ inches; Bill Graber of University of Southern California has a mark of 14 feet 4⅜ inches up for recognition, however.

Walter Marty of Fresno State college, who recently established the world's indoor mark of 6 feet 8⅝ inches for the high jump, and last year set the outdoor record of 6 feet 8⅝ inches, went over the bar at 6 feet 3 inches today.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., PREP STAR CRACKS 2 SWIM MARKS

Philadelphia, Pa., March 10.—(AP)—Matthew Chrostotski, swimming star from the Central High school, Providence, R. I., shattered two world interscholastic records today in the annual invitation interscholastic swimming meet at the Penn Athletic club.

He posted a new mark of 53.9 seconds in the 100 yard free style after turning in a 23.8 second performance in the 50 yard event.

The New Englander's 100 yard mark was set in winning the final of the competition. His time was one-tenth second faster than the record set recently by Jimmy Reilly of Rutgers Prep. Earlier Chrostotski had won the 50 yard final after setting his record in his trial heat.

Peru Unable to Compete in Davis Cup Round

RIO DE JANEIRO, March 10.—(AP)—The Brazilian sports federation today received word from the Peruvian federation advising that Peru would be unable to send its tennis team to compete against Brazil in the first round of the Davis cup competition in the South American zone. As only two countries had challenged for the cup in the South American zone, Brazil will meet the winner of the North American zone in the interzone final.

METZ HOLDS ONE STROKE LEAD IN ATLANTA GOLF

Cards 75 in 2d Round; Golden Drops Back.

Atlanta, Ga., March 10.—(AP)—Dick Metz, young Deal, N. J., professional, still held one stroke lead over the field today after the second round of the Metropolitan open golf tournament.

The Jersey star, who shot a 67 yesterday to take a stroke advantage, found East Lake course and a hard, cold wind too much and could do no better than 75 today, for a two day total of 142.

Golden Drops Back.

Metz' closest pursuers, the professional, Johnny Golden of Noroton, Conn., and Tommy Wright, young Knoxville, Tenn., amateur, who had 68's yesterday, soared to 78 and 80, respectively, today, while Henry Picard, Charleston, S. C., pro, came through with a smart 68, the only under par card of the day. Picard was in second position with 75—68—143.

Charles Lacey, Lakeville, L. I., and Ky Laffoon, Denver, both professionals, were tied for third with 145s. Lacey was just a stroke over perfect figures today with a 71. Laffoon turned in a 72 to go with his opening round of 73.

Golden was fifth with 146, while Paul Runyan, White Plains, N. Y.; Al Leacoy, Westpoint, Ga., and Mortie Dutra, Detroit, were grouped together at 147.

Amateurs in Tie.

Wright and James Brown of Atlanta were next, tied for the amateur lead, with 148. A stroke behind was Jack Toomer, Hendersonville, N. C., pro, with 149.

Tony Manero, Sedgfield, N. C.; Willie MacFarlane, Tuckahoe, N. Y., and Craig Wood of Deal, N. J., were grouped at 150, while Al Watrous, Birmingham, Mich., pro, had 151. Bill Mehlhorn, Brooklyn pro, was 10 strokes back of the leader, with 152.

Leading 36 late scores:

IOWA STATE IS VICTOR IN BIG 6 SWIMMING MEET

Lincoln, Neb., March 10.—(AP)—Iowa State regained the Big Six swimming championship in the annual conference meet today as swimmers from three schools shattered five conference records.

Iowa State, which was tied for the title by Nebraska last year, scored 49 points. Nebraska was second with 37 and was followed by Oklahoma with 13, Kansas with 12, and Kansas State with six points. Missouri did not compete.

Jack Davis of Oklahoma set new records in the 220 and 440 yard free style races. Bernie Mastersons of Nebraska broke both the 50 and 100 yard free style records in the morning preliminaries and equaled his 50 yard mark in the afternoon, but Grant of Iowa State bettered his 100 yard mark to set up another new conference record in the finals of that event. The other new record was established by Gerry of Iowa State in the 150 yard back stroke.

NORTH CAROLINA WINS SOUTHERN TRACK CROWN

Chapel Hill, N. C., March 10.—(AP)—By placing in the one mile relay, the closing event of the fifth annual indoor track games of the Southern conference, the University of North Carolina tonight won the team championship.

Virginia led North Carolina by one point as the relay was called, but failed to place in the event. Virginia was second in team scoring.

Team leaders were North Carolina, 31.6; Virginia, 30.5; Maryland, 17; Duke, 16.6; V. M. I., 14.6; Washington and Lee, 8.2; South Carolina, 7, and V. P. I., 5.5.

Duke won in the freshman division with 20 points, North Carolina scoring 12; William and Mary, 7; Washington and Lee, 6, and Georgetown, 5.

MICHIGAN PLANS TO FILL STREAMS WITH GRAYLING

Plenty of Thrills Ahead for Fishermen.

BY BOB BECKER.

While Illinois fishermen are impatiently marking time until the weather permits them to whip their fly rods for early season crappie fishing in northern Illinois waters, Michigan makes all fishing fevers rise by pointing to the fact that at the Wolfe lake hatchery and rearing station near Kalamazoo 150,000 grayling fingerlings are developing.

No news for fly rod stream fishermen could be more interesting than this item about the effort to restock a few streams with this rare sporty fish, which once lured noted anglers to Michigan waters.

Will Offer Unique Sport.

It isn't at all unlikely that Michigan may be the only state east of the Rockies offering grayling fishing within a few years, provided, of course, that all goes well with the experiment in restocking certain waters. The grayling which is in the rearing ponds at Kalamazoo is not the species which once was plentiful in certain Michigan streams. That grayling is making its last stand in the Otter river. To date no grayling has been taken from that stream for the experimental rearing station, which is on the Otter. No one can tell how many of these rare fish still are in the Otter.

The grayling which now is the hope of midwestern anglers is the Montana species. So far the experiment in rearing this fish has been successful, what with 150,000 husky fingerlings now in the rearing ponds. These fish are going to be planted in carefully chosen rivers, very likely in streams which are located in Michigan's trout country. According to present plans not one of the Montana fish will be planted in the Otter, where Michigan's own grayling is making a hard fight to keep going.

Success Is Predicted.

Although the Michigan conservation department is not saying much about this grayling experiment, because it is an experiment and success is not certain, there is no reason to believe that these fingerlings of Montana origin should not be able to grow to maturity in carefully selected trout waters. If such is the case fly rod fishermen may again catch this unusual and beautiful fish [with the odd dorsal fin], which caused old time anglers to break out into rhapsodies of praise for its fighting ability.

We understand that Michigan has ordered several hundred thousand more grayling eggs from Montana for delivery this year. The idea is to continue the experiment of rearing grayling fingerlings and stocking certain trout streams. If this plan goes through there will be special streams for this fish, because the graylings are not to be planted everywhere.

Grayling in Yukon.

In order to get grayling fishing today one must go into certain parts of the mountain country of the west or into the far north. We found grayling streams far north in the Yukon when we were on a big game hunt. The natives care little for the species. They think about fish in terms of salmon or Mackinaw trout—big fish, which provide food for the table, or which can be smoked for feed for dog teams in the winter.

5 BIG TEN SWIM CHAMPIONS TO DEFEND TITLES

Iowa City, Ia., March 10.—[Special.]—Five defending champions are among the 100 entries in the Western conference swimming championships here March 17, it was revealed today when the complete list of nominees was received by Coach Dave Armbruster.

Michigan, the favorite to win its fourth consecutive Big Ten title, will have 1933 winners in three events. Capt. Jim Cristy of the Wolverines will defend 220 and 440 yard free style titles, while Dick Degener appears likely to repeat in diving.

Two Northwestern titleholders, Don Horn and Art Highland, will be on hand to defend their honors, but both are likely to face stiff tests in their specialties. Flachmann of Illinois may give Highland a stiff race in the 100 yard free style, while Horn will face three worthy competitors in the 200 yard breast stroke.

The entry list includes 13 men who placed in the conference meet last year. Among these are the three first ranking divers, Degener, William Busby, Iowa, and Wilkie, Northwestern.

Michigan, Chicago and Minnesota have entered 15 men each, and Iowa is fourth in entries with 14. The other institutions have named the following numbers: Illinois, 10; Indiana, 8; Ohio State, 5, and Purdue, 3.

NATIONAL PREP SWIM MEET IS BILLED SATURDAY

Bethlehem, Pa., March 10.—[Special.]—Judging from the unusually large number of entries already received, the anual National Interscholastic Swimming meet at Lehigh university next Saturday will be featured by a banner list of competitors.

The meet has been officially designated as the recognized schoolboy titular event by J. N. Miller, chairman of the National Interscholastic advisory committee on swimming.

This championship meet was formerly held at the University of Pennsylvania.

The program will be composed of the customary eight events, including dashes, back and breaststrokes, and two relays.

Monday is the closing date for entries.

BLESSED EVENT TIES U.S. RECORD IN HIALEAH RACE

Bradley Horse Runs 1 1/8 Miles in 1:48 2-5.

BY HARVEY WOODRUFF.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Miami, Fla., March 10.—E. R. Bradley's Blessed Event, in winning the first running of the Joseph McLennan Memorial handicap at Hialeah Park today, set a new track record and equaled the American record for a mile and a furlong by reeling off the distance in 1:48 2-5.

Blessed Event carried 111 pounds, three more than when he set the track record for one and one-quarter mile last Saturday. Hot Toddy made the same time at Belmont Park in 1929, carrying 110 pounds.

12,000 Wager $300,000.

The Memorial handicap, named in honor of the late Joseph McLennan, former racing secretary here and at Arlington Park, who died in December, was the second of two stake events which drew 12,000 spectators to the Widener course on the last Saturday before the Florida Derby of next week. This crowd wagered over $300,000 through the machines.

While rain of short duration drove spectators scurrying to shelter under the grandstand and in the clubhouse as the handicap field of six, from which Springsteel and Monel had been scratched, was parading to the post, it did not dull the fast track. A. A. Baroni's Flying Sailor jumped into the lead at the start, opening up five lengths in the run down the back stretch. Blessed Event was next, followed by Jungle King and Somebody.

Blessed Event Moves Up.

At the far turn Jocky Don Meade, who had closed three lengths of the gap, shook up his mount when Somebody began to move up. Into the stretch Flying Sailor was still leading, but apparently ready to surrender to the Bradley gelding. Jocky Litzenberger tried to gain ground with Somebody on the rail but was pinched off and had to go around Flying Sailor.

Meantime, Blessed Event had moved easily to the front with Meade riding confidently and had a margin of two lengths over Somebody. Flying Sailor finished a length and a half behind Somebody with Mad Frump fourth. Blessed Event was an odds-on public choice, paying $3.40 for $2 in the mutuels. The race was worth $1,700 to the winner.

Little Lie Is Winner.

The other feature was the Nursery Stakes for 2 year old fillies, won by Little Lie, whose owner, A. C. Swartz, came down from Palm Beach for the event.

Little Lie got away well from a pole position for the straightaway dash, was whipped into an early lead and escaped the crowding which befell Angelic and New Pin, public choices, shortly after the start.

With his mount running like the proverbial scared rabbit, Jocky Humphries gave the filly her head, plied the whip a few times about the sixteenth post, as Love Sick and Below Zero were moving up, but was comfortable at the finish with a margin of one and one-half lengths over Love Sick, which was a neck in front of Below Zero. Hope Eternal and Angelic came next in the field of 12.

Little Lie paid $18.30 for $2 straight, Love Sick $27.80 for place, and Below Zero $4.60 to show. The race was worth $2,940 to the winning owner.

Chicagoans in Crowd.

Barging around among the crowd in search of Chicagoans, your correspondent spied C. A. McCulloch, chairman of the board of Arlington Park and receiver of Middle West Utilities. With his family he is occupying his Miami Beach residence for a brief vacation. Comparing notes with him, apparently with a view to improving the breed of thoroughbreds, were Abner Stillwell of the Continental-Illinois bank and Harold Amberg, counsel for the First National.

Over on the clubhouse lawn was Mr. and Mrs. Franklin P. Smith of Palm Beach and Lake Forest and their daughter, Mrs. John Pirie Jr. With them was Mrs. Gordon Pirie, who had that look as if something anticipated was lacking, so we queried: "Are they running kindly?" Then she explained her husband strongly disapproved of betting on the races. Although not knowing him personally, we assured her that wagering was unmoral only when one lost, and that most husbands felt that way about it. Whether she followed our suggestions or not, she had a pasteboard in her hand which she didn't tear up when Davoc placed in the next race.

Jenks In Ade Party.

John Jenks of the C. A. A. crowd, once with Marshall Field & Co., and later Pacific Mills representative until his retirement, was in George Ade's box and said he was staying several weeks unless he interfered with the latter's work on a scenario for a Hollywood producer.

In a group were Mrs. Ward Hickok, who watched our Golden Gloves boxers in training at Grand Beach last summer; Miss Sally Salb, and Mrs. Charles McLennan.

HICKORY LAD WINS

New Orleans, La., March 10.—(AP)—Hickory Lad, odds-on favorite, today romped down the stretch to win the 18th renewal of the Louisiana Derby at the Fair Grounds.

Jocky Jack Westrope brought W. C. Reichert's color bearer over the line two lengths ahead of Mrs. Floyd West's Cursor, completing the mile and a furlong in 1:53 2-5. Hickory Lad paid $2.80 for $2.

In third place, more than a half dozen lengths behind, was Morning Cry. Mose Goldblatt's Legality, second choice, galloped behind the field after having refused to break at the post.

Maj. Sasse, Ex-Army Coach, Assigned to Fort Knox

Washington, D. C., March 10.—(AP)—The war department announced today Maj. Ralph I. Sasse, now on duty at the army war college here, had been assigned to duty at Fort Knox, Ky. Maj. Sasse was formerly football coach at West Point.

WALLACE NAMES JAY N. DARLING AS BUREAU CHIEF

Washington, D. C., March 10.—(AP)—Jay N. Darling, newspaper cartoonist of Des Moines, was appointed today by Secretary Wallace as chief of the bureau of biological survey.

"Probably at no previous time has there existed in this country such a favorable national approval of the administration's efforts to reëstablish and preserve our wild life resources," Wallace said.

"Mr. Darling will be welcomed by all of us in the department. I, personally, look forward with pleasure to our official association."

Darling has served as a member of President Roosevelt's committee on wild life restoration since Jan. 6. He aided its report calling for utilization of land bought by the government and retired from farm production for wild game and bird propagation.

HEAVY FIRING STARTS TODAY AT A. B. C. TOURNEY

Peoria, Ill., March 10.—(AP)—The heavy firing in the doubles and individual events of the 34th annual American Bowling Congress will begin here tomorrow at noon when men from approximately one dozen midwestern cities begin shooting on the State Armory alleys.

There will be two sets of doubles and singles with five-man teams finishing up the afternoon and evening program. The night session will be devoted to teams representing the Illinois Moose organization.

It's a Mistake! Badgers Defeated Loyola Swimmers

Madison, Wis., March 10.—[Special.]—After having announced the score of the Wisconsin-Loyola swimming meet last night as 43 to 41 in favor of Loyola, the judges today discovered an error in tabulation of the scores in fancy diving. The correction gave Simonson of Wisconsin first instead of Kearns of Loyola and the Badger the meet, 43 to 41.

SAVOY PLAYS OLDE TYMERS.

The Savoy Big Five and the Olde Tymers will meet in a basketball game at the 8th Regiment armory, 35th and Giles, tonight, for the new championship of Chicago.

C. Y. O. QUINTETS MEET AT LOYOLA IN FINALS TODAY

Sacred Heart Girls Meet St. Rita's.

Loyola university gmnasium will be the scene of the finals in the Catholic Youth Organization basketball league this afternoon. Four games will be played, the first between grammar school fives, starting at 2 o'clock. The girls', the lightweight and heavyweight C. Y. O. championship games will follow in order. Finalists in the Catholic Boy Scout league will play a curtain raiser.

Proceeds of the finals will be donated to the C. Y. O. scholarship fund, created by the Most Rev. B. J. Sheil, D. D., auxiliary bishop of Chicago. Hundreds of deserving students are provided with high school and college educations by means of the fund.

Sacred Heart Has Two Teams.

Featuring the program this afternoon will be the appearance of two Sacred Heart teams, the lightweight and the girls' quintets, both of which hold C. Y. O. championships in their divisions. The girls will meet St. Rita's in the second game of the afternoon, while the lightweights play the strong Corpus Christi colored five.

Sacred Heart's lightweights have established an enviable record in three years of competition in the league. In 1932 the boys from the near south side won their first title, which they successfully defended last year. Should Sacred Heart win from Corpus Christi this afternoon, the silver cup donated by Bishop Sheil will remain in its permanent possession.

Cicero vs. Waukegan.

In the last game, which will decide the 1934 heavyweight championship, Mary Queen of Heaven, favorites from Cicero, will meet Immaculate Conception, Waukegan. The Waukegan five has displayed the best offense of the title round, averaging 40 points per game. Whether or not they will be able to break through the strong Queen of Heaven defense, which has stopped Corpus Christi, St. Anselm, St. John's Joliet, and Blessed Sacrament, remains to be seen.

Winners of the lightweight and heavyweight championship games will be awarded a trip to New York on March 22.

K. of C. Fives Close Regular Season Today

The Knights of Columbus Basketball league's regular season will end this afternoon with practically every contest having an important bearing on the championship round which opens next Sunday at the 132d Regiment armory.

In the west division the outstanding game will be St. Cyr vs. Hughes, with the divisional championship at stake. The two teams are now tied for the lead, and the loser will drop into a deadlock for second place with Damen should the latter win over its old jinx, Carroll.

Aquinas, which has won its last four games to qualify for the finals, meets Auburn Park in one of the south division contests. McHale vs. Calumet also will help determine the finalists, as five teams from the south and west sections and two from the south end will go into the title round.

Standings are:

WEST DIVISION.	W	L	SOUTH DIVISION.	W	L
St. Cyr	13	2	Englewood	13	2
Hughes	13	2	Loyola-H. P.	10	4
Damen	12	3	Auburn Park	8	6
Setters	8	7	Calumet	8	6
Hennepin	7	8	McHale	7	7
Tonti	6	9	Aquinas	6	8
Barry	4	10	Perez	5	9
Carroll	2	13	La Rabida	4	11
Lafayette	1	12	Dowling	3	11

Today's schedule follows:

WEST DIVISION [4711 Madison street]—Tonti vs. Lafayette, St. Cyr vs. Hughes, Damen vs. Carroll, Setters vs. Barry.

SOUTH DIVISION [White City]—McHale vs. Calumet, Englewood vs. Dowling, Loyola-Hyde Park vs. Perez, Auburn Park vs. Aquinas.

King George's Son Rides to Victory in Steeplechase

WINDMILL HILL, Eng., March 10.—(AP)—The duke of Gloucester, swashbuckling soldier son of King George, showed he was no drawing room cavalryman today when he won the Windmill Hill Steeplechase cup at the Salisbury plain meeting.

Mounted on his own horse, Birkhall, and taking his first 1934 ride over the course, the six foot duke, a member of the Hussars, scored a two length victory over a field of 13.

The duke kept his horse close up from the start of the race and was lying fourth at the home turn. One by one the leaders fell before the last fence, leaving only Onyx IV., ridden by Capt. J. H. Higgon, for the third son of his majesty to beat.

When Onyx made a bad mistake at the final jump the 34 year old duke shot his horse to the front and crossed the line with royalty and race fans cheering him on to victory.

Prince Henry has taken an active interest in equine sports for several years and is recognized as one of the best amateur riders in England. Six years ago he finished second to his brother, the prince of Wales, in a race for the king's African Rifles cup, limited to gentlemen riders. Since then he has frequently ridden in hunt meetings and occasionally against professional jockys.

In 1929 he broke a collar bone while playing polo in Vancouver, B. C. Two years ago he was made a regimental officer with the Eleventh Hussars, an armored car regiment, after serving as staf captain of the Second cavalry.

Within the last ten years he has been frequently mentioned for important diplomatic posts in the British empire and has served as the king's special representative on numerous occasions. He also has spent much time big game hunting in Africa and India.

Grand Rapids Wins Chicago Favor for 1935 A. B. C. Meet

BY HOWARD MARTIN.

When delegates to the American Bowling Congress, which is picking up momentum this week-end in Peoria, go into a huddle March 23 to select the site for the 1935 tournament, Syracuse will have a fight on its hands to land the 34th renewal of the world's largest tenpin event.

The most serious opposition is developing from Grand Rapids, Mich., which has a new $1,000,000 structure to house the 1935 event. Since Grand Rapids is only 180 miles from Chicago and Syracuse is more than three times that far, local bowlers already are expressing a decided preference for the Michigan city. Chicago delegates will be urged to cast their full strength for Grand Rapids.

Dark horses, notably St. Louis, may appear to put both Syracuse and Grand Rapids out of the 1935 picture, but a fight will be made to have next year's event in a more centrally located site than the New York municipality. One thing in Syracuse's favor is the fact that precedent decrees that the east be awarded the meet in alternate years.

Classic League.

Series of 700 were not as plentiful in the men's Classic league during the week, only five getting in this class. They were P. Petersen, 715; H. Freitag, 708; O. Knebelsberger, 700; O. Beohm, 707; J. Bishop, 706. Dick Winsberg dropped a point, but still is far in front in the individual race with a 227 average, seven better than Ad Carlson. The Baby Ruths, first half champions, who are staging a comeback, are only four games back of the Old Manhattans, second half leaders since the start of the new race. Tonight's league schedule:

City Eliminations.

The business of reducing the city elimination field from six to four started last night at the Roseland recreation. At the end of the first six games, Frank Kartheiser leads with 1,284. Second is Eddie Zajac with 1,268 and third is Herb Freitag with 1,261. The other survivors, two of whom face elimination unless they make up lost ground in the next two sets of this round, are Wally Freitag, 1,220; William Heerman, 1,178, and Eli Marcich, 1,169. This afternoon all six will roll at the Cinderella recreation, 5612 Madison street, and next Saturday evening at Windy City.

Here and There.

The golf champion of Olympia Fields Country club is also its leading bowler, Ben Stevenson, who is averaging 182. . . . Led by Dougherty with 213, 199, and 223 for a 635 total, Olympia Fields defeated a six team group from South Shore Country club, 13,093 to 11,595, a margin of 1,498 pins.

The Edward Bacon Grain company shot 3,277 to miss tying the season team record by one pin in the Bruck-Wiesner Major leage. However, the team did set a new game mark of 1,231. Its other games were 929 and 1,117. Here's the way the team shot: Egner, 556; Lichtenfeld, 659; Wensel, 736; A. Plunge, 720, and Maurer, 606.

Ray Johnson of the Automatic Electric league, competing in a Class B tournament at the Archer-Kedzie Recreation, wound up his series with a perfect game and a 699 total. His games were 201, 198 and 300. Another 300 for the same alleys was recorded by Peter Roose in the Archer-Kedzie Major league. He shot 169, 300 and 246 for 715. . . There is talk of the Butler Brothers league getting a team in a major organization such as the Randolph or the Classic league. Sandquist is maintaining a 196 average to top the Butler Brothers league.

In the Garden Major league, the Kingsbury Pales still are in front, their margin being two games over Rome Motors Sales. Among the high men at the last session were: H. Freitag, 660; Art Butler, 656; Pehrson, 652; Gumz, 630; Hanson, 615; Fuller, 615; Benson, 614; P. Petersen, 603, and Bishop, 601.

Randolph League.

The Birk Brothers reached the 50 mark in the victory column of the Randolph league by taking three games from the Greyhound Lines. Against this record the Birks have 22 defeats, nine more than the Mineralities, who again took two out of three games. The Birks were the standouts in the last session with a 3,282 series on games of 1,048, 1,154 and 1,080. Chief contributors to these Birk scores were Pekie, 685; Traubick, 678, and Lellinger, 677. After a poor start of 165, Kartheiser blasted out a 297 game and wound up with a 666 total for the Mineralites.

Windy City League.

Another league which has the Mineralites as pace setters is the Windy City Major, in which F. Wright, et al., have won 52 games and lost 20. It was only recently, though, that the Mineralites were able to reach the top, as first was held by the Illinois Pies and later by the Corina Cigars, the present second place team which is one game back of the leaders. Joe Hradek registered a 288 game to tie E. Fragel for the league high game. Among the high scorers last time out were: Vogel, 713; Hradek, 680; Peck, 673; Brichetto, 658; Schaffeck, 670; Fischer, 659; Beattie, 647; Svoma, 649; Nordbrook, 654; Kosbucki, 653.

On South Side Alleys.

A 722 series by F. Kaminski was high for the week in the South End Traveling league in which Schaffeck is the individual leader with an average of 217. Geise, Brennan and Lueman are in the 212 class; Pinc has 211, Lightfoot, 210; Mauge, 207; Kaminski, 206, and W. Enright and Matheiser, 205. Anheuser-Busch is the undisputed team leader as a result of two victories over Luxor Cigars and the Prima Beers' loss of a pair to the U. S. Brewery. . . Tom Chyzy, who has climbed from eighth to first place for an average of 212 in the Woodlawn Major league, continued his brilliant work by getting a 728 series on games of 242, 207 and 279. In the last six weeks Chyzy has shot 720, 608, 730, 605, 693, and 728 in the Woodlawn. With the appearance of new pins, the Woodlawn "400" club took in new members . . . Kurch, who started with a 113 game, finished with 441; Seeley, 475; Smiley, 462; Hart, 483; Knudsen, 479; Claahsen, 455; Brown, 478; Cramsie, 473, and Klingen, 498. On the brighter side, along with Chyzy, were: Maurer, 602; Grogan, 651; Marcich, 681; Maretick, 601; Gawron, 635; Calloway, 636; DeVito, 626; Blazina, 664; Weissensell, 602 . . . Klatt has joined Wiesner in the "get ahead of Marcich group" of the Bruck Major league. Marcich has an average of 203, Klatt, 204, and Wiesner, 206.

Tournaments.

The Advertising Men's post of Chicago is completing arrangements for a national telegraphic American Legion tournament to be held April 14 to 21. More than 100 teams will participate. . . . The fifth annual Holy Name tournament will open April 7 at the C. Y. O. alleys, 31 East Congress street. Entries close March 24. . . . Goldammer Harding alleys' individual sweepstakes will wind up this evening.

Another successful meet is in prospect for the third annual Acacia National bowling tournament, which will begin March 31 at the Lincoln Square Recreation. The deadline for entries is March 25. . . . A classified event that drew nearly 500 entries last year is to be repeated by the Cinderella, Lorraine Arcade and North Cicero Recreations starting March 24. No entries will be accepted after March 17. . . . Entries are coming in fast for the meet of the Walther Lutheran league, which has set March 21 as the final date for the posting of nominations. The event is scheduled at the Gold Coast alleys.

North End League.

The lead in the North End Traveling league changed hands again when Edelweiss swept its series with the Birk Brothers, while the Fox's De Luxe won only two games from the tail-end National Teas. The Michelobs aided by George Miller's 695, again topped the scoring with a 3,165 total, which netted them the odd game from the Superbs. In the other matches the Kaads took three from the Westers and the Tavern Pales did likewise to the Luxors. The Birk Brothers-Westers match at Bryn Mawr heads tomorrow night's card, which follows:

Birk Brothers vs. Westers at Bryn Mawr, 7 p. m.; Fox's vs. Tavern Pales at Idle Hour, 9 p. m.; Luxors vs. Michelobs at North Town, 7 p. m.; Kaads vs. Superbs at Willow, 7 p. m.; Edelweiss vs. Nationals at Lake View, 9 p. m.

About the Women.

Esther Horak, champion of the Peoples Gas Club league, will meet Marie Warmbier in a four game match this afternoon at the 131 South Wabash Recreation. . . . The Ladies of Isabella are looking forward with interest to their individual tournament next Sunday at the C. Y. O. alleys. . . . Another batch of good scores was recorded in the Monte Cristo Major league. They are: M. Reglin, 594; L. Jung, 591; E. Sullivan, 580; G. Anderson, 556; G. Ritchie, 554; F. McDyer, 538; C. Ehrns, 535; J. Consier, 525; G. Johnsom, 519; P. Strassburger, 516; M. Haisch, 513; M. Winneman, 504; Miss Griffon, 501; F. Stricker, 501, and Mrs. Jacobs, 505. . . . High game of the season, 974, was rolled by Leonard's Beauty Shop in the Samuelson Major league. Grace Culver helped the Leonard's total 2,625 by shooting 199, 206, and 213 for 618.

Marie Warmbier now has an average of 188 in the women's Classic league, her best series being 675. B. Kemph's 263 is the league high game. With 47 won and 31 lost, Windy City, led by H. Wilman, still holds the team leadership.

CHICAGO KENNEL CLUB SHOW HAS RECORD ENTRY

The largest entry of sporting dogs in the 33 years' history of the Chicago Kennel club is anticipated for the coming all-breed show to be held by the club March 30, 31, and April 1 at the First Regiment armory, 16th and Michigan avenue. Entries now being received at the club offices, 5 North Wabash avenue, show a heavy increase in sporting dogs compared to the same period last year.

Alexander Stewart, president of the organization, attributes the situation to the increased appreciation of the sporting dog for both hunting and home purposes, plus the increased interest in hunting brought about by enforced leisure.

Indications are that cocker spaniels will lead the list of sporting dog entries. This follows the experience at the recent Westminster club show in New York, when more cocker spaniels were entered than those of any other breed.

Approximately 40 breeds will be shown, ranging from black and tan weighing around four pounds, to giant St. Bernards and Irish Wolfhounds weighing up to 200 pounds.

Among leading dog fanciers from this area who will have their dogs competing for blue ribbons are Thomas M. Howell, Barrington; H. M. Florsheim, Highland Park; Maurice V. Reynolds, Lake Villa; Dr. Noel S. Young, Lake Forest; Livingston Osborne, Ravinia; Peter Gregg, River Forest; Mr. Steward, Orrin Baker, C. B. Goes Jr., L. J. Leahy, Mrs. W. Harold Cluxton, Ben Rosenheim and William McLuckie, all of Chicago.

"ELECTRIC EYE" TO TIME RACES AT HAWTHORNE

A new timing device, making use of the infra red ray, or "electrical eye," will be placed in use when the Hawthorne race track opens this season, Col. Albert Sabath, director of the track, announced last night.

The starting gate will be moved back 30 feet from the starting point he said. The "electric eye" will be placed at the starting point. The first horse to break the ray will start the clock.

The first horse across the final line will break another ray at that point, stopping the clock, thus the exact time will be recorded without depending upon the human eye or hand, Col. Sabath said.

Brodar Meets Stenson in A. A. U. Handball Final

Jack Broadar of the Illinois Athletic club will meet Bill Stenson, Midwest Athletic club, in the final round of the Central A. A. U. handball tournament at the Lake Shore Athletic club this afternoon. The match will start at 2:30 o'clock. Brodar defeated Dr. Maurice McCarthy in the semifinals yesterday, 21-19, 21-14, 21-17, while Stenson elimiated William Doolittle, 21-18, 21-12, 21-17.

CALUMET FARM HORSES ROUND INTO CONDITION

Wright's Stable of 28 Has 3 Stakes Candidates.

Lexington, Ky., March 10.—[Special.]—What promises to be one of the most powerful of the western-owned stables in the field this season is the band of 28 thoroughbreds now undergoing spring training near here at the Calumet farm. Warren Wright, Chicago sportsman and vice president of the Arlington Park Jocky club. Thirteen of the horses are 3 year olds and the remainder 2 year olds, with the former group including three candidates for stake honors in Hadagal, Count Rae and Prince Pompey.

Under the direction of Bert Williams, the Calumet horses are preparing for racing over the fine three-quarters of a mile track constructed on Wright's estate last year. A quarter mile chute permits horses to go a mile with only two turns to negotiate. They are housed in a new 30 stall barn.

Watch Count Rae!

Hadagal, brother to Pansy Walker by Sir Gallahad III. from Erne, is the best known of the Calumet colts, having been one of the favorites for the Belmont Futurity after capturing the Champagne stakes in hollow fashion. He also finshed second in the Arlington Futurity and third in the Saratoga Special. Much is expected, however, of Count Rae, a chestnut colt by Reigh Count from Concession. This fellow has developed far beyond the expectations of Williams and Dick McMahon, Calumet manager and one of the most noted horsemen in America. Count Rae is termed an exact image of his sire, Kentucky Derby winner in 1928.

Of the Calumet juveniles, some were purchased at the Saratoga yearling sales while the others were raised at home, being the first developed by the Arlington official to sport his cherry and blue silks. Those youngsters bought in the open market were picked by McMahon.

Pay $13,000 for One.

Calumet farm obtained two of the four highest priced yearlings sold during 1933 ,getting the top colt, a handsome bay colt by Gallant Fox from Martha Snow, for $13,000. A trim youngster by Sir Gallahad III. from Lady Stone cost $10,000. The Toro-Scally colt was a $4,000 buy and half as much was given for the son of Teddy and Why Marry. The cheapest was a colt by Blue Larkspur from Resplendent at $1,600.

Present plans for the Calumet stable are for it to be shipped to Churchhill Downs next month. Then it will move to Washington Park with the racing at Arlington Park its next and principal objective. No jocky has been selected for the stable, although Wayne Wright has been engaged to handle one of the establishment's Kentucky Derby starters.

The horses in the stable are:

THREE YEAR OLDS.
Hadagal, bay colt, by Sir Gallahad III. from Erne.
Boy Bunting, bay gelding, by Bunting from Balayeuse.

Penn Beats Princeton for 10th Title, 28 to 26

Philadelphia, Pa., March 10.—(AP)—The University of Pennsylvania tonight captured its tenth eastern intercollegiate league basketball championship when the Quakers' quintet defeated Princeton 28 to 26 in the final game of the current campaign.

LANE, ROOSEVELT WIN CITY TITLES IN BASKETBALL

Tech Heavyweights Beat Tilden, 29-16.

Chicago Public High school league lightweight and heavyweight basketball champions were determined yesterday. Lane Tech won the heavyweight crown, defeating Tilden Tech, 29 to 16, at White City, while Roosevelt triumphed over Wendell Phillips, 31 to 20, for its second successive lightweight title. This game was played at Loyola university gymnasium.

It was Lane Tech's second undisputed championship. It won the annual University of Chicago holiday tournament and will be one of the strongest teams from the Chicago district in the sectional play for the Illinois state championship. Tilden Tech, Marshall, and Englewood, which reached the semi-finals for the city title, also will participate in sectional tournaments.

Lakner Scores 12 Points.

Steve Lakner, forward, led Lane Tech to victory. He accounted for 12 points, scoring three field goals and six free throws.

Lakner scored a basket and a free throw in the first few minutes of play and the end of the first period Lane Tech led, 7 to 3. At the intermission Lane held a 14 to 8 advantage. Lane continued to break through the Tilden Tech defense throughout the third period and was in front, 20 to 13, at the conclusion of the quarter. Tilden was held scoreless until the closing minutes of the last period, when Cronin sank a basket and a free throw.

Roosevelt Easy Victor.

Roosevelt had no difficulty in its game with Phillips. Roosevelt led at half time, 17 to 8. Wolinsky, forward, and Condon starred for the winners, the former contributing four baskets and four free throws, while Condon scored three baskets.

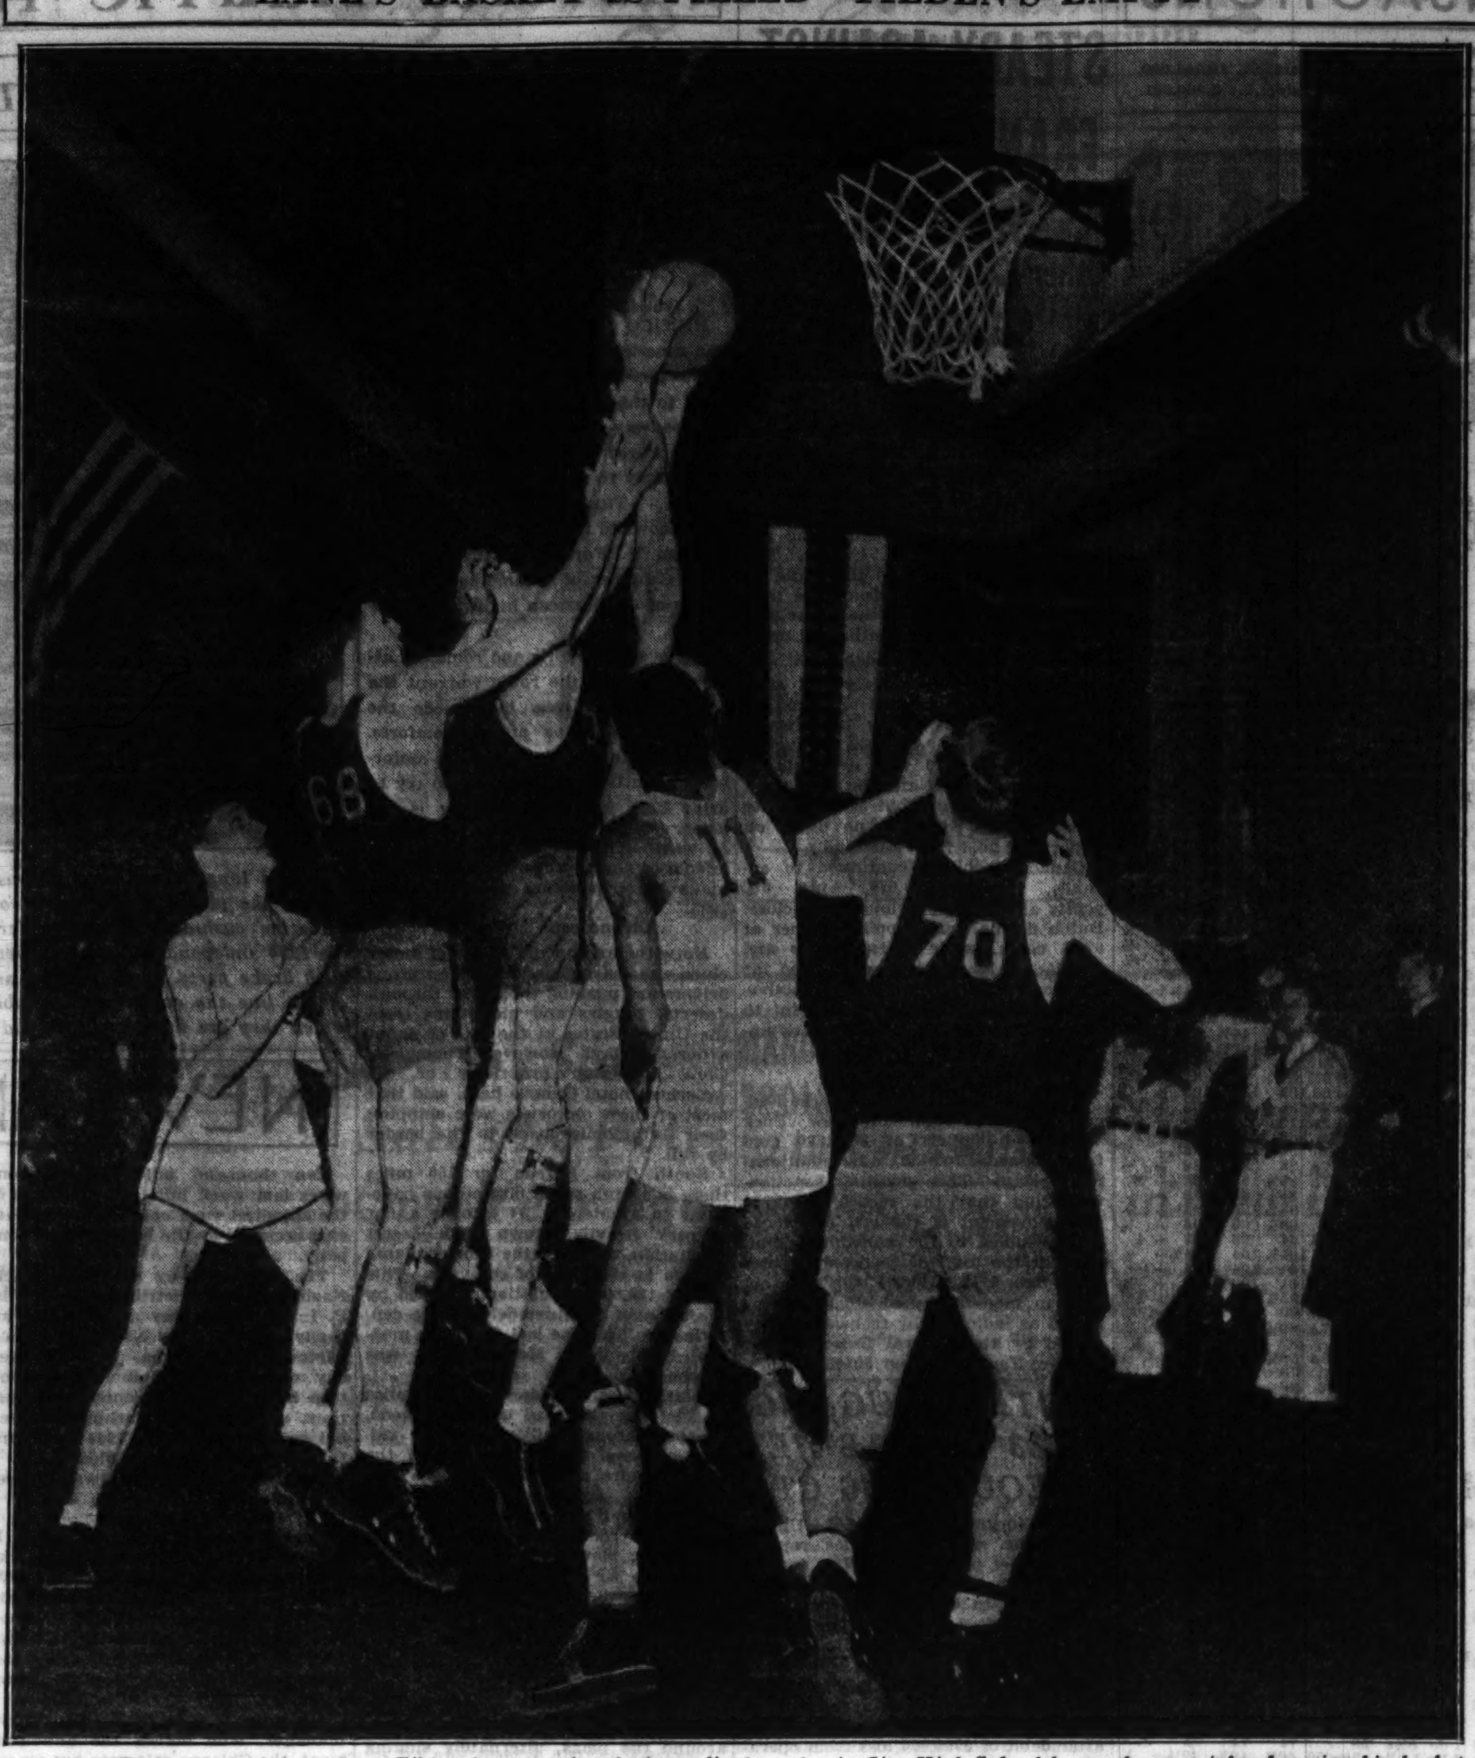
LANE'S BASKET IS FILLED—TILDEN'S EMPTY



Lane Tech players fight to keep Tilden from scoring during a lively melee in City High School league heavyweight championship basketball game at White City yesterday. Lane, having better luck in the matter of filling its basket, won 29 to 16. No. 68 is Ted Annel of Lane, No. 11 is Walter Black of Tilden, and No. 70 is Bill Benziger of Lane. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Armour Meet Draws Teams of Little 19

Monmouth, Ill., March 10.—[Special.]—Several track and field teams from the Little Nineteen conference will compete in the Armour Tech relays next Saturday at Chicago.

Coach H. L. Hart will send at least three Monmouth stars, Bob Laxson, hurdler and Hugh Matchett and Dick Grills, middle distance men. Capt. Bob Drexler, who won the high hurdle event at the Little Nineteen outdoor meet last year, will head the Bradley entries.

From North Central there will be entered Capt. John Deiber, sprinter; Lloyd Seibert, frosh pole vaulter, low hurdler and broad jumper; Vince Godfrey, high hurdler; ex-Captain Norm Quantock, quarter miler; Charles Gulver and Earl Haag, distance runners; and Bill Langell, shot putter.

State Normal's team will be headed by Lyle Hutton of Savanna, who owns all conference indoor and outdoor marks for the mile and half mile. Capt. Bill Bremer of Ellsworth, two-miler, and Herbert Gorens, colored sprinter, are others of the Normal squad who will compete.

Conference Meet March 24.

The Little Nineteen indoor meet will be held at North Central college March 24. North Central is the defending champion, with State Normal the runner up, and both teams are booked with veterans this year.

Swimming teams of the conference will meet at North Central March 23. Illinois Wesleyan with six conference championships in the last seven years, is again the defending champion. Norman Marshall, backstroke and free style swimmer, and Alvin Keller, record holder in the breaststroke, lead the Titan team.

Monmouth again is a contender for the Little Nineteen baseball championship. Heading a list of veterans is Wendell York, junior pitcher. Pitching in a game against Iowa which Monmouth won last year, York struck out 12 batsmen. Paul Heil, the best outfielder on the roster last year, is again in school. Bobby Woll, second baseman and Joe Meyer, first baseman, are available.

Eight Veterans at Bradley.

Coach A. J. Robertson at Bradley has eight baseball veterans working out. The team will be led by Capt. Frank Sepich, an outfielder, who may be called upon to do some of the catching this season since Clarence Crowell, regular last year, is not in school. Other experienced men include, Milton Gruber, first baseman; Lee and Gene Handley, infielders; Harry McDonald, last year's captain, an outfielder; Dale Daugherty, pitcher; Cap Burdett, outfielder and Harold Lintz, second baseman.

Included in the list of promising prospects from the freshman team of last year is Bob Lahey, a pitcher. The Bradley schedule opens April 2 with the University of Iowa at Peoria.

Lloyd Burdick, new Knox coach, has begun three weeks of spring football. Burdick has 20 players available from last year's roster.

Williamsville May Build High School Gymnasium

Williamsville, Ill., March 10.—[Special.]—Williamsville may erect a new gymnasium for its high school. A federal grant has been procured and there is sufficient cash in the school treasury to pay the remaining costs. The playing floor will be 84 feet by 48 feet, the size recommended by the High School Athletic association.

Twelve Accept Bids to Loyola Basket Meet

Invitations to the eleventh annual national Catholic high school basketball tournament, which will be held at Loyola university gymnasium March 21 to 25, are due to be accepted by squads in several sections of the United States this week. The field of 32 teams probably will be completed by Saturday.

Twelve teams already have entered the five day meet. They include Cathedral of Indianapolis, Ind., defending champion; Catholic of Elmiro, N. Y.; St. Francis Mission, St. Francis, S. D.; St. Mary's, Stockton, Cal.; Campion academy, Prairie du Chien, Wis.; Catholic, Joliet, Ill., and Corpus Christi, Galesburg, Ill.

Indiana Teams Play Tomorrow.

Financial difficulties forced the Indiana Catholic High School Athletic association to discontinue its annual state tournament to determine its champion, but a meet, bringing together four of the best quintets in Indiana, will be held at Fort Wayne tomorrow night and the winner will be invited to the national tournament.

The four teams which will battle for the right to participate in the Loyola meet are Central Catholic of Fort Wayne, Decatur, St. Mary's of Anderson, and St. Mary's of Huntington. Central Catholic will meet Decatur and Huntington will play Anderson in the afternoon. The winners will play tomorrow night.

The St. Francis Mission squad of St. Francis, S. D., will be one of the most colorful teams in the tournament. All members of the squad are full blooded Sioux Indians. St. Francis' colors last appeared in Chicago in 1926. The team this season has won 20 games while losing two.

The Indians caused Loyola officials no end of worry in their last appearance. Elevator operators complained of being overworked as the St. Francis players rode up and down in a north side hotel after their games. However, Fred Montiegel, the voice of Loyola university, already is at work seeking quarters for the Indians on the ground floor of a hotel so they will not have any difficulty finding their rooms.

First Time in Tourney.

St. Mary's of Stockton, Cal., and Corpus Christi of Galesburg, Ill., will be making their first appearances in the tournament. Corpus Christi recently won the Illinois state Catholic championship by defeating Cathedral of Springfield, while St. Mary's captured the Northern California High School league title with 13 victories and three defeats.

Three Chicago boys are on the Campion academy team. They are Robert McClellan, forward; James McSweeney, center, and Thomas Monahan, guard. The quintet is coached by W. S. Hoffman, who has coached all major sports at Campion for 23 years. Campion this year won 17 games while losing two.

The Chicago Catholic league will be represented by St. Philip and Catholic of Joliet in the tournament. They were invited after winning sectional championships. Joliet is undefeated in league competition, having scored fourteen consecutive victories. It will meet St. Philip for the league heavyweight title Friday night.

Loyola U. Ends Basket Season with a Victory

Loyola finished its basketball season last night at the Loyola gymnasium by defeating the University of Detroit, 25 to 20. The victory gave Loyola a season record of seven victories and eight defeats, its poorest since 1925.

Taking advantage of a zone defense that hugged the free throw line, Loyola built up a 16 to 9 lead at half time on five baskets and six free throws. When Detroit changed to man to man in the second half, Loyola was held to two baskets by Schuessler, but cashed in five free throws.

Detroit threatened twice in the second half when Hayes sank two long shots, but the Ramblers kept a five point margin for the last five minutes. Capt. Jim Hogan played his last varsity game. Score:

NORTHWESTERN GOLFERS CARD EIGHT MATCHES

Northwestern's golf team will compete in eight matches this spring, five of them being against Big Ten opponents. The first match will be against Armour Tech at Kildeer Golf club April 21.

Coach Ted Payseur already has candidates for the team working out on the indoor driving net. Bill Flynn and Bob Brown, who finished fifth and sixth respectively in the conference meet last year, are the only letter men back.

A lot is expected from the sophomore candidates, headed by Tom Saielli of Highland Park, Ill., holder of the Cook County Junir champion. Saielli is a former caddy at Exmoor, and Harold Fink caddied at Glen View.

April 21—Armour at Evanston.
April 24—De Paul at Evanston.
April 28—Michigan at Ann Arbor.
May 5—Wisconsin at Madison.
May 7—Illinois at Evanston.
May 12—Notre Dame at South Bend.
May 14—Wisconsin at Evanston.
May 17—Chicago at Evanston.
May 21, 22—Conference meet at Evanston.
June 25—National meet at Cleveland.

WESTERN INDOOR TENNIS TOURNEY SET FOR APRIL 1

The western indoor tennis championship tourney will be held April 1 to 8 at the 108th Engineers' armory, 34th street and Wentworth avenue, it was announced yesterday.

The Hamilton Park Tennis club is sponsoring the event, and entries, closing March 27, can be mailed to George O'Connell, 71 West Monroe street.

St. Louis to Meet Sparta Eleven Today

BY OFFSIDE.

The Sparta Leaders, who last week were defeated by the Wieboldt Wonderbolts in the semi-finals for the western division championship of the national cup competition, will meet the Ben Millers of St. Louis, Mo., at Sparta stadium, 21st street and Kostner avenue, this afternoon. The Wonderbolts will play the Stix, Baer and Fuller team in the first of a three game series for the western title at St. Louis.

The leaders will be bolstered by Swanson, a star member of the Swedish-American club, against the St. Louis team, which is rated as one of the strongest soccer squads in the middle west. Several members of the Sparta team were injured in the game with the Wonderbolts last week, but are reported in condition to play today.

In one of the other outstanding contests of this afternoon the Jewish All-Stars will play the Scandinavians for the Cermak Memorial cup at Kuppenheimer stadium, 18th street and Keeler avenue. Today's schedule:

INTERCITY.

Sparta Leaders vs. Ben Millers [St. Louis] at Sparta stadium, 21st and Kostner avenue. 2:30 p. m.

24 Colleges Get Bid to National Polo Tournament

New York, March 10.—[Special.]—The Intercollegiate Polo association has announced plans for the biggest expansion in its history. Invitations have been sent to 24 colleges asking them to join in a national outdoor tournament next summer.

Accompanying the invitation is a letter setting forth plans for reorganization of the college meet on a broad scale which will permit competition by teams from all over the United States.

If there is sufficient response to the invitation just sent out by the association, the championship will be decided at some central location, probably Chicago. The dates proposed are June 20 to July 4.

Yale, Harvard, Princeton, the United States Military academy, and Pennsylvania Military college, the present members of the association, have received the letters.

Letters also were dispatched to the following colleges and universities where teams have been played in recent years: Cornell, Virginia Military institute, Norwich, Michigan A. & M., Chicago, Illinois, Iowa State, Missouri, Ohio State, Oklahoma, Texas A. & M., Oregon Agricultural college, Stanford, Utah, Arizona, Colorado Agricultural college, Georgia, Alabama, and Florida.

Green Bay Polo Team Defeats Cleveland, 7½-5½

The Green Bay Rustlers polo team defeated the Cleveland Riding club trio, 7½ to 5½, last night at the 124th Field Artillery armory before a crowd of 12,000 in a game marked by two spills.

A Cleveland rally in the fourth chukker with Capt. Cliff Radcliff leading the assault was cut short when Fred Lange of the Rustlers drove for a goal and made the game safe.

The 2 goal handicap awarded to Green Bay proved the margin of victory. It was the final Metropolitan league game for both teams and placed them in a tie for fourth in the standings.

Hank Evinger, star of the Cleveland trio, and Hammond were the victims of spills, but both resumed play.

64 Quintets Qualify in State Meet

District champions in 64 cities, towns, and hamlets were crowned last night in the annual battle for the Illinois state high school basketball championship. The winners now will complete in sectional tournaments next week. The final games will be played at the University of Illinois March 22, 23, and 24.

Favorites came through easily in district meets in the Chicago area. Thornton of Harvey, the defending champion, which seems headed for its second successive title, defeated Blue Island, 38 to 19, to capture the Chicago Heights crown.

Other winners included Maine of Des Plaines, Dundee, Joliet, Batavia, and La Grange. Joliet encountered no trouble as it triumphed over Lockport to win the Joliet meet. The score was 34 to 9. Maine scored a 32 to 29 victory over Libertyville, and La Grange won from Proviso, 34 to 21.

In addition to the district winners four Chicago squads are eligible for sectional play. The teams, Lane Tech, Tilden Tech, Marshall, and Englewood, qualified for the meet by reaching the semi-final round for the Chicago Public High School league heavyweight championship.

TILDEN, VINES DEFEAT FRENCH TENNIS RIVALS

St. Louis, Mo., March 10.—(AP)—The American tennis professionals won two more matches from their French rivals tonight, Ellsworth Vines defeating Martin Plaa, 8-6, 6-3, 2-6, 6-2, and big Bill Tilden winning from Henri Cochet, 11-9, 7-9, 8-6, 7-5.

Tonight's victories gave the Americans a clean sweep of the five matches here Tilden and Vines winning from Plaa and Cochet, respectively, last night, after which they teamed together to score a doubles victory.

EASY WRESTLING DOUGH APPEALS IN DARKEST INDIA

Stadium Unearths a New Groaner and Grunter.

The Chicago Stadium has imported him and he will be unveiled on a more or less unsuspecting public Wednesday, March 21, in connection with the Jim Londos-Gino Garibaldi bout.

This man from the mysterious land of India is a decided novelty in a wrestling way for Chicago, and he presents a striking figure both in and out of the ring. Standing 5 feet 10 inches and weighing 210 pounds, he has the appearance of bronze torpedo. His mustache measures eight inches from tip to tip and is of the walrus type.

Protégé of Gama.

The Hindu comes to this country with a great record in his home land and through the eastern hemisphere. His home is in Rhindar, in the province of Punjab, where wrestling is almost a religion. This is the province that produced Gama, who for a number of years was looked upon as the best wrestler in the world. Gama pinned Stanislaus Zybszko in a few seconds. Singh is a protégé of Gama and has been training under his guidance for several years.

The rajah of Punjab stages annual mat tournaments, with an entry list of several hundred. Jagot twice has been returned the winner. Following his victory last year he invaded Japan, China, Turkey, Siam, and Malay and piled up a series of victories. After that Gama decided that Singh was ready to tour the United States.

In 30 Minute Bout.

The Stadium booked him on the Londos-Garibaldi card as a means of introducing him to midwestern fans. A tough young fellow will be selected as his foe. The bout will be one of the 30 minute time limit affairs in support of the feature.

Jagot probably will create a lot of excitement when he reaches Chicago. He sticks to his native dress with the exception of a frock coat and a gold headed cane. These are his dress-up clothes. He always wears his turban, and when without his cane and "tails" parades the streets in native dress.

Over in India, the rajahs and princes own stables of wrestlers and campaign them much as do turfmen with thoroughbred horses. The wrestlers always take the name of their "owner." Jagot belonged to a Rajah Singh, hence his name.

Says Prayer Before Bout.

Jagot will present a different kind of picture to wrestling fans when he ing his turban and a sacred wrestling ing his turban and asacred wrestling robe. Doffing these in his corner, he kneels for an instant to recite the Hindu wrestling prayer. He specializes in what is known in India as "power" holds. They are punishing grips. It was this type of hold that made Gama the most feared of all grapplers when he was in his prime.

Open Western Table Tennis Meet Friday

The Western tournament of the United States Table Tennis association, scheduled for the La Salle hotel Friday and Saturday, will present almost a parade of nations. The two latest arrivals are Edgar Feltman, who last year ranked No. 16 in France, and Don Wellesdey, who competed in England. Both are now living in Chicago.

Rockford is sending up a Swedish representative in Hugo Anderson, who holds all the Rockford table tennis championship titles. Other Swedish representatives are Wilbur Larson and Paul Pearson. Paul [Ole] Pearson is a colorful player who has taken both the 1934 Chicago district and Illinois state tourneys.

Elmer Dorywalski and Brownie Jablonski are the official representatives of the Polish Alliance. Frank Work, ex-Texas cowboy, is the player from Mexico. Western Champion Max Rushakoff came from Russia.

Yoshio Fushimi is from Japan. Also from the Far East comes Li Huang, Chinese and a student at the University of Chicago. Eduardo Yap, a nationally ranked player, and Emil Calban, a newcomer to the list of table tennis stars, are from the Philippine islands.

Besides the Chicago stars mentioned are 24 champions of their own cities, states, or sections who will arrive Friday to battle for the Western titles.

EAGLES PLAY CULLERTONS.

The Wolfberg Eagles, Chicago district basketball champions, will play the E. J. Cullertons at Portage Park tonight.

BANKERS DOUBT AGREEMENT ON EXCHANGE RATES

Offer Views on Relative Stability of Money.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 10.—The relative stability of sterling, the franc and the dollar, achieved last week after the chaotic movements of the last year, gave rise to reports here and abroad of a "stabilization agreement" or other form of official understanding to maintain the existing status of the foreign exchange market. Such reports were taken lightly in banking quarters.

As bankers saw the matter it is altogether likely that some general understanding of each other's policies has been reached among the three countries concerned, but hardly logical to think that any hard and fast agreement for control of exchange rates has been entered into or is considered necessary.

As far as France and the United States are concerned, the exchange rate between the two countries is now determined by the fact that both nations are on the gold standard. During the last five weeks an unprecedented movement of gold from Europe to the United States has reduced the dollar virtually to its parity and further tendencies of the exchanges to diverge ought to be equalized by the natural workings of the gold standard, it is submitted.

No Signs of Fund Operation.

There is no indication that the $2,000,000,000 stabilization fund of the United States has been employed in the foreign exchange market at all. The mere announcement that the treasury was willing to buy imported gold at $35 an ounce was sufficient to cause banks here and abroad to sell dollars against francs, purchase gold in France and ship it here for conversion into dollars, a process which raised the franc and lowered the dollar, thereby eliminating the disparity between them.

This process was to some small extent assisted by the Bank of France which released gold from earmark here and used the dollar proceeds to buy francs, but judged from the statistics of earmarked gold releases the intervention of the French bank of issues was not large.

Now that the dollar is back on gold and its exchange value against gold standard currencies is once more controled by the gold standard, the pound sterling is once more the outstanding example of an unstabilized currency. Although the relationship between the dollar and the franc has been fixed, temporarily at least, by their relative gold contents, the pound sterling is free to fluctuate in terms of both these currencies in accordance with supply and demand.

Believe British Fund Used.

It is likely, according to bankers, that the British exchange equalization fund has intervened to some extent to regulate the movements of sterling, but it is not to be expected that the British authorities have entered into any agreement looking toward the maintenance of the pound at its present relationship.

The British authorities have made no secret of the fact that they consider a rate of more than $5 for sterling too high. On the other hand attempts to reduce the dollar value of sterling at this time would have to be carried out at the expense of France and might seriously embarass that country. Under the new gold standard in this country the British exchange equalization fund could not buy dollars against sterling and convert the dollars into gold, as it did early last year. This country will not sell gold for export to countries off the gold standard and none of the currencies of gold standard countries has yet approached the gold export point.

In order to be safe, therefore, it is pointed out the British fund, if it wished to depress the pound, would have to buy francs and draw gold from the Bank of France. Such an action at a time when the Bank of France has been subjected to heavy demands to meet the movement of gold to this country might prove the last straw necessary to drive France off gold, bankers declare.

WORLD SUGAR SESSION IS NOT FAVORED NOW

LONDON, March 10.—(AP)—Representatives of ten nations concluded their six-day study of the sugar situation today with the feeling that conditions were not favorable "at present" for summoning an international conference to consider ways to stabilize the industry.

An official communique said the chairman was ready to recommend "appropriate further action" if it appeared the following two conditions were fulfilled:

"That pending legislation regarding sugar has been adopted by the United States and that as result of further negotiations or any new developments there appeared to be a real prospect for agreement on the division of quotas among countries adhering to the Chadbourne plan after the coming into operation of a general world sugar agreement."

The United States delegation directed attention to a bill now before congress whose objective was described as an effort "to restore equilibrium between production and consumption" in harmony with the object of the Chadbourne agreement.

It was pointed out that until the bill was passed the United States could not enter any international commitment.

SILVER FUTURES

Silver futures made only a moderate response to the action of the house coinage committee reporting favorably on the bill proposing to purchase up to 1,500,000,000 ounces of the metal. Trade was only fair with sales of 133 lots or 3,325,000 ounces. Prices advanced and closed .15c to .20 higher. March closed at 46.75c; May 47.20c; July, 47.50@47.60c; September 47.92@48c, and December, 48.67c. Foreign bar silver was unchanged at 46¼c.

DOLLAR'S VALUE STEADY AGAINST FRANC, STERLING

Other Currencies Show Small Changes.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 10.—The dollar held steady against the British pound and the French franc today in a quiet foreign exchange market. Changes in other currencies were not large.

In terms of the French franc the dollar was quoted at 59.54 cents. The pound held at $5.08 and the franc at 6.58 cents. On the basis of the new par of the French franc the dollar was at a premium of eight-tenths of 1 cent.

Little Gold Available.

A small discount on forward sterling contracts which had appeared on Friday gave way today to a small premium. Only £188,000 [roughly $915,000] bar gold was available in the London market and the price fixed was equivalent to about $34.75, a rate which affords virtually no profit on imports of gold from England.

Canadian dollars continued to advance, reaching 99.875 cents, 6¼ points above the previous day's close. Dutch florins were 2 points higher at 67.28 cents, while Swiss francs and Belgian belgas were unchanged at 32.30 cents and 23.30 cents, respectively. German marks rose one point to 39.70 cents, and Italian lire were unchanged at 8.57 cents.

Metal from Canada.

The daily gold statement of the Federal Reserve bank of New York showed an import of $378,200 gold from Canada, which was additional for Friday. This small transaction, indicating that the record breaking gold movement of the last six weeks had dwindled to the vanishing point, brought the total of reported imports since Feb. 1 to $549,041,100. The net gain in monetary gold stocks in the period as indicated by transactions reported by the Federal Reserve bank of New York has been $510,565,100.

UNITED DRUG, INC. 1933 SHARE NET EQUALS 46 CTS.

New York, March 10.—(AP)—United Drug, Inc. and subsidiaries reports for 1933 net profit of $647,789, equivalent to 46 cents a share on the 1,400,560 shares to be issued in exchange for undeposited shares of Drug, Inc., of which the company was formerly a subsidiary.

This profit is after credit of $868,086 discount on debenture bonds of United Drug company. Acquired and after debit of $560,394 loss from operation of leases acquired by United Drug company as guarantor from the bankrupt Louis K. Liggett company.

The figures do not cover the operations of the Liggett company, which in three months ended March 31, lost approximately $1,000,000. The Liggett company was petitioned into bankruptcy as of that date.

Federal Mining-Smelting Proposes to Reduce Stock

The New York Stock exchange has been notified by the Federal Mining and Smelting company of a proposed reduction in the company's authorized preferred stock to 30,000 shares from 200,000 shares and in the common stock to 50,000 shares from 100,000.

Tribune Auto Travels Route to Mexico City

BY HAL FOUST.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MEXICO CITY, March 10.—The Pan-American highway is open to traffic for the 770 miles from Laredo, Tex., to this ancient capital, but until the roadway, hotels, and eating places are improved it will remain a glorious trip merely to contemplate and not to drive. THE TRIBUNE automobile editor covered the road this week with William H. Furlong of the San Antonio Chamber of Commerce and José Cantu of the Mexican highway department.

The scenic, historic and romantic attractions along the route warrant the use of superlatives, but so do the hazards, hardships and discomforts. The Mexican government urges motorists of the United States not to try to drive here until the highway is finished. Officials say there will be an all weather full width roadway by the middle of next October. Don't plan to make the trip before the late fall of 1935.

Adventurous Motorists.

Notwithstanding the advice of motor clubs and travel bureaus, adventurous drivers are pushing their cars through deserts, jungles and mountains from the United States at the rate of about a dozen a day. However, Thomas S. Gore, Canadian proprietor of the American hotel Geneve here, said that most of these motorists were shipping their automobiles back to the border by rail.

South from Laredo for 150 miles there is a high speed bituminous pavement to Monterey. It is over a flat country heavily grown with desert vegetation, many of the thorny plants abloom at this time of the year. This city of 130,000 population, founded by the Spanish conquistadores three centuries ago, was the last view of a modern hotel until Mexico City was reached.

South from Monterey for 180 miles to Victoria, the road continues good, passing through cultivated river valleys bordered by high ranges of the Sierra Madre mountains. There is a perfume of orange blossoms in passing through small villages of adobe houses, some with roofs of palm thatchwork. Oxen drag plows steered by Mexicans or Indians with large sombreros, dark faces, overalls, and feet bare or in leather sandals.

Into Tropical Jungles.

At night in Victoria a native band strummed patronage at the local movies. A band of horsemen in high hats and leather caps led a parade around the plaza, alternately singing and shouting "Viva Calles," a campaign rally preliminary to the elections this summer.

Continuing on south, the highway enters tropical jungles. The sun blazed over forests of palms, cactus and deciduous trees, all tangled with vines. A mosquito bite was a threat of malaria. The road for miles is a fresh muck fill. Last spring a lone lane track of gravel was laid as a temporary surface over what had been bottomless mud for days following a rain.

Shortly after the tropic of Cancer was passed the highway began an ascent into the mountains. This was over a trail with blind turns high on precipices and with no room for two cars to pass. Tamazunchale [pronounced Thomas and Charlie], an Indian village on the Moctezuma river, was reached shortly before nightfall.

Flocks of Birds.

In the morning there was more of this mountain driving, about 75 miles in all. Flocks of ducks passed overhead. The valley echoed the calls of parrots. A flock of these green birds flew from a jungle of banana palms into a cluster of wild coffee shrubs. From a high point on the road, about 6,000 feet above sea level, the Moctezuma river could be seen a thousand feet below.

A dugout canoe was floating down stream with an Indian standing in the bow and another sitting in the stern, both wearing the typical white costume of loose fitting trousers and slipover.

The road stayed in the mountains on this narrow trail until the high plateau was reached about 150 miles from Mexico City. On this plateau there were whirling dust storms over the fields of Maguey, cactus from which the tequila, popular native whisky is distilled. There were Indian huts of thatched cactus. There were small towns with churches built centuries ago.

Temperature Over 100.

This is the dry season. Mr. Furlong said much of the valley is green with irrigated crops in the summer. The temperature under the March sun was well over 100 degrees, but the breeze from nearby mountain peaks was cool. One of these peaks, Ixtlacisnatl, raised a snow capped head from beyond Mexico City. On entering the capital the road passed over an aqueduct built by the Iztes about the time the Egyptians were laying the foundations for their pyramids. Later it was improved by slaves working under Cortez. An aqueduct gate was converted to serve a dual function as a shrine. This stands beside the highway.

The last 125 miles into Mexico City was over a bituminous pavement. The only dangerous driving was over the mountains, and there the fatality rate has been high. But there are risks about as serious as the hazards of the road—the exposure to unsanitary eating, drinking and sleeping. I am scratching myself as I write from the bites of fleas, ants, red bugs or what have I.

The physical hazards will be minimized by the middle of October. Angel Aragon, sub director of the national highway commission, said that a full width road is to be finished before Columbus day, and that the entire 770 miles is to receive a bituminous treatment by late fall of next year.

2,700 Men at Work.

Mexico since 1925 has spent 39 million pesos on this highway. At the current rate of exchange this is about $11,000,000 United States currency. A program is under way to spend 16 million pesos more. Dynamite blasts reverberate in mountain cañons, and crews of laborers totaling 2,700 men are engaged in the widening and graveling.

The highway construction is being carried on with the same enthusiasm that Mexico engaged in its various revolutions not many years ago. It is developing new national heroes, just as did the former factional fights. And this road building is more truthfully a revolution than most of the wars of rival generals.

The road is expected to bring the United States and Mexico closer together as a result of tourists movements, breaking barriers between the republics just as gasoline travel has dissolved sectionalism in the states.

The highway is also opening to commerce a large section of Mexico that heretofore has known transportation solely by foot, burro, oxen and a few horses. An automobile is still a novelty, attracting crowds in some of the villages. But the American motor car will become a familiar sight, once the roadway is completed and accommodations provided for clean water, food and beds.

Assembling Dodge "Knees"

This long drawn alley of busy men and moving machinery shows one of the places in the plants of Dodge Brothers corporation where "floating cushion" wheels—under which name the company presented its 1934 independent front suspension—are paired, adjusted and fitted with brake parts, spiral springs and other components. At the far end of the line the completed assemblies are met by the Dodge chassis to which they are fitted with the aid of ingenious precision fixtures.

NEWS AND VIEWS

Ten thousand miles of telephone wires last week hummed with one of the speediest rush orders for new cars ever received by the Nash Motors company.

The call, made by E. M. Bachrach, Nash-LaFayette distributor in Manila, P. I., on Wednesday at midnight, actually reached the Nash export department in Kenosha, Wis. on Tuesday morning. Philippine time is fourteen hours ahead of Central Standard time, and thus the enthusiastic verbal orders for the new 1934 twin ignition Nash models was filed nearly a day ahead of the time it was entered in Manila.

J. McKeown, W. J. McKeown, A. L. Barlow, G. D. Motherwell, W. J. Hicks, C. C. Clayton, H. A. MacMillan, J. W. Solheim, and H. S. Watson, all wholesale tire salesmen for the B. F. Goodrich Rubber company in the Chicago district, have been awarded bonuses for exceptional sales results during 1933.

According to A. C. Kelly, district manager, who makes the announcement, the Chicago salesmen are among a group in the nation-wide organization to attain this honor.

Production of the Hudson Motor Car company for February, 1934, totaled just short of 10,000 Terraplanes and Hudson cars in spite of the delays encountered during the early part of the month. This is a gain of 460 per cent, as compared with February, 1933. For March a minimum production of 18,000 Terraplanes and Hudsons is planned.

Returning from a trip through the southeast where he inspected dealer operations, visited with newspaper publishers, saw the company's assembly plant in operation at Atlanta, and conducted a conference of southern regional and zone managers, A. W. L. Gilpin, vice president and general sales manager of the Pontiac Motor company, answered all questions with the brief statement, "Business, unmistakably, is good throughout the south and automobile sales are far ahead of a year ago."

In the territory of Pontiac's Charlotte, Atlanta and Jacksonville zones, embracing the states of North and South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama and Florida, according to Mr. Gilpin, Pontiac sales made by dealers in February showed an increase of 152 per cent over February of 1933, while allotments for March are 290 per cent of those a year ago.

W. F. Hufstader, general manager of the Buick Motor company, announces the appointment of George S. Daniels as sales promotion manager to take the place of R. H. Israel, resigned. Mr. Daniels, who had previously been assigned to the central region for Buick, has already assumed his new duties at the Buick headquarters in Flint.

Since graduation from college 20 years ago, Mr. Daniels has been continuously identified with the automobile industry in retail sales and merchandising. He was one of the first automobile editors of the San Francisco Bulletin.

D. E. Ralston, vice president and general sales manager of Oldsmobile, has just returned from a business trip through the east, which was marked by conferences with members of the Oldsmobile field organization, dealers, business men and also with newspaper men. The cities visited included Buffalo, Pittsburgh, Washington, Philadelphia, New York and Boston.

Great industrial activity was noted everywhere, Mr. Ralston states, and these signs of better times were confirmed by the reports which he received at his various conferences.

VOICE OF THE TRAFFIC

A CALL FOR HELP.

Bellewood, Ill., March 6.—Help! Help! Some one of Chicago's 300,000 licenseless motorists has stolen our new 1934 plates! Now we are one of the vast army of culprits facing fine and arrest. Stolen within one hour of the start of Chicago's great drive against nonconformists! All the past weeks of driving safely with 1934 plates now mean nothing—we haven't got them at the time when police are ready to arrest every one and any one.

Do you suppose we will get any consideration? Or will we get the same ill mannered, foul mouthed, wise guy abuse as the unfortunate who hasn't got eight or ten bucks to buy his new plates? In addition, we face the accusation of "liars," and uproarious laughter at our childish expectation of belief when we tell tough traffic coppers that the plates were stolen. Do we have to rush down and stand in line 10 times as long to get duplicates? And how much extra is it going to cost us? Why shouldn't our overzealous police pay the extra cost—it's their vicious and lusty persecution that made the individual who stole our plates do his act. Will our 50 cents [paid this year] protect us from the damage to life or property this other party may do under the cover of our license number?

In the meantime we join the crestfallen, fearful procession that dodges up alleys and across back streets to avoid the mighty wallop of the inquisition as formulated by Chicago police. J. H. S.

"MANANA" MAY MEAN YEARS.

Chicago, Jan. 21.—I see that the Mexican highway from the border to Mexico City is still receiving publicity as an improvement about to be opened to traffic. I've heard that same bunk for the last five years. Like a lot of other motorists, I want to make that trip as soon as the road is fit for all weather travel. What's your best guess on when the route will be comfortable and safe for a city driver to cover with his wife and children?

H. [illegible] LITTLE.

A BUNCH OF SHEEP.

Chicago, March 4.—The motorists of Illinois, in my humble opinion, are just a bunch of sheep.

I am from dear old California, and I am here because my firm sent me—God knows not from choice. Where I came from the automobile license fee on any car is but $3. In the city of San Francisco, my home town [where I would love to be right now], we have a driver's license, but this is presented to those who qualify, without any fee.

In this great city of Chicago I drive a car over the marcel boulevards, and my license plates cost $12.50, and on top of that the city hall gang blackjack me for $10 for a city license. For what?

Don't the motorists of Chicago, and of Illinois, control any votes? Don't they know what to do about fighting for their rights? I understand there are nearly 600,000 car owners in Chicago alone. And yet they stand for this legal stickup!

Illinois is known as the "Sucker State," I believe, and the residents thereof, especially those who own automobiles, certainly live up to that name. Just a bunch of sheep who take it without fighting back. L. L. H.

TO REDUCE ACCIDENTS.

New Harmony, Ind., March 7.—Periodically we read of distressing accidents happening to motorists while attempting to drive their cars across the railroad tracks.

Many of these accidents are due to stalling of their automobiles while on the tracks.

It is obvious that if some manner of constructing the highways at crossings be made so as to lessen the casualties it would be commendable.

I would suggest a plan of erecting the highways at approaches to railroads of sufficient heights above the tracks to produce an incline, whereby an automobile would be able to move on across the tracks on its own momentum without need of motor.

The peak of the elevation should be of sufficient distance from the tracks so as to take care of vehicles of any length.

It is understood that this method would apply to approaches on both sides of tracks with provisions to divide the highways to meet the changes.

HOMER LICHTENBERGER.

NIGGER IN WOOD PILE!

Chicago, Jan. 22.—Why do some state highway officials seem so anxious to manufacture excuses for not building the elevated highway for Chicago? Do they have some other plans for spending the millions contributed to the state annually by the motorists of this city? And if so, are these alternate plans of more advantage to the motorists? Or to the state highway officials? Isn't there a nigger in the wood pile somewhere?

SUSPICIOUS.

FOREIGN TRADE INTEREST HERE IS IMPROVING

Cite Tribune Drive as Major Factor.

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

An example of how Chicago companies are increasing their interest in foreign trade as a means of expanding their business was given yesterday by V. D. Seaman, manager of the foreign trade division of the Chicago Association of Commerce. Mr. Seaman said that his department recently sent out 55 letters to concerns here telling of the arrival in Chicago of Robert G. Myers, a member of an American company in Tokio, Japan, which acts as agent for American concerns in the orient.

The letter stated that Mr. Myers, who is a member of the firm of Jay W. Myers, Inc., was asking for information concerning automobile accessories and parts, tools, pneumatic tools, hardware, grinding, sharpening and polishing machinery, paints and varnishes, etc., and stated that he might be reached at the offices of the Chicago assocation.

Thirty Reply to Letter.

"Much to our surprise," Mr. Seaman said, "we received replies from 30 of the 55 letters sent out. Among the concerns replying were Montgomery Ward & Co., Hibbard, Spencer & Barlett, the Borg-Warner corporation, W. D. Allen Manufacturing company, C. N. Niehoff & Co., and the Tamms Silica company. A year or so ago had we broached the subject of foreign business with Chicago companies we would have been given little attention."

Mr. Seaman asserted that a good part of the increased interest in foreign trade here is the result of the active campaign carried on by THE TRIBUNE with the object of boosting the sale of American products abroad.

He thought it significant that Mr. Myers had come to Chicago first, explaining that most interests connected with foreign trade usually head for New York. The position of the middle west with respect to foreign business is becoming more recognized, he explained. His statement was borne out by Mr. Myers, who said it has been noticeable for some time in the orient that middle western manufacturers have seemed more interested in foreign business than are those in other parts of the country.

Orient Prefers American Wares.

"American wares are preferred in the orient," Mr. Myers said "because of their quality. In recent years price has been the vital factor. We could not compete with foreign companies because of the high level of the dollar as compared with other currencies. Foreigners may be willing to pay a little more for American goods because of their high quality, but they were not willing to pay the extra amounts necessary because of the high exchange.

"Devaluation of the dollar has helped our prospects greatly. We could see the difference almost immediately after devaluation was undertaken."

Mr. Myers has been in the orient for eight years, while his brother, the head of the firm, has been there 15 years. The company formerly had branch offices in various parts of the orient which it was forced to close when the high exchange made it almost impossible to move American goods. With business picking up, he said, the firm hopes to reopen a number of the offices this year.

Britain Greatest Competitor.

"Our greatest competitor in the orient," he said "is Great Britain. If we can maintain our exchange on a basis of around $5 to the pound sterling—or even at the old par of $4.86—we will be in a favorable position to do business."

Mr. Myers said that American automobiles and trucks were preferred to the makes of all other countries. Other American products in demand, he said, are tires, better grades of automobile accessories and replacement parts, small hardware, belts and lacings, pipe fittings, paints and varnishes, radios, and electrical refrigerators. He added that there is a growing demand for canned food products.

Nichols' Battle Over Deposit Plan Criticized

The fight of J. M. [100 Per Cent] Nichols, president of the First National bank of Englewood, with Jesse H. Jones and the Federal Deposit Insurance corporation, which thus far has been confined to the two principals, moved on a broader front yesterday as a third participant entered the fray.

W. B. VANLANDINGHAM.

He is W. B. Vanlandingham of the Vanlandingham - Cook Lumber company, who takes Mr. Nichols to task for this opposition to bank deposit insurance. Following publication in THE TRIBUNE early last week of Mr. Nichols' letter to Jones, he wrote the south side banker as follows:

"While I have never met Jesse Jones your letter to him so stirs me that I cannot resist telling you that while you have frequently been able to pull the wool over the eyes of 16,000 depositors there are many of us who are not fooled by your stupidity as a banker.

Believes in Confidence.

"Your letter clearly indicates your entire ignorance of the banking business. You say when you believe your merchants can safely and profitably borrow you will tell them so, which would indicate you set yourself above the President and the entire administration as well as other banking interests of the United States. If you are a banker you should know that confidence is a basis of trade and there is nothing you have said which will instill confidence in any one. If every banker took your position regarding the loaning of money and the government's guarantee of deposits there would be no banks.

"You claim your bank is 100 per cent liquid. Certainly you do not keep all of this 100 per cent in your vaults. Undoubtedly a good proportion is on deposit with other banks and considerable of it is invested in government securities. If confidence were removed then you would be unable to pay your depositors 100 per cent as you couldn't withdraw your money from other banks or cash in your securities."

Nichols Answers Letter.

According to Mr. Nichols this is the only letter opposing his stand that he has received. His reply to Mr. Vanlandingham, asking him to come to the bank and review correspondence on the subject and interview depositors who are backing him, follows:

"Were you to talk with my depositors I think they would soon set you in your place as a lumberman rather than a banker. This new crop of politicians up the Potomac have a lot to learn before they are capable of dictating to the American business man. Their intentions may be sincere, but they have taken a bull by the tail when they attempt to muscle their way into practically every move the American business man makes.

"It was good, old rugged individualism, thrift, hard work, right of private ownership, adherence to the constitution and right of free speech that made this country. Governmental interference, such as we now have, violates practically every principle of Americanism.

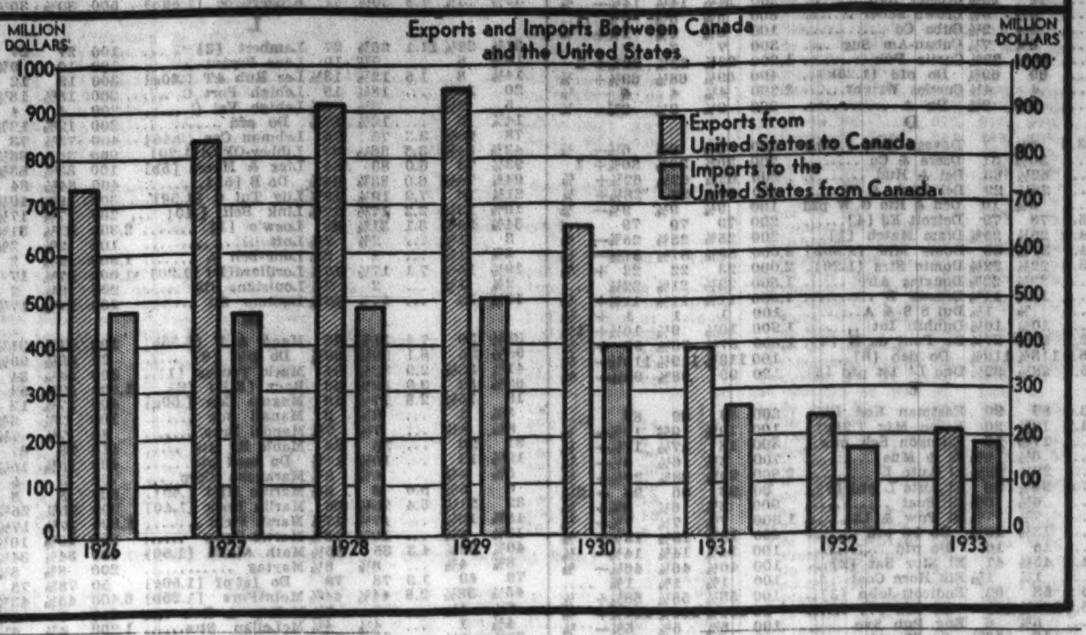
"Depositors have suffered enough from the principles which you and the men you admire are advocating. Lending money to every Tom, Dick and Harry in times like these is financial suicide. This is a country of 120,000,000 people. Are we going to wreck it because 10,000,000 are out of work?

Would Drop Politicians.

"The best way to put it back on its feet would be to drop at least 10,000,000 of our 11,000,000 politicians. Let them reduce the cost of government 80 per cent and unburden the country of back-breaking taxation. Scrap these alphabetical organizations with one hand in the public treasury and the other waving a flag of patriotism for a gullible and bemuddled public. The more they strangle business the more unemployment we will have and the surer we will become a Soviet-America with a dictator supreme.

"This country is going to get back on its feet, but not on the principles we are following today. Out of the tragic days ahead a strong man will arise, as did Washington and Lincoln. Then, and only then, will there be a spark of light on the American horizon. It takes a crisis to bring this type to the front. There are many of them in our country and when he is found he will be a two-fisted, hard boiled, practical man of common sense, possibly a man of the soil, rather than a 'dyed-in-the-wool' politician who has spent the best part of his life with his neck in the public crib, living off the fat of the land, knowing mighty little of the problems of earning a dollar."

Trade of the United States with Canada for Eight Years Compared



Month's Store Sales 16 Pct. Over Year Ago

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 10.—The substantial improvement in department store sales which was evident in January continued through February when business for the country as a whole was 16 per cent greater than in the same month of 1933, the federal reserve board announced today. Chicago ranked third in distinct gains.

For the January-February period department store sales, according to reports from 503 stores in 258 leading cities, showed an increase of 17 per cent over the same period the year before.

New York Lags.

The New York federal reserve district lagged in improvement for both periods, the increase for February having been 6 per cent and for the two months 9 per cent, the smallest gains for any reserve district. Largest gains for February and the two months were for the Dallas and Atlanta districts.

"Preliminary figures for February indicate that, as is usual at this season, there was little change in department store sales from the preceding month," the board said. "The reserve board's index, which makes allowance both for the number of business days and for usual seasonal changes, was 70 in February on the basis of the 1923-'25 average as 100, compared with 69 in January and 69 in December."

Gains by Districts.

Increases for February over a year ago by reserve districts were as follows: Boston, 9 per cent; New York, 6; Philadelphia, 8; Cleveland, 29; Richmond, 11; Atlanta, 37; Chicago, 32; St. Louis, 24; Minneapolis, 18; Kansas City, 21; Dallas, 38 and San Francisco, 14 per cent.

For the first two months of the year, compared with the same period of 1933, the increases were: Boston, 15 per cent; New York, 9, Philadelphia, 10; Cleveland, 27; Richmond, 13; Atlanta, 34; Chicago, 26; St. Louis, 24; Minneapolis, 16; Kansas City, 20; Dallas, 34, and San Francisco, 16.

MANDEL BROTHERS HAS $8,018 PROFIT IN 1933; '32 LOSS HALF MILLION

The pamphlet report of Mandel Brothers, Inc., State street store, showing a net profit of $8,018 for the year ended Jan. 31, was released last night by Robert Mandel, chairman. The company operated at a loss of $578,558 in 1932.

Sales last year showed a slight decline from the preceding year, aggregating $14,768,134, against $14,831,112. Cost of goods sold was $9,332,531 in 1933 compared with $9,816,833 in the preceding year, resulting in a gain in gross profits which were $5,435,603 against $5,014,278. Depreciation appropriation last year was $206,161 against $204,323 in 1932.

The year end balance sheet showed current assets of $4,864,061 compared with current liabilities of $1,007,749, a ratio of 4.79 to 1. A year ago the current ratio stood at 4.22 to 1. Inventories at the close of the year were $2,926,617, a substantial gain over $1,954,482 listed a year ago. Merchandise inventories representing the bulk of the total were carried at the lower of cost of market.

1933 GASOLINE TAX BILL UP SLIGHTLY TO 519 MILLIONS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 10.—Gasoline taxes paid to the states by motor vehicle operators in 1933 indicate that gross collections were $519,128,716, or 1.18 per cent above the collections of $513,047,239 in 1932, according to the American Petroleum Institute. New York state led with collections amounting to $43,162,012; California was second with an estimated total of $35,000,000, and Pennsylvania third with $30,824,995.

Oregon was the only state to increase its gasoline tax rate last year and this lifted the average to 5.68 cents a gallon. However, the repeal of the ½ cent federal tax on Jan. 1 reduced the average tax rate to 5.18 cents a gallon.

The average of state and federal taxes imposed in 1933 was equivalent to 38 per cent of the average retail price of motor fuel as reported from fifty representative cities, at least one in each state, the institute adds.

Money Stocks Over 13 Billion in New Dollar

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 10.—Profits from the revaluation of the dollar boosted American monetary stocks from $9,745,189,152 on Jan. 31 to $13,147,831,968 on Feb. 28 the treasury announced today. The principal increase was in gold, given as $7,401,281,410 for Feb. 28, compared with $4,036,336,157 the month before. Federal reserve notes also showed a substantial gain from $3,180,944,800 to $3,224,644,455.

No gold was shown in circulation, this item having been dropped from the circulation statement in January, nor was gold shown in the hands of federal reserve banks for either January or February. The reserve banks were shown in the possession of $945,208,240 in gold cereificates at the end of February, while $167,546,469 of this paper money was still in circulation.

Total Gold Withheld Unknown.

There was no estimate available as to the actual gold outside of the treasury. Officials said that of the $310,970,642 shown to be in circulation on Dec. 31 a large proportion no doubt had been exported prior to the embargo on gold exports, while other amounts had been lost, destroyed, or melted. A considerable amount of gold probably is being legitimately held as souvenirs.

Money in circulation at the end of February amounted to $5,355,068,788, an increase of $67,000,000 in the month and a decrease of $1,190,000,000 for the year. The month's increase was due to the general increase of business and stimulation of spending by the government through the recovery program.

Treasury Holds $4,595,145,886.

The treasury held $3,231,684,172 of all gold in February, 1933, while at the end of February of the current year all gold was recorded as in the possession of the treasury. The treasury stock of money in February, 1933, amounted to $3,831,881,574, compared with $4,595,145,886 on Feb. 28, 1934.

Federal reserve banks held $516,246,997 in gold last February, while none was held this year. Certificate holdings a year ago amounted to $601,382,850, compared to $945,208,240 this February. The banks' gold coin was exchanged for gold certificates, which is now the backing for federal reserve notes.

RFC POURS OUT HALF A BILLION MORE IN MONTH

Banks Given Most of Additional Sum.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 10.—The extent to which the Reconstruction Finance corporation has participated in strengthening the banking structure of the nation and in providing for liquidation of frozen assets in closed banks was emphasized by the corporation's report for December, which was made public today by congress.

In all, authorizations and advances for various purposes by the RFC during the month totaled $587,310,695. Of this total $312,454,600 represented authorizations for the purchase of preferred stock, capital notes, and debentures of banks and trust companies or loans on such securities, and $109,031,620 for loans to banks on other collateral, of which $101,446,507 was for receivers or conservators of closed or restricted banking institutions. Thus direct dealings with banks in one form or another were involved in $421,486,220 of the total of all authorizations and disbursements.

Vast Sums for Banks.

Since December the RFC has greatly broadened its dealings with the banks of the country and the total of authorizations for purchases of preferred stock, capital notes, etc., since the inception of that program has passed $1,000,000,000 and authorizations for advances to closed banks which will permit dividend payments to depositors have approached $700,000,000.

The authorizations for December in all fields by the RFC were as follows:

Loans to banks and related institutions, $158,663,455.

For orderly marketing of agricultural commodities, $442,551.

Drainage and irrigation districts, $12,429,273.

Loans on preferred stock of banks, $1,587,100.

For preferred stock in insurance companies, $4,375,000.

For capital stock of federal home loan banks, $6,500,000.

For Home Owners' Loan corporation, $5,000,000.

Diret relief to states, $42,445,814.

To land bank commissions [chiefly for direct loans to farms], $45,000,000.

Buys Banks' Securities.

The authorizations included purchases of preferred stock of 795 banks, capital notes or debentures of 1,250 banks, and 85 loans secured by preferred stock, capital notes or debentures of the banks. The objective of such purchases has been to build up the capital structure of the banks so that they might become members of the Federal Deposit Insurance corporation and also expand their loaning facilities.

Of the total extended to banks and trust companies in December only $7,585,112 represented loans to unrestricted banks, the work of the RFC now being concentrated on the advancement of funds on slow collateral so that receivers and conservators may quickly pay substantial dividends to depositors and thus increase consuming power as a spur to the recovery program. Of the total advanced to building and loan associations also $1,135,000 was to aid in the reorganization or liquidation of institutions that are closed or in process of liquidation.

Roads Agree Lower Fares Are Benefit

Officials of a number of western railroads with headquarters in Chicago yesterday expressed themselves as satisfied with the way the six months' experiment with reduced passenger fares is going. Most said they felt the three months just completed in the experimental period were hardly sufficient to give an adequate estimate as to what may be expected. A few felt that possibly some of the rates were too low and that some upward revisions may be in order.

H. B. VOORHEES.

From the remarks of those questioned, it was indicated that continuance of the experiment beyond May 31—the date the period expires—may be expected. Most expressed their opposition to the attitude of the eastern roads, which have been holding out against fare reductions. They point to the difference in conditions obtaining between the eastern and western sections of the country, saying the latter feel more keenly the results of competition from automobiles and buses.

Thorough Trial Is Urged.

Comment from a number of officials follows:

L. M. Allen, vice president of the Rock Island: "We are very much encouraged by the results to date from the introduction of lower fares and we are opposed to any change until the experiment has been given a thorough trial. Our passenger revenues in January held about the same as in January, 1933, and in February there was a slight gain. We are satisfied we would not have had the same amount of money in our treasury had the old rates been in effect."

H. B. Voorhees, vice president in charge of the Alton: "I feel that as a result of the experiment we are making people railroad minded again. I do not think we could have expected a great increase at once, but over a long period I believe we may look for substantial gains. We do miss the Pullman surcharge. If we had had that we would have made a better financial showing."

A. Cotsworth of the Burlington: "We have been encouraged by the January passenger results and with the February estimates. I believe some changes may be necessary before a permanent schedule of fares is made. We went a little too far in some cases."

Sees Experiment Working Out.

E. H. Batchelder, Chicago and Eastern Illinois: "The experiment seems to be working out fairly well. We have had considerable increase in our passenger business. The revenues for January and February are ahead of those for the like months of 1933. On the whole, we are rather encouraged by the experiment, but it is too soon to arrive at a definite conclusion."

R. Thompson, North Western: "We feel very much encouraged by the results of the experiment. Our local revenues for February are ahead of those for last year. The volume of passengers carried has increased materially and I believe the experiment is well worth being continued until we can arrive at definite conclusions."

Lou Bade, Wabash: "We have sold an increasing number of tickets, but we haven't increased our revenues yet. Elimination of the surcharge has affected our revenues adversely. I am satisfied with the result of the experiment and believe it will be a success eventually."

Finds Lower Rates Successful.

George B. Haynes, Milwaukee: "There have been a number of indications which make us feel the lower rates will prove successful. For example, during January local ticket sales resulted in a 4.7 per cent increase in revenues and a 60 per cent increase in passengers carried. As the revenue from these tickets is 81.8 per cent of our entire gross revenues for the month, these figures are encouraging. Overnight sleeping business during January showed an increase of about one-third over December, which possibly may be attributed to reduced round trip fares. I think the test should be continued beyond May 31."

J. V. Lanigan, Illinois Central: "Reduced fares have quickened interest in rail travel. The increased circulation of money and the general improvement in business have given people opportunity to express their approval of the fare reductions."

ALCOHOL LIST SAGS IN DULL STOCK SESSION

Changes Elsewhere Are Slight.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 10.—Weakness in alcohol stocks due to the administration's decision to let down the bars on liquor imports in an effort to melt down prices featured today's abbreviated session on the stock exchange. Activity was generally slow and devoid of interest and the net result as reflected in the week-end price chart was negligible.

A mild flurry of buying in metal and rubber stocks during the last twenty minutes served to lift the list slightly above its lows for the day. A handful of specially favored leaders emerged with gains of from a fraction to a point.

News on the whole was without special influence. The federal reserve report on business conditions showing that January and February had been marked by considerable improvement was ignored. This was shown by the neglect accorded the retail trade stocks which were naturally in line to benefit from the report.

Liquor Issues Under Pressure.

Selling of "wet" stocks was to have been expected even though the news of the President's decision was not particularly surprising, such apossibility having been under consideration, in fact, for weeks.

Losses in the group ranged from a fraction to around 2 points with National Distillers, American Commercial Alcohol and U. S. Industrial Alcohol as the casualties. Schenley and Commercial Solvents eased fractionally.

Aviation stocks also lost ground in early trading as the street looked over the provisions of the McKellar bill under which the air mail business would revert to privately owned companies. Most of them flipped back in the last half hour of trading. The President's announcement of plans to curtail air mail service on account of the numerous accidents was thought to have improved the prospects of some airplane issues, which have been so freely sold since the cancelation of the private air mail contracts.

Rally Near Closing.

United Aircraft was off a point at the turn of the brief session but the final gong found it back to its previous quotation. Douglas also rebounded to close unchanged after drifting off nearly a dollar a share.

Buying in the rubber share division was ascribed largely to short covering rather than to any change of sentiment. Popularity of gold and silver issues was a continuation of the buying which began to flow their way yesterday on talk of an early boost in the treasury's gold buying price and the good things possible for silver as a result of the forthcoming congressional committee meeting.

SAVINGS TOTAL IS ESTIMATED AT $50,000,000,000

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 10.—Estimating the total individual savings, including those represented by assets of life insurance companies and building and loan associations at more than $50,000,000,000, The Index, the monthly publication of the New York Trust company, says that this important accumulation of capital plays a vital role in national economy.

The publication pointed out that during the depression years total savings decreased by about $6,000,000,000 but in view of the difficult times this reduction can hardly be viewed as excessive.

"This huge sum exceeds the value of the capital goods produced in 1929 and that of all consumer goods in the same year," The Index says. "It is more than three times the total value of our foreign investments at the end of 1932 and almost five times as great as estimates of the federal government's ordinary and emergency budget for the fiscal year 1934.

TRADE INDICES REVEAL MODEST GAIN IN BUSINESS

New York, March 10.—(AP)—Statistics appearing last week indicated a moderate rise in business activity, electric power production, and steel ingot output.

These index figures are adjusted for seasonal variation — that is, if the change from the previous week should coincide with the normal seasonal change, the index figure would be unchanged.

CHICAGOAN BUYS 30% INTEREST IN ATLAS TACK CORP.

Arthur Greene, head of the Guardian Securities company, a privately owned Chicago investment trust, yesterday confirmed the report his concern has purchased the 30 per cent stock interest in Atlas Tack corporation formerly held by Philip H. Philbin Jr.

He said the stock was bought for investment and no changes in the management are contemplated. However, it is expected the local concern will receive representation on the board of directors at a meeting scheduled in New York March 21.

West Side Trust Depositors Told of Moves to Save Bank

Moves in the attempt to reorganize the West Side Trust and Savings bank were outlined to the general depositors' committee at a meeting yesterday afternoon in the Morrison hotel. Plans are proposed which, through the aid of a Reconstruction Finance corporation loan, would make available immediately 40 per cent of the frozen deposits.

Pennsylvania Road Shows Gain in Storedoor Traffic

The Pennsylvania railroad reports that February storedoor collection and delivery of less than carload lots of freight, as indicated by bills issued, totaled 90,123, compared with 76,484 in January and 44,380 in December, the first month the plan was in operation. In February these bills accounted for more than 25 per cent of the less than carload waybills issued by the road.

New Labor Board Proposals Unfair, Say Manufacturers

The bill strengthening the powers of the national labor board and recently introduced in the senate by Sen. Wagner of New York is designed to give labor an unparalleled opportunity for dictation to employers, a bulletin which the Illinois Manufacturers' association sent yesterday to its members charged. The bulletin is signed by James L. Donnelly, executive vice president.

"The ostensible purpose of the bill is to 'equalize the bargaining power of employers and employés, and to encourage the amicable settlement of disputes between employers and employés,'" says a statement accompanying the bulletin. "As a matter of fact, the terms of the bill are in direct contradiction with this declared purpose.

Says It Encourages Strife.

"The measure is clearly designed to discourage the friendly settlement of industrial relations problems to encourage strife and dislocation, and to delegate to labor union agents, aided and abetted by the so-called national labor board, a dictatorial power over American industry.

"The bill delegates to the national labor board more power than is possessed by any other agencies of the United States government, either in time of peace or in time of war. In fact, the labor board under this bill would have more extensive authority than do courts of law.

"All the penalties in the bill operate against the employer. It does not impose any obligations upon employés or labor organizations and the labor board has no authority over labor organizations with respect to what are described as unfair labor practices. Labor organizations are in effect exempted from all liability or responsibility.

Against Friendly Relationships.

"The bill would in effect make illegal any wholesome or friendly relationship between the employer and his employés having to do with the terms of conditions of employment, including the fixing of compensation, hours of employment, etc.

"The measure is predicated on the premise that coercion exists only on the part of the employer, whereas it is a universally recognized fact, not only on the part of the employers, but among the great mass of workers, that labor unions largely depend upon force and coercion for any effectiveness they might have."

The association says that the bill will appear to fair minds as unjust to both employer and employé, "particularly when it is considered that less than 10 per cent of the workers in the United States are members of organized labor unions."

GRAIN ADVANCE DUE TO FEDERAL SILVER PLANS

Inflation Views Lead to Fresh Buying.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Action of the house of representatives coinage committee in reporting favorably a bill proposing acceptance of silver for exports of surplus agricultural products stirred grain markets into life yesterday and with general short covering wheat advanced about 2 cents from the early low. Net gains for the day were 1¼ to 1⅜ cents, with May closing at 87¾ to 88 cents and July at 87½ to 87⅝ cents.

Corn advanced ¼ to ½ cents for the day with May closing at 51⅜ to 51½ cents. Oats were ¼ to ½ cent higher, May at 34 to 34⅛ cents. Rye gained ⅜ to ½ cent, May at 59⅞ cents. Barley sold ¼ to ¾ cent higher at 46½ cents for May.

Winnipeg wheat closed ⅛ to ¼ cent higher and Liverpool was unchanged.

Markets Lower Early.

Trade in all grains was exceedingly slow during the early part of the session, and scattered selling developed, but after the receipt of news regarding the action on the silver bill many of the professionals who had been on the selling side started to buy. There was also some buying of wheat on the development of the best milling demand since the first of the year. Local handlers reported sales of 83,000 bushels.

At the same time Pacific coast flour was said to be selling at a south Atlantic port at $1.20 a barrel below what a southeastern miller could quote based on the price prevailing for wheat in his territory. The trade regarded this development as indicating the government's program for disposing of surplus Pacific coast wheat was not working out well.

Reaches 70c at Winnipeg.

Removal of hedges against export sales of Canadian wheat were a factor in strengthening the Winnipeg market and the May delivery in that market closed at 70 cents, the first time it has finished that high since Sept. 26. For some time there has been steady selling of that delivery on all bulges above 69 cents.

Longs in the May delivery of all grains are gradually getting out of the future and into the more deferred options. This was shown by the grain futures administration reports of the last few days, indicating persistent decrease in the open interest in the May position and increases in the July and September.

At the close on March 9 there was a total open interest in wheat of 123,422 bushels, of which 82,335,000 bushels were in May, 31,436,000 bushels in July, and 9,646,000 bushels in September.

MOST COMMODITIES LOWER DURING WEEK; RUBBER, SILVER GAIN

Rubber and silver were the only leading commodities to sell at higher prices during the last week. The former was affected by reports indicating a world agreement had been reached to curtail production, while the metal was helped by prospects of favorable legislation. All other principal commodities were slightly lower, with wheat off ⅛ cent and corn ⅜ cents as compared with the close of the preceding week. A strong rally yesterday erased practically all of the loss recorded earlier. Closing prices the last two weeks and the low levels of the season follow:

SILVER NEWS STIMULATES COTTON ONLY SLIGHTLY

Action of the cotton market was a great disappointment to the trade yesterday. News of the silver bill's passage was regarded as favorable, but failed to stimulate buying of sufficient volume to advance prices more than a few points. Price movements were irregular.

The close on futures in Chicago was 1 point lower to 3 points net higher. New Orleans was 2 points higher on futures and 5 points off on spots at 12.25 cents. New York was 1 to 6 points lower on futures, and spots off 5 points at 12.35 cents. Galveston was unchanged at 12.30 cents, and Houston dropped 5 points at 12.25 cents.

A bullish consumption report had little influence as a trade stimulant. Prices:

BUTTER FUTURES WEAKEN AGAIN; POTATOES LOWER

Butter futures continued weak on the Chicago Mercantile exchange yesterday, March slumping ⅝ cent, November ½ cent, and June ¼ cent. Eggs closed unchanged to ¼ cent lower. Potatoes lost 5 to 10 cents.

March butter was under moderately strong pressure throughout the session. News was bearish generally. The movement of storage stocks dropped again, the four markets reporting 140,000 pounds more out than last year. Cash markets dropped ½ to 1¼ cents with receipts about on a par with last year. New buying developed at times, but was of little importance in the trading.

Eggs were under new selling pressure. Storage holdings have passed above the year ago level and the four markets reported 13,000 cases more in than last year. Receipts continued heavy and the cash market lost ¼ cent. However, new buying of October remained prominent and trading continues on the increase in that delivery.

New York, March 10.—Bond prices were irregular on the stock exchange today during the brief trading period. Domestic corporation bonds and leading foreign loans were irregularly higher, and United States government bonds irregular. Total transactions were $8,333,000, against $7,505,500 the previous Saturday.

Long term United States government bonds closed off 5-32ds to up 4-32ds point on the stock exchange. In the over-the-counter market, the new treasury 3 per cent notes, due March 15, 1938, were quoted today on a "when issued" basis, at 101 15-32ds bid and 101 18-32ds asked, a yield of 2.58 per cent.

Corporation Issues Gain.

Corporate issues generally recorded gains ranging from small fractions to several points, with many reaching new high levels for the year.

A number of industrial issues showed especial strength in active trading, among them Texas Corporation convertible 5s due 1944, up ¾ to a new high at 102; Crown Cork and Seal 6s due 1947, up half a point to a new high at 102½; Goodyear 5s due 1957, up a quarter point to a new high at 96¼; National Dairy Products 5¼s due 1948, up 1, and Solvay American Investment 5s due 1952, up 2⅛ to a new high at 103⅛.

Foreign Group Irregular.

The best strength in the foreign group was displayed by the obligations of the French government, United Kingdom and most of the Scandinavian governments. Bonds of the German group were irregularly lower. Latin American loans showed minor irregularities.

On the Curb exchange domestic bonds continued higher in fairly active dealings for a Saturday. Foreign bonds were generally easier.

The Insurance Contract.

The experience of G. H. E. is worth noting. The policy taken out by him was labeled "accident and disability." G. H. E.'s arm was broken and no work could be done for three months. A claim was made but was not allowed because breaking an arm was not listed in the policy as a basis for claim. The policy was one of those issued by a small assessment company.

The point is that G. H. E. was lured by a cheap policy with a flashy title into believing that it was a bargain. Although in insurance, as well as in other fields, shopping sometimes results in savings, any attempt to obtain a policy at a ridiculously cheap price, without medical examination or regard to age, often has the same result as in other fields. The product obtained is not trustworthy.

It is in the small companies of doubtful reputation that great care should be taken. One such company offered a life insurance policy on the assessment plan. Death from accident, however, was not covered. Also excluded were deaths from three or four other causes, those most common. Settlements for deaths from other causes were classified and the amount receivable depended on the luck the deceased had to select an unusual disease. It had to be an exceptional fatal illness that would entitle the beneficiaries to collect the face amount.

Even in policies issued by the well-known established companies the insured should use discrimination—not that they embody tricks such as those mentioned, but because there are so many different policies. Each is designed to suit a certain need. A policyholder might very well be paying for a type of protection he does not need when a cheaper policy might fit his case exactly.

For instance, a wealthy individual might take out insurance so that the inheritance tax will be paid when he dies without breaking up the estate. There would be no need of taking out double indemnity or waiver of premium. It would not fit the purpose for which he took out the policy.

An individual who wishes to leave his dependents well off after death should not properly put the bulk of his insurance money into a straight annuity policy. He should take out insurance that leaves his dependents the most money. A straight annuity would leave them none.

Before taking out a policy the individual should determine why he is taking it out. When he has decided what function he wants his policy to perform he should insist on a policy that suits that purpose and no other. Above all he should take great pains to determine that the company to which he is intrusting his most important funds is sound and conducts its business reputably.

LONDON WATCHES NEW BUDGET AND PROGRESS OF NRA

See Trade Influence in Both Subjects.

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, March 10.—Two subjects seem to absorb local interest these days. One is the question of Chancellor of the Exchequer Neville Chamberlain's forthcoming budget. Three schools of thought appear regarding its possible disposal: One school declares it should go toward increasing national defense, especially in bringing the navy up to the London treaty and increasing the country's air defenses. Both of these, incidentally, would be good for trade.

Another school thinks the salary cuts should all be restored so as to increase perceptibly consumers' buying power. The third argues for 6 pence off the income tax rate.

The second subject engrossing the market is whether President Roosevelt's program is about to suffer a severe setback. That would hurt the markets here by checking the mounting raw commodity prices. But it would probably drive more investors into government stocks and if much American money came to London there might be subsequent buying of the best British industrials.

North England Depressed.

The breakdown of the conversations between Japanese and Lancashire cotton spinners has depressed north England considerably. Neither the Japanese government nor the British seem to be disposed to intervene in the argument though the national government of Great Britain is pledged to do something about cotton.

The Lancashire spinners want the current negotiations to cover the problem of Japanese competition in markets all over the world, but the Japanese have insisted that the agenda should cover only the British empire.

One of the papers suggests that the government is now sounding other countries, notably Holland, on the possibility of a general boycott of Japanese textiles. In practice it is always difficult to get Holland to coöperate in such movements.

The ironical feature of the Japanese competition is that Britain herself furnished Japan with the cotton spinning machinery with which the latter has now invaded all markets.

French Shares Lower.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, March 10.—The bourse, and particularly rentes (government bonds), advanced the first half of the week, then were dragged down by the Citroen auto debacle. Citroen shares recovered somewhat early in the week on official announcement that Bank of France officials in coöperation with several big private banks, had met to study the Citroen situation for the purpose of taking necessary measures. But later unofficial information regarding the condition of the French "Ford's" organization caused a sharp break of shares Thursday, which was continued Friday.

The Bank of France statement for the week ended March 2 showed an outflow of gold of less than $3,000,000 of the present day dollars. The bank to date has lost 4 per cent of its gold holdings as a result of the American stabilization.

Lake County, Ind., Home Owners Get $279,284

Hammond, Ind., March 10.—(AP)—One hundred and ten loans totaling $279,284 were granted to distressed Lake county home owners this week by J. Clinn Ellyson, manager of the first district of the Indiana Home Owners' Loan corporation, he announced today.

Approve Last of Crop Loans Totaling $40,000,000

Washington, D. C., March 10.—[U. P.]—President Roosevelt today signed a bill appropriating $40,000,000 for crop production loans to farmers this year. The loans were authorized by a recent act of congress. The President has declared that this year's loans will be the last made by the government under this system.

Total of Building Permits Sags, but Holds Above 1933

Dun & Bradstreet says building permits in 215 cities totaled $19,215,309 during February, compared with $17,161,943 a year ago and $20,561,018 in January. The drop from the previous month was 6.5 per cent, against a usual seasonal advance of about 4 per cent.

SENATE UNIT APPROVES EXTENSION OF DEPOSIT INSURANCE ONE YEAR

Washington, D. C., March 10.—(AP)—A one year extension of the temporary bank deposit insurance law from July 1 was approved today by a senate banking subcommittee.

The subcommittee, headed by Senator Glass [Dem., Va.] approved a bill to delay for one year the operation of the proposed permanent insurance plan and continue the temporary scheme now in effect for that period.

The bill also would raise the total assessment, which could be levied against members from one-half to 1 per cent of their deposit liabilities. Only one-quarter has been called to date. A proposal to place a government guarantee back of the insurance corporation's debentures was eliminated by the committee. The full banking committee will consider the bill Monday.

RESCIND OFFER TO EXCHANGE STOCK OF ALCOHOL FIRM

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 10.—The New York Stock exchange has received a notice from the American Commercial Alcohol corporation that 10,000 shares of its common stock which were to have been issued to Knox B. Phagan in exchange for capital stock of the American Distilling company will not be issued.

Directors of the company have rescinded the authority formerly conferred on the officers to issue 25,000 additional shares of stock, of which the 10,000 shares to have been issued to Mr. Phagan were a part.

The company has withdrawn an application for the listing of the 25,000 shares which was applied for on July 19, 1933. The listing application stated the company proposed to issue up to 25,000 common shares for the purchase of assets from which it was negotiating.

B. & O. SEEKS PWA $4,000,000 LOAN FOR EQUIPMENT

Washington, D. C., March 10.—(AP)—The Baltimore and Ohio railroad company asked the interstate commerce commission today to approve a loan of $4,000,000 from the Public Works administration for construction and repair of equipment.

The same application asked the commission to authorize expenditure of $4,279,244 for the purpose, the amount above the public works loan to come from the company's treasury.

Another application asked authorization for issuance of $4,000,000 of ten year registered serial notes to be sold to the government.

The application said the company planned to repair 4,800 freight cars at a cost of $1,922,000; to build 820 gondola cars at a cost of $1,145,244; to reconstruct 200 automobile box cars at a cost of $134,000, and to recondition 240 locomotives at a cost of $1,078,000.

BANKING SHARES IRREGULAR IN NARROW RANGE

Downtown bank stocks moved in narrow limits in the local unlisted market last week, ending the period with gains and losses about evenly divided. Continental eased a point net to 48, First National lost 6 to 117, Harris Trust was unchanged at 228, Northern Trust gained 5 to 350, and Terminal National closed strong at 9¼ to 10¼.

Price irregularity was also shown in the miscellaneous group. Chicago Title and Trust advanced 4 points, Kellogg lost 2, Elgin Watch was steady, and Northwestern Yeast sagged 1.

Godchaux Sugars preferred continued strong at 51 bid while the class A was fractionally improved at 15 bid.

Dealers Meet to Consider Refrigeration Campaign

More than 150 dealers in General Electric products in Illinois and Indiana will meet in Chicago for a four day convention, starting tomorrow, to plan the 1934 commercial refrigeration campaign, L. C. Kohlman, vice president of R. Cooper Jr., Inc., announced yesterday. Store modernization during this year will give a great impulse to commercial refrigeration, Mr. Kohlman said.

LATIN AMERICAN TRADE TRENDS ARE FAVORABLE

Brazil Reports Upturn in Retail Sales.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 10.—Business trends in Latin America were reported to be generally favorable in the department of commerce's weekly survey of foreign trade, made public today. Reports from Japan and China also showed some better trade sentiment.

Brazil reported that retail turnover in the capital area turned upwards sharply in February, being stimulated in many lines by the annual carnival purchases, though extending to a much broader range of commodities, especially among domestic manufacturers. The increase in demand for imported goods has been comparatively slight.

Cuban Sentiment Improves.

The improvement in business sentiment in Cuba which followed the political changes in January continued throughout February. So far the effect on business has been largely psychological, although in a few lines an actual increase in the business movement is noted. The outlook is considered more favorable than at any time during the last several years. Other factors contributing to increased optimism were President Roosevelt's message to congress on sugar and the negotiations for the revision of the reciprocity treaty between Cuba and the United States.

Mexican wholesale and retail business resumed an upward trend in February, following a slight recession during January. A better movement of medium and high priced merchandise was noticed. Increasing activity in mining and in construction activities has produced an excellent market for steel products. There is also renewed interest in drilling in the oil fields.

Irish Rail Traffic Gains.

For the first time in several years the Irish Free State railways show an increase in traffic receipts. Receipts of the Great Southern railways, the principal railway system, were reported to be 5 per cent larger in the first five weeks of 1934 than in the comparable period of 1933. The economic situation of the country remains generally unchanged.

The Japanese business situation continues uncertain, although a steadier stock market and small fluctuations in yen exchange are more favorable factors. Commodity prices are in a downward trend and raw silk prices particularly are lower in view of smaller demand in the New York market.

U. S. RUBBER LOSS FOR LAST YEAR TOTALS $606,337

The pamphlet report of the United States Rubber company issued yesterday showed 1933 profits from operations of $10,385,374 after costs and expenses but before depreciation, interest, etc., compared with $1,305,186 in the preceding year.

After all charges, including depreciation, write down of assets, and a credit of $996,462 for discount on bonds retired, there was a final deficit for the year of $606,337 against a loss of $10,358,374 in 1932. Sales were $88,326,666 against $78,300,091 in 1932.

Current assets Dec. 31 stood at $50,099,681, including cash of $8,054,291 and marketable securities of $139,002, against total current liabilities of $10,778,827. Total funded debt was reduced by $6,234,266 and interest charges were cut to $3,845,849 from $4,381,519 in 1932.

NEW BOND OFFERINGS $27,475,000 IN WEEK; ALL WELL RECEIVED

New York, March 10.—New bond and note financing this week totaled $27,475,000, of which $25,000,000 consisted of federal intermediate credit banks 2 per cent debentures, due in six and nine months, and the balance of state and municipal bonds. This compares with new financing in the amount of $53,820,000 last week, and with no offerings this week a year ago, when the nation was in the throes of financial unrest as a result of bank closings.

The various issues offered this week were well received, inasmuch as the market for tax exempt bonds received considerable impetus at the end of the week because of the fact that the March 15 treasury financing did not include the borrowing of new money. As a result the tone of the bond market generally is currently the best in many weeks.

Offerings of bonds and notes in the New York market for this and last week, by groups, follow:

	This week.	Last week.
Fed. int. cr. banks	$25,000,000	....
State and munic...	2,475,000	$38,820,000
Public utility	....	15,000,000
Total	$27,475,000	$53,820,000

State and municipal financing scheduled for next week totals $8,679,950, compared with the weekly average for 1934 to date of $14,808,459, the Daily Bond Buyer reports. The state of Texas will receive bids March 17 on $4,000,000 in 4½ per cent relief bonds, the largest item on the calendar.

Suburban Building Drops to Lowest Level Since Last November

U. S. ENDS THIRD BUYING PROGRAM FOR LIVE STOCK

Hogs Finish Week Lower; Cattle Irregular.

The sudden cancelation of hog orders for federal account last week terminated the third and longest of the buying programs in the live stock trade. Barring Saturdays and holidays packers had been buying either cattle or hogs for government account continuously since Jan. 3.

The first incursion in the market of animals by the AAA occurred last summer and was for the purpose of destroying pigs and sows to reduce potential pork supplies for this winter. The second buying spree came in November, when federal buyers broke up a deadlock between buyers and sellers at Chicago which had attracted nationwide interest.

It was hoped that these buying programs might accomplish a threefold object; reduce potential supplies; obtain meat for the needy and support live stock prices.

Federal Buying Heavy.

In all, it is estimated that the corporation since last November has obtained more than 850,000 hogs and in the neighborhood of 120,000 cattle, exclusive of the 6,200,000 pigs and 220,000 piggy sows that were slaughtered last summer.

Hog receipts lately have been much under normal, the week's total at 11 of the leading market centers being under any corresponding period in more than 25 years.

Hardly enough hogs arrived on the week-end session to put prices to a test. Demand was light, however, and tendency ruled weak to lower, with the bulk of the scant supply showing 10 cents loss compared with Friday and 15 to 25 cents decline from the high point of the week. Choice 214 pound averages topped at $4.60, while the general average moved down 10 cents to $4.40, equaling the lowest spot in the hog market since Feb. 10. The week's hog average was off 10 cents at $4.45.

Cattle Prices Irregular.

Trends in cattle prices were highly mixed last week. Beef steers retained the recent gains, the average for the week at $5.70 being steady. Uneveness in the various branches of other cattle, however, ranged from 15 cents lower to 25 cents higher. The week's top for beef steers at $7.50 were within 10 cents of the 1933 peak, while some sales of medium and heavy steers made new high marks for the winter.

Calves slumped in sympathy with the break in lambs, closing $1.50 lower for the week. Losses in lambs ranged from 25 to 80 cents for the week, while yearling stock tobogganed 25 to 50 cents. Old sheep held steady. The lamb average at $9.10 is still $3.50 above a year ago. Other live stock closed 25 cents to $1 above 1933 price levels.

HERALD CHICAGO PEANUT CAPITOL OF THE WORLD

City Handles a Third of Nation's Crop.

Chicago, the peanut capital of the world!

Or, if that appelation gives rise to sly smiles and the city cares to go "high hat" it can lay claim to being the archis hypogea consuming center of the nation. For that is what botanists call the lowly legume which to many is something to eat covertly except at circuses, county fairs, and ball games, or something intended only for children.

But to many thousands of workers here there is nothing lowly about the peanut, which has nineteen aliases throughout the world, among which are the goober, the jar nut, and the mani of "Peanut Vender" fame. For these thousands are dependent for their livelihood on the legume whose annual volume runs into the hundreds of millions yearly.

Chicago Takes 129 Million Pounds.

Of the 382 million pounds shipped last year from producing centers Chicago received 129 million or about one-third of the nation's total, according to Marvin Wood, vice president of the Brown-Edwards company, which handles about a twelfth of the country's shipments.

Twenty-five per cent went directly to the salted nut trade, which processes the nut for edible use. Thirty per cent was made into peanut butter, the yearly volume of which approximates $40,000,000 for the nation, a third of which is Chicago's share, and 45 per cent was used by candy manufacturers.

More than 18,000 workers of the nation's 50,000 employed in the candy manufacturing trade are located here. And a large proportion of the candy produced, particularly candy bars, in which this city also takes first place, has peanuts as the basic ingredient.

Affords Work to Thousands.

Chicago's candy production last year aggregated $50,000,000 of an national total of $181,000,000. Federal luxury taxes of $3,600,000 were assessed against this total. Estimates of the number of employés in the peanut butter and salted nut industries are not available but here, too, they run into thousands.

In the south many more thousands are dependent on the nut for their livelihood. Last year production was said to have exceeded a billion pounds. That the product is assuming a greater place commercially is seen in the figures for 1922, when only 88,000,000 pounds were produced. Georgia leads in production with 275,000,000 pounds, surpassing the Alabama crop by about 2,300,000. Virginia, long the industry's leader, stepped back to fourth place last season, producing only 120,400,000 pounds, while North Carolina weighed in approximately 239,000,000.

LARD FUTURES REBOUND AFTER DROP; LEAF LOWER

Sattered selling of lard early in the day, combined with an easier tone in grains, brought lower prices yesterday. Then favorable action on the silver bill and an advance in grains caused a fair run of buying, and prices recovered in part the early losses, closing 2½ cents higher to 5 cents lower.

Cash lard was picked up fairly at $6.50 for regular and loose, or the same as the previous day, while leaf lard dropped 25 cents to $6.50.

Bellies were neglected, while cash lots were in fair demand at $8.12½. Liverpool lard closed unchanged to 3d higher. There were no exports from New York on Friday. Prices:

WOOL MARKETS

BOSTON, Mass., March 10.—Interest in the wool market during the last week has tended to shift from 48s 50s quarter blood to 64s and finer domestic wools. A few small lots of ¼ blood wools were moved. Prices continued about steady, compared with last week. Some fair sized quantities of short combing and clothing 64s and finer western wools were sold, although most generally the sales were confined to small quantities and the interest was limited to inquiries. Limited quantities of 58s, 60s half blood wools were fairly firm and unchanged from the previous week.

FEBRUARY HAS LESS THAN SAME MONTH IN 1933

Decreases 47 Pct. from Total in January.

BY AL CHASE. [Real Estate Editor.]

Suburban building figures, after climbing to a high level in January, nose dived in February below the preceding month and also the same period last year. It was the smallest total recorded since last November. The total was $240,729, against the January figure of $450,848, which was especially cheering because for the first time in several months it surpassed both the preceding month and the same month of the year before.

JOHN ARCHIBALD ARMSTRONG. [Walinger Photo.]

Prognosticators pointed to the January total as significant of better building days in the Chicagoland suburbs. But the February total, made public yesterday in the monthly survey of suburban building by the Straus Securities corporation, dashed the hopes of the most cheerful. The total was 47 per cent less than the January figures and also 21 per cent less than the February, 1933, total of $305,421.

*No report made.

There are a few points which can be pointed to as indicative that the suburban building outlook isn't quite as bad as it seems. For example, the total of permits so far this year (for January and February) is $690,000, as compared with $540,000 for the same two months last year.

Two Unusual Jobs.

When the February total is compared with the much larger one of January it should be recalled that the latter figures were swelled by two unusual construction jobs, one in Winnetka for $140,000 to complete and add to the New Trier High school and $40,000 in Evanston for an addition to St. Mark's Episcopal church.

On the other hand the February total is a more normal aggregate of building permits than has been issued in some time. There are no large, unusual jobs, but mostly small ones.

John Archibald Armstrong of Armstrong, Furst & Tilton, architects, who is building commissioner of Glencoe, had this to say regarding suburban conditions:

Calls Glencoe Favored.

"There seems to be a trend of building toward the north shore communities. Glencoe itself, particularly favored, has produced a comparatively good amount of building for the last two years. The total amount of permits for the last twelve months—that is, March, 1933, to February, 1934, inclusive—is $136,176.

"Rather remarkably, this is almost exactly the same as for the corresponding twelve months beginning March, 1932, and ending February, 1933, this total being $134,316.

"In other words, the 1933 slump in suburban building, amounting roughly to 25 per cent throughout the entire suburban area, did not touch Glencoe. Individual months were bad, extremely bad, but for two years we've had no month without permits for construction, and, taken as a whole, this picture is encouraging.

"Five new homes are now under way, with two of a very high grade started this month. These two homes account for $40,000 of the total of new permits issued in February in Glencoe."

STARCK PIANO LEASES SPACE ON BOUL MICH

The P. A. Starck Piano company, which for the last decade has maintained a retail store at 228 South Wabash avenue, in the heart of "piano row," has leased the first and second floors at 16 North Michigan avenue, and on March 20 will move to that address. The general offices of the company also will be moved to the new location. The company was founded by P. A. Starck and has been manufacturing pianos since 1891.

WHERE WEST WILL MEET EAST

"Streets of Shanghai," shown above, the latest attraction to sign a contract with A Century of Progress for space at the 1934 Fair, is sponsored by a group of oriental business men headed by K. Bernard Kim. H. Jen Kin is vice president and concession manager of Shanghai, Inc. Burnham Bros. & Hammond are architects, assisted by See Wing Louie, Chinese architect. The site is at the southwest corner of the new Island Midway. It will be just north of the Court of States and east of the Agricultural building. Details are given in another column.

IMPROVING A STRATEGIC NORTH SHORE PROPERTY

Robert S. De Golyer, architect, designed the building to be erected at the southeast corner of St. Johns and Central, in Highland Park. The wrecking of the present structure will begin on March 15, according to Stewart B. Matthews, vice president in charge of sales of Baird & Warner, Inc., agents for the owner. Details are given elsewhere on this page.

SERVES FORTY YEARS WITH CHICAGO TITLE AND TRUST COMPANY

Clarence A. Wolfram, 797 Graveland avenue, Des Plaines, observed on Wednesday, March 7, his fortieth anniversary of service with the abstract department of the Chicago Title and Trust company. Mr. Wolfram's father entered the employ of the Chase Brothers Abstract company, one of the constituent companies of the present title company, in 1866. Since that year some member of the Wolfram family has been continuously employed by the company or its predecessors. The Wolfram family has a record of an aggregate of more than 125 years of service with the institution.

CLARENCE A. WOLFRAM.

LANDSCAPE MEN IN CHICAGOLAND FORM SOCIETY

Robert E. Moore Jr., landscape architect for the south park commissioners, was elected president of the newly formed Society of Landscape Architects which held its first meeting on Wednesday evening, March 7, at "A Bit of Sweden." Wayne H. Laverty, landscape architect for the University of Chicago, was made vice president. Miss May E. McAdams, landscape architect of Lake Forest and former associate professor of design at the University of Illinois, is secretary-treasurer.

J. Roy West, landscape architect and senior member of the firm of Simonds, West & Blair, was elected chairman of the board of directors. Others on the board are Kenneth W. Bangs, Arlington Heights; Mrs. Gertrude Deimel, Winnetka, and Lowell Kammerer, landscape architect at the Morton arboretum. There are twenty charter members. A regular meeting will be held on the first Wednesday of every month.

Will Remodel Store Front at 160 North Wells Street

Archibald E. Freer, owner of the seven story Cambridge building at the northwest corner of Wells and Randolph is to remodel the store front at 160 North Wells and the building lobby with structural glass walls and terrazo floors, from plans by W. C. Palmer, designer.

Plan New Business Center for Highland Park Corner

Wreckers will start tearing down the old three story hotel and other improvements at the southeast corner of St. Johns and Central, in Highland Park. A modern two and one story store and office building will be erected in units from plans by Robert S. De Golyer, Chicago architect. The property fronts 175 feet on St. Johns and 125 feet on Central. Parking space will be provided back of the shops.

The first unit, consisting of six stores on St. Johns, is to be completed on or about July 1. The corner improvement of two stories will be ready for occupancy about Sept. 1. Then work will continue on the third unit, consisting of three or four stores on Central.

The style of architecture will be French Provencal, with slight Normandy village influence. The exterior will be of Bedford stone and half timbering of oak with stucco panels for exterior elevations and red shingle tile roof. A new cement sidewalk for the entire frontage will eliminate the discrepancy of grades which now exist.

The property, at one of the suburb's most strategic corners, opposite the Chicago and North Western station, has been under a long term lease and is improved with old type stores and hotel. According to Stewart B. Matthews, vice president of Baird & Warner, agents for the building, negotiations are now under way with several firms for space in the new shopping center.

Better Realty Market Seen in Oak Park

Definite evidence of an upturn in the real estate market was reported by realtors at a meeting of the Oak Park Real Estate board, held at the Oak Park Arms hotel on Monday. According to Mrs. W. H. Wright, program chairman, for the first time in years realtors are finding they have to say "there's nothing available" when prospective tenants ask for certain types of property.

Various members were called on by R. W. Bramberg, president of the board, who presided, to give their views on the realty market in recent weeks. Practically every report indicated that vacancies are diminishing rapidly, collections are improving, concessions are being eliminated and property offered at distress prices is being quickly absorbed by purchasers who have confidence in the future.

James A. Howe, with offices on Roosevelt road, reported that there has not been a four or five room apartment listed in his office as available in his neighborhood since last November.

Ralph Skillin of Cook & Skillin, and Harry E. Hopkins announced that there is less than 1 per cent vacancy in the apartment buildings now being managed by their respective offices. Mr. Hopkins added that the sales department of his firm was experiencing a decided change for the better, and that a more confident attitude was noticeable among real estate investors.

MILTON S. FLORSHEIM AGAIN TO HEAD SOUTH STATE STREET GROUP

Milton S. Florsheim will be re-elected president of the South State Street Improvement association at its fifteenth annual meeting and election to be held next Wednesday, March 14, at 3 p. m., at the Chicago Real Estate board. A nominating committee composed of Frederick F. Tapsfield, Robert R. Daum, and L. S. Chichester has named the following officers to support Mr. Florsheim: Murray Wolbach, vice president; Fred J. Stebbins, treasurer; John P. Hooker, secretary.

MILTON S. FLORSHEIM.

The directors will comprise these four officers and Edwin L. Brand Jr., E. J. Lehmann, Henry G. Miller, Marvin B. Pool, and W. W. Walker. Mr. Pool, general manager of Butler Bros., and Mr. Walker, secretary of the John R. Thompson company, succeed Philetus W. Gates and Dr. F. S. Hartmann, who died last year. Leo Heller is executive secretary.

President Florsheim pointed out that the 1933 A Century of Progress brought many visitors to South State street all of last summer, and he predicts another good year for merchants in that section during 1934.

"In some quarters it was feared that the return of liquor would bring a relapse into the old conditions on South State street," he said. "A few taverns and inns, after attractive alterations, have moved in. The property owners early determined that there should be no return to former conditions and that the street should retain its name as a legitimate retail shopping center.

EARL H. REED JR. TO GIVE TALK ON PIONEER DESIGN

Earl H. Reed Jr., president of the Chicago chapter of the American Institute of Architects and head of the architectural department of Armour institute, will give a stereopticon talk before the Women's Architectural club next Thursday evening, March 15, at 8 o'clock, on "Mid-West Pioneer Architecture." The meeting will be held at the College club, 196 East Delaware place. Mr. Reed's talk will be preceded by dinner at 6:30 p. m. Mr. Reed is district officer for northern Illinois for the Historical American buildings survey sponsored by the CWA. This survey will result in a careful recording of Illinois historic buildings for the congressional library.

LOCAL CHINESE TO SHOW BIT OF ORIENT AT FAIR

"Streets of Shanghai" to Be on New Midway.

Contracts have just been signed for another big attraction for the Island Midway at the 1934 World's Fair. This will be "Streets of Shanghai," a gay, colorful and exotic bit of the orient to be erected just east of the Agricultural building and north of the Court of States by a Chinese syndicate of business men. It is headed by K. Bernard Kim, a celestial who has lived in Chicago for two decades. It is being designed by Burnham Brothers & Hammond with the aid of See Wing Louie, a Chinese architect. It will cost a reported $100,000 and will occupy approximately an acre of ground.

K. BERNARD KIM.

Streets of Shanghai will be lined with authentic reproductions of gorgeous hued structures from the native quarter of the big oriental city, housing far eastern shops, a Chinese theater, and eating and drinking places. There won't be a doleful shade of paint in the entire concession. Mandarin red, jade green, and Chinese yellow will vie with blue and gold to make it one of the most brilliant groups of buildings at the Fair.

Pagoda Towers at Entrance.

The main entrance, on the west side of the concession, will be flanked by two tall eight story pagoda towers. Entrance to the village will be free. On one side will be a large Chinese restaurant and a big cafeteria, where oriental dishes may be had.

Between the two will be a long bar where both American and Chinese beverages will be served. Chinese wines and "Eng Gai Pei," an oriental champagne, will be on hand for the thirsty.

Across from the restaurants will be a Chinese theater where far east dramas will be presented by native actors, accompanied by a native orchestra.

Mr. Kim states that already he has received applications from Chinese merchants in Shanghai and San Francisco for shop space in the Streets of Shanghai. Tom Chan, a prominent Chinese business man and owner of a Chinese trading and importing company, is planning to have a noodle factory in operation. He also will show how bean sprouts, used so much in Chinese cooking, are grown.

All in Native Garb.

All employés throughout the village will be garbed in native costumes. Thousands of Chinese lanterns will throw light on the irregular and narrow streets of Shanghai.

Mr. Kim hopes to have the many shops filled with authentic Chinese merchandise and not the hodge-podge of atrocitites usually sold as so-called souvenirs. He expects there will be rare silks, bronzes, porcelains, jades and other real Chinese importations for sale.

Other novelties contemplated are an exact reproduction of an existing Confucius temple and an art gallery in which will be shown old Chinese masterpieces. Chinese portrait painters will have booths where they will sketch the Yankee visitor as seen by oriental eyes.

Mr. Kim Is President.

Streets of Shanghai will be owned and operated by Shanghai, Inc., of which Mr. Kim is president and general manager. H. Jen Kin is vice president and concession manager. These two and John Montgomery Jr., an attorney, are the incorporators. Leading Chicago Chinese business men are stockholders.

Mr. Kim, who has operated the Washington cafeteria, at 167 West Washington street, for twenty years, personally will manage the restaurant and cafeteria in Streets of Shanghai.

NAME DIRECTORS FOR REALTORS IN DU PAGE COUNTY

Thomas O. Myers, head of the Thomas O. Myers real estate organization, was installed as president of the Du Page county real estate board at its annual banquet held at the Casino café, Elmhurst, last Thursday evening. He succeeded Joseph F. Miller of Wheaton, who served three terms. The new board of directors elected for 1934 comprise: Claude F. Jones of Villa Park, O. J. Roth of Lombard, W. S. Weller of Elmhurst, Herbert Gilbert of Glen Ellyn, George Allmart and Arthur W. Guild of Wheaton. John Burgess and Cary DeButts told the realtors about the HOLC.

STINEWAY DRUG TO HAVE STORE IN "ALLERTON"

The Stineway Drug company has bought out the Allerton Drug company and leased the store it now occupies at 707 North Michigan avenue, in the Allerton Hotel building, for an undisclosed term. The lessees will open their twelfth drug store at this location probably some time this week. The interior will be changed to conform to the standards established some time ago by the Stineway Drug company. Landau & Perlmon were brokers.

Contracts Awarded

Contracts awarded in Chicago the week of March 2 to 8, according to figures supplied by the F. W. Dodge corporation, totaled 32, with a combinded cost of $874,500. For the corresponding week last year there were 21 contracts, totaling $294,000. From Jan. 1 to March 8 the total was $4,684,550, or $2,010,070 ahead of the corresponding period last year, which totaled $2,674,480.

MOVE TO RESTORE VALLEY'S BEAUTY

FOREST PARK IS FIFTY; TO MARK GOLDEN JUBILEE

Pioneer Roll Call Slated in April.

BY ONEY FRED SWEET.

Forest Park is fifty years old this year and an observance of the anniversary is being arranged by the village chamber of commerce, the American Legion, and other local civic groups.

The chamber of commerce plans a public meeting on April 16 at which there will be a roll call of the village's early officials and their descendants, a history of the village will be read, and an outside speaker will be asked to talk on the fifty year period as it has affected the Forest Park area.

It is also planned that each of the civic organizations in the village hold an anniversary program at some time during the year. The American Legion has already selected July 4 for its special celebration. The chamber of commerce activity will probably be a homecoming outing late in the summer. The Kiwanis club, Lions club, and other organizations will each be given their day.

A Village of 20,000.

Forest Park, nine miles west of the loop, is a community of nearly 20,000 population. It has four steam railways, an electric interurban system, a street car system connecting with four Chicago surface lines, and two "L" lines to the loop.

It is traversed by greater Harlem avenue which connects with 14 state or national highways and many Chicago arterial streets, by Grant highway, St. Charles road, Washington boulevard, Madison street, Jackson boulevard, and Roosevelt road. It is a focal point of the west suburban area having a total population of upwards of 200,000.

Forest Park boasts a golf course lying entirely within its corporate limits. It is served by several public schools under local control. It has thriving churches of many creeds, two of them having their own schools.

High Per Cent of Home Owners.

A high percentage of home owning residents is also cited as one of Forest Park's outstanding assets. Some of its industrial establishments are the largest of their kind in the world.

The village, when it was incorporated in 1884, was known as Harlem. An election, authorized by the county judge, was held Feb. 16, 1884, in the school house at Randolph street and Circle avenue. A total of 131 votes were cast, 76 being in favor of incorporating and 55 opposed. Judges of the election were Fred Hintz, Charles Dehn, and Harry Braenscheen. On Feb. 20 the corporation was duly authorized.

March 24, 1884, was another important date when a second election was held and trustees chosen. The judges on that occasion were James Brown, William Senne, and August Gurster. Frederick Blohm and August Michalsky were the clerks.

First Trustees Named.

Six trustees elected were James Brown Sr., Henry Zimmerman, J. H. C. Schroeder, John Huemner, August Karsten, and August Gaden. Mr. Gaden won his office by lot, his vote of 52 being tied by Frederick Lange. Henry Zimmerman was selected as the first village president.

An election was held on April 15, 1884, and the same six trustees were chosen. However, Trustee Schroeder was elected president in place of Mr. Zimmerman, who modestly refused to vote for himself.

Arrange Annual Oak Park and River Forest Ping-Pong Tournament

Plans for the second annual Oak Park and River Forest ping-pong tournament, to be held March 19 to 24 in the Lowell school in Oak Park went busily forward last week when members of the committee on arrangements gathered for discussion over the teacups. CONTROL BODY WOULD CREATE POOLS, STREAMS

Seen as Byproduct of Mosquito Work.

Plans for the restoration of ponds and water courses, once features of the west suburban landscape and the habitat of wild life, are being considered by engineers of the Des Plaines valley mosquito abatement district. Proposal for the conservation in connection with control work was recently made by Otto McFeely, a trustee of the mosquito district which comprises Oak Park, River Forest and Proviso township, and it has been enthusiastically received.

Water was first drained from the area by the white settler so that he could raise crops. Over a long period of years the land has been getting drier and drier and many birds and other creatures have been deprived of their natural shelters and feeding ground.

Much acreage, it is explained, following drainage, has never raised a crop or made pastures due to lack of fertility in the soil.

CWA Digs Ditches.

Additional drainage ditches were made when the mosquito control work was begun. During recent months 600 Civil Works Administration workers have excavated more than five miles of ditches in the district.

Following Mr. McFeely's proposal, J. Lyle Clarke, engineer of the district, was directed to make a survey and submit a report for the creation of deep ponds and the restoration of water courses in the district in adjacent territory. Mr. Clarke located six places in the forest preserve where ponds can be made.

One of these projects calls for the restoration of historic Portage creek, just south of Oak Park on the north bank of the Sanitary district canal. It was at this point that Father Marquette crossed from the Mississippi valley water shed to that of the St. Lawrence.

Confers with Sauers.

In calling attention to CWA work in its efforts to beautify the landscape and encourage wild life, Mr. McFeely wrote Engineer Clarke urging an attempt to do something of the sort in the district and not run off all the water, leaving the birds high and dry and the earth tending to become a desert. He urged the creation of ornamental or artificial clear water ponds where possible as a by-product of the mosquito war.

Mr. Clarke took up the matter with Charles F. Sauers, general superintendent of the forest preserves and listed a number of projects.

"These projects," wrote Mr. Clarke, "are ponds, marshes, and woodland pools in which water remains the greater part of the spring and summer but which become dry during the fall. Ponds of this character, I am advised by A. M. Bailey, director of the Chicago Academy of Science, serve as nesting places for marsh birds and should not be drained. Following his advice, we have not placed these water areas upon our drainage program. However, in their present state they constitute prolific mosquito breeding areas, and require several ap-

Riverside Finds No Need for Spring Charity Drive

On the heels of Riverside township's tax slash of 20 per cent on 1932 bills came an announcement last week that there will be no Riverside community fund campaign this spring because of reduced demands on the fund's principal charity, local emergency relief and unemployment relief.

George L. Schnable, president of the fund organization stated that the annual drive has been deferred until November. According to Mr. Schnable, the money collected during 1933 for emergency and unemployment relief has been used only in part because the work has been taken care of during the last eighteen months through county, state and federal aid.

Seek Unpaid Pledges.

"Assuming that during the rest of 1934 unemployment and welfare relief will be handled in a manner similar to that now being used, the directors of the community fund expect to be able to finance the other regularly supported agencies such as Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Infant Welfare, etc., from funds still on hand together with anticipated collections from outstanding pledges which still remain unpaid," said Mr. Schnable. "A special effort is being made at this time to collect the unpaid pledges."

According to Mr. Schnable, none of the agencies benefiting from the fund were given their full budget allotment originally decided upon by the board of directors. When the final accounting for the 1933 drive was made and it was found that only 75 per cent of the total budget had been obtained, the directors cut all allotments 75 per cent.

"All participating agencies at the present time have been paid their allotments until May 1," said Mr. Schnable, "which concludes the fiscal year under the previous spring-time annual drive. We believe that with the funds available plus the delinquent collections that we will be able to take care of all the agencies financially from May 1 to Dec. 31.

Operate by Calendar Year.

"The drive next fall," continued Mr. Schnable, "will finance agencies during the calendar year 1935 and each succeeding annual drive will cover needs for a twelve month period coinciding with the calendar year."

PLANS SORORITY DANCE

Miss Pearl Padorr, 328 North Long avenue, is acting as secretary of the committee on the annual dance and card party to be held by Phi Beta Pi sorority this evening in the Palmer House, proceeds of which will go to the Lewis Institute Scholarship fund. Miss Dorothy Rhein is chairman of the committee.

Madrigal Isabellans to Hold St. Patrick's Party

A St. Patrick's eve party will be held by Madrigal council, No. 15, Ladies of Isabella, Friday evening in Moose hall, 446 North Parkside avenue. Mrs. Marguerite Bergen is in charge of arrangements. Her committee consists of Mrs. Josephine Sicilia, Mrs. Frank Kelly, Miss Julia A. Holden, Miss Sylvia Sykes, Mrs. Mayme McBride, Miss Irene Holden, Miss Mae Fennelly, Miss Kathryn Grant, Mrs. Mae Mullen, and Mrs. Mary Whalen.

IN LITTLE THEATER PLAY

Miss Helen Hanneman, 111 North Mayfield avenue, played a prominent role in "The Church Mouse," presented by the Little Theater association of the Central Y. M. C. A. college recently.

Railway Choral Club to Give Concert in Church

The Chicago and Northwestern Railway Choral club, assisted by the West Chicago Community chorus, will give a concert of sacred music at 8 o'clock this evening in the Metropolitan Church of Christ, 3212 West Monroe street. Solos will be sung by Miss Grace Fleischer, Mrs. Gertrude Rogers, and Evan Rogers.

Oak Park C. of C. Will Add to Efforts in Civic Affairs

The Oak Park Chamber of Commerce will expand its present service and follow the modern trend of chamber of commerce activity from purely business interests to civic, the association's new president, Tom Hungerford, declared at a recent meeting of the Oak Park Optimist club.

Mr. Hungerford quoted from the report of the secretary, Miss Grace Mary Parks, in giving interesting examples of the varied type of work and information the chamber is called upon to give local merchants and residents. Information concerning the NRA and the retailers' occupational tax were supplied all local merchants. Examples of complaints and adjustments made between customer and merchant were quoted, varying in character from bus service to incorrect sizes in dresses.

Check on Bad Checks.

Members of the chamber have been notified of bad check writers and fraudulent collection agencies. It was pointed out that business houses in other localities are continually calling upon the chamber for information regarding local merchants.

President Hungerford pointed out the need of a thorough organization made of representatives from every civic group in the village to handle such problems as taxes, a community chest, and transportation.

At a recent meeting of the chamber's board of directors, suggestion was made that an executive committee be appointed with power to act in the chamber's behalf. President Hungerford will serve on this committee with Holland C. Pile, Lester R. Walker, Lester B. McAllister, and J. A. Dedouch. This committee is engaged in formulating policies and a program for the coming year for presentation to the board of directors.

Oak Parker 3 Years.

Mr. Hungerford, manager of the Lamar theater in Oak Park, has succeeded Telfer MacArthur, who served the chamber as president for two terms. Born in St. Paul, Mr. Hungerford spent his youth in Glencoe. He came to Oak Park three years ago. He assisted in the formation of a group of South Oak Park business men into the Southern District association, and resigned as treasurer of the Lake-Marion-Harlem district on taking his new office.

Other new officers of the chamber are M. H. Potter, first vice president, P. J. Nilsen, second vice president, W. H. Ellett Jr., treasurer, and Miss Grace Mary Parks, secretary.

Directors elected for 1934 include the newly elected officers and Mr. MacArthur, Mr. McAllister, T. R. Leth, F. L. Strickland, Mr. Walker, F. M. Pebbles, Arthur Jacobs, F. B. Peake, William N. Hall, and Franklin Gilmore.

Melrose Park President to Be Club Speaker

Joseph Imburgio, president of the village of Melrose Park, will speak before the Melwoochi Sociay club Friday evening on "Coöperation, Organization, and Good to the Community." James Spata is president of the club.

IN ROSARY CLUB PLAY

Miss Laurette Brophy, 1737 North Newland, will enact the role of Sara Crewe in "The Little Princess," to be presented by the Rosary College Dramatic club, Thursday afternoon in Rosary college auditorium, 7900 Division street, River Forest. Miss Frances Young is coaching the players.

FREEMAN OPENS FINAL INSTITUTE BENEFIT TONIGHT

"Girls in Uniform" Ends Five Years' Work.

Charles K. Freeman will conclude five years of successful direction of the Institute Players of the Jewish People's institute this evening when his final production with that group, "Girls in Uniform," will open at the Blackstone theater.

Leading rôles in the play will be portrayed by Miss Shaindel Kalish and Miss Sunda Love, who is well known on the air. The talking picture, "Maedchen in Uniform," was taken from this vehicle and the play itself is banned in Germany because of its denunciation of the imperialistic régime. Proceeds of the performances will go to further the dramatic schooling of talented amateur players.

Wins McCormick Trophy.

Permanent possession of the Edith Rockefeller McCormick cup was won by the Institute Players in 1932 through Mr. Freeman's coaching in the Drama league tournaments. "The Tenth Man," "The Dollar," and "The Dybbuk" were the prize winning productions. Several diction prizes awarded by the league in those three years also went to members of the group.

New plays introduced in Chicago by Mr. Freeman included Elmer Rice's diatribe against American civilization, "We, the People." The Institute Players presented it for the first time outside of New York City. Originally scheduled for six performances, it ran to twelve, and broke all records for length of run of any Little Theater production in Chicago.

"Meteor," by S. N. Behrman; "The Camel Through the Needle's Eye," by Frantisek Langer;" "The Man Saul," by Sidney Buchman; "The Criminal Code," by Martin Flavin, and "The Great God Brown," by Eugene O'Neill also all were produced first by the players in Chicago.

Directed Chanukah Festival.

Mr. Freedman served as dramatic director of the first Chanukah festival held in the Chicago Stadium and also for "The Romance of a People," which was given at Soldiers field. He was general director and co-author of the second Chanukah festival held in December at the Civic Opera house.

Born in Liverpool and educated in Boston, Mr. Freeman held his first coaching position with the New York Theater guild. In 1919 he first joined the Players' club of the institute, then located on Taylor street. He played with the group for four years, directed a few one act plays. Returning to New York, he later became director of the Richard Mansfield Repertory theater in New London, Conn., and from that post directed and managed several stock companies in the middle west and western states.

Luther Institute Holds Silver Jubilee Today

The silver jubilee festival of the Luther institute will be held at 3 o'clock this afternoon in the gymnasium of Concordia Teachers' college in River Forest. Assisting the board of directors of the institute in carrying out plans for the celebration is the Alumni association, of which Harold Garbers is president.

HOSTESS

Miss Margaret Reardon, 119 North Central avenue, is one of the young women who will assist in welcoming guests at the annual St. Patrick's night supper dance to be given by The Harps, March 17, at the Tower Town club, 111 East Pearson street.

YORK HIGH TO STAGE "PEG"

SAINT PATRICK'S TO BE SCENE OF FIESTA SATURDAY

Patronal Feast on 78th Anniversary.

BY JOHN ASTLEY-COCK.

Thousands of Chicagoans of Irish extraction will flock to St. Patrick's church, Adams and Des Plaines streets, next Saturday when the patronal feast, which coincides with the 78th anniversary of the founding of the parish, will be celebrated with due solemnity.

The celebrant at the 10:30 mass will be the rector, the Rev. Thomas J. Hayes, with the Rev. John Kane as deacon and the Rev. Joseph King as sub-deacon. The sermon will be preached by the Rev. Thomas B. Shea, chaplain of the Illinois reformatory at Pontiac, Ill.

The choir will be under the direction of Miss Isadora Plunkett Malone, who was a pupil from childhood of the late Dr. Lewis Browne and has succeeded to his position as organist.

Four Additional Masses.

There will be additional masses on this day at 7, 8, 8:30, and noon. The music at the 8:30 mass will be given by St. Patrick's High school choir under the direction of J. Edward Cordon, organist and choirmaster.

The known facts of St. Patrick's life are so meager and entwined with legend that nearly every event is variously interpreted. His father was Calpurnius, a deacon and the son of a presbyter, a man of some property, holding the office of decurion, or member of a municipal council.

St. Patrick presumably was born at Banneventa, which tradition identifies with Dunbarton, Scotland, but it was more probably in southwestern Britain not far from the Irish channel.

Captured in Raid.

His British name was Succat, but perhaps from childhood he bore also the Roman name Paricius. When 16 years old he was taken captive in an Irish raid on Britain and carried off to northern Dalaradia in County Antrim.

After six years of slavery he escaped thence and found his way to France, eventually finding refuge in the island monastery of Lerins, off the coast of Provence. After a sojourn with Martin of Tours, he returned home but, ordered of God in a dream, went back to Auxerre in France, where he was ordained deacon by Bishop Amator.

Fourteen years later, on the death of Palladius, he was consecrated bishop of Ireland and set out for his long desired missionary field with all the prestige of authority and office.

Begins His Travels.

He landed in County Wicklow, where the Christian communities were settled, but he did not long confine his work to them and started forthwith on his cherished wish of converting the heathen, laboring ceaselessly through the length and breadth of the country.

St. Patrick is rightly regarded as the greatest of all missionaries to Ireland, and his work insured the triumph of Christianity of the Druid religion.

On March 17, 493, St. Patrick died at Saul in Dalaradia, near the mouth of the River Slaney in County Down. It is recorded that at the moment of death he had a vision wherein he saw the whole of Ireland lighted with the rays of divine faith as the angel said to him, "Fear not, your apostleship shall never cease!"

Curtain Tuesday

Scenic designers, scene builders and other artisans necessary for play producing, as well as those who are members of the cast, are engaged in preparations for "Peg O' My Heart" to be given by the junior class of York Community High school, Elmhurst, at the school auditorium, Tuesday night.

Members of the cast in the play which has been both a stage and a motion picture success, are Miss Dorothy Shipman as "Peg," Miss Peggy Phillips, Miss Virginia Gallup, Robert Lyon, Peter Bates, Carl Runge, Miss Florence Rose Smethurst, and Kenneth Skillin.

Virgil Elsner is scenic designer. Walter Sparf is head of the stage building crew and is assisted by James Coe, David Welsher, John Sanford, Harry Fassett, Charles Champene, and Albrey Trick. DeWitt Kelly is stage manager. Bud Meitz is makeup man, Miss Marian Miller is property mistress, and William Hatten, prompter.

The stage building crew is at work on a set which will be permanent, and both the junior and senior class have contributed funds for the project. Proceeds from Tuesday night's play will be used for conducting worthwhile school activities and building up a reserve fund for the senior year. The senior play will be given in May.

SEEK TO RESTORE POOLS, STREAMS OF WEST AREAS

plications of pyrethium larvacide during each season.

"These areas are too shallow to maintain fish life. The deepening of these ponds would insure the maintenance of fish life and the protection of fish life would obviate the necessity of spraying them, as fish and other aquatic life would keep mosquito production in check.

"With your permission we should like to deepen the central areas of these ponds—planning the excavated area to conform to the general shape of the pond—to a depth of six feet with side slope of three horizontal to one vertical. The material excavated would be disposed of outside the marsh area."

Mr. Clarke suggested going over the projects listed with some one from the district and choosing two of the most promising pools, and the submission of designs such as would be typical of this method of dealing with mosquito breeding woodland pools which are of value as bird preserves.

BELLWOOD PLANS A WEEK'S MISSION IN TWO TONGUES

A one week's mission, to be conducted simultaneously in both English and Polish, will open at St. Simeon's parish in Bellwood today. The Rev. J. C. James will give the mission in Polish at the parish chapel, Washington boulevard and Marshall road, Bellwood, while the Rev. M. A. Seymour will conduct the mission in English at the Community building, Washington boulevard and Eastern road, Bellwood.

Services for both missions will be held in both the morning and evening. A mission for children will be held Thursday, Friday, and Saturday. The Rev. Edward F. Dankowski is pastor of the church and also chaplain of the Cook County council of the American Legion.

WESTERN PARTY TO BE HELD BY ROMER LEGION

Melin Romer post No. 728 of the American Legion will hold a "days of 49" party Saturday night at Maccabee hall, 5711 West Chicago avenue. There will be dancing and games. The entire proceeds will go toward the purchase of new uniforms for the post's drum and bugle corps.

Games will feature the indoor picnic to be held this afternoon and tonight by Forges auxiliary No. 196 at Forges post headquarters, 3318 West Madison street. Mrs. Emily Sgaller is chairman of the event.

Mrs. Albert W. Dilling of Kenilworth will speak on "The Progress of Red Revolutions" at Acacia hall, Glen Ellyn, Tuesday night. Her address will be given under the auspices of Glen Ellyn unit No. 3, and Mrs. Ethel H. Michaels, president of the unit, invites all who are interested in Americanism to attend.

Bell post No. 242 will hold its annual commander's ball Saturday night at the Midland club, 172 West Adams street. There will be entertainment, refreshments, and dancing to the music of Jay Kenny and his "Red Peppers." The post's drum and bugle corps will give a show at 10 o'clock.

A St. Patrick's day dance and entertainment will be given by Chicago Elevated post No. 184 Saturday night in the Arcadia Gardens, 4444 Broadway. Proceeds will be used to carry on activities of the post, including the drum and bugle corps and service and relief work.

Mrs. William H. Beister of Philadelphia, national president of the American Legion auxiliary, will be a guest of the Cook County auxiliary at a luncheon in her compliment at Medinah Michigan Avenue club Saturday at 12:30 o'clock.

LA GRANGE CIVIC CLUB PLANS FOR A BUSY SUMMER

Music Festival Is One of Early Projects.

The La Grange Civic club is planning an active summer for the community it serves. A music festival which will combine the musical talents of all organizations in the villages of La Grange and La Grange Park will be sponsored early in the summer and a recreational program for youngsters will again be conducted during the school vacation.

Last year the first music festival to be staged under Civic club sponsors attracted an audience of more than 2,000 music lovers from all of the western suburbs. The event was staged out of doors at twilight and was a colorful and unusual affair which brought forth a community-wide desire to make it an annual event.

Program Grows Bigger.

The recreational program will be given for the fourth consecutive year. Each season it becomes more extensive. Last summer youngsters were given an opportunity to play golf, tennis, baseball, or organized games, a chance to swim, participate in hikes, stunts, and craftsmen competitions.

Four playground centers were maintained during the entire season of eight weeks and the total number of participants was 18,000.

The volunteer staf of instructors conducted the program under the supervision of Ollie Stenger, athletic director at the Lyons Township High school, and Miss Dorothy Wakefield, an assistant.

Girl Volunteers.

The girl volunteers were Miss Jeane Webber, Miss Eleanor Lampke, Miss Frances Kelley, Miss Jo Crist, Miss Jeanette Greenlee, Miss Dorothy Bolnow, Miss Jane Schuyler, Miss Helen Purple, Miss Dorothy Hautau, Miss Lucille Jost, Miss Barbara Townsend, Miss Eleanor Boynton, Miss Opal Rickert, and Miss Jane Gilbert.

The boys assisting were Bill Verner, Fred Lodge, B. Twyman, W. Smith C. Plummer, W. Gustafson, L. Cutshall, H. Doranda, C. Weaver, J. Hadley, and John Myers.

In the windup of tennis activities Miss Alice Heath won the women's community championship, and Jeffery Short won the men's title. The junior singles titles went to Miss Marion Arms and Lawrence Curtiss. The girls' honors were won by Miss Jane Lipsey and the boys' title went to Bobby Gordon.

SOLOIST

Nancy Rowland, twelve year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Rowland, Michaux road, Riverside, was the piano soloist with the Little Symphony orchestra of Riverside under the direction of George Dasch at its last concert of the season held Wednesday at the Central school in Riverside.

Children's Choir to Give Church Program Tonight

The children's choir of the United Evangelical Lutheran church will present a program at 7:45 o'clock this evening in the church, Ridgeland avenue and Greenfield street, Oak Park, under the direction of John Strand. Arnold L. Schultz will play a group of organ solos. There are approximately 50 boys and girls in the choir.

Stays in Place

Controls and flattens heavy figures as well as slimmer ones with no look or feeling of corsetry—that's because it's made of the firmly woven patented Two-Way stretch Youthlastic*. Fashion's newest line demands a real corset, something more than an "elastic shirt." Wash Le Gant* often for the best results. It's thin—light—and the most comfortable corset you ever wore! Look for the label "Le Gant* of Youthlastic*."

PHONE MAKERS TO SHOW HOBBIES ALL THIS WEEK

Six Individual Clubs Will Participate.

Just how diversified the interests of Chicago's 8,000 telephone makers are will be demonstrated this week when the hobby clubs at the Western Electric Hawthorne works hold their annual show.

Several hundred hobby fans from six individual clubs—radio, flower and garden, stamp, boot and saddle, photographic clubs and the Hawthorne male chorus, are represented in the display.

The setting will be furnished by the flower and garden club which, in addition, will display cut flowers, potted plants, and a miniature garden.

Boot and saddle enthusiasts have obtained a model horse, and visitors to their exhibit will be greeted by a bevy of feminine riders garbed for a canter along the cinder path. A masculine rider, outfitted in wild west regalia, will supply information to visitors concerning the activity.

100 Prints in Exhibit.

More than 100 panels of exhibition prints have been entered in the photographic contest which will feature the exhibit of the Camera club. Approximately 200 pictures in the show will be judged by A. L. Webber, of the Chicago Camera club; John Shegata, photographer, and Harry Coleman, newspaper art expert.

The photographs will be divided into three classes—pictorial, portrait, and snapshots. Members will also demonstrate in a miniature studio and laboratory the simplicity of operating a camera, developing negatives and printing. Souvenir photographs will be distributed.

Perhaps the most pretentious display of the show will be the radio club's exhibit, including a museum of representative types of radio equipment and tubes which are now obsolete and forgotten. There will be a display of working models demonstrating applications of scientific discoveries, including photo-electric cell equipment, a radio organ, and a complete set of voice recording equipment with facilities for registering the voices of visitors.

Stamp Club Has Exhibit.

A number of frames of stamps complete with histories and description will be the contribution of the Hawthorne Stamp club. A special attraction will be sheets of the new imperforate Byrd stamps.

The Hawthorne male chorus, under the direction of Paul Claxton, 3644 Elmwood avenue, Berwyn, will present programs of favorite melodies three evenings during the week.

L. V. Michael, president of the Hawthorne Radio club, is chairman of the Associated clubs' exhibit, and is being assisted by L. H. Divis, E. C. Knoepfle, A. B. Colman, G. M. Lathrop, and J. M. Rue.

The exhibit will be held at Noble and Peterson's, 4712 Cermak road. It will be open each evening to the public, and there will be no admission charge.

BLIND SCOUTS PLAN SHOW OF WORK TUESDAY

Boy Scouts of troop 300 will hold an open house exhibition of scout work for members and friends of the West Side Kiwanis club Tuesday evening in the Garfield park refectory.

The troop, composed of blind boys and conducted by Fred Bolotin, blind scoutmaster, is sponsored by the club. The display is being arranged as a forerunner to a benefit card party to be held by wives of the Kiwanis club members Wednesday, April 4, in the refectory. Mrs. Roy Worth, Mrs. Sol Westerfeld, and Mrs. H. F. Gilson are in charge of the affair.

Proceeds of the party will go toward sending the twenty scouts of the troop to scout camp for two weeks during the summer vacation and to procure uniforms for new troop members. Troop 300 holds weekly meetings, to which West Side Kiwanians escort the blind scouts from their homes. The troop committee is composed of Edward Lhotka, L. S. Worth, L. J. Archambault, J. J. Clor, and C. C. Warren.

Giuseppe Castruccio, Italian consul general, will be guest and speaker at the weekly meeting of the club to be held Tuesday noon in the Midwest Athletic club, 6 North Hamlin avenue. "International Relations" will be the subject of his address.

The Austin, Oak Park, and Mid-Town Kiwanis clubs have been invited by B. W. Boman, interclub chairman of the west side group, to attend the meeting. H. F. Gilson is president of the organization and Lee Klein, vice president.

HARMONY CLUB MEMBERS JOIN ELKS

RIVER FOREST WOMEN TO GIVE SPANISH LUNCH

Costumes and Food Decorative.

Foreign dishes, colorful decorations, and gay costumes will mark the Spanish luncheon and card party to be held by the River Forest Women's club tomorrow afternoon in the club house, 526 Ashland avenue, River Forest.

Arrangements for the affair are being made by the ways and means committee, of which Mrs. Charles J. Weigel is chairman. The atmosphere of old Spain will be present in the decoration of the club house, in the menu for the luncheon, and in the costumes to be worn by young women ushers. Assisting Mrs. Weigel are Mrs. George G. Jones, Mrs. Bernard Armstrong, Mrs. A. E. Webster, Mrs. E. P. Seidel, Mrs. Ralph Scarritt, Mrs. Otto Haas, Mrs. George O'Donnel, Mrs. Glenn Tyrrell, Mrs. W. M. Speth, and Miss Margaret Coleman.

Mrs. Clare Joslyn will give her annual "Spring Bookshelf," when the club meets Tuesday afternoon under the auspices of the art and literature department. A tea will follow the program. Mrs. C. W. Pen Dell will act as hostess.

Longfellow of Oak Park.

Spring fashions in clothing and coiffures will be modeled by members of the Longfellow Woman's club of Oak Park at a meeting to be held at 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon in the First United Presbyterian church community hall. Preceding the meeting at 11 o'clock, the international relations study group will discuss "Tariff."

West End Woman's Club.

The West End Woman's club will meet at 1:30 o'clock Friday afternoon, when the nominating committee will make its report on officers slated for election. The annual "spring festival" of the club will be held at 2 o'clock. Miss Gertrude Peterson and Miss Lucy Lewis will give a duet harp recital.

19th Century of Oak Park.

Lewis Browne, author, will talk on "Are the Dark Ages Returning?" before the Nineteenth Century Woman's club of Oak Park tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock. He is well known as the author of "This Believing World" and "That Man Heine." Dr. Frank Laird Waller, conductor of the Milwaukee Philharmonic orchestra, will speak before the music department at 11 o'clock tomorrow morning on "Great Opera Companies and Singers."

Austin Woman's Club.

New officers for the Austin Woman's club will be elected tomorrow from 10 to 3 o'clock in the Austin Masonic temple. Dr. W. W. Whitehouse, dean of Albion college, Albion, Mich., will lecture on "Promoting Normal Homes," tomorrow morning. Mara Senta, lyric soprano, will sing.

La Grange Woman's Club.

The home and philanthropy department of the La Grange Woman's club will meet at 11 o'clock tomorrow morning. A club luncheon will be served at 12:30 o'clock and the meeting will continue into the afternoon. Acting as hostesses will be Mrs. C. H. Glashagel and Mrs. John Harper.

Neighborhood Civic.

Reciprocity day will be observed by the Neighborhood Civic club of Oak Park at 2 o'clock Friday afternoon in the Oak Park Arms hotel, when officers of the Sixth district will be guests. Mrs. Edward Gegenheimer is general chairman of the program.

Clyde Woman's Club.

The board of directors of the Clyde Woman's club will meet at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon in the home of Mrs. E. A. Phillips, 2729 South 61st avenue, Cicero. Mrs. Charles Timmons, Ninth district chairman of law observance, will talk on "Law Observance and Narcotics" before the club Tuesday evening.

Austin North End Woman's Club.

Reciprocity day will be observed by the Austin North End Woman's club Tuesday afternoon. Mrs. John Van Wakeman, vice president of the Sixth district, will read a paper on "Current Topics" and Dr. Louis L. Mann will speak.

West End Catholic Woman's Club.

The annual philanthropic card party of the West End Catholic Woman's club will be held Friday afternoon at the Oak Park Arms hotel. Mrs. P. Joseph McNamara is chairman of the affair. Her committee is composed of Miss Mildred Knight, Mrs. Bernard Brands, Mrs. R. G. Callahan, Mrs. Charles E. Stuart, Mrs. P. L. Kieley, Mrs. Robert Knight, and Mrs. Frank Tuley.

PLAYER

Mrs. Florence Hinshaw Cary, 547 Franklin avenue, River Forest, will take one of the lead roles in "The Left Bank," to be presented March 22 and 23 at the Nineteenth Century club by the Little Theater group of Oak Park and River Forest.

FREE COLLEGE FOR 300 ADULTS OPEN TOMORROW

Wadsworth School to Offer Many Courses.

Free college courses for 300 adults will be available tomorrow morning in the Wadsworth school, 64th street and Union avenue.

The new institution will open under supervision and endowment of the civil works educational service, and will draw the greater part of its students from the Fenger, Hirsch, Bowen, Phillips, and Hyde Park districts, although persons more than 16 years old and holding a high school diploma or its equivalent may register from any section of the city.

Information can be had and registration made at all high schools and branch libraries. A stamped, self-addressed envelope will bring information.

Credits By Examination.

No credit will be given, but persons completing the courses with good grades will be able to pass examinations conducted by accredited colleges for the granting of the aforementioned credits.

Joseph F. Gonnelly, principal of the Hyde Park High school, is regional chairman for the CWES college courses.

Other colleges to open tomorrow include the Kelley High school, 42d street and California avenue; Crane High school, 2245 Jackson boulevard; Flower Technical High school, 3545 West Fulton boulevard, and the Roosevelt High school, 3436 Wilson avenue.

Subjects offered are college algebra, calculus, English composition, journalism, English literature, political science, history, French, Spanish, German, psychology, economics, and others.

See Aid to Prosperity.

Concerning the CWES colleges and high schools, the Illinois Emergency Relief commission last week stated the classes will help the return of prosperity.

"This free educational program has been made available as a result of an appropriation of funds from the state and federal governments," the report commented. "The endeavor is giving folks the educational advantages they have long sought and nearly 1,300 unemployed teachers' names have been restored to pay rolls."

Rule to Talk on Taxes Before Elmhurst Club

Dr. Victor Rule, research director of the Illinois Merchants and Manufacturers Tax league, will talk on "Taxation" before the Elmhurst Highlands club at 8 o'clock tomorrow evening in the New Field school auditorium, Elmhurst. William Stewart Miller is president of the club.

SCHOOLS' LEADER TO TALK BEFORE P.-T. A. OF AUSTIN

"Youth's Challenge" Will Be Her Subject.

Recording secretary of the Save Our Schools committee and second vice president of the Illinois Federation of Parents and Teachers, Mrs. Edward W. Jackson, will talk on "Youth's Challenge" before the Austin High school Parent-Teacher association at 2 o'clock Friday afternoon in the Little theater of the school, 231 North Pine avenue.

Several soprano solos will be sung by Mrs. Cornelius J. Peeples, talented member of the Austin Woman's club, and Erwin Saunders, Austin High student, will deliver an oration on "George Washington and Americanism." A slate of new officers to be elected in the near future will be presented by the nominating committee. Mrs. Paul H. Patton is in charge of the program.

Captain Will Judy, editor of "Dog World," will speak on "Dogs as Teachers" at a meeting of the Pershing association of Berwyn to be held Tuesday afternoon in the school auditorium, 37th street and East avenue, Berwyn.

A three act comedy, "Lookin' Lovely," will be presented by the Corkery association Friday evening in the assembly hall of the Mason school, 18th street and Keeler avenue. Members of the cast are Mrs. Jacob Silha, Mrs. Anton Schlecta, Mrs. John Masa, Mrs. Clifford Plum, Mrs. Reginald Burrows, Mrs. George Vacha, Mrs. J. F. Vavra, Mrs. Frank Keller, Mrs. Matthew Stukel, Mrs. James Krussina, Mrs. Fred Kettenhofen, and Mrs. Albert Jacob. Mrs. A. G. Hoppe is directing the players.

The Mothers' club of Siena High school will sponsor a card party to be held Thursday evening in the school auditorium, Washington boulevard and Central avenue. Arrangements for the affair are being made by mothers of sophomore students.

The newly organized George Howland Parent-Teacher association will meet at 1:30 o'clock Tuesday afternoon in the small gymnasium of the school, 1616 South Spaulding avenue. Mrs. Ida Yablong, president, will preside.

Mrs. J. J. Oros will speak on "Home and the School," before the John Hay association Wednesday afternoon in the school assembly hall, Laramie avenue and Augusta boulevard. The Mother Singers, under the direction of Mrs. Erna Dumke, will present several numbers.

The March meeting of the Howe association will be held Thursday evening in the school auditorium, 720 North Lorel avenue. William F. McDermott will speak on "Wanted—Common Sense."

Wolkenstein Cousin Club Seats Officers Tonight

Officers of the Peter Wolkenstein Cousin club will be installed at 6 o'clock this evening in the Sherman hotel. They are Benjamin F. Schwartz, president; Louis Feldman, vice president; Miss Lillian Perlman, secretary, and Miss Shirley Wolken, treasurer. The club was organized for the union of the Wolkenstein family and charitable purposes.

VERSATILITY OF GARBER BOOSTS RADIO PRESTIGE

Clara, Lu, 'n' Em to Have Anniversary.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

A few puffs and huffs:

Jan Garber's unusual arrangements, novelties, grand dance rhythm, sweet melody—in short, his versatility—has greatly elevated his prestige as a radio entertainer this season. He has arrived in a big way. His version of "Broken Dreams" has lots of listeners applauding. But we don't care for Jan's interruptions to announce that he is "dedicating" the number to a couple celebrating their golden wedding in Broken Jaw, Saskatchewan, or a sorority in Peg Leg, Arkansas.

There are reports that Jan and Wayne King will both leave the Trianon and Aragon for a while this summer to visit the west coast. Garber will play on Catalina island and King plans to make a vacation tour along the Pacific. . . . Wayne turned out to be the first favorite of radio in a Regina, Sask., poll; also one conducted by the Milwaukee Journal.

* *

On March 13 [Tuesday] both Helen King [Em] and Clara, Lu 'n' Em celebrate birthdays. Eight years ago Louise Starkey, Isobel Carothers and Helen King were celebrating Helen's birthday with a "spread" of cookies, nuts and candies in collegiate fashion at Northwestern university. And part of the merriment was the creation of the characters of Clara, Lu 'n' Em. The years since have found the girls alternately separated, reunited, and for nearly four years on the air together.

House Party a Success.

The new House Party program has just about everything necessary to keep you home on Saturday night. We can't think of a happier combination, offhand, than Don Novis, Frances Langford, Bradford Brown, Boran, the mimic, and Don Voorhees' versatile orchestra. Novis' silvery tenor and Miss Langford's rich contralto complement each other neatly. Boran is as good a radio mimic as we have heard. And Brad Brown lends just the right touch of informality and levity.

Ormandy's Premiere.

With Eugene Ormandy at the baton the Minneapolis Symphony launched its new commercial series Tuesday evening most satisfactorily. Clever idea to announce that the programs would consist of music that everybody knows and loves [even though that was an exaggeration]. Never have we heard "Londonderry Air" played so well. But it was a blow to have a small boy's voice piping [right in the middle of the program, too] to his mother that he was all pepped up over the prospect of saving his pennies to buy his mamma a new refrigerator. It must be the new psychology—kids weren't like that 20 years ago.

* *

Ray Perkins was at his waggish best on the première of the new NBC Palmer House series Tuesday night. Gladys Swarthout's performance gave adequate proof that talent sleuths knows what they were about when they signed this Metropolitan Opera star for a series of 52 musical comedy broadcasts on NBC. It must have been a surprise to Hal Stokes, who, with Dale Page, was in good form, to hear himself heralded as the Palmer House orchestra. As everybody knows, Richard Cole's orchestra and Ralph Ginsburgh's ensemble are the musical units broadcasting from the Palmer House and exclusively through W-G-N.

Joan Crawford and Lombardos.

Joan Crawford will star in the picture for which Guy Lombardo and his orchestra and Burns and Allen have been signed. . . . Paul Whiteman served as guest conductor for the Cincinnati Symphony orchestra last week and he will leave New York four times within a month to conduct other symphony orchestras. . . . The feature, "Freedie Rich Entertains," will be back on the air at 7 p. m. Thursday, opposite the Vallee show. . . . The Goldbergs yesterday celebrated their 1,000th performance on the air. . . . Clyde Lucas revealed the other day that he and his brother Lyn made the marimbaphones by hand they use in their orchestra. . . . Reinald Werrenrath starts his own show over WENR-NBC at 4:15 tomorrow afternoon.

* *

Telegram for Don Ameche, Romance Melodies program, NBC, Chicago: Enjoyed your new type of radio program very much; particularly unique. Congratulations and best wishes.

"JOAN CRAWFORD."

The Singing Arthurs.

These two young Arthurs—Wright and Beddoes—can certainly sing. Incidentally, their audition together the other day was a surprise to both of them and to their promoters, Brothers Dave and Paul Kapp. Neither knew that the other's protégé was to be auditioned. Wright's voice suggests that of Donald Novis. Beddoes, we hazard, is bound to get into the movies sooner or later. Another Buddy Rogers, perhaps.

* *

Adele Starr deserves a little praise. She's improved a lot since she was heard on that "Evening in Paris" show over W-G-N from New York. . . . Tony d'Orazi, W-G-N's radio cartoonist, is versatile. He has sung with Jan Garber and Hal Kemp and now he's playing parts in "Just Plain Bill." . . . Versatile Cliff Soubier, barber, minstrel man and dramatic heavy, is the narrator in the new Barnacle Bill show on NBC which was written by Frank Baker, who does a lot of things over at WAAF. . . . Lots of youngsters are yelping over the demise of the Big Brother club. . . . Cornelia Otis Skinner, who made a hit as guest on the Waring show, will appear with Ted Weems' Varieties tonight. . . . Al Katz is back on the air minus his litter of Kittens.

No April Fool Joke!

Tweet Hogan will be in the van of the Easter parade as the new maestro at the Oriental Gardens, succeeding Danny Russo and his Orioles on April 1. . . . Mildred Bailey is in her Rockin' Chair at the Palace theater currently, accompanied by the Three Rhythm Kings. . . . It's good news to hear that John Charles Thomas will succeed John McCormack when he leaves the air shortly to go to Cape Town. . . .

"HELEN TRENT" STARS TRY CONTRACT

NEW SHOW FEATURES, LEN SALVO, ORGANIST, AND JOHN HARRINGTON

Leonard Salvo, W-G-N's staff organist, an outstanding musician featured on many of the programs heard over THE TRIBUNE station, and John Harrington, the rapid-fire announcer, will share the spotlight in a new sponsored spot which will be heard at 7:15 every Monday, Wednesday and Friday nights.

JOHN HARRINGTON

The organist will give short recitals of popular, semi-classical and show tunes, arranged specially for the organ by himself. Harrington will announce the program and in addition will make short comments on affairs of the day. The program will be heard for 13 weeks.

Ruth Etting has been signed for a new movie series, first one to be titled "Ruth Must Be Served." . . . Quin Ryan, manager of W-G-N, is planning a trip to Mexico. . . . Clyde Lucas has only left the Morrison hotel, where he plays, three times in as many month. But, then, Frances Langford, his reputed fiancée, is in New York. . . . Husk O'Hare is playing his "soft, dreamy, romantic music" in St. Louis currently. Still a satisfactory distance.

* *

With Pierre Andre as master of ceremonies, radio stars will put on a show next Wednesday evening for the Mizpah Men's club. Among those participating will be Lawrence Salerno, Francis X. Bushman, Mark Love, Tony D'Orazi, Jackie Heller, Painted Dreams cast, Eddie South, and others.

Radio's Weirdest Quartet.

It's no news to any one that Lee Sims and Ilomay Bailey are Mr. and Mrs. Sims. It may be news to some that Ilomay is the ex-wife of Robert Steiner, who married the first Mrs. Lee Sims. But it was news to us that Mr. and Mrs. Steiner are the personal managers for the Simses.

* *

Down in Miami, where Benny Meroff supports Eddie Cantor of late, they are singing it "Sand Gets in Your Eyes." . . . Fred Allen's contract expires in a few weeks. Don't write your congressman, but do write the sponsor if you want to hear more of him. Fred postcards us that the cold weather has forced Sally Rand to use a red flannel fan and walls over the end of the Metropolitan Opera series, pointing out that it will leave Ed Wynn with the only the opera on the air.

* *

Phil Baker and his associates celebrated the first anniversary of their show Friday. Too bad it went to New York; show doesn't seem as good of late. . . . Even the dog sleds at Little America are equipped with short wave sets. . . . And the British Broadcasting company has introduced the American nuisance of studio audiences. But attendants, corresponding to bailifs in our courts, toss out visitors who get noisy with applause.

BAGGIORE WILL SING FOUR SONGS WITH SYMPHONY

Attilio Baggiore, operatic tenor who will be featured with the concert orchestra in a half hour concert over W-G-N at 8 o'clock on Thursday night, will sing four compositions. "Dei Miei Bollenti Spiriti" from Verdi's opera "La Traviata" is the first number. Franz Schubert's "Ave Maria" will be next. The third and fourth will be "The Little Gray Home in the West," a composition of Herman Lohr, and the melodic "Sleighs," by Kountz.

A notable assisting program has been arranged by Conductor Adolphe Dumont. As the opening number the orchestra will play the overture to the "Marriage of Figaro," by Mozart, followed by the "Sleeping Beauty Waltz Suite," from the ballet of the same name, a work of Tschaikowsky's. The "Polichinello," a composition of the distinguished Russian pianist, Rachmaninoff, has been chosen as the third selection. Ritter von Gluck, the Bavarian composer, was the composer of the music which will be played at the close of the concert. His "Air Gai" (Gay Air) was composed in 1774 as part of the stage work "Iphegenia in Aulis" and "Sicilienne" from Armide, written in 1777, have been selected. The numbers will be played without pause.

JOHN TODD OF 'LONE RANGER' IS VERSATILE CHAP

John Todd, who is cast in the rôle of "Tonto," the Indian friend of the Lone Ranger, the hard riding hero of the plains, who is starred in the show of the same name at 7:30 every Monday, Wednesday, and Friday evening on W-G-N, is versatile. He has studied law, taught school, served with the marines, acted in vaudeville, and spent several years in stock and motion pictures before finally settling down to a life in front of the microphone.

Todd was raised in Youngstown, O. A football star at prep school, he attended law school at Chicago, but forgot about football and law when he became interested in music and dramatics. After a year's study at the Chicago Musical college he entered the theatrical field and has had a mighty varied career since then.

SINGING LADY TO TELL STORY OF HAROLD LLOYD

Fairy tales told and sung as only Ireene Wicker, the "Singing Lady," can present them should delight her listeners during her broadcasts over W-G-N this coming week. Miss Wicker will again have as the feature for four evenings outstanding stories of Make-Believe Land, winding up the week's programs on Thursday and Friday nights with a true story from the life of Harold Lloyd. Allan Grant has arranged special music for that program.

Boynton's Book Talk.

Professor Percy H. Boynton of the University of Chicago will have as his subject for his weekly book talk at 7 o'clock tonight on W-G-N, "Davy Crockett," by Constance Rourke. After tonight's talk Professor Boynton will not be heard for two weeks, but he will be replaced by another member of the faculty.

Ranger Heroine

A graduate of Gus Edwards' "School Days" review, a player in dozens of movies, is Elinor Flynn, the heroine of "The Lone Ranger" shows heard over W-G-N at 7:30 Monday, Wednesday, and Friday evenings.

BERNIE PROTEGE WINS JOB WITH KEMP AS SOLOIST

Bob Allen, a recent addition to Hal Kemp's musical organization at the Blackhawk cafe, was a discovery of Ben Bernie, who recommended the youngster to Kemp, who was searching for a soloist. Allen first sang in amateur minstrel shows in and around Cincinnati, and came in contact with Bernie when he sang for him during a stage appearance there. Bernie immediately told Allen to go to Chicago for a trial and the baritone singer still has his return ticket. He is 20 years old and was born on a farm just outside of Cincinnati. He is heard nightly with the orchestra over W-G-N.

Pat Kennedy Tells Why He Sings Mother Songs

Pat Kennedy, the unmasked tenor, has been asked repeatedly why he includes so many mother songs in his program with Len Salvo daily at 1:30 from W-G-N. Pat declares that he sings that type of ballad because of their wide appeal to the thousands of mothers who lisetn to his program at the early afternoon hour. He knows because he has received hundreds of letters requesting mother songs from his wide audience.

Lincoln Park Kiwanis.

The Big Brother plan adopted by the underprivileged child committee will be presented by Hugh McDougall at a meeting of the Lincoln Park Kiwanis club on Wednesday noon at the North Avenue-Larabee Y. M. C. A.

BIG NAMES OF RADIO, STAGE ON NEW W-G-N SHOW

Friday Night Revue Piped from WOR Studios.

The new half hour musical variety show heard over W-G-N from 8 to 8:30 on Friday evenings will feature some of the biggest names of radio, the theater and musical comedy stage. Guest stars in the early future will include Sophie Tucker, the "last of the red hot mamas," and Frank Crumit and Julia Sanderson, the well known radio team. Will Osborne's 18 piece orchestra each week will provide the musical background for this show which originates at WOR, New York's big independent station. WLW, Cincinnati, will be another outlet.

Vladimir Horowitz, young Russian piano virtuoso and son-in-law of Arturo Toscanini, will be guest on the concert at 5 p. m. today, over WENR and NBC. With him will appear Willem von Hoogstraten, conductor of the Portland Symphony orchestra, and of the Stadium concerts of the New York Philharmonic symphony, who will direct the orchestra.

The overture to Weber's "Der Freischuetz" will open the program, and the first half of the broadcast will close with Liszt's "Concerto No. 2 in A Major," which is unusual among piano concertos. The last half will be completely Russian, including Tschaikowsky's "Romeo and Juliette," Rimsky-Korsakoff's "Spanish Caprice," played by the orchestra, and Horowitz' solo of one of the dances from Stravinsky's modern ballet, "Petrushka."

John Charles Thomas, famous American baritone who recently made his debut with the Metropolitan Opera company, will be guest soloist during the Hall of Fame broadcast at 9:30 tonight, over WMAQ and NBC. Nat Shilkrot's orchestra will accompany.

GRID COACHES TO GIVE TALKS ON SPRING PROSPECTS

With the Golden Glove champions declared, and Chicago's two major league baseball teams training on the west coast, the W-G-N sports review this week will be featured by the appearance of Chicago's outstanding football mentors who are getting all set for their spring training sessions.

Tomorrow night, Jim Kelly, athletic director and coach of DePaul university's gridiron squ.d, will discuss his prospects. On Wednesday night Dick Hanley of Northwestern will be the guest of John Harrington, and the week will wind up on Friday with Marchmont Schwartz discussing the hopes of Clark Shaughnessy's University of Chicago eleven.

Baseball will be featured nightly when Harrington will read stories of happenings in the camps of the Chicago Cubs and White Sox, sent by Bob Elson, W-G-N's baseball announcer, who is on the west coast with the ball clubs.

'BILL DAVIDSON' GOES ON DESPITE HEART ATTACK

Ralph Juul, who plays the leading rôle of "Bill Davidson" in "Just Plain Bill" went through with his lines the other day after suffering a severe heart attack at the beginning of the show. John Harrington, the 220 pound, six feet three inch announcer, had to hold Juul in front of the microphone for the full 15 minutes of the show and at the close Juul fainted. Harrington and the rest of the cast were so broken up they could hardly go on with their parts. Juul may take a rest, as his heart has been bothering him for some time and he has suffered several attacks during his appearances in "Just Plain Bill."

ENSEMBLE DIRECTOR

EDWARD SMITH, W-G-N CARTOONIST, WILL BE TONY D'ORAZI SUBJECT

Edward Smith, W-G-N production man and announcer, will be the subject of Tony D'Orazi when the "Cartoonist of the Air" gives his next talk on simplified cartooning at 6 o'clock Saturday evening. D'Orazi has presented a great many notables and lately Chester Gould, the creator of Dick Tracy, popular TRIBUNE comic strip, was drawn by the W-G-N cartoonist.

ED SMITH.

The drawing of Smith shown here will aid young cartoonists in following D'Orazi's instructions. Prizes will be awarded for the best cartoons sent in by the young artists.

ILLINOIS GARDEN CLUBS SPONSOR 4 W-G-N TALKS

The Garden Club of Illinois is to present a series of talks over W-G-N on gardening and the preparation of the soil for planting. Each talk will be run 10 minutes. They will be heard on four succeeding Saturday afternoons at 2:30 o'clock, beginning March 17 when Mrs. D. M. Workman will speak on "Preparing the Garden." On March 24 Josephine L. Higley will have as her subject "Planting for Beauty." The third in the series will be heard March 31 when C. R. Cleveland talks about "Spraying of Shrubs and Plants for Insects." The talks will close on April 7 with William Ziegler Nourse telling about the flower show.

THE BUSINESS OF RELIGION IS MIDDAY THEME

"Religion's Business" is the general theme of the W-G-N midday service this week. The speakers on this program will be: Tomorrow, Jerome G. Kerwin, professor of political science, University of Chicago; Tuesday, the Rev. Herbert L. Willett, minister, Kenilworth Union church; Wednesday, Samuel A. Goldsmith, director of Jewish charities; Thursday, the Rev. John Thompson, minister, the Chicago Temple, Chicago; Friday, William Eckert, United Lutheran seminary, Maywood; Saturday, Dr. John L. Dickson, director midday service.

TWO SCIENTISTS WILL DISCUSS 'IS MARS INHABITED?'

Two Northwestern university educators, Dr. L. C. Turner, professor of zoölogy, and Dr. Oliver J. Lee, professor of astronomy at Dearborn observatory, will discuss the planet Mars, during Dr. Lee's weekly 15 minute lecture on W-G-N at 9 p. m. tomorrow. "Is Mars Inhabited?" will be the subject of the discussion and both men, noted in their respective fields, will give their views on the matter.

PAULIST CHOIR AND ORCHESTRA UNITE IN RECITAL

Sopranos, Countertenors to Be Soloists.

Another 45 minute Paulist choir recital will be held over W-G-N at 8:45 o'clock tonight. The vocal offerings of the choir will be interspersed with selections by the concert orchestra. The choir is directed by Father Eugene O'Malley and is an exclusive presentation of W-G-N.

William Jordan, Billy Callahan and George Lane will be the soloists and the soprano boys and countertenors will be heard in an Irish folk song, "A Celtic Lullaby."

The program:

"Ave Regina" ....Peter Phillips
"Quae Moerbaet" [Stabat Mater]..Pergolesi
William Jordan.
"Sanctus" ....Hasler
"Musette" ....Gebaert

Employés and pensioners of the Peoples Gas Light and Coke company, numbering 350 turned out to pay tribute to the Moroney family at Lincoln Turner hall recently. Members of the family together have spent more than 140 years in service to the concern. The occasion was the retirement of William Moroney, 4163 West 24th place. The family was among the first to settle in the Crawford district.

HORNER, KELLY, ROPER WILL BE HEARD ON W-G-N

They'll Address the Irish Fellowship Club.

When the Irish Fellowship club holds its annual dinner next Saturday evening, March 17, at the Palmer house a portion of the after dinner program will be broadcast by W-N-G beginning at 8 o'clock. Secretary of Commerce Daniel C. Roper, Gov. Horner and Mayor Kelly will be the speakers to be heard durin~ the broadcast period.

Another survivor and eye witness of one of Chicago's major tragedies the "Caisson Disaster of June 16, 1925," in which Capt. William Secora of the Chicago fire department and five workmen lost their lives, will be presented by Quin Ryan during the "Headlines of Oth r Days" at 9:35 tomorrow. The survivor is Fireman Cornelius Baldwin, who is at present stationed with Water Tower No. 3 company. Baldwin, at the risk of his life, endeavored to rescue his captain and the imprisoned men, and just managed to escape with his life. Baldwin was presented with the "Lambert Tree" heroism medal for his bravery.

A special St. Patrick's day program has been arranged by the Lawson Y. M. C. A. Glee club for their fifteen minute recital on W-G-N at 7:15 Saturday night. Included in the program will be the ever popular "Killarney," "The Galloway Piper," an Irish folk song, "The Kerry Dance" and a medley of favorite Irish tunes. The Glee club is directed by Frank Bennett and Cathryne Bennett is the accompanist.

The department of sociology of Loyola university is presenting another series of talks on social welfare over W-G-N and the second address will be heard next Wednesday at 4 p. m. when Dr. Arthur M. Murphy, head of the department, will lecture on "Control Through Public Opinion." That talk will be followed by four others which will be heard on succeeding Wednesdays.

The schedule—March 19, "Control Through Law," Prof. Aloys P. Hodapp; March 26, "Education as a Means of Social Control," Prof. William P. Scanlon; April 2, "Religion as a Means to Social Stability," Rev. Thomas A. Egan, S. J., senior dean, college of arts and sciences; April 9, "The Goal of Human Progress and the Standards of Measurement," Dr. Arthur M. Murphy.

Bess Flynn Is Beginning to Believe in the Occult

Bess Flynn, a very responsible mother in real life, with three almost grown up youngsters, is beginning to believe in the occult, or something like that. During one of the episodes in W-G-N's dramatic sketch "Painted Dreams," in which she plays the rôle of "Mother Moynihan," Mrs. Flynn had to be handed an imaginary tax bill from the hands of Alice Hill, who is cast as "Alice Burke" and just as that was going on the postman rang the door of the Flynn mansion in Des Plaines and handed the housekeeper the tax bill on the property. Mrs. Flynn is now going around hoping that no more tax bills make their appearance in the show.

Mark Love Will Launch 'Songs for Men,' New Series

Mark Love, W-G-N's bass soloist, will launch a new quarter hour series to be known as "Songs for Men" at 9:15 o'clock tomorrow night. The program will be a weekly feature and the orchestra will be heard with Love. Popular songs, old time favorites and hits from musical shows with a masculine appeal will be sung by the basso. Tomorrow night two numbers from Sigmund Rhomberg's show "The Desert Song," "One Alone" and the "Desert Song" will be offered.

RETURNS FROM VACATION

ELIZABETH HINES.

Elizabeth Hines, whose wide knowledge of motion picture stars, their habits and hobbies, has provided much entertainment on the W-G-N program "Movie Personalities," the feature she shares with Francis X. Bushman at 10 o'clock weekday mornings, is back again on the airlines after an extended vacation in Florida. On Saturday, March 17, Miss Hines will interview Virginia Emmons, who appeared in the "Blonde Venus"; "The Sign of the Cross," and other pictures.

BERENICE TAYLOR TO BE HEARD AT 4 O'CLOCK TODAY

Berenice Taylor, W-G-N's prima donna, will be heard in her regular Sunday afternoon recital with the concert orchestra, directed by Adolphe Dumont at 4 o'clock. Two numbers familiar to radio audiences will be sung by Miss Taylor. Her first will be the ever popular "Kiss Me Again" from "Mlle. Modiste" and Brahms' "Craddle Song" has been selected as her second number. The orchestra will also play a composition by Brahms, his "Valse Suite," Rossini's "Barber of Seville"; the "Fantasie Impromptu" by Chopin, and Saint-Saëns' "March Heroique" will be other numbers offered by the orchestra.

SIBELIUS' WORK TO BE FEATURED BY ORCHESTRA

Joseph Vito Again Will Be Soloist.

Symphonic compositions of famous masters will be played on the Sunday concert hour at 6:15 p. m. tonight by the W-G-N Concert orchestra, directed by Adolphe Dumont. The work of the orchestra has attracted much attention among lovers of symphonic, grand opera, and the lighter type of classical music.

Jean Sibelius' "Finlandia," a symphonic poem, will be played as the featured and closing number on this concert. The overture to "La Forza del Destino," by Verdi, will usher in the 45 minutes of selected music. The "Finale" from the fourth symphony by Tschaikowsky and the "Grand Fantasie" from Richard Wagner's opera "Lohengrin" are other operatic airs which will be heard.

In a lighter vein the musicians will offer as a group the "Minute Waltz" by Chopin, the famous Polish-French composer, and the "Flight of the Bumble Bee," by Rimsky-Korsakov of the more modern music world. Joseph Vito, harp soloist with the W-G-N and Chicago Symphony orchestras, will offer as his part of the program, with special arrangements for harp, "Bouree," by Johann Bach, and "Au Printemps" (To Spring), by Charles François Gounod.

The program:

Overture to "La Forza del Destino"... Verdi
"Finale" from the Fourth Symphony.. .... Tschaikowsky
"Bouree"........ Johann Bach
Joseph Vito, harpist.
"Grande Fantasie" from "Lohengrin" .... Wagner
"Au Printemps" [To Spring]....... Gounod
"Flight of the Bumble Bee"........ Rimsky-Korsakov
"Finlandia" [Symphonic poem].... Sibelius

GET FAST COUGH RELIEF BY MOIST-THROAT METHOD!

—urge Doctors

Not an opiate, but the extract of a famous medicinal herb . . . stimulates flow of throat's natural moisture. Originated for severest coughs.

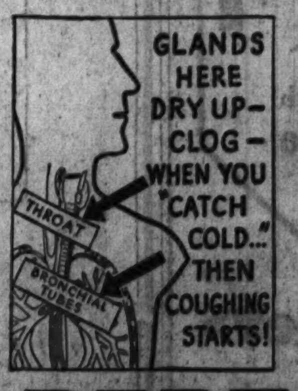
WHAT MAKES YOU COUGH? Irritation from mucus in your throat and bronchial tubes.

Nature provides thousands of tiny moisture glands to lubricate your throat—keep it moist, healthy. But a cold dries up the glands. Sticky mucus collects. Your throat feels very raw—"tickly." Then, cough, cough, cough!

Start throat glands to work!

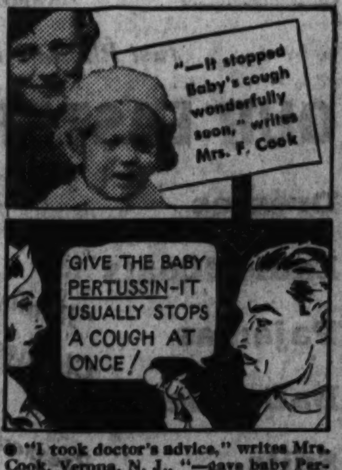
To get your throat glands into action again—giving out moisture—calls for Pertussin! Not a drug or narcotic—it's the extract of a medicinal herb known to doctors for more than 30 years for its amazing effect on those moisture glands.

It stimulates them—gently, quickly. Promptly starts them pouring their natural moisture into your throat, to soothe and relieve it. Germ-laden phlegm now loosens, is easily "raised"—cleared away.



Isn't it simple—sensible? And Pertussin tastes good, too children like it. Please get a bottle of Pertussin and start to relieve your cough, immediately!

Mr. Russell Johns, of Chillicothe, Ohio, says:
"I'm a singer. Two days before an audition I had a bad cough. A throat specialist advised Pertussin. And—in two days the cough was gone!"



● "I took doctor's advice," writes Mrs. Cook, Verona, N. J., "—gave baby Pertussin—and her cough soon stopped!"

DOCTORS SAY: "Pertussin always does the work"; "I prescribe it for all coughs"; "I give it to my own children." The first spoonful usually brings relief.

Do as your dentist does—
when he cleans your teeth

Powder Cleans and Whitens Teeth—as nothing else can
Outlasts Tooth Paste 2 to 1

THERE is nothing known that will clean and polish teeth so quickly and leave them so gleamingly white—as POWDER.

That is why your dentist, when cleaning your teeth, as you know—always uses powder.

As it is only the powder part of any dentifrice that cleans, a dentifrice that is ALL POWDER just naturally cleans best.

Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder is ALL POWDER—100% cleansing properties. This is more than twice the cleansing properties of tooth pastes.

● Dull Teeth Become White

Dentists everywhere recommend Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder, because—teeth simply cannot remain dull and film coated when it is used.

It cleans off all stains and tartar, and polishes the teeth in a harmless and practical way that leaves them sparkling—many shades whiter.

● No Grit—No Pumice

Free from all grit or pumice, Dr. Lyon's cannot possibly scratch, or injure the softest enamel, as years of constant use have shown.

Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder keeps your teeth REALLY CLEAN and clean teeth mean—firm, healthy gums, freedom from pyorrhea and the least possible tooth decay.

● Lasts Longer—Costs Less

Once you use Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder, you will never be satisfied to use anything else. It leaves your teeth feeling so much cleaner, your mouth so refreshed, and your breath so sweet and pure.

Dr. Lyon's is not only doubly efficient, but it costs only half as much to use. Even a small package lasts twice as long as a tube of tooth paste.

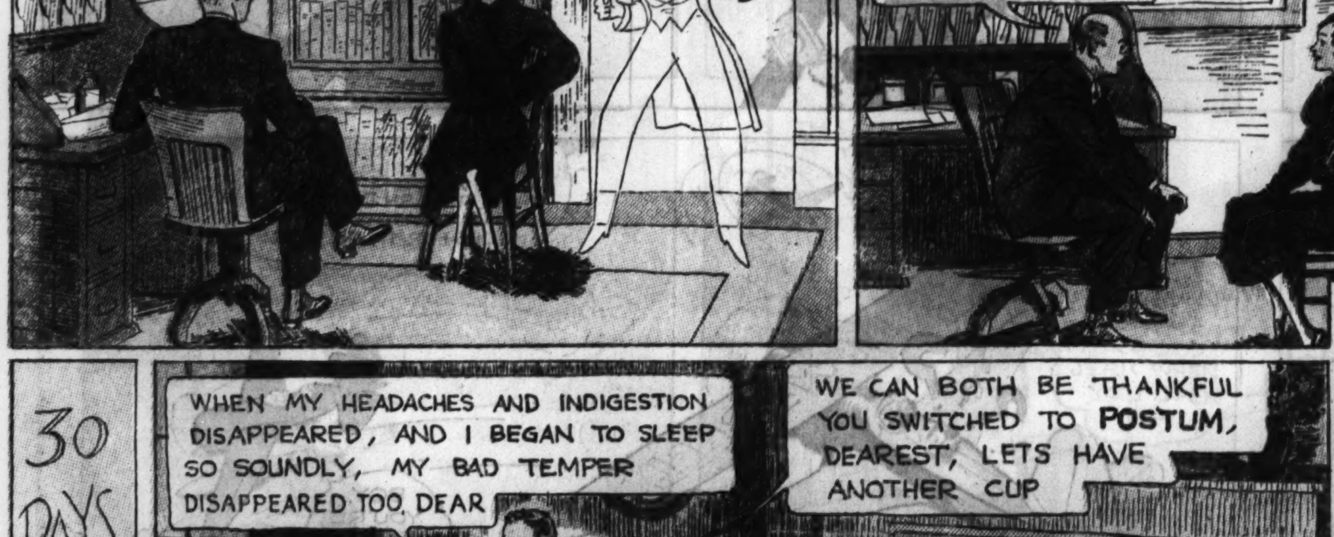
Mr. Coffee-Nerves takes it on the chin

AN ADVERTISEMENT of GENERAL FOODS



"Doctor, why did coffee make my wife so nervous and irritable?"

"It affects many people that way. The caffein in coffee is a drug that acts on their nerves, causes loss of sleep, headaches, indigestion and a resultant bad temper."

"Why did POSTUM work such a wonderful change in her?"

"There is no caffein in POSTUM—it is made from wholesome grains—so it allowed her system to free itself from the effects of this drug. Made with milk, POSTUM is a grand drink for your youngsters, too—of course, they should never be given coffee."

• • •

NO ONE knows just how many people there are who can't safely drink coffee. But everyone knows that there are many such people. Maybe you are one—without realizing it. It may mean that the caffein in coffee is working, night and day, to undermine your nervous system—and thereby to rob you of sleep, your digestion and your joy-of-living.

If you are suffering from nervousness, sleeplessness or indigestion, why don't you try Postum for 30 days? Or if you have any other reason to suspect that coffee is harming you, you'll find Postum a welcome change—a delicious drink—and a real help.

FREE: To start you off in your fight against coffee-nerves, let us send you your first week's supply of POSTUM—FREE! Simply fill in and mail the coupon below.

CAR FERRY
HERE COMES TH' FERRY
OH LOOK AT TH' FUNNY DUCKS.
IF YOU'D STOP A MINUTE I'D WALK ON
!?
GEE HE LOOKS BIG AS A PASSENGER PLANE. DON'T HE, UNCLE MORT?
'ATS A PELICAN
HE'S A CORMORANT.
LOOK, UNCLE MORT, A SUBMARINE DUCK. HE JUST POPPED UP FROM TH' BOTTOM OF TH' SEA. OH BOY!
OH BOY!
LOOK QUICK. THERE'S A SHARK!
AND LOOK, UNCLE MORT, A WHOLE STRING OF FISH TO PUT ALL AROUND TH' DINING ROOM.
NOW WHERE IS THAT FISHING TACKLE. QUICK.
!?
THERE'LL BE NO FISH IN MY DINING ROOM EXCEPT TH' ONE IN TH' GOLD FISH BOWL.

SMILIN' JACK
WHAT'S UP, BOYS?
PLENTY! A BLIMP'S BEEN LOST AND WE JUST GOT A TIP ON WHERE SHE CRACKED UP--
NONE OF THE OTHER NEWSREELS KNOW WHERE IT IS YET, JACK! WHAT A SCOOP FOR YOUR FIRST JOB!
OH, BOY! LET'S GO! OUR PLANE'S OVER HERE!
WELL, I'LL BE--THERE'S TH' ACE REEL PLANE--JUST WAITIN' FOR US TO TAKE OFF! WE'RE SUNK NOW--
HI, BOYS
THERE GOES OUR SCOOP! JUST LEAVE IT TO THAT ACE OUTFIT TO ALWAYS THROW A MONKEY-WRENCH IN THE PIE!
BUT WE CAN'T LET THEM BEAT US OUT OF THIS CHANCE!
NO! WELL, YOU DON'T KNOW THAT ACE GANG! THERE'S NOTHING THEY WOULDN'T DO TO BEAT US-- I'LL BET JACK CAN OUTSMART 'EM!
OH, YEAH! NOBODY CAN OUTSMART THOSE BABIES!--THEY KNOW WE GOT SOMETHIN' ON THE FIRE--WHEN WE TAKE OFF THEY'LL FOLLOW--THAT'S ALL THERE IS TO IT!
AW, THERE'S NOTHIN' ELSE TO DO BUT LET TH' CHISELERS IN ON IT!
WAIT! I'VE GOT IDEAS! ONE OF YOU BOYS COME WITH ME--I SEE A PAL OF MINE!
GOT THE IDEA? WILL YOU DO IT?
CERTAINLY, JACK! HOP IN CAMERAMAN!
WE'RE OFF AND SO IS THAT ACE BUNCH! THEY'RE RIGHT ON OUR TAIL, JACK!
THAT'S O.K. JUST WATCH WHAT WE DO WHEN MY PAL GETS ALONGSIDE OF US--
WHEN I GIVE HIM THE SIGNAL WE SPLIT! "ACE" CAN'T FOLLOW BUT ONE OF US!
--AND THE ONE HE FOLLOWS TAKES HIM FOR A SIGHTSEEING TOUR OF THE CITY ASH DUMPS WHILE THE OTHER PLANE GOES FOR TH' PICTURES!
BOY, YOU'RE SOME SMART BABY!

HOCKEY TONIGHT
NEW YORK RANGERS VS. VISITORS
SEE CAPTAIN "BILL" COOK
AND HIS 1933 WORLD CHAMPIONS SWING INTO ACTION
• • •
THEY MUST WIN TONIGHT'S GAME !
IT TAKES HEALTHY NERVES TO BE A STAR HOCKEY PLAYER
HOW ARE YOUR NERVES?

WHAT DO YOU THINK? MY FRIEND, JIMMY, THE STAR SPORTS WRITER, IS TAKING ME TO THE BIG HOCKEY MATCH TONIGHT.
ISN'T THAT NICE! YOU'LL GET TO SEE BILL COOK PLAY.
GEE, BUT I'M THRILLED, JIMMY. WHAT A CROWD. LOOK AT THAT LOVELY EVENING WRAP OVER THERE.
ARENA
YOU "AIN'T SEEN NOTHING YET," POLLY. WAIT UNTIL YOU SEE BILL COOK AND THE CHAMPIONS IN ACTION.
WATCH NO. 5. THAT'S HIM.
WHICH ONE IS BILL COOK?
THE WHISTLE BLOWS—THE GAME IS ON, WHILE 16,000 FANS GO WILD WITH EXCITEMENT AS THEY SENSE THE FIGHTING SPIRIT OF THIS CRUCIAL GAME.
IT'S A GOAL!
CLINK!
GOAL!
AFTER A FIERCE BATTLE ALL THE WAY FROM THE FIRST WHISTLE, BILL COOK, RECEIVING PERFECT SUPPORT FROM THE OTHER FORWARDS, SMACKED THE PUCK INTO THE NET FOR THE FIRST SCORE.
CRASH!
OH-OH- WHAT'S THIS? AFTER A TERRIFIC SCRAP IN FRONT OF THE RANGERS' GOAL THE VISITORS MANAGED TO POKE THE RUBBER INTO THE NET. SCORE 1-1 AND THE GAME GOES INTO OVERTIME.
MINUTES TO PLAY
OVERTIME AND ONLY A FEW MINUTES TO GO, WHILE THE SCORE IS TIED—WOW!
THEY'LL LOSE NOW, WON'T THEY?
THEY'VE STILL GOT BILL COOK.
MOVE OVER.
AW!
PENALTY BOX
THE VICIOUS PLAY PUT TWO OF THE OVER-ANXIOUS RANGERS IN THE PENALTY BOX. IT'S FOUR MEN AGAINST SIX NOW!
THE VISITORS' FORWARDS BRING THE PUCK DOWN THE ICE WITH BLINDING SPEED AND PERFECT TEAMWORK. IT'S ALL OVER NOW—
NO— LOOK!!!
BILL COOK
LOOK AT BILL COOK!
HE'S SKATING TO BREAK UP THAT SCORING PLAY.
CRASH!
WITH A SMASHING BODY-CHECK, BILL SMEARED THE SCORING SET-UP AND WAS OFF LIKE A STREAK WITH THE PUCK.
GO IT, BILL!
EVADING ONE PLAYER—HURDLING ANOTHER— BILL FLASHED DOWN THE RINK AS THOUSANDS CHEERED!
16,000 THROATS SCREAMED THEMSELVES SPEECHLESS AS BILL TORE ON HIS WAY.
LOOK AT THAT BOY GO!
HE FEINTED THE GOALIE TO THE RIGHT, CIRCLED BACK OF THE NET AND, AS HE SKATED OUT—
GOAL!
—BILL FLICKED THE PUCK INTO THE NET WITH A SUPERB BACKHAND SHOT TO WIN THE BIG GAME, 2-1.
BILL, HERE IS A GREAT ADMIRER OF YOURS.
WHAT A THRILLING GAME YOU PLAYED TONIGHT.
I'M GLAD YOU LIKED IT.
WILL YOU HAVE A CAMEL?
YES, MR. COOK, I LIKE CAMELS. THEY DON'T GET ON THE NERVES, DO THEY—
ON THE WAY HOME—
BILL COOK,
A HOCKEY PLAYER CAN'T AFFORD TO HAVE "NERVES" THE WAY I GUARD MY NERVES AND YET SMOKE ALL I WANT TO, IS TO SMOKE ONLY CAMELS. THEY HAVE A TASTE THAT SURE HITS THE SPOT. AND I FIND THAT CAMELS NEVER GET ON MY NERVES OR TIRE MY TASTE.
HOW ARE YOUR NERVES?

HOW ARE YOUR NERVES ?
CAMELS ARE MADE FROM FINER, MORE EXPENSIVE TOBACCOS THAN ANY OTHER POPULAR BRAND. PEOPLE DO CARE ABOUT MILDNESS, ABOUT GOOD TASTE, ABOUT THEIR NERVES. AND CAMELS NEVER GET ON YOUR NERVES, NEVER TIRE YOUR TASTE.

STREAKY
by GUS EDSON
Dear Diary IT'S BEEN A LONG TIME SINCE I'VE WRITTEN TO YOU, AND LOTS OF THINGS HAVE HAPPENED SINCE THEN. YOU WON'T BELIEVE IT, I KNOW, BUT STREAKY AND I HARDLY SPEAK. I'M SURE IT WAS ALL A MISUNDERSTANDING, BUT ANYWAY, HERE'S WHAT HAPPENED. I WAS ANGRY WITH STREAKY WHEN I SAW HIM TALKING TO SLICK, THE GAMBLER, AND HE WAS ANGRY WITH ME BECAUSE I DOUBTED HIS HONESTY. I NEVER DID, REALLY, BUT ALMOST. THEN, WHEN HE EXPOSED THE GAMBLER AND WON THE GAME, REGGIE SAID HE WAS SWELL HEADED AND WOULDN'T TALK TO ME — SO NOW I'M GOING TO MAKE HIM JEALOUS AND GO OUT WITH REGGIE — — WOULDN'T YOU, DIARY?
HELLO, JEANIE! WILL YOU GO TO THE BASKET-BALL GAME WITH ME?
WELL— NO, THANK YOU— I JUST PROMISED REGGIE I'D GO TO THE COUNTRY CLUB DANCE WITH HIM—DIDN'T, I REGGIE?

(AN ACTUAL EXPERIENCE FROM REAL LIFE)

Amazed That Any Soap Could Safely Work So Fast!

READ MRS. BOYD'S LETTER

Mrs. Milton Boyd
Kansas City, Mo.

"I wouldn't believe that a soap that soaked clothes clean in 15 minutes could be safe until I used Oxydol. It doesn't fade a thing . . . and it leaves my hands soft and white."

ANYONE can see from Mrs. Boyd's letter that this new laundry soap discovery brings to women a totally new idea of fast washing and white clothes.

Why don't YOU try it? No matter what soap is your present favorite, try this latest scientific discovery.

OXYDOL is made by the same people who make famous Ivory. It's the latest, improved laundry soap invention of Procter & Gamble experts. And does these things no other soap can do or has ever done.

Cuts washing time 25% to 40% in tub or machine, and thus saves many hours of labor.

Gets clothes 4 to 5 shades WHITER, by Tintometer test, than other soaps. Whiter in ONE washing than ANY other soap can get them in TWO to FOUR washings!

Yet it cannot fade or injure either color or fabric. Special elements are so blended in it as to protect colors against fading. Even cotton prints and children's dainty frocks are safe. And it's so kind to hands that you're amazed at its power to clean clothes!

It works without back-breaking rubbing. For it works by dissolving dirt. OXYDOL SOAKS dirt out in 15 minutes. So you never have to scrub and boil clothes clean.

Thick 3-inch Suds in Any Water

The new, improved OXYDOL will make thick "soft water suds" in any water, hard or soft. Without added "softener" or washing preparations. This is why:

It is specially fitted to water conditions in each district where it's sold.

Water in this district, for example, has been tested for "hardness" by expert chemists. And the OXYDOL you get here already contains just the right amount of softener to fit it.

You can see the results in the suds. OXYDOL multiplies 500 TIMES in suds! Which means at least twice as much "soap action" as from old-style soaps.

We knew it had to be better to win women from older ways. So we made it better, and now we urge you to try the new, improved OXYDOL in your own home. We promise you'll save hours of labor. You'll get clothes 4 to 5 shades whiter, without scrubbing or boiling.

You'll have no more fading colors; no "soap streaks" after ironing; no soap-bitten, red hands. And OXYDOL is economical. By actual test, a regular 25c package will do the work of 8 to 10 cakes of bar soap or 2 to 3 times as much flakes!

Accept FREE Trial

Send your name and address to Procter & Gamble, Dept. 2-3, Box 1801, Cincinnati, Ohio, and we'll see you get a regular 10c package (enough for 2 full washings) absolutely free. Or to avoid delay—get OXYDOL today from your own grocer.

7 KEYS TO BEAUTY CULTURE SUCCESS
To aid you in selecting a beauty school that will give you the finest instruction for your money, DeLEE'S educational director has prepared the following "yardstick." You will find it helpful in "measuring" the value and comparing the merits of all beauty schools.
1. Does the school give individual personal instruction to each student?
DeLEE'S ANSWER: Each DeLEE student is guaranteed individual personal instruction. DeLEE'S instruction staff consists of veteran, capable, practical beauty and hairdressing experts. They KNOW how to teach.
2. Is equipment 100% new and up-to-the-minute?
DeLEE'S ANS.: At DeLEE only the very latest type of equipment is used.
3. Will an internationally famous beauty culture and hairdressing expert instruct you in person?
DeLEE'S ANS.: Madame Louise, known throughout the world as a creator of coiffures for royalty and stage celebrities, heads DeLEE'S instruction staff and gives her personal attention to each student.
4. Are class rooms clean, spacious, light, colorful, and beautiful?
DeLEE'S ANS.: At DeLEE you will be delighted with the beautiful class rooms.
5. Is the school well established and fully accredited by the State of Illinois?
DeLEE'S ANS.: DeLEE is fully accredited by the State of Illinois and is recognized by the profession as a high class institution of learning. DeLEE is backed by more than $2,000,000 in assets. DeLEE is the only beauty school which has been permitted to incorporate in the State of Illinois as a "university."
6. Are tuition fees reasonable and do they cover complete, unlimited instruction?
DeLEE'S ANS.: Tuition at DeLEE is surprisingly reasonable and covers complete, unlimited instruction. DeLEE trains you to be a beauty expert. Payments can be arranged to suit your convenience.
7. Will I be trained for a good paying position in a high class shop?
DeLEE'S ANS.: At DeLEE you will. In fact, the FREE DeLEE employment service will help you to secure a pleasant, good paying position when you are graduated. Quality shops like to employ operators who have been trained under Madame Louise.
Do come in tomorrow and see this marvelous school. Talk with the DeLEE Dean, Miss Ruby Lorain Stevens. You'll enjoy your visit to DeLEE. If you can't come in person, write for interesting FREE book.

CAN YOU HANDLE A Real Job?

PAYING $5,000 TO $10,000 PER YEAR?

There are a great many who can, but only a few who do. Are you one who can and yet don't?

LEAVE OUT THE GUESS WORK.

The men constituting our Banking Service Department do not roam about at random.

Their efforts are guided by a plan that works.

Frequently, when a man leaves the rest of the crowd behind and achieves an outstanding success, many of his friends are apt to say, "Well, he's lucky, that's all."

But can it be an accident when man after man raises his pay—each one taking the same identical steps? No! It is the natural result to expect when any one learns how to TURN THEIR ABILITY into cash through generous comm.

If you aspire to earn real money we will show you the way.

1. How to become a leader in our line.
2. How to discover your money-making ability.
3. How to make every day pay a profit.
4. How to turn your ability into cash.

You can tell better than any one whether you are earning the money you want to earn, whether you are as happy and satisfied as you wish to be.

PLACE YOUR FEET ON THE ROAD TO SUCCESS

MEN! MONEY TALKS

A 1934 OPPORTUNITY.

Read every word of this, for it is Gospel Truth. It may mean your future happiness and the turning point in your life. R. C. made for the last four weeks' pay here in the Chicago territory $1,271.46. This man was a former railroad man. F. W. D., a former mechanic, drew for the last four weeks $916.07. H. S. J., a former salesman, made for the last four weeks $480.44. G. M. last four weeks made $416.60, a former automobile mechanic. A. B. made for the last four weeks $389.74. He was a former laborer. F. L., a former building contractor, made $371.54, and F. T. B., a former doctor, made $331.64 the last four weeks.

The above earnings are made possible through a most unique plan of a liberal comm. and bonus. I could fill this column with similar earnings in this territory, but space and time doesn't permit. I say to you without fear of contradiction we have the finest permanent money making opportunity for men in America. This is not a fly by night deal. We have the highest rating given to any company by R. G. Dun & Co., the Bradstreet Company. We invite you to meet these men and satisfy yourself beyond a question of doubt that these are facts.

Most men who read these kind of earnings in these times doubt the truth of it, but on investigation they are convinced as you will be. We have men from most all kinds of trades and professions making good with us. We have men who join us broke and make good. We have men who quit $3,000 to $6,000 a year jobs to join us for better opportunity. Get your new year's opportunity started early and get set to make some real money.

This is a good place for a good man, but he must be a worker. We don't ask you to put up or invest one cent. If you are chosen you will be carefully trained for the work by an experienced man. You should earn a living wage your first week in the business.

We have a brand new product, a home Hygiene Electrical equipment, that has appeal. The terms are 10c a day—sold to public buildings, hospitals, theaters, institutions, stores, and homes.

We will give men who have a car, between 25 and 50 years of age, the preference. Call Monday from 9 to 1 only, Room 1042 Mather Tower, 75 E. Wacker-dr.

OUT OF TOWN MEN.

Men in Evanston, apply Room 425 Evanston State Bank Building, 9 to 1.

Men in Gary, apply Room 406 Gary State Bank Building, 9 to 1.

MEN.

If you live on the South Side or South Side Suburbs, let me set you up in a profitable business of your own, backed up by our $100,000,000 company.

I have been in this territory exactly six months and have already set one hundred twenty-eight men up in business for themselves, between Cadillac, Mich., and Mattoon, Ill., and still have fifty-two opportunities left.

I am in control in this territory of a business unique in character, merchandising an electrical unit that has no competition, for which there is an ever-increasing demand.

If on a personal interview you can satisfy me that you are honest, reliable and trustworthy, and really have a desire to succeed, willing to study and are teachable, you may be the very man I am looking for.

Our business is very profitable. Many of our associates earning as much as $50.00 on percentage basis in a single day, and after they become experienced handling our business, receive a sizable monthly income not regulated by seasons, as ours is a year around business.

Selling experience not necessary, as if you are selected, you are thoroughly trained at no expense to you. Some of our most successful associates never sold anything before joining us.

We stand all the expenses of your business, such as rent, light, heat, telephone, help, etc., and, in addition to giving you merchandise on open account, carry all of your time payment paper.

You do not invest one cent with us. We finance everything.

Our business is depression-proof, as same has increased every month for the last four years, with 1933 our biggest year. We have thousands of satisfied customers in this territory and are considered one of the country's outstanding organizations. There are no strings connected with this offer and if you can meet the above requirements you will be granted a personal, confidential interview, which will quickly determine our mutual interests. Apply Monday between 11:00 and 2:00, Suite 430, Hyde Park National Bank Bldg., 1525 E. 53d-st. Ask for Geo. Buckley.

MEN.

PERMANENT, IMMEDIATE POSITIONS ARE AVAILABLE TO MEN WHO ARE CAPABLE OF LEARNING HOW TO SUCCESSFULLY REPRESENT THIS COMPANY. AN EXECUTIVE OF OUR ORGANIZATION WILL BE AVAILABLE MONDAY TO INTERVIEW REPUTABLE, INDUSTRIOUS MEN FOR PERMANENT POSITIONS. SUCH MEN SHOULD APPLY IN PERSON AT ONCE.

Men selected will have to take the time to learn and acquire skill and during this time will have to be satisfied to get along on nominal earnings of $145 to $200 per month if necessary. If you are adapted to this work, if you have the disposition to study and strive to acquire skill in what you do, and if you have a good reputation and the will to succeed, we will employ you and back you in work that is paying qualified men from $30 per week up.

As soon as the right kind of experience is learned and conscientiously applied, earnings increase. For example, H. Pratt, who was doing road work at $15 per week when he joined us, made $160 in the past six days. Mr. Pratt has been in this work now several months. H. Cook, a former insurance agent, has acquired the necessary knowledge and skill in our business to where he has been able to earn more than $40 in one day. This advertisement is being written Thursday and I am quoting from earnings of Wednesday of this same week. R. Shirk, a former automotive engineer, has acquired the necessary knowledge and skill necessary in our business and he yesterday also made more than $40. T. N. Lind, a former tool and die maker who has been in our organization over five years, has reached the point in this business where he is capable of earning more than $45 in one day, which he did yesterday. A former salesman, V. Rinard, has adapted himself to this work and has earned $75 in the last six days. H. Krause, a former painter and decorator, also knows how to do this business and yesterday he earned over $40. N Nyman, now with us over three years, has also earned over $75 for his past six days' work. R. Lathy, who has been a collector for over five years, has adapted himself to this business and he yesterday earned $47. H. A. Wische, a young man of sixty-nine years of age, earned yesterday over $46. J. Huesch, a former barber, has learned to do this work and yesterday he earned more than $20.

As time goes on and a man acquires the necessary knowledge and learns how to apply this knowledge properly, our unusual electrical unit which we merchandise is a fast selling commodity—when explained as taught brings definite results. C. A. Winter, who in now in this business well over a year, last week earned $71.40. W. Chapek, not quite as long in this business as Mr. Winter, earned last week $53.23. Yesterday many men, far too many to specify in this advertisement, made a splendid income.

Some of these incomes are more than equivalent to a full week's earnings in the former trades and occupations that these men were working in prior to becoming associated with this organization. M. G. Neff, a former stationary engineer, so far in the last five working days has earned close to $100. Before he came into this business he did not earn much more than that for a full month. Mr. Saporito, a former employe of a large manufacturing company, in the first three days of this week earned over $40, as much as he made in a full week in his previous trade. F. Ambrosio, a new man just started out from our office Wednesday afternoon, earned before the day was completed more than $20 for himself.

These cash earnings in commissions are quoted in order to interest men who are genuinely looking for an opportunity to connect themselves with a reputable company which offers a consistently increasing opportunity to earn money. This is steady work, and we require steady men. If you really would appreciate the opportunity this position offers, call for a personal interview between the hours of 1 and 5 o'clock p. m. at 9 S. Kedzie-av., Room 329, Monday.

Are You Tired of Merely "EXISTING?"

You Really "LIVE" in a "Hemingway Managed building" . . . . .

Something a Bit Different.
Five outside rooms? White woodwork? Tile bath? Electric refrigeration? Near the Lake-Marion district and yet in a residential neighborhood? You are asking a lot . . . but . . . we have it! Stop in and see the twelve apartment building at 1136 ONTARIO-ST. $55.

The Features Women Like.
2½-5 rooms. Quiet and pretty, yet only a step to the shops. So handy in cold, rainy weather. You'll enjoy, too, that sunny bay-front living rm., the new style dining rm. with its chair rail, bedrm. with 2 closets. 3 exposures.
441 S. KENILWORTH. $30-$45.

Sit by Your Fireside.
4-5 rms. An English type building, very homey, and one of Oak Park's greatest values. REAL wood burning fireplace, so cheery after day's work is done. Beaut. park view and near famous churches, "Y," clubs, and 3 kinds of trans. [One apt. furnished.]
815-21 LAKE-ST. $45-$55.

A Real Bargain.
Do you want something in an apartment home that has a residential, homelike atmosphere and yet is right in the midst of a business center and has transportation just outside the door? Well, here it is. Too bad the building is not larger! Only twelve families can enjoy all the advantages offered by the Harlem Apartments. Free electric refrigeration.
467 N. HARLEM-AV. 4 RMS., $40.

Try to Picture This.
Beautifully decorated apartments having cross ventilation and free electric refrigeration, an attractive building, the court of which faces an avenue of trees and well-kept lawns, a good location across from a playground and extremely handy to stores and transportation and you will see the Lake-Humphrey Manor. 3¼ rooms, $35; 4 rooms, $40.
123-129 N. HUMPHREY-AV.

A Miracle in Decorating.
"I like an apartment that is cozy, yet commodious; that has a homelike environment, yet is in a business area; that is well equipped, yet is moderately priced. I like a screened-in porch or a sun parlor, elec. refr.; attractive decorating. Do you? . . . Then see the Lillian Apts." 4 and 5 rooms, $37.50-$47.50.
506 MADISON.

What More Could One Desire
Modern building, high standard of service, well equipped apartments, G. E. refrigeration, showers, in-a-dor beds, inlaid linoleum, and yet moderate rents. Located but two blocks from a shopping district; bus, "L," and street car transportation are in the near neighborhood. In other words, here is the ideal apartment!
655 N. AUSTIN-BLVD., 4 RMS., $40.

This Building So Popular.
Here are a few of the reasons: It is one of the newer buildings in Oak Park; it has every advantage as far as transportation facilities and proximity to the Lake-Marion business district are concerned. . . . And the apartments themselves are extraordinary, having immense living rms. and dining rms., butler's pantries, tile baths, ultra-modern decorations.
195 N. MARION-ST., 5 RMS., $55-$70.

You'll Like the Sun Parlor
It makes the living room so bright and cheerful. The apartments in this building have a host of advantages including large, homelike rooms, fireplaces, G. E. refrigeration, bright, sunny kitchens, garages on the premises and are within a two minute walk of Columbus Park, an "L" station, a bus line and stores.
107 HARRISON-ST., 5 RMS., $40.

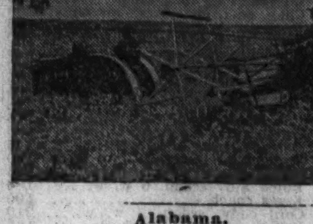
REAL ESTATE—FARM LANDS.



Alabama.

FARMERS IN BALDWIN COUNTY, ALABAMA in 1933 sold over two thousand carloads of potatoes, sweet potatoes, roasting ears and cucumbers; shipments began April twenty-sixth. Field crops also were good. Pork and beef both are produced at a low cost. Earliest spring lambs may be raised. Climate, soil, and a large variety of crops offer good opportunity for wide diversification. Healthy and pleasant region for year-round homes. Abundant fishing, boating and bathing; good hunting and other recreations. Largely settled by farmers from the north. Improved and unimproved land at attractive prices and terms. Write for free copy of "The Southland," which gives full information. E. J. Hoody, General Development Agent, Dept. B-92, L. & N. Railroad, Louisville, Ky.

Arizona.

BETTER OPPORTUNITIES AWAIT YOU IN the Salt River Valley, Arizona, where the winter days are days of sunshine. Fertile soil, irrigated by gravity from storage dams. Land specially adapted and proven for the growing of grapefruit, oranges, and lemons, dates, olives and figs, can be had moderately priced and on reasonable terms, in tracts of from five acres up. Ideal climate, good roads, schools and churches, with city comforts in country homes. Write for free Arizona folder. C. L. HOUSEHOLD'S
LOW RATE POLICY HAS SAVED
Chicago Borrowers
HUNDREDS
OF DOLLARS

For over 50 years we have given our customers a square deal. We were the first to reduce our charges below the legal maximum and we intend to continue lending money to worthy people at the lowest possible rate and to give them fair, courteous, businesslike treatment.

Here are the rates in both percentage and dollars and cents.

The charge for a Household Loan of $300 is 2½% per month on the unpaid balance throughout the life of the loan. Rate on loans less than $300 is 2½% a month on that part of a loan over $100 plus 3½% a month on the first $100. All charges figured on unpaid balances only.

Average Monthly Costs if Paid in Equal Monthly Installments.

Amount of Loan.	Monthly Rate.	Repaid in 3 mos.	Repaid in 12 mos.	Repaid in 20 mos.
160	3½-2½%	3.51	2.89	2.81
200	3½-2½%	4.23	3.50	3.40
300	2½%	5.00	4.06	3.94

Quick, private service. Only husband and wife sign. Up to 20 months to pay. Come in, phone or write.

FRANKLIN

DOES NOT SELL THE GREATEST number of used cars in Chicago but it DOES SELL THE GREATEST SATISFACTION in rebuilt, guaranteed cars taken in trade on new Franklins.

It is one thing to buy quantity—but it's quite a different thing to BUY Q-U-A-L-I-T-Y and GET IT.

Since 1902 Franklin has been building not only distinctive motor cars powered by the air-cooled motor, but has likewise been building a reputation for satisfying its customers.

Think it over! Before buying any car you will profit by seeing our display, which includes Buick, Ford, Lincoln, Marmon, Nash, Packard, Plymouth, and, of course, all model Franklins.

Prices start at $85. See us today.

There is rare charm and color in this French Provincial home with its walls of heavy stone, its old world tower, and its steep roofs.

Building House After Model of Old World Dwelling Not Costly Project

Jerome Cerny's Lake Forest Home in the French Manner Is a Challenge

By LOUISE BARGELT.

A MORE than fanciful relationship there is between house and owner. We may believe ourselves as individuals above the material objects around us, but as Theodore Dreiser has aptly expressed it:

"There is a subtle connection which makes houses reflect us quite as much as we reflect them. They lend dignity and form, each to the other, and what beauty or lack of it there is is shot back and forth from one to the other as a shuttle in a loom, weaving, weaving."

There is color, vigor, beauty in this French provincial home. Designed by Jerome Robert Cerny, architect of Lake Forest, Ill., its inspiration came from around the little town of Liseaux, France. Mr. Cerny has his living quarters and gallery on the third floor while friends occupy the lower floors.

At left: A glimpse from the wide dining room doors, through the hall, to the deep set, graceful entrance beyond.

Roof Riotously Colorful.

This distinctly appealing home which was built in 1931 is the sort of dwelling round which dreams are woven. Yet it is a home which owes its charm not to a prohibitive outlay of money for costly material and finishes but rather to skilful design and execution. A home many of us can hope to own some day when the shadows pass and we all emerge into the bright sunshine of recaptured prosperity!

One comes upon the house quite suddenly in Lake Forest as Deerpath road makes a wide sweep towards the lake. Its weathered walls are of rugged stone, its heavy slate and stone roof a riot of blues and greens, warm browns, red, and black. And then there is the tower—a touch of the old world and of bygone days.

Light Secured by Reflections.

The tower is a gem—and the door through which one enters it a rare bit of beauty with its jamb panels matched and the head of the door following a graceful tracery of the French tradition.

One's first impression of the hall is the striking parquetry floor done in brown and gold, the chalk white walls, the circular staircase which ascends at the left, and the rare, lovely lighting fixture of polished brass. This fixture has a corn leaf motif of decorations. Garlands of delicate leaves hang three feet long. No lights are exposed but a soft, shimmering illumination is secured by reflection from one leaf to another.

Beyond this hall to the front is the large living

Within the tower hall a circular staircase ascends gracefully to the floor above. There is a striking parquetry floor of gold and brown and the walls are chalk white.

[TRIBUNE Photos.]

The large living room fireplace is built on the arc of a circle and treated like the fluting in a column. Walls are of knotty spruce, floor of parquetry oak, after the floors at Fontainebleau.

Here we glimpse a picturesque tower behind the massive chimney and steep slate roof.

Tartness Is Main Requisite of the Extras with Fish

Proper Accompaniment of Tasty Sea Food Depends on Method of Preparation.

By MARY MEADE.

PLOWING down to the sea in ships, plus fish nets, plus harpoons, plus sea legs, and hard berled constitution, to harvest the Friday fry, is a far whoop from sounding into the corner market and choosing our beauty by the calm, cool look in his eye, or easing him forth with a can opener. But, thanks to the strides taken in recent years in the arts of refrigeration and transportation, that's the kind of fishing the up-to-date cook is doing these days, and getting, to boot, as good fish, and as tasty, as any that our friend the mariner has just whipped out of the deep.

But it's a poor, deluded fish who thinks that just because he arrives in the kitchen in the pink of condition he will go to the table that way, or supported by the correct troupe of extras. For nowhere is good cooking more important than in the realm of fishdom. And nothing can be more insulted than a fish offered up flanked by the wrong companions.

Booklets Are Full of Hints.

So, what's correct and desired by His Finniness?

As a starter, just a reminder that we still have copies of the recent Tribune booklet, "Delicious Fish Dinners," and a brand new announcement that the latest booklet out for your cookery library is called "What to Serve with Fish—Sauces, Stuffings, Garnishes." What's in it? Recipes for whatever foods we mention today but don't give the "how" of making. You may pick up the booklet at The Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower, for 3 cents. Address mail requests to Mary Meade, Chicago Tribune, enclosing 5 cents, stamps or coin.

The leading thought, to tack up in your mind's eye, is that fish calls for tartness. It may be in fruit puddings, tart salad, peppy sauce, or nippy relish. But it must be tart.

In the line of salads, ring in the light vegetable salads, with tartness as their background. Cabbage, cucumber, mixed vegetables, watercress, chickory, asparagus, tomato, and lettuce are all grand possibilities. Back them up with a sharp dressing.

Pickles and Relishes Are Correct.

The correct pickle picker suggests for fish, pickled beans, gherkins, beets, melons, onions, cucumbers. The relish lover demands green tomato relish, mustard pickle relish, red tomato relish.

Properly accompanied, fish goes to the table with a side dish of rye bread or of corn bread.

Officiating along side the fish on the platter are the garnishes. And here, lady, go the limit—but do it with wisdom! There may be radishes, plain or roses; lemons, sliced or halved, dashed with parsley or pimiento; oranges sliced fancily; watercress in glistening bunches; parsley, whole or minced upon butter, lemon, or tomato; egg, hard cooked and quartered, sliced or minced; cucumbers, sliced and pinked; pimiento in strips or tricky shapes; beets, wee ones; celery, curled or stuffed; olives, all kinds. All these,

● Seated figure: A two piece coral red suit with tricky lapels. ● Standing figure: A checked wool ensemble of loose topcoat and an extremely simple skirt

By Rhea Seeger.

IT really isn't going to be any kind of a spring for sedate or color blind shoppers, for the newest things in tweeds and street wools are rampant with color. And after a dark and dreary winter they do have a most heartening effect on every one. This is a year that will go down in fashion history as a year of almost eye blinding color . . . there isn't any color you may yearn for that you cannot find among the new collections.

Wood violet, that fascinating shade that is purple with a misty effect, will make thousands cheer . . . you will find suits and coats of this grand color and what you can do in the way of color contrast is something to gasp over. You can buy one of the smart simple two piece suits of this color, wood violet, snuggle it under the loose folds of a corn-gold topcoat and really make the boulevard turn as one person as you pass. Or you can be really daring and wear a wood violet topcoat over a pale green suit, or even go the contrast limit and wear it over the exactly right shade of rosy red and unquestionably start something in the way of fashion chatter.

Topcoats Come in Soft, Plain Colors or Smart Checks.

This rosy red coral color is something to reckon with . . . with snappy tailored suits and "toppers" of this warm rather exuberant color you can accomplish some fine sartorial results. The suits are perfect under deep tobacco brown long topcoats, or for that matter what could be better than a coral red suit under a leaf green coat or even a small checked brown and beige coat of the same loose smartness as either coat sketched.

The delectable smartness of a powder blue suit under brown has been achieved in other seasons, but you'll see it again and again because it is so flattering and so interesting. Contrary souls can wear the powder blue as the topcoat and use the warm brown for the suit accent.

Tailored Tucks Make Pockets Smart as Well as Useful.

All the colors are available . . . the collections are most complete from the slim, sleek little suits to the swagger topcoats of both plain and checked materials. This is the time to use your originality . . . shop while these eye-filling contrasts are yours for the making. You'll probably have the most successful ensembles of the season if you do your spring suit shopping early.

Four of the most interesting possibilities have been sketched . . . four ensembles that can be varied and used with other suits and coats. At the upper left, a flawlessly tailored two piece suit consisting of severely simple skirt and short jacket. The pockets are cleverly contrived with tailored tucks and folds. The figure at the upper right illustrates the checked topcoat to be worn as pattern as well as color contrast.

NAUTICAL

This maple lamp with the captain's wheel and the picture of the ship in full sail on the shade is ideal for the boy's room, or for the living room furnished in early American maple. Sold in a Chicago store.

A FRIEND IN NEED

Tiny Babies Urgently Need All Kinds of Clothes; Their Worried Mothers Will Be Thankful for Any Help You May Give.

By Sally Joy Brown.

THE babies are simply screaming for attention!

Which babies? The hundred and more in our files! Of course, said files don't hold that number of actual babies, but they do contain the tales of their woes and wants, and they just mustn't be ignored.

Many cases concern children as yet unborn, others infants of from one to twelve months, several of them handicapped by illegitimacy, but in every instance there is need of clothing.

Mrs. A. B. is expecting her first baby. The husband is at a civilian conservation camp. She has nether clothing nor a bed for the newcomer.

Mrs. B. B.'s husband works two days a week. They are living with relatives at present, and Mrs. B. has been unable to make any preparations for her baby, expected in a month or so.

Mrs. K. is the mother of eight children, and is need of clothing for an infant born recently.

Mrs. F. H. B. has a baby boy, nineteen months old, who needs clothing size two. Her husband earns only a very small salary.

S. T. requests clothing for the girl baby of a young unmarried mother. She intends to keep her baby, and needs clothing for it.

We just can't get enough baby clothing, so won't you see what you can find for these children?

Mrs. F. N. has a pair of men's ice skates, size 11, of which, to dispose. If we should have another blizzard they might come in handy. If interested, write to her in care of this department.

We received, recently, a request from a club on the north side organized to guide and instruct underprivileged boys. They are anxious to have a piano for their club rooms. Have you one youd' like to give to such an organization?

Mr. S., an elderly gentleman, who has been out of work for months, is very much in need of a pair of shoes, size 8, wide. He has no permanent address at present, and readers wishing to help him should mail footwear to this department.

"Will you please see if any of your readers can give my son a suit, size 15 or 16. He is to be confirmed and as we are receiving relief we are unable to purchase suitable clothing for him. We are most anxious to have him look presentable. Mrs. M. B."

Here's another call for furniture. Mrs. S., a case worker, writes as follows: "When this family, consisting of man and wife and six children, was referred to us, they were trying to exist in three small, dark rooms in a condemned, partially torn down building. Their furniture consisted of a stove, two beds, two chairs and a table, used as a table during the day and as a bed for three of the children at night. We have helped them move to a clean, sunny apartment, and to acquire a few of the necessities, but there are still innumerable needs to make the place a real home. Can you aid us in this matter, particularly with regard to securing carpets for them?"

"Dear Miss Brown: Will you please appeal to some of your readers for a baby bed or crib for Mrs. C.? Her husband deserted her and there are two small children dependent on her, the youngest only three months old. The baby has been sleeping in a basket, but has now outgrown it and is sharing a bed with the mother and older child. Mrs. C. attends an infant welfare station regularly, and has been advised that the baby should sleep alone. She will be most grateful for a bed. C. A. R."

T. K. is a man of seventy-two, very much in need of clothing size 40, shoes 9½, and socks 11½.

Today's Frocks Boast Clever, Neat Necklines

Perkily Styled, Small Hat Is Simply Made and Comes in Three Sizes.

By Clotilde.

THE lovely dress, made by the pattern No. 2969, will be smart and practical for all day wear. This dress has the new drop shoulder which is so well liked just now. The pointed lower part of the bodice at the front, with the perky little bow just below, and the bow at the neck, are smart details. The skirt keeps the straight line effect, and the full length, plain sleeves are always in good taste.

One of the quaint challis will make up well, and so will any of the gay new printed silk crêpes.

Jacket frocks are very popular and they certainly are smart and practical, too. It's an especially good style for school and college girls, and will be becoming to many women. A navy ribbed, heavy, sheer silk will be stunning, used with a red and white plaided taffeta for the bodice and tie collar. The pattern No. 2907, you'll find easy to use.

Slenderized Lines Flatter Matrons.

Pattern No. 2866, is for a dress with slenderizing lines which will be becoming to matrons. It is as easy as can be to make, and should give good service for every day wear. A navy blue silk crêpe with white embroidered organdie for the vest, collar and cuffs will be cool looking, besides being very pretty.

Have you ever tried making a hat? The pattern shown today is up to the minute in shape, and you will find the pattern easy to use.

A new buttoned neckline distinguishes the chic model made by pattern No. 3268, and the sleeves, cut in one with the bodice, give another clever detail. The sleeves are seamed from the neckline to the wrists on the outside, and have the usual underarm seams. You can easily see from the two views how the bodice is cut, and you won't have any trouble if you follow the chart directions carefully.

Measure Carefully Before Cutting Goods.

Before cutting the material, always measure the main parts, comparing them with some dress that is right. For instance, the underarm seam of the sleeve should be verified, for if the sleeves should turn out to be too short they would be spoiled. Also measure the skirt length.

The original dress was made of a brown, diagonal weave, and the belt was of brown suede. It's an ideal dress for town or country wear, and another suggestion is to use a rough silk crêpe of mandarin red, bronze green, or a wild blackberry shade for this slim line model.

Bind the buttonholes and, if you are doubtful about making them, have your tailor do the work. The neck of the dress can be bound or faced, carrying the finish out to the point and down the right front. Finish the sleeve edges the same as the neck, and finish the bottom of the skirt with a narrow hem.

Knitted Suit Is a Snug Guard Against Chill Spring Breezes

By Jean Macdonald.

A lightweight suit for early spring and summer is one required outfit for every woman's wardrobe. The short sleeved jacket suit illustrated today is a perfect example of a smart style and a simple knitting job. A suit of this type requires a minimum amount of yarn of any kind—linen, cotton, lightweight wool, or bouclé.

It may be severely tailored or buttons may be used to create a dressy effect. Knitted, crochet, or fabric blouses are worn with this ensemble, with lightweight lacy knitted blouses that may be quickly and easily made to the fore.

Appropriate spring colors besides the middle blues are the strong, clear reds, wine shades, brilliant orange, and golden browns. Rich purple and lavender and the spring greens are also popular. For the complementary blouse white, natural shades, and pastels are the nicest choice.

HOW TO ORDER.

If you wish instructions for crocheting the blouse illustrated today, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to Jean Macdonald, CHICAGO TRIBUNE, Chicago. Be sure to send name and address with your letters, also send the following measurements:

Mexican Men Disapprove of Male Garb for Women

THE idea of male garb for women has been a complete failure in Mexico. Girls who appear in public in the provincial cities wearing male clothes are chased home by mobs of men and women, who hurl verbal insults and sticks and stones.

Best Remedy for Cough Is Easily Mixed at Home

No Cooking! No Work! Real Saving!

You'll never know how quickly a stubborn cough can be conquered, until you try this famous recipe. It is used in more homes than any other cough remedy, because it gives more prompt, positive relief. It's no trouble at all to mix and costs but a trifle.

Into a pint bottle, pour 2½ ounces of Pinex; then add granulated sugar syrup to make a full pint. Syrup is easily made with 2 cups of sugar and one cup of water, stirred a few moments until dissolved. No cooking needed. This gives you four times as much cough medicine for your money, and it's a purer, better remedy. It never spoils, and tastes fine.

Instantly you feel its penetrating effect. It loosens the germ-laden phlegm, clears the air passages, and soothes and heals the inflamed membranes. This three-fold action explains why it brings such quick relief in severe coughs.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of Norway Pine, used for generations for its healing effect on throat membranes. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

Grades Are No Gauge of Child Development

Wise Parents Emphasize Talents Unrelated to Scholastic Successes.

By Gladys Huntington Bevans.

I THINK it is hard on children that so much of their accomplishment during the school years is gauged by marks—and by academic achievement in general for that matter. For how well they can read, write, and do arithmetic is considered of paramount importance.

This is as hard for them as is the fact that in the grownup world money is so much the measure of success. This money-gauge of achievement often makes the man who is not a money-maker discount his own kind of accomplishment or himself as a person. And the world at large is guilty of the same error.

As education goes today in most schools the three R's or other academic subjects are considered of prime importance and life is hard on the boy or girl who doesn't shine in school work—or who doesn't care a great deal for it. He or she gets poor marks or has to repeat a grade—which every child minds whether he says, "I don't car," or not. It is made unpleasant enough for him at home and in the classroom when he doesn't achieve success in his shool work. But until our whole system of education can be less narrow there is nothing to do about it, except——

Don't Add Nagging to Troubles School Brings.

That parents must learn to emphasize those abilities, and achievements, and personality developments of their boys and girls that have nothing to do with school.

Parents must form a set of values that allows them to take account of other things in their child than his accomplishment at school. This is extremely important for the good of the child—for his self-esteem, for his own set of values, and for his actual peace of mind. For if he isn't a success at school it is bad enough to have to spend five hours a day there. But if in addition he is talked to or nagged about his marks at home and, as in seventh and eighth grade and high school, has hours of homework—it gives him no relief. So parents must learn, as I said before, to give importance to the abilities and achievements and the personality of their boys and girls not in relation to school.

Bright Boy of 12 Lacks Academic Ambitions.

This is all general. So let me give you a concrete example of what I mean, taken from many letters on this subject:

"Dear Mrs. Bevans: Now that my boys are grown to be 12 and 10 years old, school problems have arisen. Not yet with the younger boy who is ace high in studies. It is the elder who seems to be in a rut and I'm a bit at sea as to how to snap him out of it.

"Yesterday I had a telephone call from a man who is the older boy's teacher. He praised various qualities such as manliness, honesty, willingness to do any mental job asked of him, politeness, and obedience, but he said he wants to help Hal to get hold of himself and find out the reason for his chief trouble—lack of interest.

Won't Excel for Sake of Appearing Clever.

"He makes no effort apparently in school work—he passes, gets by as it were, but it doesn't bother him. He seems to know he'll come through and that seems to be his attitude. When the younger boy, Gene, came home with A's and B's plus marks and 100 per cent and so forth, I have on different occasions remarked, 'Look here at Gene's card, Hal, can't you try to match it or pull up near it?' His answer with a smile is, 'O, ma, I couldn't take the credit from Gene of being a smart feller!' And then I asked him if he felt inferior to Gene, and that if he did he had better get that thought out of his mind because I was most certain if he tried he could tie Gene's marks and maybe do better.

"Hal, summing him up from my observations and his teachers, is a boy full of fortitude and ability but lacking in desire to do things he doesn't care for. They tell me not to worry about his deportment or resourcefulness but if we can stimulate interest that's the big item. He is a second class scout and loves scouting. He does not play on the streets after 6 o'clock evenings. His environment is good at home, clean, and he likes it.

Indifferent to School, Hal Loves Astronomy, Entomology.

"Yet, I'm worried about him. He told me last night he thinks he would like to be an inventor or a scientist and study the heavens which he is always looking at through his telescope or using his microscope to determine insects and so forth, yet his interest seems to lie in things without his grasp at this age. What can I do to interest him in the fundamentals and his current school work?

"Morally, mentally, and physically he lives up to his Scout oaths—his teachers and the neighbors tell me. I am certain there are no physical habits developing to handicap him and I am fairly certain of his chums. He likes to go to the wooded area near our home with his dog and his chum and another dog—roast potatoes over their fire and cook a bit of steak and eat it—this was his entire day last Saturday. He came home at 5:30 dirty and dead tired but O, so happy. with his dog.

"I would so much like to have your reaction for which I enclose a stamped, addressed envelope."

Now it may be that this lad could be stimulated or could be stirred to a great interest in his school work. But let us put that aside and assume that he couldn't—that he just isn't especially interested and is content to "get by." What then? Is there anything to worry about?

Let's see what we have:

A boy who, first of all, has fine character and resourcefulness, so much so that his teachers recognize the qualities.

A boy who loves outdoors and tries even in a city to create for himself a touch of camp life—who is in good standing as a Scout.

A boy who thinks of being an inventor or scientist and who has real enough leanings to use a telescope and microscope, whose tastes are not usual or ordinary.

A boy, I thould say, for anyone to be proud of, yet about whom his mother worries because his marks are low and he has little academic interest.

Concentrate on Child's Natural Aptitudes.

What, asks his mother, is my reaction?

If he were my boy I should first be proud of him. Then I should stop fretting about his school record. And also I should stop talking about it at home.

Besides, I should give him every sign of approval possible without overdoing it—that is, I should let him feel that all that he is is more important than the one thing he is not.

I should encourage his love for outdoors and in spring and summer and fall plan trips and excursions to the beaches and woods.

And last I should give him every opportunity to follow up his interests as a young naturalist and scientist—with books, and magazines, and lectures which are given for young people in two or three museums in the city in which he lives. These are not interests beyond his grasp—he is simply unusual and highly individual. His school work should be giving every side of him a chance so that he could shine with his own kind of light but it is not possible to achieve that.

This mother must learn to do something that all parents whose children find school rather a hurdle must do—she must learn to look at her child as a whole, as a person whose life is made up of many sides of which school is but one.

Many Great Men Had Mediocre Report Cards.

At the same time that I say these things I realize fully the part that lessons and marks play in a child's life because I am in touch with boys and girls, some of whom are failing, some succeeding, and some just scraping by with much strain and heartache and with too much home emphasis on it all. I know what lack of success at school means to a child. All the more reason then that his parents should see him as a whole and give full value to his fine qualities and provide opportunity for his other interests to develop. And they might bear in mind as a solace that many successful men have done mediocre work in school while many who have had high marks throughout school have never been heard of again.

Paris Pattern Introduces Practical Model for Sport

No. 5024—The Paris pattern for this frock is available in sizes 14 and 16 and in 36, 38, and 40 inches bust measure.

By Bettina Bedwell.

PARIS.—[Special.]—Duchess, actress, and lady in private life all have ordered a simple little frock, like this from pattern 5024, to start the spring in Paris. It is the most popular practical model that has come out so far and takes little material and no slavery to achieve for oneself.

You can wear this model for sports, for runabout in town, for the country, and for a house dress. Make it of silk, or cotton, or linen, and button up the front with bright contrasting or matching buttons. Let them be big, husky buttons, if you wish to have the dress look like the Rue de la Paix.

The original model of this pattern, that first came to light in a rose hung salon in the Rue de la Paix, was made of new leaf green, sheer wool, with galilith buttons, and the tie was made of matching green crêpe de chine. You may make your tie to match your buttons if they contrast with your frock, and if you want the bow to be very crisp make the tie of taffeta.

The sleeves may be three-quarter length if you leave off the fitted cuffs.

THIS INDIVIDUAL HAIRDRESS CHIMES IN WITH THE CURRENT FASHION

Constance Bennett's coiffure illustrates the charm of hairdressing details necessary for contemporary hat styles. Since chapeaux are going individualistic, tresses must follow suit. "Something new" in the way of arranging one's locks inevitably means, these pre-spring days, something to harmonize with the bonnet one wears. Hats are styled to reveal a great deal of the head and the coiffure cannot fail to do its part in the cause of fashion and beauty.

COIFFURES AND CHAPEAUX UNITE FOR THE SPRING

By Antoinette Donnelly.

INQUIRIES around smart hairdressing quarters reveal an even stronger alliance between coiffure and hat than heretofore. Hat and coiff have been "chumming" up since a few seasons back, but today they are on the closest terms, each being mated for the other. They're waving sides and designing side coiffure effects to glorify hats and at the same time expose a fascinating hairdress. Better think seriously about this coiffure-hat alliance before you lay down your money for your chapeau.

As hats are nothing if not new in style this season, it would seem that a new coiffure style had better be looked into. It's a good idea for a woman to completely change her coiffure every now and then, just for the good of her soul, to say nothing of her hair and scalp. Asked what was new in hairdressing, one of the famous hair stylists answered me, "Something new means that you and I can't go on appearing as usual. Something for the hat," he added, as an afterthought.

A rush of curls to the head and bangs followed the screen appearance of "Little Women," and it's still going strong. Coronet braids of one's own hair, or artificial, are standard "lovelies" in hair ornamentation. Great taste must now be used in tiara adornment, because its popularity received a terrific blow from cheap and tawdry substitutes. Flower ornaments are going pretty strong, as I write. Let's hope this charming style for young girls is not ridden quickly to death. For evening and dress-up wear you can tuck a jeweled ear comb or a dazzling little star, or some other little gewgaw, in your hair. Only err on the side of modesty in adornment no matter what the ornamentation. Even flowers may look too costume-partyish without a restraining hand.

Remodeling Queries

"Dear Mrs. Bargelt: What is the best season for painting a house?—J. S."

Answer: Early spring, midsummer and middle fall, if you really want the best times stipulated. However, painting is not seasonable, excepting that the likelihood of freezing weather should be eliminated and bad periods, such as rainy, foggy periods, should be avoided.

Dear Mrs. Bargelt: My husband and I are working all day now and have to leave the house empty. Is there any way of having our electric meter placed on the outside of the house so it can be ready without the service man coming inside? V. S.

Answer: Yes, you can easily have an outside meter installed. These should be covered with a protective case so that they will be guarded against weather.

Dear Mrs. Bargelt: We are considering an oil burner. Can I use the same boiler—which really is in good condition? We have a good heating contractor in our town. Would you take this matter up with him?—Mrs. T.

Answer: Yes. There are many good types of oil burners on the market. The contractor will know the type best suited to your particular boiler. If he specializes in the installation of radiator heating systems he will be in a position to advise you in this matter. The use of the wrong type of oil burner with certain kinds of boilers has caused grief on occasions not only for the home owner but for oil burner manufacturers and distributors, as well as for heating contractors.

Dear Mrs. Bargelt: We would like to paint our house this spring and wonder if we would save much on paint if we used the spray method. Is this really a good practice? Can a local painter do this? Mrs. F.

Answer: You would not save so much on the paint that you use, but you would save considerably on labor. Yes, this is a practical method. Paint sprayed on penetrates thoroughly and is evenly coated. I am sure you can secure a local painter familiar with the method, to do the work for you.

Dear Mrs. Bargelt: We are planning to remodel an old frame house and put in some new plumbing; a new bath and a new hot water heating system. We have been told that since our house is old the workmen might weaken the frame work by cutting into it. Is this so and what shall we do about it? Mrs. S.

Answer: It is possible of course that this could happen. For that reason you might have a competent carpenter inspect your framing system, check up on it and arrange for the piping. In this way you will guard against any possible danger.

Dear Mrs. Bargelt: We would like some genuine wood paneling in a room we are doing over. It's a colonial house. Can we install it in the form of a wainscot three or four feet high? Is white pine suitable? Some friends tell us the paneling must be the full height of the room.—J. D.

Answer: It is perfectly proper to have your paneling in the form of a wainscot. White pine is suitable. Its silky grain and rosy knots take a shellac and wax finish beautifully.

Dear Mrs. Bargelt: We have a very small dining room. Could we increase its appearance of size by scenic wallpaper? What colors would you suggest? We have a plate rail and heavy picture mouldings. Would you do away with them? Mrs. T.

Ans.: If you select your scenic wallpaper very carefully, with small figures—perhaps some scenic wallpaper with sky and sea or distant landscapes—you may achieve a feeling of a little added size. Don't have figures on a large scale or you will find yourself crowded out of the room. Keep the colors light. Dark or very strong colors will make a room seem smaller. Better do away with your plate rail and heavy molding under the circumstances.

Dear Mrs. Bargelt: How can I have my house bells run by my lighting current? I am tired of the trouble of batteries. Will they be expensive? H. D.

Ans.: Have an electrician put in a transformer. This is an inexpensive device. The amount of current used will be negligible, as the device operates only when a button is pressed.

Dear Mrs. Bargelt: How can we correct our dresser drawers so that they will open more easily? They stick, and so do our kitchen and pantry drawers.—A. V.

Answer: Try sandpapering and varnishing the edges. The varnish may help materially to keep from swelling and shrinking. You might also varnish or paint the inside of them.

STARRED

Little stars are the decoration used on the shade of this handsome, conservatively styled reading lamp. It is sure to bring beauty to any room in which it is used. Made and sold in Chicago.

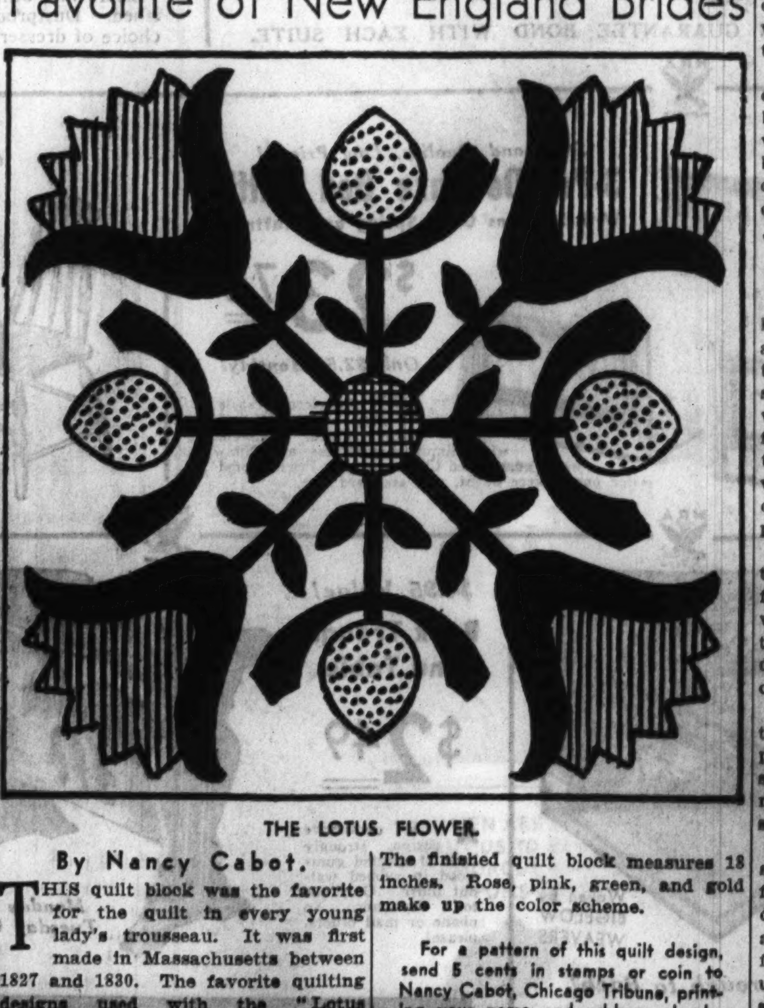
"Lotus Flower" Quilt Was Once Favorite of New England Brides



THE LOTUS FLOWER.

By Nancy Cabot.

THIS quilt block was the favorite for the quilt in every young lady's trousseau. It was first made in Massachusetts between 1827 and 1830. The favorite quilting designs used with the "Lotus Flower" were the "Clam Shell" and "Persian Pear" and the "Princess Feather" with festoons and wreaths.

The finished quilt block measures 18 inches. Rose, pink, green, and gold make up the color scheme.

For a pattern of this quilt design, send 5 cents in stamps or coin to Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, printing your name and address clearly. Or call at The Tribune Public Service offices. One South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower.

room with French doors opening on three sides. Its walls are paneled entirely in knotty spruce, its floors are of dark parquetry oak, after the floors at Fontainebleau. The fireplace is built on the arc of a circle and treated like the fluting in a column.

A dominating, arresting hearth picture, yet not an expensive one to achieve for the hearth itself is made up of broken, discarded roof tiles of a warm color which are laid up in a herringbone pattern. Around the opening is a mantel of pewter.

Wallpaper Design Copied from Old English Linen.

The dining room is delightfully outstanding. The design for the paper on its walls, an old rose and dahlia pattern on a henna background, was copied originally from pieces of hand-blocked linen of the Compton Wynot manor house in England. The pair of doors which lead into the dining room have bar locks and star escutcheons around the knobs.

There is a large kitchen, ultra modern in its abundant cupboard space, its working areas, its mechanical and automatic conveniences. And there are the small accessory rooms such as the breakfast room, the butler's pantry, and the powder room. This powder room has a floor of black and gold, chalk white walls and a round window with ship's head hardware.

On the second floor there are three bedrooms and baths. The master bedroom is a story and a half high, for instead of an attic, the room was carried up through the rafters.

Gallery Walls Done in Brilliant Color.

The third floor has been finished into sitting room, bedroom, and gallery for Mr. Cerny. In this way it is possible for two families to occupy the house comfortably. An idea with much appeal sometimes!

As one proceeds from the second floor onto the third floor via the circular stairway of the tower, one starts to say, "World's Fair colors," until one recalls that this house was completed a year before the Fair.

The gallery walls are a deep cobalt blue and are hung with lithographs and etchings made in Europe. The gallery as well as the whole apartment has a white dado with small French casement windows swinging out. Entrancing little window shelves there are in this gallery—an idea for many a den or library or retreat. Filtering through glass curtains are red, lavender, and blue lights penetrating the clear glass and graceful bottles which line the shelves.

Hunter's Green and Corn Color Blend in Bedroom.

There is a restful little bedroom, too, with a corn colored ceiling and deep, quiet, hunter's green walls. The bedspread and drapes are of corn colored taffeta. In one corner there is an interesting liquor cabinet made of some fine old pine shutters which were purloined from an old Germantown, Philadelphia grist mill.

The little sitting room has a low ceiling. Twin bookcases filled with books and the treasures of a collector are on each side of a slender, deep fireplace lined in old stone. Its face of old French tiles and mantle in lead were inexpensively built for some fifteen dollars in all!

Every bit of the furniture is of the eighteenth century, even to the barrel back chair and the old tavern table, while the sun streams through the back of the Chippendale chairs and casts a lacelike tracery over the rose colored carpet.

Winter Garden Brightens Bathroom.

Everything old, nothing new, but brushed and polished and burnished to a warm patina. In the little bathroom there is a diminutive winter garden smiling happily while the snow falls without. The bath floor is of black faience, the ceiling black lacquered, the walls warm chrome color. The walls on the inside of the bathtub are of aluminum foil, waterproof and rustproof.

In the basement there is a recreation room with natural wood burning fireplace and painted plastered walls with painted concrete floor. Also a two car attached garage and a through dog trot which can be closed with overhead doors in winter.

The house is thoroughly insulated throughout, and plastered with soundproof lath. The winter heating and summer cooling are accomplished by means of a warm air conditioning system.

It can be said relative to costs that such a home as this, built in the same fashion and with the old French spirit dominant throughout, can be erected at the present time at prices varying from $12,000 to $18,000—depending upon the number of rooms and their size.

THE STAMP COLLECTOR

By Richard McP. Cabeen

These stamps were issued for the Island of Rhodes in 1929 upon the occasion of the visit of the king and queen of Italy to the Aegean islands, and they were available for postal uses throughout the islands, although they are inscribed with the name Rodi (Rhodes). A brief description of Rhodes and these stamps will be found in an adjoining column.

TEN miles south of Cape Alypo, in Asia Minor, lies the island of Rhodes, which is perhaps first noticed in connection with the statue constructed there by Chares of Lindus.

In the Alexandrian period, when only seven structures were considered worthy of the name "wonders of the world," the Colossus at Rhodes ranked sixth in the list. This 105 foot statue of the sun god was razed by an earthquake in 224 B. C. and its fragments lay undisturbed for 832 years. Shortly after 656 A. D. the Saracens, having conquered Rhodes, sold the débris to a scrap metal dealer, who used 900 camels in carrying it away. About 1309, at the instigation of the pope, Rhodes was besieged and captured by the Knights Hopistallers of St. John of Jerusalem and strongly fortified.

The Medieval Period.

The knights left few relics of the classical period, but they builded so well that their walls and towers and moated castle constitute the major part of the modern city. The city was evacuated by the knights in 1522 after they had honorably capitulated to Sultan Suleiman I., who had sacrificed 90,000 men in a vain attempt to take it by siege.

The stamp designs in this issue show subjects connected with the medieval period and consist of a round stone tower used as a windmill, a vessel with the emblem of the order on its sail, a knight in armor, a knight praying on the eve of battle, and a tomb which shows on its carved stone lid the life size effigy of the buried knight.

Sanchez Cerro.

Despite a law that the stamps of Peru must not show a living Peruvian an order was given to Waterlow & Sons in 1932 for seven million 10 cent stamps bearing the likeness of President Luis M. Sanchez Cerro. They were placed on sale in December, 1932, and withdrawn three days later when the attention of the president was called to the law. One hundred thousand copies had been delivered to the postoffices at Lima and Callao, and 29,641 copies were sold in the three days. Those remaining were returned to the Casa Nacional de Moneda to be destroyed along with the unissued stamps.

Leopold III.

The recent accession to the Belgian throne of Crown Prince Leopold as King Leopold III. will mean new designs for a portion of the Belgian stamps. At present the portrait of the ruler is found only on the higher values, which are engraved, while the low value typographed stamps show allegorical designs. There is at present no reason to assume that this system will be changed. The portrait of the crown prince was used in 1931 for a semipostal stamp for the benefit of the exsoldiers' relief fund. This stamp was sold only at the Brussels Philatelic exhibition, from July 18 to 21, 1931. The illustration shows the most recent stamp portrait of Albert I.

Legalizes Issue.

President Sanchez Cerro was assassinated on April 30, 1933, and it has been anticipated that the issue, which failed to be burned, might be used for regular postage. Lima (Peru) papers report large quantities on sale at Buenos Aires, with collectors taking all that are offered. Both the director of the mint and the government agent in the postal administration report that the issue is intact in the mint and that there has been no speculation in them, and, further, that the influence of Sanchez Cerro has declined to such an extent since his death that there is little likelihood that the stamps will ever be put in service.

Sporting Section.

This Hungarian stamp of 1925 shows a swimmer in the act of diving into the water. This, of course, is the usual method of entering the water, either when swimming for pleasure or when taking off in a race. Diving with very little swimming—in fact, only such as is required to return to the springboard—has been developed to such an extent that it is one of the most artistic sports in the whole series, being approached in its exhibition of technical form only by the high jump and the pole vault.

New General Issue.

The forthcoming general issue of stamps includes all values from ½ cent to $5, and many suggestions have been made concerning the subjects to be shown thereon. It is rumored that all Presidents not living will be honored. Readers of this column, whether collectors or not, are requested to write a postal card to the editor stating their preferences in stamp designs. Some prefer portraits, some scenery, while others want historical subjects. The field is large; so what say you? There are no prizes—only glory.

Mother's Day Stamp.

Postmaster General Farley has announced that a special stamp will be issued on May 12 in connection with the annual observance of Mother's day, which this year falls on May 13. It is to be regretted that the date of issue comes so near the date to be celebrated; otherwise when each wandering boy writes his annual letter home it could be franked with the special stamp. With Mother's day on Sunday and no Sunday delivery of mail, it will not be possible to use this stamp for the purpose intended unless it can be placed on sale several days prior to May 13. It is hoped that a general distribution of stamps can be made rather than that a few cities be favored, for the mothers of Podunk are as important and as necessary as those of Gotham.

Fond du Lac Cachet.

In connection with its fifth annual banquet and exhibition, on March 17, the Fond du Lac Philatelic society will provide a cachet on all self-addressed, stamped, unstuffed, and unsealed 6¾ size covers sent to F. F. Schmidley, 205 East Rees street, Fond du Lac, Wis.

Club Notes.

The Hawthorne Stamp club, which is composed of collectors at the Western Electric company, will hold its annual exhibition at Noble & Peterson's store, 4712 West Cermak road, from March 12 to 16. The displays will be open to visitors between 12 noon and 1:30 p. m. and from 4:45 to 10 p. m. This exhibition is competitive, and awards will be made for the best entries. As an added incentive to an early visit the club has arranged to sell Byrd imperforate sheets. This year's exhibition is the central feature of a hobby show in which the Flower and Garden club, the Photographic club, the Radio club, and the Boot and Saddle club will participate, and at favorable intervals the Hawthorne Men's chorus will furnish entertainment to cheer those hobbyless persons dragged in by their friends.

Redesigning of Product Found to Increase Sale

Commercial Benefits Will Follow Growth of Indigenous American Art.

By Kathleen McLaughlin.

IN EVERYTHING from shoe laces to railway coaches, the processes of manufacture start with the designer. Every article that is purchasable from factories—as well as the container in which it is shipped, the counter over which it is sold, the home to which it is sent, and the street on which it is worn or used—was evolved by the plan of some designer.

Chicago, renowned the world over as the center of a mammoth packing business, has all the facilities to establish itself as the center for practical, industrial design, for which the demand, according to manufacturers, now far outstrips the available talent. Such a focal point, authorities agree, would give impetus to an already discernible movement toward an American art and an American culture divorced from the influences of the old world.

Chicago Can Lead in Development of Native Art.

Increased attractiveness of redesigned articles has been responsible for huge gains in sales, at the same or lower production costs. These include:

One make of radio, sales increase after redesigning, 700 per cent; one type of fountain pen, retailing at $7.50 instead of $5 as formerly, sales increase 100 per cent on improved model; an electric range, restyled with a saving of twenty-five per cent on tool costs, 600 per cent increase; one line of scales, 900 per cent increase on redesigned models, at a lowered factory cost; aluminum coffee pot, 40 per cent increase.

These figures admittedly represent outstanding successes in the designing venture. They were scored by men whose names represent the zenith of ability in that field. But they can be repeated over and over if artists can be produced who are capable of solving the problems these products originally represented.

By reason of its position as the city of A Century of Progress of 1933 and 1934, Chicago becomes a converging point for men of great talent, artists and inventors who participated in making the exposition that astonished the world last year and that will reopen in May. For this and diverse other reasons, it stands forth as ideal for the needed stimulant to native art.

New Design Increases Sale of Tray Tenfold.

One of the firmest believers in the efficacy of industrial art, and in Chicago as a potential leader in that realm, is Eugene Meyercord, head of the Vitralite company and other concerns. As a business man of long experience, in close touch with developments in industrial designing, he is emphatic in asserting that practical training should be provided here for students of ability working with the materials they will later be called upon to use.

"Here, for instance," he illustrates, "is a tray. It was intended to hold an electric toaster in the center, a cheese board and knife at one end, and at the other, six small glass dishes for appetizers. What happened with the tray in use was that nobody could carry it without the various things sliding every which way and if you happened to go through a swinging door everything was all over. I mean literally. So the company called in a practical designer. They had already sold thousands of trays by the way.

"He studied the problem and solved it easily. Instead of the six appetizer dishes there is now one long glass dish, divided into six compartments which doesn't slide because it is anchored at either side at the edge of the dish by a small flange. These are repeated at the opposite end of the tray, dividing the whole into three equal sections for the appetizers, the toaster, and the cheese board.

America Has Only Two Good Schools of Industrial Art.

"Thirty cents was saved on the cost of the glass dish. Four pounds was taken off the weight of the product, making it cheaper to ship and to wrap. The saving was then reinvested in better quality of materials and the result is that instead of 50,000, half a million trays have been sold."

This designer and various others now living and working in Chicago are not the products of American training but of industrial art schools abroad. Inquiry reveals that the reason that great American designers can be counted almost literally on the fingers of one hand is that practical training in industrial art work in the United States is available in only a few places and that even those few do not measure up to European rivals.

One educator who knows the topic thoroughly, having visited most of the industrial art institutions in this country and many abroad, names only two schools in America where the courses are sufficiently practical so that graduates go into a textile mill or factory, equipped to start a job with a thorough understanding of the machinery and the manufacturing problems. These are the Pennsylvania School of Industrial Art at Philadelphia and the Rhode Island School of Design at Providence.

Chicago Art Institute Holds Nucleus of a New One.

The former is supported by state and city appropriation and by endowment and has been in existence since 1876. The Rhode Island institution has a similar financing arrangement. It was founded in 1887.

"Chicago made a splendid start in the same direction some years ago," declared the educator, "when the Association of Arts and Industries was founded by a group of Illinois manufacturers who hoped to train students in design and then take them into their establishments to introduce newer and better forms in their products.

"Such a school was eventually established in the Chicago Art institute—has been operating there for three years. It has an endowment of $360,000, contributed by the late Julius Rosenwald, the late Mrs. Edith Rockefeller McCormick, the late Gustav Hottinger, Mrs. Charles Hickox, the Adolph Karpen foundation, the Johnson Furniture company of Grand Rapids, and the Rockefeller foundation, which gave $100,000 contingent on the raising of the balance in Chicago.

Most Local Commercial Artists Educated Abroad.

"At present students are carrying forward work in various lines, especially architectural modeling and printing. In my own opinion a good deal more could be done to make the courses practical—I mean in ceramics, textiles, furniture, and so forth, but there are members of the faculty who feel that the only thing needed to prove the complete effectiveness of the present system is time—since the school is only three years old and graduates haven't had a chance to make names for themselves.

"Manufacturers of Chicago and Illinois take their designing problems to various men now living and working here, many of whom are entirely European trained. There are, to mention only a few, Everett Worthington, Harry Harringer, Wolfgang Hoffmann, George Kech, Hagerstrom, Iannelli, Schweicher, and perhaps I should include Edgar Miller, because of his ability rather than because he has handled many such contracts."

Some of these men have formal training in the fine arts, other have a wealth of experience in actual experiment and work with materials to explain their capable handling of industrial subjects. Hoffmann is a product of a famous industrial art school in Vienna, where his father, Josef Hoffmann, is a member of the faculty. No books are used in the course, he states.

Graduates of Vienna School Go Directly Into Factories.

"When a student enters he is placed on trial for a month and tries his hand at everything—costume designing, furniture, metal work, or whatever he wishes," the Vienna man explains. "If he has talent and the faculty thinks it can be developed in any line he is accepted—if not he is told when the month is up that it is felt he would be wasting his time to remain.

"Free reign is given to the imagination and the line of work the student wishes to follow. He may work in whatever department he selects each day. If what he designs is impractical for manufacture he is shown the faulty features and it is suggested that perhaps he had better try another form. Through handling the metal and wood, the cloth or the leather, he learns to apply his own conceptions, and to create new forms."

Illinois Manufacturer Says Student Must Know Machines.

Norman Rice, associate dean of the Industrial Art school at the institute, is vigorous in defense of the practical nature of the curriculum, as is Prof. Emil Zettler, head of the school, himself a product of foreign industrial art institutions and a designer in various media.

"We are working here in textiles; we are working in ceramics, and giving our students the benefit of handling materials and machines they will be called upon to use professionally," declares Rice, himself a product of the school. "All we need for future growth and good work is the good will and support of Chicagoans, especially manufacturers, many of whom are working with us now. Any one who cares to inspect the work can discover that for himself. We are conceded by our competitors to be doing some of the best work of this kind in this country, which I thinks speaks for itself, especially as some of them have representatives here almost constantly."

One Illinois manufacturer, who refused to be quoted, declared that the only practical method of teaching design for industrial purposes is to teach it in a building radically different from the ordinary art school.

"It doesn't matter whether it's a factory building or a floor in a large office building, so long as the machinery they will have to get acquainted with sooner or later is set up there and in operation. You can't learn practical design by sketching on paper. Some formal training in art is necessary and good. Beyond that the main objective is practical experience which will mean value to their future employers when they are put on a pay roll and asked to restyle a flower pot that has ceased to sell; a vanity case that isn't showing proper returns; a sewing machine, a washing machine, a cookstove, or a common pin.

British Artists Have Revived British Commerce.

When England launched its famous "Buy British" campaign to stimulate the market for English products such as a revitalizing and remodeling of designs and qualities followed as shook the nation. Everywhere a better mousetrap could be made a better mousetrap was ordered. New machinery, new methods, new shapes and sizes and materials were introduced. The resultant improvement in British wares has had a tremendous reaction which English commerce has felt—most happily—in the region of its pocketbook.

The renaissance carried even into women's garb with a spirit and daring that sent gasps along the Rue de la Paix and reacted tremendously in this country where the new influence is marked in feminine attire of the current season. A cumulative impulse brought these garments to the fore in style shows smarter than Britain had ever before seen, to the advancement of English fashion and the benefit of the employment record.

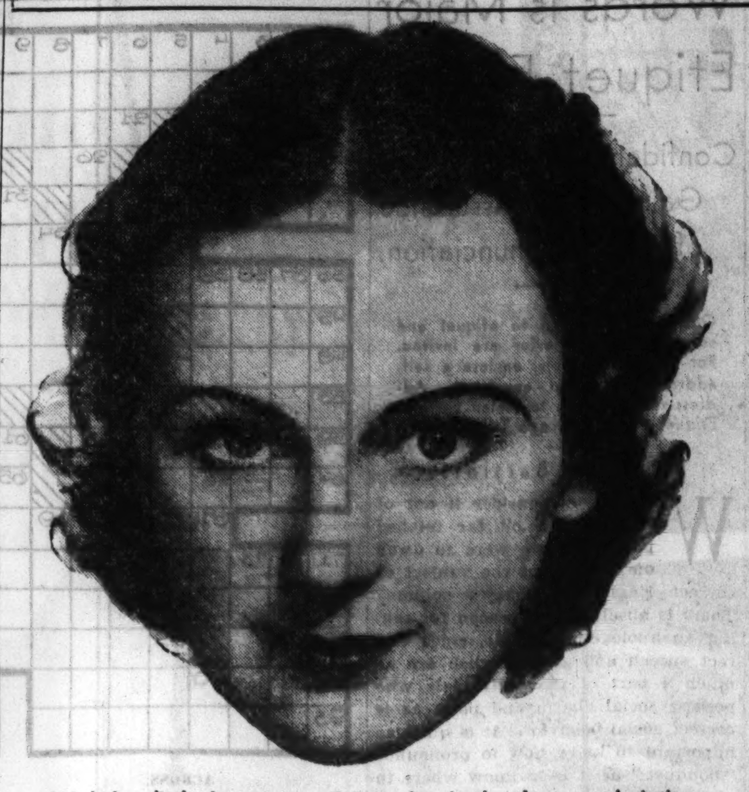
There is in this country, all signs indicate, a reaching forward and upward to a definitly American type of art, expressing itself in generalities currently but vividly. An American opera, "Merry Mount," introducing radical innovations in this form of culture, was hailed with tumultuous cheers in New York recently.

Chicagoans broke all the existing records in history for attendance at an art exhibit on that Sunday last summer marking the close of the World Fair art exhibit at the Art institute. A new form of music based on Negro spirituals, mountain songs, cowboy laments, or other strictly American evolutions is declared to be imminent.

Both prestige and profit await Chicago in industrial design if the opportunity is exercised.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

By Eleanor Nangle



With her little brown pencil Dorothy Jordan has rounded the arch of her brows, emphasizing the roundness of her face.

An interesting eyebrow accentuation that is not exotic. The line arches upward toward the outer corner of the eye.

An eyebrow line suited only to the girl who can and wants to look a bit pensive. The rather straight penciled line points slightly upward over the bridge of the nose.

JUST a few years ago we spent an hour or so in her hotel room with a French girl who had arrived that morning from Paris. We helped her unpack gorgeous gowns, filmy lingerie, exquisite slippers and what seemed to be hundreds of smart accessories. Then came her cosmetics, which filled two deep drawers of her trunk.

At least two-thirds of one tightly packed drawer was given over to eye beautifiers—cream, a lotion, pencils, two shades of mascara, at least eight shades of eye shadow, a slew of small brushes, and one of the tiny eyelash combs so many French women use.

We felt then that the day would never come when Chicago women would devote that much thought to eye beautification, but today we eat those unspoken words. Eyes are, at the moment, the most important beauty news; touring the town's beauty shops and cosmetic departments we see more evidence of it every day.

In one salon, for example, a girl who specializes in eye work does nothing else and in every alert beauty establishment we find similar revelations of women's interest in eye beautifying. Brows are kept trimmer than they ever were before and the eyes themselves are invariably dramatized, with darkened, well brushed lashes and judicious use of shadow.

It's just one of those beauty phases a woman can't afford to overlook. If you're wondering how you can give that familiar face of yours a telling bit of improvement hie yourself to a salon for an eyebrow shaping and to the cosmetic counters for the rest of the eye trimmings. You'll look and feel a different woman.

Houses May Have Needed Remodeling from Family Purse

BY paying for the remodeling of a house out of the income a family achieves all the comfort of improved conveniences, better equipment, fixtures, furnishings, and decorations. Some of the larger concerns which handle heating apparatus and plumbing fixtures, as well as those firms which supply construction material, sell on the budget or partial payment plan, so that in many instances one does not need to operate on a cash basis in remodeling and modernizing a home, but may handle the payments out of the annual salary, in payments proportionate to the income and to the work done.

Baltimore Girl Inventor Creates Beach Contrivance

MISS JEANNE COHEN, 18 years old, is said to be the youngest successful inventor in Baltimore, Md. She has just perfected a combination bathing bag and beach ball, which serves to carry bathing suits to the beach and then, instead of hanging in the locker, may be blown up and used in the water.

Miss Elsie Whittingham is the first woman city solicitor of Alliance, O. She is also the first Democrat to hold the post.

Miss Beida Morrow of Washington, D. C., is the only woman attorney appointed to the newly created veterans' division of the U. S. department of justice.

Paris Bridal Styles Cling to Tradition

Defy Modes Established Through the Centuries Only in Minor Details.

By Bettina Bedwell.

PARIS.—[Special.]—During the present Paris social season an unusually large number of brides have set sail on the sea of matrimony. The launching of bridal styles has been, therefore, exceptionally active. Some new and daring details embarked on the voyage to the altar.

Brides making their first voyage did so to the accompaniment of dazzling white satin or silk or velvet with veils and novel headdresses. Experienced sailors setting out on the sea of matrimony for the second or even the third time wore more practical and less poetic frocks done in the new smoky pastels. Their hats were either the small halo type or the new large hats that are slated for next summer wear.

Bridesmaids suffered a partial eclipse, the attendants at most fashionable weddings being chosen from the youngest set, ranging from six to ten years old. Tiny page boys replaced any feminine attendants at one of the most fashionable weddings.

Diadem of Orange Blossoms Favorite Anchor for Veil.

The majority of weddings saw bridal frocks with the traditional modest neckline and long sleeves. Trains of the regal, several yards in length, continued to be the rage among the fashionable brides here.

Bouquets carried by brides of the season were almost without exception of three kinds. The small floral muff, made of lilies of the valley or camelias, was a leader. The round bouquet of one of the two before mentioned flowers was a second choice, and many brides carried huge dripping bouquets of real lilies. A coronet made of the same flowers as those of the bouquet was worn by Mlle. Monica Ducharne. Her veil hung from this coronet.

At the wedding of Mlle. Germaine de Croisset, who married Comte Roger de Montebello, two little boys, Guy and Alain de Vogue, wearing black velvet suits with white collars, were the only attendants.

The lace veil worn by Mlle. Sablonnière Rochecouste at her marriage to Comte Louis de Simard de Pitray was draped like those worn in paintings by vestal virgins as shown in the upper left hand corner of our sketch, and with the high neckline of her white silk frock the effect was exquisite and different.

One Bride Chose White Satin with a Bluish Tinge.

One of the most beautiful brides of the season was Mlle. Elizabeth de Montalembert, who wore the frock shown at the extreme right for her marriage with Comte Jean d'Eudeville. The dress of white satin with a faint bluish tinge was made with the utmost simplicity, having a fitted bodice with a high, draped neckline, long fitted sleeves, and a bias cut skirt with an extremely long train. Her square cut train was of antique point lace and she wore it draped over her head with bows of the lace over the ears.

Black Velvet Suit with Sailor Collar Costume for a Page Boy.

Page boy suits of black velvet with sailor collars of white linen are shown with this bride, also the most popular bridal bouquet of white lilies arranged in a dripping cascade.

A perfect bridal frock is the Lelong model shown in the center. It is extremely practical for the bride who doesn't want to put her wedding dress away in cedar for future generations.

It is made of white dull silk crêpe and is cut on princess lines with a bertha around the shoulders that is draped slightly at the neckline and with long fitted sleeves. The train is attached to the circular cut skirt and may be removed, allowing the dress to be worn after the wedding. The tulle veil is long and is held around the head by a garland of camelias. The wedding muff is made of lilies of the valley.

Lanvin's Gown Accents Victorian Shoulder Line.

For the second wedding the Jeanne Lanvin frock shown at the extreme left is ideal. It is made of smoky turquoise blue dull finished satin and has Lanvin's new drooping leg o' mutton sleeves that give the Victorian shoulder line, which is important in spring fashions. The ankle length skirt is cut circular. Shown with this dress is a wide brimmed hat made of eyelet embroidery in the same shade of pastel blue and a scarf of matching material. The hat is placed toward the back of the head in the smartest way. Mainbocher makes sets like this for wear with formal frocks in the coming summer.

HISTORY REPEATS ITSELF IN WEDDING GOWNS

SKETCHED IN PARIS BY A TRIBUNE STAFF ARTIST.

● Upper circle at left: A lace veil draped after the manner of veils worn by vestal virgins. ● At left, below: A Lanvin frock that is ideal for the woman who ventures out on the sea of matrimony for a second time. The hat and scarf are of embroidery. ● Second from the left: A Lelong bride's dress made of dull crepe and carrying a detachable train and a draped bertha. The tulle veil is held by a garland of flowers and a muff of flowers replaces the usual bouquet. ● Second from the right toward foreground: Two velvet clad page boys took the place of bridesmaids at a recent fashionable wedding in Paris. ● Second from the right, background: Another recent bride wore this low cut satin dress instead of the usual high necked type. ● At right: Mlle. Elizabeth de Montalembert was clad in this satin frock for her marriage to Comte Jean d'Eudeville. The veil is of antique point lace with bows of lace over the ears. ● Upper circle at right: A crown of satin star flowers makes the bride's headdress illustrated here.

Correct Use of Words Is Major Etiquet Factor

Confidence in Oneself Is Gained by Assurance of Good Pronunciation.

Questions pertaining to etiquet and correct social behavior are invited. For a personal reply, enclose a self-addressed stamped envelope. Address mail requests to Helen Bartlett, Etiquet Editor, Chicago Tribune.

By Helen Bartlett.

WOULD you consider it out of place and a bit far fetched perhaps if we were to dwell on a phase of the subject of correct English in today's column? There is absolutely no reason for taking an apologetic attitude, since correct speech and good English are as much a part of the individuals who possess social charm and poise as is correct social behavior. It is quite as important to know how to pronounce "bouquet" as it is to know where to place the knife and fork when setting the table.

There are always standard English dictionaries to use for reference when you come upon a word with which you are unfamiliar. But little English handbooks and some etiquet books have printed a compilation of the words most commonly mispronounced. If you can locate such a list you will find your task much simplified, with all of the work, except the actual study of the words, done for you. I venture to say that you—perhaps I had better qualify that and say "many of you," for there might be a purist—will be amazed at the number of every day words which are being accented on the wrong syllable, or the "a's" pronounced short instead of long. It is so easy to fall into a careless little habit like that.

Check Up on Your Usual Pronunciation.

Check those words which you find you have been mispronouncing and carve a little niche in the forward part of your mental shelf in which to keep them. Practice using them. Then the next time you employ them you won't need to ponder and stutter and, after you have spoken, wonder if you should have said "*des*picable" instead of "des*pic*able." Just a little mental application is required on your part to learn which is right and wrong and so contribute to your sense of confidence in yourself and add to your social poise and grace. Such will be your reward.

The largest proportion of words that justly consider themselves maligned are the ones that are accented on the wrong syllable. Emphasis should be placed on the italicized syllable—ab*do*men, accli*mate*, *a*lias, *com*parable, *des*picable, ath*let*ic, *brig*and, *con*strue, *con*versant, *ex*quisite, *gon*dola, gri*mace*, *har*ass, *im*pious, in*qui*ry, *lam*entable, *ob*ligatory, *the*ater, va*ga*ry, ro*bust*.

Here Are Some Perpetual Sticklers.

Now, while you have the dictionary in your lap, look up such words as alma mater, apparatus, culinary, paying particular attention to the marking of the vowels. Here are some other words in which certain vowels are often mispronounced. Be sure to look them up. Don't take your own word for it: Bouquet, coupon, apricot, amenable, genuine, gratis, heinous, implacable, Italian, penalize, quay, route, status, sinecure, xylophone.

For a real surprise notice the phonetic spelling of archipelago, flaccid, oleomargarine, ad infinitum, debut, finis, charivari.

Following are words from which letters and sounds are often incorrectly omitted: Arctic, artistically, authoritatively, auxiliary, cruel, factory, facts, February, geometry, government, laboratory, library, pumpkin, recognize. In this last list there are no silent letters. Give them all a chance.

You have lots of time to read on Sunday—so read your dictionary.

New Lady of Klieg Lights May Go Far with Good Vehicle

HOLLYWOOD, Cal.—A star in the making has been introduced to the cinema public in the person of Rosemary Ames, a blonde with a deep, pleasant voice, who is Fox's latest find and who, if she gets good vehicles, should go far.

"I Believed in You" may seem to many a little too unreal, but Miss Ames is being acclaimed by preview auditors as a better than average discovery.

Glass Rods Spear Elusive Cherry, Olive

THE cherry or olive may so easily be taken out of your cocktail glass now that they are featuring cocktail spears. These spears of glass are about six inches long and at the end of each is a cock's head in a bright color. Each set consists of six spears inserted into the back of a large sized cock, which is perched on either a red or yellow stand.

Dusting Brushes for Walls Are Decoration Insurance

A LITTLE regular attention given to walls with a good dusting brush is excellent insurance against too frequent decorating bills. Brush upwards, always, with a light touch. A good vacuum cleaner usually has attachments for dusting walls. Of course, if you have washable walls, your problem is greatly simplified.

Interior Decorating Queries

Miss Winslow will be pleased to answer questions on home decoration and furnishings. For a personal reply enclose a stamped, self addressed envelope.

Query: "I am very fond of lacquer red. Can you tell me how I can use it in my living room with mahogany furniture? The color scheme is green, beige, and cream—T. K."

Answer: You can introduce lacquer red accents in your room. Select a small coffee or lamp table in this color. Choose a white pottery or porcelain lamp base and have a white shade for it bound in lacquer red. Get a pair of creamy white taffeta or sateen pillows and edge them in lacquer red moss edging. And, if you wish, have one or two suitable prints or etchings framed in a narrow red frame.

Query: "Can you suggest a color scheme for a bedroom for my little boy, aged 5? The room has two windows, northern exposure. The floor is covered with deep blue linoleum.—A. S."

Answer: Paint the walls creamy white enamel, or paper them with a washable wall paper in a pattern designed especially for a child's room in which some red and white appear. Use white glazed chintz for the window draperies and edge them in narrow bias bandings of red and white. Loop them back at window sill height with plain blue bands. Have one little chair covered in scarlet and white checked or plaid gingham and another in blue washable leather fabric. Use braided rag rugs in reds and white and blues and white on the floor. A bedspread of deep blue sail cloth, edged in white cotton rope will prove durable and pretty. And the color scheme of scarlet, white and blue is sure to please your little son.

Query: "I have a group of four windows in my living room. They are very close together. Is it necessary to use four pairs of draperies and should these hang to the sill or to the baseboard?—X. Y. Z."

Answer: Use glass curtains, a pair for each window, but only one pair of draperies. Have one drapery at each end window. And let the draperies hang in straight folds from the pole or rod to the floor. Draperies should never end at the baseboard. A valance of the drapery fabric may extend over all windows, if you wish.

Query: "Where can I go to see rooms correctly furnished in period as well as modern styles?—T. H."

Answer: At the Art institute of Chicago there is a most interesting series of period rooms on permanent display. Also temporary displays from time to time. The large Chicago furniture and department stores, as well, have many examples of beautifully furnished model rooms, changed from season to season and always open to the public.

PARIS SNAPSHOTS

The Paris style shows for spring and summer propose dresses with slightly lowered waistlines, skirts that look straight and that have plaits set in at intervals, or ruffled or plaited hems, blouses that are cut to lowish squares at the front of the neck or the wide bateau neckline, and sleeves which are full for the most part, and elbow length or long.

Spring wraps come in hip length, three-quarters, and long with huge revers that are folded back after first being brought out at right angles to the body, or crisp ruffled borders, or simple tailored collars. The smartest wraps fail to meet in front. Cape sleeves, loose sleeves, and big sleeves all come in with these spring coats.

Some of the novelties of the new shows are suits with wool skirts, taffeta or surah jackets, and frilly jaboted blouses at Maggy Rouff's, dresses with cape effects that look like an ensemble but are just a lone frock at Mainbocher's. Suits and ensembles of cotton tweed at Maggy Rouff and Creed. Dresses for both day and evening made of stiff printed silks with skeleton plaid, checkerboard, and skyrocket wavy stripes. Dresses and ensembles combining surah, taffeta, and faille silk, and cotton ratine, linen or pique or organdy. Lots of dresses have contrasting guimpes and sleeves. Madras is a pet cotton for blouses and dresses.

Waste Baskets Go in for Plaids as Decorative Motif

Pianos Made to Fit Small Living Rooms

"Making the Most of the Dinette," a booklet by Edith Weigle, tells how to select and arrange furniture so that this small room will appear larger and more attractive. It is 3 cents by mail, 2 cents at the Public Service Office, 1 South Dearborn. "What's Wrong with Your Rooms?" is 5 cents by mail, 3 cents at the Public Service Office.

By Edith Weigle.

WHEN houses were large and rooms spacious it was no problem at all to get the grand piano in the parlor. How seldom we hear that word today, for the parlor has gone the way of many other things. It is almost obsolete. We have living rooms nowadays and all too often they are too small for even an upright, let alone a grand piano.

Music loving people have turned to canned concerts, to the phonograph and the radio because they have no space in cramped quarters for a piano. Now, however, it will be possible to enjoy the full meature of your own musical efforts, for an eastern company, long established, is making a line of excellent spinet grand pianos designed especially for the small interior.

Although compact in size these instruments produce an unexpected volume, quality, and depth of tone made possible by distinctive constructional features. Since 1863 this firm has been manufacturing pianos and in this new type the old principle of the square piano has been developed so that the strings are placed in much the same way except that here they are crossed lengthwise, one set above the other, while before they extended back in the wide, bulky top section that made the piano so cumbersome.

Depth Less than Three Feet, Height Three.

This new spinet grand weighs only 425 pounds, and its measurements are as follows: Depth, 2 feet 10 inches; height, 3 feet 1 inch; width, 4 feet 11 inches. You can see by these figures that the instrument will easily find a corner for itself in the smallest apartment or cottage. It is only 59 inches long, and when placed against the wall stands out only 34 inches into the room.

Ebony Piano Complements a Modern Interior.

Besides being space savers these new spinet grands are beautiful pieces of furniture. They have been styled by architects and decorators for rooms furnished in the most popular periods. There is a charming maple model, simple and nicely proportioned, for the early American room. It is also obtainable in brown or red mahogany, or in walnut and ebony finish.

Then there is the late Jacobean, which is true to this early period of English furniture design and is particularly appropriate in the English type of home. It comes in walnut. For the Spanish house this company has still another handsome instrument with appropriate ornamentation in wrought metal.

The illustration today shows the Duncan Phyffe spinet grand, ideal in a room done in the colonial, federal, or eighteenth century English manner. Its measurements are the same as those given above, and it is made of beautiful crotch mahogany with satinwood inlays, a fine piece of furniture as well as an excellent musical instrument.

In this line of small pianos there is even a model for the living or music room of contemporary feeling. It is of macassar ebony with tiny bands of pewter inlay and is absolutely plain with square tapering legs, depending on the beauty of the wood for its effect.

Made in New York, these spinet grands are sold in Chicago and elsewhere throughout the country.

A SPINET GRAND IN THE DUNCAN PHYFFE MANNER

That a piano can also be a good looking piece of furniture is proved by this Duncan Phyffe spinet grand, designed especially for the small house or apartment.

Educator Cites Innate Values of Homemaking

Household Is Institution Forming Basis of All That's Worthy in Life

By Doris Blake.

"IF the home fails, everything fails!"

This is the summary made by Dr. Thurman B. Rice, professor of bacteriology and public health, Indiana University of Medicine.

Times without number we've been told that homemaking is the biggest and most important job in the world. Few would deny, for the good of the adult and for the good of children, there is no greater job than building a home and sustaining it on a high level. But largely we think of homemaking in terms of affection, love, security, and sentiment.

Home Is Largest Economic Factor.

Dr. Rice, writing in a current monthly, shows where the job's importance does not rest with the two, three or more persons included in the individual family group. Homemaking, he shows from the standpoint of big business, is the largest economic factor in the world today.

The investment in homes and furniture runs into a stupendous sum.

Nearly all investment is for the direct or indirect support of these homes.

Staple articles are those, Dr. Rice observes, that are used in the feeding, the clothing, and the shelter of the family.

Without the home for its labor supply, industry would collapse, we gather from the doctor's warning, and commerce would lose its market.

Marriage Is Not Individual Matter.

These facts should strike a blow at the arguments offered by heedless young couples who like to think that marriage is purely their individual concern.

It is not nor cannot be individual so long as the economic world depends upon it for sustenance.

And the economic factor is not the only one Dr. Rice stresses as lending importance to the job of homemaking. Educationally, the home is more influential than all the schools put together, he argues. A child is half educated before it starts to school, and spends more time at home than at school during the actual school years. From the health standpoint there is simply no argument about the home being the center of the entire health program.

Everything that is worth while, in fact, according to our authority, springs from this most basic of all institutions—culture, patriotism, habits of decency and respectability, industry, thrift.

If the home goes, everything goes.

Right Minded Young People Save Marriage.

But there is little danger of collapse so long as we have right minded young people in the world, young married people, that is, who realize the terrific importance of the job they have undertaken.

"It is they who make the world go round. Without them there would be no future," says Dr. Rice.

That there is great hope for the future is seen in a recent report come out of the University of Nebraska. Only two divorces resulted in 380 marriages among graduates of the home economics department, where homemaking is emphasized and thought about as a career, where divorce is not mentioned in classes, and where co-ed fashions are definitely changing. Ten years ago, it is noted in the report referred to, marriage was the one thing girls DID NOT prepare for in college. Now the girls are taking training with the definite idea of marriage in mind, even though the future husband may not be in sight. Undoubtedly this record, and the new attitude toward homemaking, is repeated in many of our university centers the country over.

Cites Corner Stones of Successful Wedlock.

Love, industry, coöperation, and health are offered by Dr. Rice as the corner stones of successful marriage. In the absence of any one of the four factors, failure is certain, Dr. Rice warns. Both must love. Both must work.

The idea of postponing marriage until the wife can be supported in idleness, a common complex of the modern day, is looked upon with derision by our authority.

"Unless the wife is willing to coöperate with the husband and balance the household budget by holding expenses with a tight rein, unless the husband is willing to forego a great many personal pleasures and privileges, unless each fits into the conditions as they arise, and does his and her part, disaster is just around the corner."

Is it advisable for the wife to work after marriage?

Up to a certain point Dr. Rice agrees that there could be no objection to the woman playing wage earner. It will mean extra hours of work for her, and less leisure, with the additional care of a home. But it is all for a good cause and, if this extra shoulder to the wheel is imperative, so well and good. But——

Independence May Be Marital Stumbling Block.

There is that factor of independence which the pay check offers that may, in the long run, prove a stumbling block to happiness, and even to financial success, as Dr. Rice sees it. "It is an interesting fact," says our authority, "that families, in which the wife continues to work for years after marriage rarely becomes wealthy."

The pattern, as it so often works out, is for the wife to continue on indefinitly, releasing her husband from the drive and initiative that makes for success. It's only human for him to take it easy and drift along with some one to share the responsibility. Also it is human for a wage earning wife to loathe giving up the weekly check.

The postponement of children, of course, is one of the unfortunate features of the prolonged business career after marriage. The standard of living for the couple increases yearly and they are little better off at the end of a period of years than in the beginning.

Even Hampers Are Endowed with Graces

Vanity Stand 30 In. High Has Automatic Lights and Cosmetic Drawer.

By Claire Winslow.

FOR a long time you've heard about harmonizing ensembles for the living room, dining room, and bedroom. Many women have wondered why there were not "matching" pieces for the bathroom as well. They had to shop around, hunting for this item and that one that would fit into their color scheme.

Renting agents thought so little of the bath that it was not even called a room. An apartment was "four rooms and bath," or "three rooms and bath." But no longer is it a forgotten nook. The stores can now completely equip it with the same excellent quality of merchandise, the same lovely color schemes, and brand new, smart accessories that characterize the rest of the house. Beauty is making it something more than the old fashioned room we used to know.

Stunning dressing tables, benches, or chairs, with clothes hampers and towel racks to match can now be had in such charming color combinations that they are just as suitable for the powder or dressing room as they are for the bath. An eastern company has added over thirty new, distinctive items of bathroom furnishings to its line and these may be bought in stores all over the country.

Pocket Edition Powder Table Complete in Every Gadget.

There is, for instance, a poudreuse or powder table that is ideal because it takes up so little room, yet is so efficient. It is 30 inches high, 27¼ inches wide and its depth is 16⅝ inches. When the center section of the top is opened by lifting a lid, lights on either side of the mirror in the under surface are automatically turned on. On either side of this compartment are others for holding extra bottles, jars, cleansing tissues, etc. When not in use the accompanying chair slips neatly under the table. Seven color combinations in a handsome new finish are available.

Where bathroom space is at a premium a specially designed little vanity stand will be a joy, for it is so colorful, smart, and practical. It looks like a night table, but the top lifts up and again there is a mirror with lights on either side and a compartment for cosmetics. A small bench can fit underneath it, out of the way, and when the mirror is put down you have a table. Its width is only 16⅝ inches; its height 30 inches; its depth 16 inches, and it is made of selected kiln dried hardwood and finished in seven different color combinations.

Even towel racks have been styled so that they make good looking bathroom accessories. There is one type planned especially for the bath that is near a colonial bedroom—it's called the colonial towel stand. Another is modern in its appearance, and still another, also contemporary, is designed for a guest room bath.

Hamper Tilts Open; Its Top Serves as Shelf.

Remember how homely most clothes hampers used to be? This season they have been entirely transformed. They have nice proportions, are made as carefully as furniture for the rest of the house, and come in powder blues, daffodil yellows, pure white with black trim, and other delectable colors. One white one has a shining black top and base and is decorated by a pair of crossed arrows and three stars. It's immensely good looking.

Another new type tilts open and its stationary top serves as a shelf, the hamper coming out from beneath it when needed. This container has a special interior contrasting color lining that is most effective. Still another fits neatly into a corner and has a rounding front. All are of selected, laminated wood and all come in seven color harmonies.

The picture today shows one of the larger dressing tables which has shelves on the right and a hamper compartment on the left with the poudreuse in the center. A mirror in the lid is flanked by lights, making the illumination perfect. We saw this number with a black finish, the handles being silver and the lining of the center section vermilion. It may also be had in green with black and peach, in two shades of blue with yellow, in orchid and peach, in peach and yellow or ivory, in white with blue, etc.

The towel rack matches the dressing table as does the little modern bench. All are sold in Chicago stores and elsewhere throughout the country.

"Selecting, Framing, and Hanging Pictures," giving many helpful suggestions and "Color Magic in Your Rooms," telling the amateur decorator how to use color to beautify the home, are for sale at the Tribune Public Service offices, One South Dearborn, and Tribune Tower, Chicago. The first is 3 cents by mail; the second, 5 cents.

THIS WEEK IN THE GARDEN

Monday, March 12.

WITH the close proximity of spring attention should be centered on gardening preparations. The hotbed ought to be started, since it offers an excellent medium in which to start young stock. The coldframes should be constructed to provide suitable quarters for hardening stock and the orders should be ready for proper attention. Order seeds that should be sown early.

When ordering trees insist on straight stems and avoid crooked trunks, a low head, and a poor root system. Insist on bushy three to four foot shrubs unless dwarf plants are to be used, and those should have a compact root system. Small stock may be ordered and are cheaper, but they require a longer time to develop. Plant these far apart for permanency.

Tuesday, March 13.

Clean canna bulbs or roots and start them for early planting. Simply cut the roots in pieces large enough for several growths, which may be separated and potted later on. Lay the roots on a layer of sand placed in a low box and cover them slightly with a layer of sphagnum moss. Water well and keep the moss damp. Within a short time the plants will take root and begin to grow.

Place food outdoors for the birds. Bore a hole in a cocoanut, empty the milk and fill in with the grease of bacon and suet. Tie the cocoanut in the crotch of a tree and it will not be long until the small birds find it.

Wednesday, March 14.

If the hotbed has been started be sure to watch it to prevent cold drafts from chilling the young seedlings. When ventilating always give air from the side opposite the wind. If snow covers the boards sweep it off. The sun's rays will soon warm the interior. Always water on a rising temperature or in the morning.

When house plants begin to show activity repotting may be undertaken. Large tubbed plants of oleander and similar plants need not be attended to until time to take them outdoors.

Thursday, March 15.

The indoor sowing of seeds may continue. Use a low pan or box with soil not too rich for seeds. Cover the soil with cheesecloth or similar material and water through it. Small seeds should be watered carefully to avoid washing the soil. Hard coated seeds such as the canna may be filed, soaked in water for twenty-four hours, and planted. Transplant seedlings while small into a second box. Set them far enough apart to grow in a compact manner. Give them all the light possible, but do not permit the sun to dry out the plants.

Friday, March 16.

Be sure to complete the plans for the garden. Make a plan for even a ten foot place and save time, money, and labor. Select only specimen trees for the lawn. They will cost a little more but they are worth it. Read books on gardening, especially those specializing in certain plants.

Saturday, March 17.

Order vegetable seeds and make all preparations for early sowing of tomato, cabbage, cauliflower, egg plant, and other sorts that require early planting.

Look over the stored roots, such as gladiolus corms, dahlias, four o'clock roots, and caladiums. Geraniums that are hanging up in the cellar should not be permitted to shrivel and die. If necessary take them down, cut out the shriveled stems and place them in semi-dry soil. They will soon become plump and continue in good condition until time for planting.

Do not be hasty about uncovering roses. There is yet time to mulch bulb beds to prevent heaving. Use any strawy litter, cornstalks, or other materials.

MARCH CLEANING

By Eleanor Jewett.

I think the old lady who sweeps the sky,
Riding her broomstick up so high,
Must call on the wind as she goes by
To come out and help her get things dry!

For down from the stars, back of the sun,
Out of blank space with a chuckle of fun
Like a giant possessed with a job begun,
The wind blows—and the drying of earth is done!

Good Heavy Grade of Aluminum Ware Gives Longer Duty

IF you are buying some new aluminum kitchen utensils this spring, buy a good grade of aluminum. Such utensils are now made with a new aluminum finish, in some cases, which renders them stain resisting. Furthermore, if you want to save a bit of fuel and also have a utensil which heats quickly, choose aluminum with a black bottom. For heavy Dutch ovens and waterless cooking pots an extremely heavy grade of aluminum is very durable.

Attractive and serviceable kitchen utensils are now seen in stainless steel enamel, chromium on cast iron, and also copper. There are new copper utensils with chromium lining and waffle irons, toasters, and various small pieces of equipment which are chromium plated.

As for the care of these utensils, never keep your gas too high or your electric element turned too high.

Aged Woman Has Given the Bible 49 Readings

Read the "Ads"
but don't ignore medical opinion
if you want to –relieve constipation gently and safely
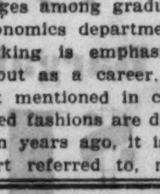
–take the exact dose suited to your need
–avoid danger of bowel strain



A doctor will tell you that the careless use of harsh laxatives will often do more harm than good.

Harsh laxatives often drain the system, weaken the bowel muscles, and even affect the liver and kidneys.

Can Constipation be safely relieved?

"Yes!" say medical men. "Yes!" say thousands who have followed this sensible medical advice: 1. Select a good liquid laxative. 2. Take the dose that you find suited to your system. 3. Gradually reduce the dose until bowels are moving regularly without assistance.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a prescriptional preparation containing senna, a natural vegetable laxative which relieves constipation gently and safely. Why not try it? Some pill or tablet may be more convenient to carry. But there is no "convenience" in any cathartic that's taken so frequently, you must carry it wherever you go!

What is the "Right" Laxative?

In buying any laxative, read the label. Not the claims, but the contents. If it contains doubtful drugs, don't take it. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin contains no mineral drugs. By using it, you avoid danger of strain.

How many dimes and quarters are spent on "popular" laxatives! How quickly they count up, if you frequently use habit-forming helps! A bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin would save you money—and bring you real relief.

Why Doctors give a liquid laxative

The habitual use of harsh salts, or powerful drugs in the highly concentrated form of pills or tablets is risky.

The properly prepared liquid laxative will bring a perfect movement without discomfort or injury. You need not take a "double dose" a day or two later.

The public can always get Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin at any drug store.

SHINING STARS OF THREE NEW FILMS

Sad Demise of Play Brings Analysis of a Producer's Woes

Failure of "Ragged Army" on Second Day Proves Anew No Drama Can Survive Blasts of N. Y. Critics.

By BURNS MANTLE.

NEW YORK.—(Special.)—Blasts from a blizzard and likewise from a crew of frozen hearted critics of the drama did for a comedy called "Ragged Army" last week. Produced on Monday, it closed on Tuesday, and a production cost of $25,000 was washed out to sea so far as Crosby Gaige, the producer, was concerned.

This is not an unusual case. Hardly novel enough to be classified as news. And yet it strikes me as being a particularly interesting confirmation of Brock Pemberton's charge of the week before that no play produced in New York these days can weather a blast from the press.

Need Funds for Three Weeks.

It further convinces me that no man should produce a play unless, in addition to his costs of production, he has enough capital to support it for three weeks at least, whatever the boxoffice reaction may be.

At the end of three weeks he has a chance of selling the picture rights for enough to cover his losses. Or half of them. Without a three week run under the dramatist's code he does not establish his right to any part of the picture money.

The experience of "Ragged Army" is illuminating in other ways. Let those of you who have relatives interested in becoming either actors or showmen take heed.

Revolutionaries Theme of Play.

The play was written by Beulah Marie Dix, who has had some thirty odd years' experience in the theater ("The Road to Yesterday" was hers) and Bertram Millhauser, who has had some four or five years' experience writing picture scripts in Hollywood.

Its theme was the provocative one of what constitutes a revolutionary. Weren't Washington's soldiers revolutionaries? Weren't Washington's armies ragtail and bobtail and made up of determined citizens shouting down and blowing up a government of Tories and Tory sympathizers? On whose side would the

By MAE TINEE.

GOOD MORNING!

Well, not THIS picture, alannas. What you saw was "The Song Is Ended," a German operetta from which "The Song You Gave Me" has been adapted. The original was screened at the Cinema theater about two years ago.

Bebe Daniels is certainly doing well for herself! She follows her nice work in "Counsellor-at-Law" with a captivating performance in this new release.

Song Enrages German Officer.

The rôle of Mitzi, popular Viennese actress, calls for beauty, humor and song—and all of these necessities Miss Daniels provides in good measure.

Opening scenes discover the heroine just returned from a triumphant American tour.

While singing a request song to admirers in a night club a young ex-officer who has sat glowering rises, calls for his check in stentorian tones—and departs abruptly. (Mitzi is to learn later that he has been annoyed because the song "makes monkeys of the military.")

Humiliated and enraged, the singer seeks revenge. She advertises for a secretary, and, lo, Karl is among the applicants. . . .

Thwarted Lovers Band Together.

The association and romance of the pretty lady and the handsome, talented and opinionated employé absorb your attention from there on.

The frothy story has been lightly handled. Victor Varconi qualifies excellently as Karl.

patriots of '76 array themselves if they were to come out of their graves today?

Would they be with the mill hands of New Jersey striking for decent living conditions? Or would they be with the swell folks on the hill who own the mills and organize patriotic pageants extoling the virtues of those noble descendants to whom they point with pride when they want to join the Sons or the Daughters of the Revolution?

Second Night's Receipts Were Seventeen Dollars.

A provocative theme, as I say, though not one likely to excite popular approval, as you may readily see. And around it a fair to middling play, written by experienced playwrights and handsomely produced and expertly cast by Mr. Gaige.

But first, as said, there came the blizzard. The blizzard blew in a snowstorm of cancelations for seats. And then came the reviews and they were ninety per cent blasting. The second night's receipts were down to something like seventeen dollars cash and Mr. Gaige closed the show.

Out of jobs next day after four weeks of rehearsing and with only their guaranteed salaries for two weeks in their pockets were such actors as Lloyd Nolan, Lee Baker, Emily Lowry, Irby Marshall, and Thomas Chalmers.

Well, such is the gamble that is known as show business. Reminding me of a Broadway story of recent mintage. When the two revues, "Let 'Em Eat Cake" and "As Thousands Cheer" were in rehearsal George Kaufman, who co-authored the first with Morrie Ryskind, and Irving Berlin, who wrote the second with Moss Hart, struck up a trade.

Kaufman and Berlin Trade Profits and Losses.

Kaufman assigned five per cent of his interest in "Let 'Em Eat Cake" to Berlin in exchange for five per cent of Berlin's part in "As Thousands Cheer." As it turned out "Let 'Em Cake" was a failure that cost $65,000 more than it made. Berlin was duly assessed his share of that loss. "As Thousands Cheer," however, is the smash hit of the season [they are already selling seats into May] and from his part of the profits in that show Kaufman is paying off his losses in his own failure.

We had another play this week that left suddenly. It was called "When in Rome" and undertook to reproduce a Tammany organization plot in terms of a contest between Catiline, the conspirator, and Cicero, the debater, along about 63 B. C.

The actors were ugly in togas and common in speech, which was the typical politician's west side jargon. The women, represented mostly by a madame who ran a chain of brothels and a vestal virgin who slipped away from the reservation when she fell in love with Catiline, were more comely but no more interesting.

Broadway Successes to Go to Milwaukee, Ann Arbor.

One or two performances and this, too, was gone. But such failures are not regrettable. There was no excuse for the production of "When in Rome." The quicker such mistakes are sent to the storehouse the better it is for the theater.

With the approach of spring that most promising development of current theatricals, the dramatic festival, is beginning to show life. A letter from the west tells me that Robert Henderson, who started with the annual festival at Ann Arbor and has since carried the idea into Boston and Cleveland, will this year have a five-week festival at the Pabst theater in Milwaukee, working in collaboration with Margaret Rice.

The Milwaukee season, including the production of several of the current Broadway successes, the lightly bawdy "She Loves Me Not" among them, I hear, and pretty certainly "The Pursuit of Happiness," will begin April 9 and continue until May 12. The Hendersons will then jump to Ann Arbor for the annual five week season beginning May 14 and continuing until June 16 at the Lydia Mendelssohn theater.

One of the interesting imported plays to be given in both Milwaukee and Ann Arbor will be "The Brontes," written by Alfred Sangster and played successfully in London.

This, so far as I know, will be the first of the Bronte plays to reach production in America though Katharine Cornell has been threatening to do another called "Wild December" for a long time. Miss Cornell, incidentally, is doing so well on her tour of virgin Cornell territory that she has decided to stay out of New York until next fall.

Festival Idea Superior to Stock Company Movement.

The dramatic festival idea can easily become the most important and significant development in the American theater since the rebirth of the resident stock company in the middle nineties. In fact, it is a more significant and important development than was the stock company because it makes use of practically all the resources of Broadway in place of using this theater capital merely as a glorified employment agency.

Henderson not only makes his selection of plays from among the prevailing Broadway successes but he takes the best of the actors with them, and this makes for timeliness and interest and guarantees a quality of performance to which western theater centers have not been treated.

There has been considerable hue and not a little cry aroused by the so-called alien actor bill which Representative Dickstein of New York is trying to put through the congress. Broadway, which is the English actor's second home, has been particularly excited and the Lambs club has come as near seething as it has any time since the subject was up last year. The alien actor problem has been an annual discussion for a long time.

Recent English Plays Argument Against Dickstein Bill.

It happens, too, that this year we have been particularly indebted to the English players. They have scored two hits out of three tries recently with Keith Winter's "The Shining Hour" and Dr. Hodge's "The Wind and the Rain." And made a third bid with Alice McIntosh's "Richard of Bordeaux."

The first two companies are almost exclusively English. But the "Bordeaux" company was largely recruited in this country of English actors who have been here long enough to establish their citizenship and intention to remain.

I checked over the casts of principals engaged in the twenty-six plays now running on Broadway and found that of 405 actors engaged only forty-nine are alien. I'll warrant there are more than forty-nine American actors in London at the moment.

The Dickstein bill, I understand, is not intended to interfere greatly with the exchange of American and English stage stars, but to put a curb rather on the growing practice of picture makers to favor the importation and exploitation of foreign screen players.

The fact that Samuel Goldwyn is proud to admit that he spent two or three hundred thousand dollars "building up" Anna Sten is what stirs the resentment of the nationalist actor.

Barring Alien Actors Won't Stimulate American Theater.

My picture friends tell me these worriers should control their resentment until they see Miss Sten. It is just possible that she represents two hundred thousand dollars that never would have been put into circulation otherwise.

The alien-actor bill would route the incoming actor through the labor department and stipulate that only those foreign artists of distinction and standing in their own countries should be granted the courtesy of a stopover privilege.

I am all for the protection of the American theater. But I seriously doubt that we can protect it best by taking from it the sources of its greatest inspiration. Which in art must be the inspiraton and competition of its finer contacts.

All that we have achieved in the theater to date stems directly from our determination to better our foreign models and our frequent success in doing so.

We still have much to learn. Let us not be silly about it. The most pathetic folk in the world are those who know so much, or think they know so much, they cannot learn anything more.

Play About Dumas.

Richard Bennett hopes to return to the stage this spring in Jules Eckert Goodman's "The Great Romancer." The play deals with Alexandre Dumas and Ada Isaac Menken.

"SUCCESS AT ANY PRICE"

Well, isn't Miss Colleen Moore looking happy this morning! These smiles and more from the same basket are on display in "Success at Any Price." At Palace.

Browning Lore

KATHARINE CORNELL recently presented "The Barretts of Wimpole Street" at Baylor university, Waco, Tex., where there is the largest Robert Browning collection in the world. It contains a portrait of Browning painted by his son, who told Dr. A. J. Armstrong, who began the collection in Waco and later gave it to the university, that he considered it the finest likeness of his father in existence. During the performance of the play in Waco Miss Cornell wore a chased gold brooch with three large topaz settings that Browning gave his wife on their first wedding anniversary.

Clock Worker Vital to "Ten Minute Alibi"

IN "Ten Minute Alibi," the mystery detective drama at the Selwyn, there is an unknown actor who is never seen and never heard, but whose accuracy and attention to the performance is absolutely essential to that performance, and without whom no performance could be given.

The unknown actor is Charles Henry, who does his acting on a kitchen chair on a raised platform directly behind the clock shown in the single setting of the play.

In front of Henry is a duplicate of that clock, with a long handle extending outward. It is by means of this handle that the clock is manipulated. This unseen actor, who isn't even mentioned in the program, is the works of that clock.

It is his tedious duty to follow every second of the play's program, to keep the clock going by hand manipulation so that it appears to be going naturally from the front, and to strike the necessary strokes upon the clock's chime. If, because of its importance to the plot of "Ten Minute Alibi," the clock were allowed to vary by so much as a full minute at any time during the play, the entire structure of the play would fall apart.

Mr. Henry's job is similar to one of the first "parts" ever played by Lowell Sherman, now a recognized star and director in Hollywood. Sherman manipulated the little machine that dropped blood on the outstretched hand of the sherif in Belasco's original production of "The Girl of the Golden West."

Henry comes to the stage from Philadelphia, where he started his career as a stock company actor. He had a minor rôle in "Grand Hotel," and he has kept busy in the theater ever since. His official rating in "Ten Minute Alibi" is assistant stage manager.

Chicago Actress.

Frances Kennedy II., prominent in "Elizabeth Sleeps Out," at the Studebaker, comes from a Chicago family. Her mother, Frances Kennedy, one of Chicago's musical comedy favorites twenty-five years ago, is the wife of Thomas J. Johnson, former fire attorney of Chicago. Her brother, Thomas Jr., was formerly an assistant state's attorney.

Hollywood Happenings

MILK is the beauty aid most used by show girls in New York, according to Dorothy Dell. "Milk inside and out. Drink it, wash your face with it morning and night" is the recipe she gives.

● Mae West is going Gay Nineties again in her new film. There's a gorgeous rose brocaded boudoir scene in it.

● Col. Tim McCoy is having a struggle to do right by his country, it seems. He is an officer on the active reserve list, and as such has a certain time yearly that he must spend on duty. He's tried to complete it four times in the last twelve months, each time getting called back to his studio for work. He's been called back this time to make additional thrill shots in a motorcycle race in his film, "Highway Patrol," at Columbia.

● You may not remember it, but Carole Lombard used to be leading lady in westerns with Tom Mix, Buck Jones, and other horse opera gentlemen.

● A location hunt is now under way for "Treasure Island," which will be filmed with Wallace Beery as Long John Silver and Jackie Cooper as the boy Jim. Tahiti, some of the islands of the Hawaiian group, the coast of Lower California, even Monterey bay and peninsula are being considered. The location is most important to the story.

● Gail Patrick says she had her picture taken just once in her life before she became a picture actress. That was at the age of 4. On her own she entered a department store in Birmingham, Ala., and asked for a hair ribbon, a pair of white shoes, and a picture. All of which she got as a surprise for her mother on the family charge account.

● Helen Mack came originally from Rock Island, Ill. She left her home town to take up a New York career as a child actress.

● Jack Oakie keeps up a continual line of patter for the amusement of his fellow workers, mainly beautiful girls, on the "Murder at the Vanities" set at Paramount. The other day, after Victor McLaglen had pushed him through a door (it was part of the action of the story) and Carl Brisson (former English boxing champion) had mauled him about a bit more, Oakie moaned that being pushed around for art was no fun. "Art, or no other guy, is a good enough reason for this," cracked Oakie.

● That "Murder at the Vanities" set has a sign, "No visitors on this set" and policemen and watchmen to keep people away, for it is the most sought after set in the studio. No work would get done if every one that asked to get on that set. Reason, why, of course, all the Earl Carroll cuties in long blond wigs and costumes of sea green chiffon, calculated to look like waves, with long skirts and sleeves scalloped in white to resemble sea foam—costumes extremely pretty, also the girls.

Mitchell Leisen, the director, is in such a state of twitters from all the beautiful girls all over the place—wearing mainly sea foam—that he drinks hot coffee continuously all day to steady his nerves. Even burned his arm badly enough pouring it out of a thermos bottle that he had to go to the first aid station to get it dressed. Ho hum!

● Incidentally, the Carroll beauties are certainly treated like queens. It is easy to understand their devotion to Carroll, for among many gestures for their comfort and pleasure he has left orders that all the Vanities girls he brought west with him must have fresh flowers daily on their lunch table in the restaurant. Then, the sign over the Vanities theater door, duplicated in the studio on the set: "Through this door pass the most beautiful women in the world." What a buildup for the ego!

● Helen Mack, petite brunette film star, was telling what she thought of Hollywood engagements while she glanced fondly at the big diamond solitaire she is wearing, gift of Charles Irwin, Fox film executive. Helen has ideas of her own.

Like many girls who have struggled hard for success, Helen isn't giving up her career at the first shot from Cupid.

"I won't be married for a long time," says Helen. "I want to continue my career. If I should get married and my career should not go well I would be inclined to blame it on my marriage. I don't think that would be a fair way to treat a man I love. So I am going to wait to get married till I have achieved a real success on the screen."

● "I wouldn't marry an actor if he was the last man on earth," says the sagacious young lady. (You'll notice her fiancé is an official with Fox Films.) At first Helen was emphatic in her denials of an engagement, claiming that she had "won the ring in a crap game," which is an original enough explanation for a diamond solitaire, even if not a romantic one.

When urged Miss Mack related that "when I get married it will be to a man who is enough older than I am to be sensible. He'll be a swell guy with a sense of humor, truthful, and not necessarily handsome—handsome men are seldom worth while as men." Seemingly the aforementioned Charles Irwin is "that not impossible he."

● Helen Mack first came to films when he talkies were busy importing young talented folk from Broadway, where as a young girl Miss Mack had already obtained some success. Fox brought her to Hollywood, then there was more stage work, and her present career has been with Radio and now with Paramount, where she is a contract player.

● Adolf Bolm, remembered in Chicago and New York for his great opera ballet work, directed an impressive ballet for the filming of "The Firebrand," with Constance Bennett and Frederick March at United Artists studios this week. The ballet appears as the entertainment at a huge banquet scene, which is done on a lavish scale, with gorgeously costumed guests to the number of a couple of hundred sitting down to a medieval Italian banquet with whole roast calves, lambs, pigs, and such viands, including a half lifesize statue of a man in gelatin, most lifelike and done in color. The ballet was done by girls in black satin and gold bead slave costumes and men as pheasants, with long pheasant feathers in their caps and huge bills on their faces.

● Bolm was brought to Hollywood especially for the production from San Francisco, where he recently completed a successful and artistically notable season directing ballets for the San Francisco Opera company.

His production of the famous "Coq d'Or," with settings by Remisoff, which had a huge success in San Francisco, may break into films if pending arrangements are completed. It is notable that the first production of "Coq d'Or" in America was done by Bolm for the Metropolitan Opera company.

MOST FAMOUS DOG ACTOR

This cocker spaniel, brown and white of color, is the most famous dog actor of theatrical annals. His name is Flush, and he figures importantly in Katharine Cornell's staging of "The Barretts of Wimpole Street." Flush, who is five years old, recently celebrated his 600th performance in this play. He has a son, Flush Jr., who served as his understudy until the old man got sore at him. [G. I. Boris (N. Y.) Photo.]

Movies Give Us Two New Versions of German Opera

Frederick Lloyd, Claude Hulbert, and Lester Andrews are amusing enough as Mitzi's "three musketeers"—gentlemen who would like to be her lovers but, learning that their ambitions can't be realized, band together and constitute a sort of perpetual escort, Greek chorus, and admiration board for the adored one. Minor rôles were neatly cast.

Several delightful song numbers lend verve to the plot, which unrolls effortlessly and with considerable sparkle.

All in all, this British production is a credit to its makers.

BitsaBOUTem.

WILL ROGERS' next Fox production will be "Merry Andrew," from a play by Lewis Beach in which Walter Connolly had the leading rôle on Broadway. . . . Monogram Pictures are SCOUTING AROUND England for an actress to play the title rôle in "Jane Eyre." Nobody in Hollywood seems to suit 'em.

MRS. AUGUST BELMONT (Eleanor Robson, once so popular on the stage) has accepted the active presidency of the Motion Picture Research council. This organization has completed a four year study of the movies and is now embarked on a program of action to help give the public better motion pictures.

THOSE STARS of other days still reappear from time to time. KING BAGGOT, one-time star and director, plays bit rôles now. . . . FLORENCE TURNER, once known as the "Vitagraph Girl," has a bit in "A Modern Hero" with Richard Barthelmess. . . . GLADYS HULETTE plays an extra rôle in "Rhythm in the Air," ultra-modern comedy featuring DICK POWELL and PAT O'BRIEN. . . . FLORENCE LAWRENCE was discovered as an extra on the set where another newcomer to films, HAL LEROY, was being featured in "Harold Teen." Miss Lawrence was a star for Lubin in Philadelphia many years ago. . . . PAUL PANZER does an occasional bit for Warner Brothers. . . . CLARA HORTON, once a child star, is a regular stand-in for stars on the same lot. . . . BOBBY AGNEW, a featured player only a few years ago, assists Busby Berkeley in creating and staging the Berkeley numbers in Warner musicals . . . PAULINE GARON is playing bits for various studios. So and MAE BUSCH, MARY CARR, and ALICE LAKE.

The case of CLARA KIMBALL YOUNG was recently given much publicity. . . . CHARLES RAY is listed as available for bit rôles in casting directories. . . . MARGARET MORRIS is playing an extra part in "A Very Honorable Guy," and AGGIE HERRING will be seen briefly in "Merry Wives of Reno."

See you tomorrow.

Discussion of Bill to Exclude Alien Players

Dickstein Bill Seeks Employment for Native Sons; Negative Opinion.

By Charles Collins.

A BILL to exclude all alien actors from appearance on the American stage and screen except those "of distinguished merit and ability" and those whose "professional engagements within the United States are of a character requiring superior talent" will soon be brought up for discussion and vote in the house of representatives. It is called the Dickstein bill and has already been the subject of heated debate before the house committee on immigration and naturalization, where it was indorsed by spokesmen for actors' groups and opposed by equally numerous spokesmen for the managers, playwrights, and dramatic critics.

The purpose of this proposed piece of national legislation is to reduce unemployment among the native born players—an intention that must be accepted as laudable. Moreover, the restrictions would not apply to such highly desirable alien visitations as the tour of the Abbey Theater company of Dublin [the Irish Players] last season, or the tour of the Monte Carlo Russe company which is now arousing great play-going enthusiasm. Such organizations would be permitted to enter the country, to give the performances for which they came, and to depart in peace, with whatever profits they may have acquired and the blessing of the audiences which they have pleased.

We Vote No on Dickstein Bill.

Nevertheless, I am opposed to the Dickstein bill because I believe that it will have the eventual result of a further reduction in opportunities for employment among the citizenry of the stage. I put aside, for the time being, all arguments against the bill which have an esthetic basis—and they are many and sound—to reply to its proponents in their own economic terms.

What the American stage needs more than anything else, at the present time, is a rebirth of interest, a fresh glow of enthusiasm, among its patrons. The theater can be considered only in terms of theatergoers. If it fails to find them, it ceases to exist. "The play's the thing" is only one-half of a standard quotation. It is followed by the line, "Wherein I'll catch the conscience of the king." No king to catch, no play-scene in "Hamlet."

Audiences Are Actors' Chief Need.

This is a concept that actors, who are the greatest grumblers and grousers about the conditions of their work in the world, are likely to ignore. For example, they will howl mournfully about acting on Sunday nights although that happens to be the liveliest theater-going night in the week in this and many other communities.

Now then, it is my idea that a law which limits American audiences to native born acting will appreciably reduce the interest of said audiences in the legitimate stage and also in film productions. We will find, or will imagine that we find, some of the glamour gone. We will agree, doubtless, that the home boys and girls are good in their way, but that they lack that exotic touch, that atmosphere of Outre-Mer which titil[illegible] imaginations.

Measure May Depress Play-Going.

We are funny that wa[illegible] tic, faddish, dream hunting people, to whom the grass is always greener on the other side of the fence. A survey of our wishful thinking would undoubtedly find that the average ambition of the American herd is a trip to Europe. So I maintain:

That if the Dickstein bill becomes law, and the secretary of labor gains the power of dictating to theatrical producers what alien actors they may or may not engage, the lack luster eyes that American audiences now turn toward the stage will presently become glassy with indifference.

That there will be less employment for the Lambs club patriots than before.

That slogans of "Buy American Acting" will fall upon deaf ears.

And that this measure, like many other legislative attempts to yank things up by their boot straps, will complicate the symptoms of the malady that it seeks to cure.

SMOKE GETS IN HER EYES

Bronte Drama

DAN TOTHEROH'S play, "Moor Born," based on the lives of the Brontë sisters, will open on Broadway in the week of April 1. Helen Gahagan will appear as Emily Brontë, Frances Starr as Charlotte Brontë, Edith Barrett as Anne Brontë, and Glenn Anders as Bramwell Brontë. All of the action of "Moor Born" takes place in the Brontë parsonage in Yorkshire.

IN RAINBO GARDEN SHOW

These lively girls are the Gaylene Sisters, called the Dancing Debutantes, who appear in the current edition of the "Rainbo Rays" revue at the Prima Rainbo Garden. They come from California and are fond of pretending that they are ancient Greek nymphs, bounding barefoot. [Todd (St. Louis) Photo.]

Congress Hotel Ready to Open Eastman Room

Al Kvale Begins Stay in Walnut Room; New Show at Terrace Garden.

THE new Eastman room in the Congress hotel will be dedicated next Wednesday at 4 p. m., when H. L. Kaufman, president of the hotel, will break a bottle of champagne over the bar for baptismal ceremony. Mr. Kaufman believes that this café-lounge, named after its decorator [Nat Eastman of New York], is the most beautiful public room of its type in the country. The cost of decoration and refitting has been $100,000.

One half of the Eastman room is occupied by the French bar, where patrons are provided with lounges, armchairs, and small service tables. Adjoining this section, but separated from it by a glass archway with neon lighting, is the dining room and dance floor. This will be open through the luncheon, cocktail, dinner, and supper periods. A five piece string orchestra will play for public dancing after the theater.

One of the decorative features of the room will be two stained glass windows facing Michigan boulevard. These will represent the special Eastman process of stained glass work. There will be no cover or minimum charge for service.

● French atmosphere prevails in the Gold Coast room of the Drake hotel, where Pierre Nuyttens has produced a new cabaret entertainment called "A Night in the Latin Quarter." Nana Parmette, a dancer of Viennese origin, is prominent on the program. Other contributors to the bill are the Drake ballet, the Trevor sisters, dancers; Ruth Dennen, soprano; George Nelidorff, Russian baritone; Cardine di Giovanni, tenor, and Frances Willer, dancer. The dance music is provided by Earl Burnett's band, which features the Biltmore Trio, Stanley Hockman and Ruth Lee, blues singer.

● The Terrace Garden has a new cabaret show which is built around Clyde Lucas, maestro of the California Dons band. His novelty numbers include an arrangement of McDowell's "To a Wild Rose" for violins. The Ainsley Lambert dancers appear in three picturesque costume numbers. Other entertainers are Romo Vincent, master of ceremonies and singer, and Bobby Graham, dancer.

● Al Kvale brought his band into the Walnut room of the Bismarck hotel last Thursday night to mark the opening of a new floor show. The entertainers include the Ercelle sisters; La Mae and Alice Louis, dancers; June Rae, contralto singer, and Virginia Stensrud, character analyst.

● The Beau Brummels have been added to Frankie Master's floor show in the College Inn as a relief band. They are a quartet of musicians who affect full evening dress with gardenias, and play the guitar, bass violin, clarinet, and cornet. Tangos and rhumbas are their special line.

● The Colchester room is now the scene of public dancing at the Stevens hotel. This café gets its name from the towns of Colchester, Ill., and its namesake, Colchester, England—both places the scenes of annual oyster festivals on Oct. 23 for some mysterious reason out of English folklore. Charles Devron's orchestra supplies the music. Devron himself sings and plays the violin. Jess Stacy, pianist, and Frank Sayer, baritone and drummer, are also featured entertainers.

● Leno Rossi, formerly first violinist with the New York Philharmonic Symphony orchestra and with the Chicago Civic opera, has become a member of the Borino string orchestra in Fred Harvey's Embassy room restaurant in the Straus building.

B'way Openings

NEW YORK, March 10.—[Special.]—Three premières are scheduled along Broadway next week—two plays and one musical show. The latter is a revue in which Charles Dillingham, veteran impresario, and Elsie Janis, the well known actress, are interested. Here are the announcements:

"The Perfumed Lady"—Opens Monday night at the Bijou. A farce by Harry Wagstaff Gribble. Brian Donlevy and Marjorie Peterson are in the cast.

"The Pure in Heart"—Opens Wednesday night at the Longacre. This is the first of the season's plays by John Howard Lawson. [The other, "Gentle Woman," is due in another week.] There is incidental music by Richard Myers and a small chorus. In the cast are Dorothy Hall, Tom Powers, Ara Gerald, James Bell, Harold Vermilyea, Owen Martin, Frances Langford, and Joaquin Souther. Mr. Lawson was the author of "Processional" and "Success Story."

"New Faces"—Opens Thursday night at the Fulton. This is a revue that got its title from the boast that no one concerned with its playing is particularly well known. The producer is, however, and also the supervisor—Charles B. Dillingham and Elsie Janis, to name them. The sketches are by practically every literary person in the east, and so is the music. Among the players are Imogene Coca, Hildegarde Halliday, Peggy Hovenden, Henry Fonda, Charles Walter, Nancy Hamilton, and others. Sections of "New Faces" were once shown in Pasadena, Cal., under the name of "Lo and Behold!"

"BLOOD MONEY"

Screen Stars in Person on Variety Stage

RAMON NOVARRO, the cinema star, is the leading personality on the stage section of the current program at the Chicago theater. He sings a number of the sentimental ballads that are associated with his career in the films, including "Pagan Love Song," "Love Song of the Nile," and songs out of the operetta "The Cat and the Fiddle," which supplied the libretto for his latest picture and which forms the screen show of the Chicago's week.

Other contributors will be: Chaney and Fox, ballroom dancers; Hill and Hoffman, comedians; Ray Saxe, and the Evans ballet girls.

The Palace theater also offers a screen star "in person" this week—Edmund Lowe of the recent "Dinner at Eight" and "Let's Fall in Love" films. He appears in "The Great Jewel Robbery," a one act play. Others on the bill are Mildred Bailey, blues singer, assisted by the Three Rhythm Kings; Baryon and Mann, comedians; Eddie White, and the Gary Ford family of dancers. On the screen: "Success at Any Price," with Douglas Fair[banks Jr.]

The Watson Sisters, Fanny and Kitty, who have been prominent as vaudeville comediennes for the last ten years, lead the new program of stage entertainment at the State-Lake theater. The O'Connor Family, six in number, are also featured. Other acts are: The Radio Haymakers; Buddy, Hall and George in a skit called "Always Belittlin'"; Joe Kelso and company; Ford, Marshall and Jones, dancers and singers, and "Marche Militaire," a revue in which Verna Buck's band and the State-Lake ballet are active. On the screen: "The Song You Gave Me," with Bebe Daniels.

Zelda Santley, an outstanding impersonator of stage and screen celebrities, headlines the new vaudeville bill at the Oriental theater. Among the other stage entertainers are: Joe Parsons, radio star; Weist and Stanton, with a company of ten singers and dancers; Ted Cook and his band, and a ballet. On the screen: "Blood Money," with George Bancroft.

Collegians on Stage

AN informal poll conducted among the "Ziegfeld Follies" company, now in New York, reveals that there are increasing numbers of college students going on the stage. Vilma Ebsen attended Rollins college and her brother Buddy the University of Florida. Oliver Wakefield is a Cambridge university graduate, Jane Froman a graduate of the University of Missouri, and Don Ross of Ohio State university.

A male quartet represents Wisconsin, Ohio State, Michigan, and Southern California. Brice Hutchins attended Carnegie Tech and Drury college. Among the chorus men Jack Ross went to McGill, Thora Roberts to Washington university, and Julie Jenner to N. Y. U. Twenty-seven chorus girls said they were high school graduates.

Famous Drama Gets Premiere at Blackstone

"GIRLS IN UNIFORM," the drama by Christa Winsloe upon which the film of similar title was based, will begin an engagement in the Blackstone theater tonight in a production by Charles K. Freeman which marks his debut as a professional impresario after five years of success as director of the theater at the Jewish People's institute. The play, staged in ten scenes, will have a cast of fifty young actresses, with Shaindel Kalish in the rôle of Manuela, and Sunda Love in the character of Fräulein van Bernburg.

Mr. Freeman announces that the principal members of the "Girls in Uniform" cast have been under his direction for several years and form an expert and proficient ensemble inspired by the spirit with which the New York Theater Guild has won its following. The net proceeds of the engagement will be donated to the dramatic fund of the Jewish People's institute.

After presenting "Girls in Uniform," he will devote his attention to "The Pageant of Illinois," to be given in Soldiers' field next summer.

A MODERN CASANOVA

Hotcha! James "Schnozzle" "Casanova" Durante himself! This vision so studendous! colossal! may be witnessed for a mere pittance at the United Artists theater, where he's making a laughing stock of "Palooka."

Movies Draw Actors from Good Families

Stars of "Winegar Woiks" Background on Decline Since Coming of Talkies.

By Rosalind Shaffer.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal.—[Special.]—If any one thinks that the modern crop of picture stars is composed of flip young things from the undesirable section of town colloquially known as "down by the winegar woiks" he is thoroughly mistaken. Looking about one finds that America is giving its best young people to the business of making films.

From college campuses, from impeccable homes all over the United States come the film recruits of today. The talkies did it just as a few wise casting directors and producers prophesied a few years ago.

The necessity of obtaining young people who talk and act like cultured people, without the studied pose of one who learns etiquet and correct English for the stage, has brought about this influx of the highest quality screen material that the picture industry has ever had.

Katharine Hepburn is perhaps the biggest of the new stars in films. The home of a doctor in Hartford, Conn., was her birthplace. She attended Bryn Mawr before embarking on her stage career.

Dorothea Wieck, recent foreign import who is rapidly gaining prestige in American films equal to that which she enjoyed in German films, comes of an aristocratic Viennese family. This is not the regular hooey—it is true. Dorothea herself is the wife of Baron Ernst von der Decken.

Marlene Dietrich comes from German aristocracy. Her father was an army officer.

Franchot Tone Is a Graduate of Cornell.

Franchot Tone, who has leaped to fame in the last year, comes from conservative society folks. He is a graduate of Cornell and had a year in a French university as well.

Rosemary Ames, Fox recruit, is the daughter of the late K. L. Ames of Chicago society circles.

Virginia Peine, daughter of the late Adolphus Peine of Chicago, chose a career in films at Warner Brothers in preference to social life as the wife of Edward Lehmann Jr.

Judith Allen, former wife of Gus N. Sonnenburg, came into films a year ago in De Mille's "This Day and Age." She is from a Rhode Island family of some consequence. Her maiden name was Marie Elliott. Her younger brother is a student at Dartmouth.

Toby Wing and her sister Patricia, beautiful young film bets, who entered films via a Goldwyn beauty chorus, are the daughters of Capt. Paul Wing, United States army.

Evelyn Venable Once Hampden's Leading Lady.

John Cabot Lodge, leading man for Marlene Dietrich in "The Scarlet Empress," comes from a prominent eastern society family. He left the practice of law to enter films.

Larry [Buster] Crabbe, who entered films as "the lion man" after winning Olympic swimming honors, is a graduate of University of Southern California.

Ann Sothern, a Harry Cohn discovery, who became a star in her first film, "Let's Fall in Love," had three years of college training and a good musical education as well before embarking on a career.

Evelyn Venable, who came to films via work with Walter Hampden as his leading lady in Shakespearean répertoire, is the daughter of a Cincinnati professor who forbids her to do those long clinches in her film work.

Gloria Stuart is a University of California graduate.

Dorothy Dell comes from a plantation family outside of Hattiesburg, Miss. She attended a select girls' school in New Orleans until she won the title "Miss Universe."

Gil Berry, one of the winners in the "Search for Beauty" contest at Paramount, was a college football captain at the University of Illinois in 1932. His wife, Winnie Flint, is also a college graduate and a Chicago society girl. She, too, is in films working at the moment in "Murder at the Vanities" as one of the beauties selected from Hollywood.

The Voice of the Movie Fan

Letters published in this department should be written on one side of the paper. If you want personal replies please enclose stamped, self-addressed envelopes.

Attacks "He-Man" and Mae West.

My dear Miss Tinée: My typewriter is sizzling and scorching with wrath after reading A. T. O.'s letter in THE TRIBUNE last Sunday. I agree with him—he does sound identically like a he-man minus any brains or education.

Naturally I realize that every one has his own personal opinions on every subject and that he has a perfect right to express them in any way he pleases as long as he sincerely believes that those opinions are worthy of disclosement. As Shakespeare once said, "There's neither right nor wrong but thinking makes it so." Therefore, since the "he-man," A. T. O., expressed his views on Mae West may a high school girl of 15 make a few candid remarks?

"He-man" A. T. O. remarked that he would rather take his wife, sweetheart, or children to see "I'm No Angel" than "Design for Living." Of course that's purely his own affair, but for the sake of future generations he had better not consider raising a family in order to prevent the drenching of impressionable young minds in indecency. "Design for Living" was a fine adaptation of a clever stage comedy. I certainly don't advocate it as an ideal picture for children, but it was a hundred times better than any of Mae West's movies, as it was at least written with a good purpose—to mirror the extremely modern and sophisticated points of view of three well sketched characters.

I wish to offer my sincere congratulations to the producers of "Be Mine Tonight" for presenting the finest, cleanest, gayest, and best of all musical pictures—with actors who had personality plus—that I have seen. I am going to see it for the eleventh time this month at a local theater that has given five showings of it by special request of people who come from far and near. May Hollywood producers take notice of real talent and give the cultured class of people a few movies they can truly enjoy. Quality before quantity should be their New Deal slogan. I remain yours sincerely,

N. McG.

Editor's Note: A high school girl with ideas, I see!

Pianist Caricatures De Pachmann.

Dear Miss Tinée: Regarding the Podrecca pianist, I think you'll find that he generally is conceded to be a not-too-much caricatured representation of De Pachmann. Yours very truly,

RENA A. OHLIN.

Editor's Note: Thanks a lot! Probably my mistake.

FILMLAND LIKES MARGARET SULLAVAN'S AIR OF NATURALNESS

HOLLYWOOD, Cal.—An unusual young lady named Margaret Sullavan has intrigued those few in Hollywood who have met her.

We are accustomed here to actresses who are actresses off as well as on the screen. Unaffected naturalness is something of a curiosity in these parts. Somehow, it just doesn't seem natural.

But John Boles, who is singing her praises, says Margaret is one of the most natural persons he ever has met. Boles, with whom she was virtually costarred in "Only Yesterday," studied her unusual ways. He says she epitomizes the modern girl—clear-eyed, self-sufficient, and caring not at all for "appearances."

From Boles and others who worked with her for several weeks one learns many things about this "child," as her leading man calls her. Between scenes, for example, she slept.

Nor did she object to several undignified photographs made of her while she slept. She always came to the studio in oversized corduroy trousers, a pongee shirt and tennis sneakers.

Hollywood's glamorous parties and people didn't interest her. She was asked to several parties, but she always declined with, "Never attend 'em."

Film Aspirants Take Chance of a CWA Landing

End of Rainbow Is Seldom Found; Studios Trim Employment Records.

HOLLYWOOD.—Future Gaynors and McCreas and Crawfords and Gables and Dees may be coming to Hollywood in squads and droves, in well worn shoes and battered cars.

But unless the gods of fate are kind, they're liable to end up working for the CWA instead of for Pariversal, the big studio which was at the end of their rainbow.

In recent years, the newcomer to Hollywood hasn't had much of a chance of becoming an extra in the movies. From now on it will be considerably less.

An NRA subcommittee is getting ready to eliminate from the official extra records all those people—numbering nearly 15,000—who in the last year or two have worked in the studios but a few days.

Chopping Down to Benefit Some.

While this at first may seem at variance with the spirit of the NRA, actually this chopping down will be a benefit to the few hundred in Hollywood who, as professional extras, depend wholly on this work. The plan is to eliminate the names of those who, because they have worked perhaps only one day a month in the last two years, obviously have other sources of income.

The names of approximately 2,000 players will remain. But even 2,000 persons cannot earn a living as extras. In January, for example, the central casting bureau had only 14,815 days' work, which is about average. Should these jobs be prorated among the 2,000 there would be about seven days' work apiece a month.

Sad News to Many Youngsters.

Of course, it really won't work out this way. Those few hundred extras who are experienced and who have complete wardrobes [in which they may have $1,000 or more invested] will be called upon more frequently than those not so well equipped.

New, inexperienced people will not be given preference when there are additions or replacements to be made on the extra roster. Instead, some of those who are soon to be cut off probably will be the first to be added.

This will be sad news to hundreds of youngsters with movie ambitions who believe that the extra route is the only way because Janet Gaynor and Ramon Novarro and Joel McCrea and countless other present and former day favorites so started.

And it may also be sad news to Hollywood when, and if, it runs out of "new faces."

Manager's Memoirs.

George C. Tyler's recollections of a busy life in the theater, which have been appearing in a weekly magazine, will be published April 11 by Bobbs-Merrill. Booth Tarkington is to write the introduction to the volume; the title will be "Whatever Goes Up."

McCormack in Concert Today at Auditorium

Sisters of Mercy Persuade Him to Give One Chicago Recital This Year.

By Edward Moore.

JOHN McCORMACK is making his only Chicago recital appearance of the season at the Auditorium this afternoon. He is being presented under the auspices of the Sisters of Mercy, who conduct the John B. Murphy hospital, and the clinic for the sick poor, maintained by the hospital, will be the beneficiary of the proceeds.

It is the first time he has sung from the stage of the Auditorium in several years, since his other appearances in Chicago during that time have been either at the Civic Opera house or Orchestra hall. It will be the only appearance he will have a chance to make in some time, since he is sailing March 16 for Capetown, South Africa, the only part of the world where his professional engagements have not carried him thus far.

As a matter of fact he had not intended to give any recitals at all this season, confining all his lyric activities to appearances before the microphone. But two years ago he sang for the same charity that brings him here today and when the appeal was made to him to return he wrote to Sister Mary Julia of the John B. Murphy hospital that he was happy to change his mind.

Request Numbers to Form Large Part of Program.

At least part of his program this afternoon will be of the request variety. Requests for favorite numbers have been coming to the hospital, and Mr. McCormack has promised to sing as many of them as the afternoon's time will permit.

There is a bit of a coincidence in today's musical affairs in the fact that Rae Bernstein, the Chicago pianist, and Mr. McCormack are both appearing this afternoon since some five years ago they both appeared on another Sunday afternoon. At that time Mr. McCormack was also at the Auditorium and Miss Bernstein was giving a recital at the Playhouse.

Since then she has spent several years in Vienna studying with Moriz Rosenthal and this afternoon she will be the soloist with the Woman's Symphony orchestra at the Congress hotel. Incidentally she will give the first performance in America of the Ravel Concerto.

Business Men's Orchestra, Chorus Give Joint Concert.

This afternoon will also bring the first joint meeting of the Chicago Business Men's orchestra, founded by the late George Lytton in 1921 and conducted by Clarence Evans, and the Chicago Association of Commerce chorus, organized in 1912 and conducted by Arthur Dunham. The net proceeds of the concert will be given to the community fund of the Allied Chicago Charities.

Each conductor will direct his own group. Mr. Dunham has made special orchestrations for several songs on the program, among them Bach's "Now Let Every Tongue," Rachmaninoff's "Glorious Forever," and Herbert's "The Mascot of the Troop." Mr. Evans will conduct Mozart's Symphony in G minor and a group of short orchestral pieces.

With the commendable idea of correcting some current misinformation about the harpsichord Philip Manuel and Gavin Williamson, who give joint recitals on two of these instruments as well as on two pianos, have forwarded some facts on the subject. They are to appear under the sponsorship of the Musicians' Club of Women at the Goodman theater Tuesday night for the benefit of the club's extension fund.

Harpsichord Operates Somewhat Like Organ.

The harpsichord, they say, is equipped with pedals and hand stops that change the tone of the registration as stops do on an organ. There are something like one hundred varieties of tone and color. Two unison strings exist for each note, one on the lower manual and one on the upper, also a super-octave string and a sub-octave string. These four are affected by such registers as the buff, or tambourin, a manual coupler, a mixed lute, and a pure lute, the last named being somewhat more nasal in character than the unaffected strings, which have qualities of the violin, the flute, are clangorous or piquant depending upon their coupling the particular part of the compass sounded.

And contrary to general opinion, add Manuel and Williamson, the harpsichord player can produce a sustained singing tone from the pucked string quite as readily as the piano player can do on his own instrument. Likewise dynamic accent is not only possible but is constantly employed.

News of Interest to Lovers of Music.

Several inquiries have come to this department as to whether the Chicago Symphony orchestra is planning an extra series of concerts after the regular series has expired. The department would be glad to answer in the affirmative if possible and will do so if any information to the effect is received.

It would be a pleasant prospect. For one reason and another the orchestra started its season two weeks earlier than usual last fall. This means that its series of twenty-eight weeks is ending two weeks earlier than usual this spring. As a further result there will be a fairly long blank time before warm weather sets in that could be well filled by a new series of concerts and with presumably plenty of patrons who would be glad to hear them.

Gregor Piatigorsky, the cellist, will be the soloist on the Tuesday afternoon concert this week, and Dalies Frantz, a newcoming pianist of whom interesting things have been heard, on Thursday and Friday. Mr. Piatigorsky will play the Elgar Concerto, which is new at these concerts. The Frantz number will be Liszt's in E flat. The Tuesday symphony will be Beethoven's Eighth; that of Thursday and Friday Rachmaninoff's Second.

In order to honor and perpetuate the name of John Philip Sousa, who in his time did more to promote a widespread love of music in America than any other man, the Sousa Memorial association has been formed in Chicago. In connection therewith the Chicago Concert band directed by Victor Grabel will give concerts in Orchestra hall Friday evening, March 23, and Saturday afternoon, March 24, the full proceeds of which will go to start a fund to carry on the work of the Sousa foundation.

Among those who have formed the association are Serge Koussevitzky, James Francis Cooke, Carl Busch, Herbert L. Clarke, Arthur Pryor, Henry Hadley, and Mr. Grabel. Mrs. Sousa became one of the incorporators upon the request of other members and has expressed the thought that it is the only kind of memorial to her husband to which she could lend herself.

In their charter the incorporators say that "The Sousa Memorial association is for the purpose of honoring and perpetuating the memory of John Philip Sousa and for establishing and maintaining in his memory a national school for the training of bandmasters and musicians; to offer scholarships for the musical education of talented students; to foster and promote the interests of music throughout the United States and the love of music in the youth of the world; and to do all things necessary and incident to the attainment of these objects."

Among musical items from the north shore is one to the effect that Jacques Gordon, violinist, and Lee Pattison, pianist, will present the last program of the North Shore Chamber Music association today in the Kenilworth Assembly hall. They will play the Schubert Sonatina in G minor, Pizzetti's Sonata in A, and Beethoven's Sonata in G.

The Winnetka Music club announces that Elisabeth Rethberg's appearance on the artists' recital series, originally scheduled for tomorrow night, has been postponed until Monday, April 16, the change being made necessary because Mme. Rethberg must be with the Metropolitan Opera company on its spring tour.

Following the concert by the Lake View Musical society in the crystal ballroom of the Blackstone hotel tomorrow afternoon there will be a "benefit birthday cake" for the Chicago Symphony orchestra fund. Each member will be requested to give a cent for each of the forty-four years of the orchestra's existence.

The biennial convention of the Music Supervisors' National conference to be held at the Stevens hotel during the week of April 8 will have as its major theme, "Music in the Life of the Nation," with emphasis on the problems and needs of the time and on stressing the relation of musical education to the leisure time program now being developed.

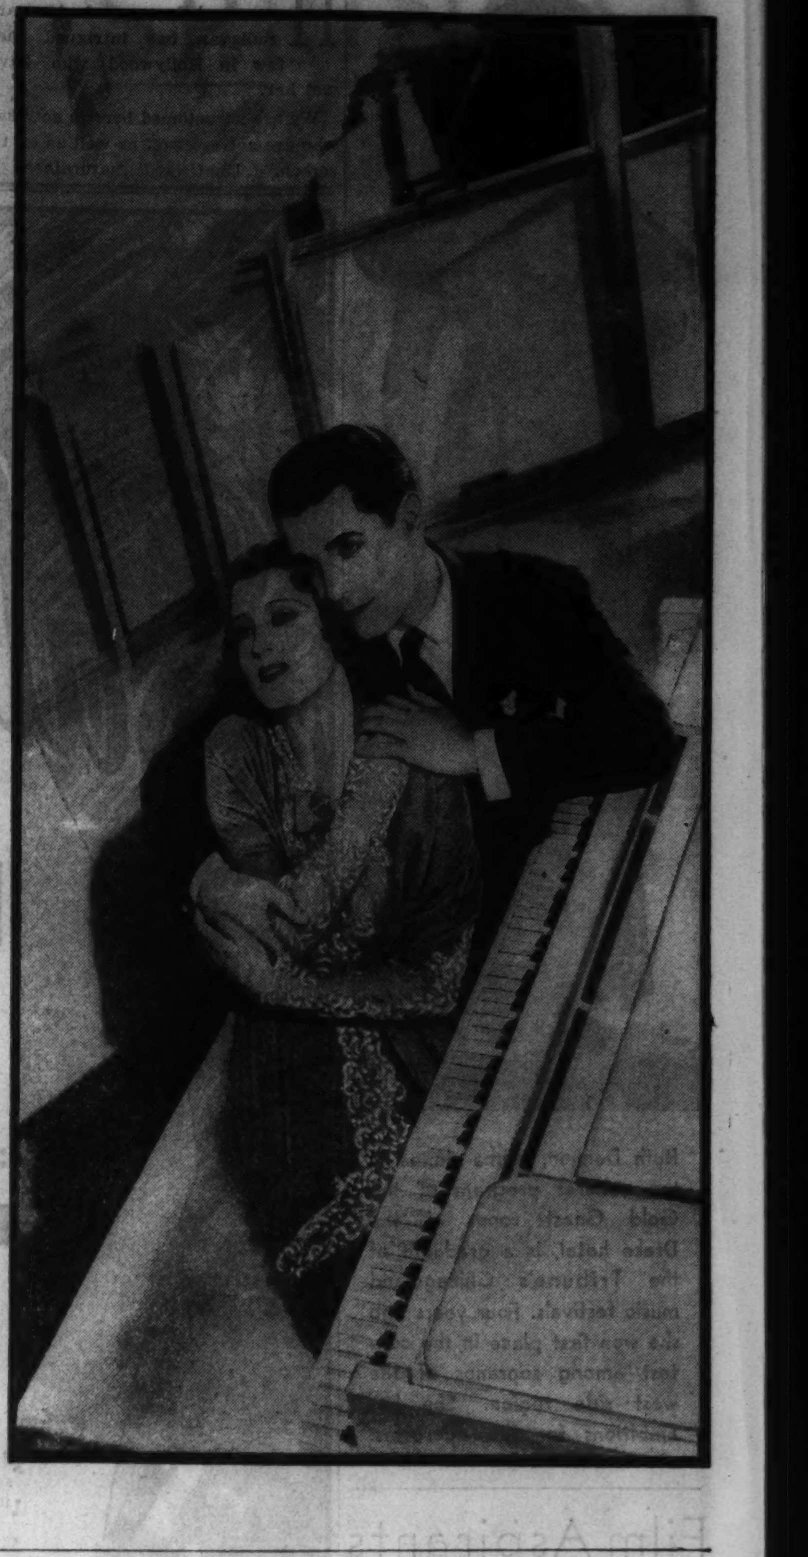
Pupils from the schools of this community will join with young people from every state in the Union. Although the event is a convention of music educators representing the schools and colleges of the United States and Canada, many of the music programs will be given by children. These will serve as examples of musical achievement typifying the work done in the schools and reflecting the modern trends in education.

An elaborate historical pageant of Illinois, "The Epic of the Prairie State," will be staged at Soldiers' field on June 30 under the auspices of the Illinois Police association, which will thereby celebrate its fiftieth year of existence. The entire field will be used in the action and realism through the use of Indian mounds, wigwams, forts, trains, fires, and other scenic effects.

Charles K. Freeman and Elmer Gertz are the authors of the pageant. It is expected to make use of large choruses of both white and Negro singers and soloists of distinction. The committee consists of Edgar Nelson, chairman; Frank Bennett, Noble Cain, Arthur C. Becker, Father Hoover, George Lee Tenney, and J. Wesley Jones.

In connection with the coming return of the pianist, Anatol Rapoport, to his home in Chicago there is word that a short time ago he was the soloist in a concert in Vienna, where he played not one but three concerts, Rachmaninoff's Third, Stravinsky's, and Tschaikowsky's First. One newspaper comment says that he will certainly be found soon in the foremost row among internationally known pianists of the younger generation; another that he has the conqueror in him.

"THE CAT AND THE FIDDLE"



"Musically Inclined" seems to be the pat title for this scene from "The Cat and the Fiddle." Jeanette MacDonald and Ramon Novarro before you. (Chicago.)

Student Show

"SWEET MUSIC," the sixth annual "Waa-Mu" musical show of Northwestern university, to be presented this week in the National College of Education theater in Evanston, is said to be the first musical show in the Chicago area to use wagon stages. These devices are identical to the ones used in "Grand Hotel." The stages are set on roller bearing casters and pivot on the playing area, enabling the stage crew to make rapid changes for the 23 scenes.

A showgirl parade, composed of students, will use an endless curtain as a background. This will be drawn across the stage as the showgirls display styles in evening clothes.

Barrymore Returns

Ethel Barrymore, who has been appearing in London in Sir James Barrie's "The Twelve Pound Look," returned March 6 on the Berengaria. She has no immediate plans and intends to take a rest at her home in Mamaroneck, N. Y.

Public Works of Art Project in Chicago Moves Workers with Palette and Chisel to Hot Debate

Critic Praises Increase Robinson's Direction of Government Bureau.

By Eleanor Jewett.

THE artists living in and about Chicago have united in a formal protest to the directors and trustees of the Art institute. They have sent a letter asking to be juried in the future by their peers—that is, other artists. Their request runs: "We have no wish to dominate or influence or color such juries as may henceforth be chosen, but insist only that they be composed of artists, not of museum directors, officers, officials, or other laymen in the art we practice."

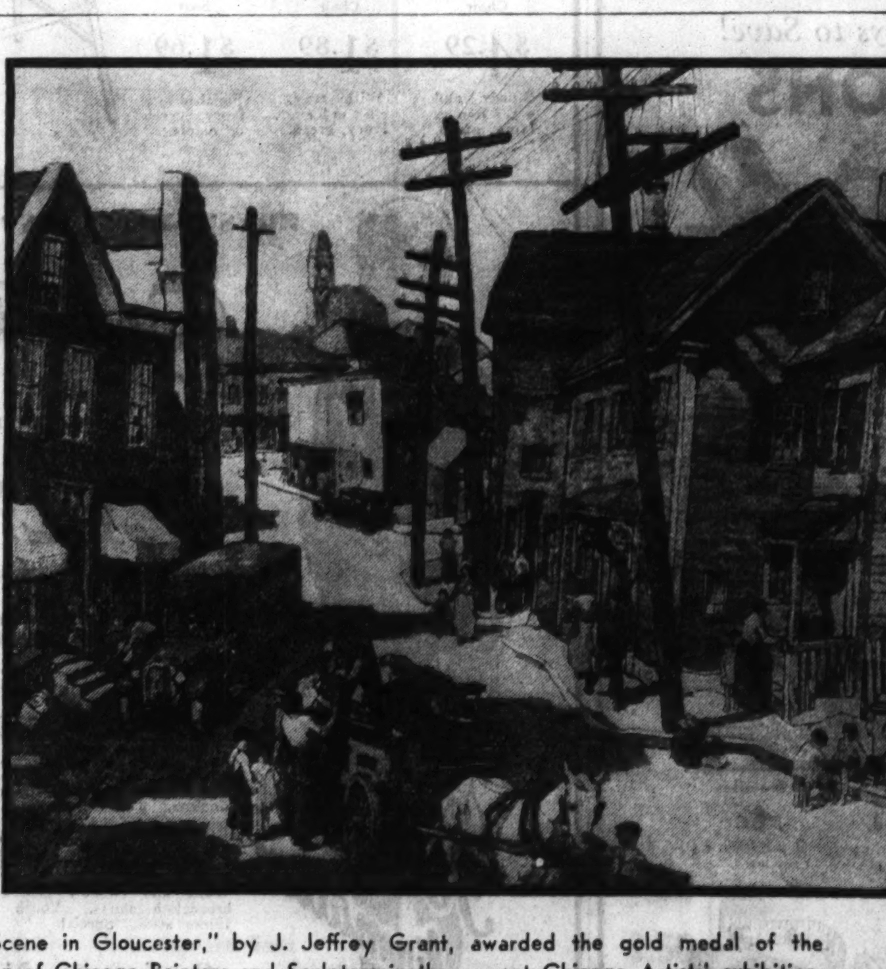
Was Jury Spoofing the Art Institute?

The request scarcely goes far enough. The artists should demand that the jury of awards as well as that which accepts canvases for the exhibit be composed of artists. The prize winners in the present show were selected by the jury of museum directors plus the intelligent effort of the committee on sculpture and painting of the Art institute.

It is to be doubted whether a worse group of prize paintings has ever before been featured in any exhibition anywhere. It seems incredible that "Shipwreck in the Morning," by A. Kenneth Ness and the frozen whitewash "Nude" of John Stephan could have even been hung by any serious person, much less been given a prize. Yet these two and Dahlgreen's "Breakfast Table" and Bobrod's "Coal Yards" were all solemnly entered in the exhibit and solemnly awarded prizes.

One Picture Too Small for Its Frame.

A reader of this column suggests: "I wonder if perhaps the jurors from out of town weren't taking the Art Institute for a merry ride." He may be right but certainly they did so under the invitation of the Art institute.



"Street Scene in Gloucester," by J. Jeffrey Grant, awarded the gold medal of the Association of Chicago Painters and Sculptors in the current Chicago Artists' exhibition.

And so little did they regard what they were doing that they accepted one picture [you may see it there] too small for its frame so the author of it wound insulated electric wire around the canvas to bring it to the size of the frame. There is no excuse for such sloppy work, nor any excuse for a jury of museum directors allowing it to get by. For that matter, museum directors or not, no jury should pass such carelessness.

The artists of Chicago would be quite within their rights to boycott future Chicago artists' exhibitions if the stupidities perpetrated this year are to be continued. A fair showing of all schools of intelligent art should be conceded future exhibits. We have the artists.

News of Interest to Lovers of Art.

The Chicago Galleries, 220 North Michigan avenue, opened last Monday a stunning exhibit of decorative murals and paintings by Julius Moessel. A group of small panels of Illinois landscape by Irma Rene Koen was also placed on view.

The Palette and Chisel Academy of Fine Arts, 1012 North Dearborn street, announces the opening of an exhibition of water colors by members. It is a vivid show, full of color, and well worth seeing.

Alice Littig Siems has an interesting exhibit of her recent sculptures in her studio, 7318 South Shore, to March 17.

The thirteenth international water color exhibition will open in the east wing galleries of the Art institute Thursday, March 29, to continue to April 29.

Oils and water colors by Ruth Van Sickle Ford are on view for four weeks in the twelfth floor galleries of the Chicago Academy of Fine Arts, 18 South Michigan avenue.

Society Still Labors to Give Us an Opera

"Friends" Meet at Lunch and Stimulate Each Other to Bigger, Better Effort.

By COUSIN EVE.

NORMALCY is at hand. When Mrs. Arthur Meeker rose at Monday's Arts club luncheon of the executive committee of Friends of Opera and asked if the ladies were minded to resume their activities for grand opera there was not a dissenting voice. Eighteen members were present, Mrs. William Chalmers at Mrs. Meeker's right, Mrs. R. T. Crane Jr. on her left at the long narrow table.

Functions of this society are at least four operatic concerts during the winter given free to its members. Usually in the Drake ballroom followed by tea. So valuable to grand opera are "the Friends" that George Woodruff has promised full coöperation, as did Giorgio Polacco in the past.

Box selling will go on with the chairmanship of Mrs. Bartholomay Osborne, one of the younger beauties of the town, now away on a Caribbean cruise. Fourteen boxholders for next season are already in line, but no boxes will be assigned until May.

Mrs. Meeker, society's most popular and engaging chairman, continues as president. Mrs. Charles Swift, now in Australia, will resume activity as head of the entertainment committee. The charm of these concert teas is evident. Members meet and become thrilled by our beautiful divas and gallant tenors, not to mention the baritones and basses.

There are rumors, too, that will not down that Mrs. Meeker will accept the presidency of the Fortnightly, Chicago's most fashionable literary club.

Some of the opera's friends at the recent luncheon meeting were Mrs. Joseph M. Patterson, Mrs. William Baum, Mrs. Harry H. Shearson, Mrs. George H. Taylor, Miss Helen Gilbert, Mrs. Francis Johnson, Mrs. George Leach, Mrs. George Jaeger, Mrs. Henry Bartholomay.

The world ou l'on s'amuse is not such a whirl these March days. But shining events of the future are rear-

MODELS

[Tribune Studio Photos.]

Miss Alice Cook and the other three young women pictured on this page are to be among the attractive mannequins in a fashion show to be staged the afternoon and evening of Saturday, March 31, at the Drake hotel by the Kenwood Social Service club.

Mrs. Faris Chesley, a lovely young south side matron, was such a stunning bride just a few years ago that ever since she has been chosen to display the bridal gown in the Kenwood Social Service club's annual parade of spring fashions.

Miss Virginia Dorwart is busy rehersing graceful steps for the fashion show.

Parties at White House This Week Are Strictly Domestic

By GENEVIEVE FORBES HERRICK.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—(Special.)—Mrs. Roosevelt is going to try to get home from Porto Rico next Friday night. She will surely be back by Saturday. For Saturday is the twenty-ninth anniversary of the wedding of Franklin D. Roosevelt and Eleanor Roosevelt. Now, there will not be a big celebration; perhaps a small family party.

Next day, Sunday, there'll be a birthday party for the Roosevelts' youngest son, John, who will get home from prep school that morning. John's birthday is really March 13, but he thought he'd rather wait and have the celebration when he got home. It can't be a hilarious party, for bright and early the next morning—Monday—Johnny goes to the hospital to have a pesky appendix attended to. Nothing serious, but extremely annoying to John, who thinks a spring vacation is no time to have to go to the hospital, even if it isn't serious.

● Speaking of spring vacations, the spring processional of school children to the capital will soon be starting. Annually more than 50,000 school children come to Washington.

Many years ago a small boy was brought by his father to spend the week-end in the nation's capital. They got off the train early Sunday morning. The one thing the boy wanted ing their heads on the far horizon.

We lunch here and we lunch there. Miss Alice Gade's luncheon at the Casino was one of the large events of the week. And by the way of large luncheons seven hundred members of the Foreign Relations ate together Saturday to hear Paul Scott Mowrer on France. While a mere hundred listened to the brilliant satire of Hubert Herring on the Pan-American economic conference at Montevideo. Mr. Herring was funny about the Woman's party headed by Miss Doris Stevens, who appeared at the conference "in evening dress, although it was mid-afternoon." "Peculiar vanity," the speaker called it. Cordell Hull left an almost complete body of friends in South America. He was admirably austere and spare, a man "of few words, short words." In conclusion Mr. Herring wished that a strong wind would blow from the vaults of our state department those forgotten men who rule from behind the scenes and underground our foreign policy.

Conversation Is Golden at Nitzes' Dinner.

One of the large, lively dinners of the week was at Mr. and Mrs. William Nitze's, in the University of Chicago sector. Eighteen guests, bright fires, bright minds, bright glow from walls dimly golden. Here and there a highly modern painting that gave one's eyes a job. It was one of those dinners where people said things that one thought about afterward and where stories were new, not old stagers dug up for the occasion.

The party moved on to the International house to the movie, "Good Companions." The cinema has caught on there like wildfire. It was hard to get in. Big, smart audience. In it Kellogg Fairbank, much burned from Arizona, and his son, Ben, with news from the loved ones at the Arizona Biltmore at Phoenix.

Breathing this rarefied atmosphere are Mr. and Mrs. Cyrus H. McCormick, Mr. and Mrs. Francis Nielsen, Mrs. Edward Swift, Mrs. Huntington Henry, Mrs. Gordon Kelly and her infant (four generations). Also Mrs. William V. Kelly and Miss Mary Louise Anderson.

Further away still Mr. and Mrs. Scott Durand of Lake Bluff, who sailed surreptitiously for the south seas a fortnight since.

One Remembers Mrs. Donner as a Radiant Debutante.

Engagements and weddings. The list grows. Mr. and Mrs. Howard Elting announced last week the engagement of their young widowed daughter, Mrs. Joseph Donner, to Lord Lionel Tennyson of England, who now lives in Santa Barbara. Mrs. Donner was Carol Elting, a debutante ten years ago, tall, slender, a brunette, beautifully educated and equipped for life, and a great belle. Summering in Canada, she met at some polo games Joe Donner, a young steel prince, also a polo player. After an intensive courtship they were married and settled in Buffalo. Since her husband's death Mrs. Donner has lived abroad until this year, when she shared with her parents this California house. Lord Tennyson has a fine war record and an interesting title.

Young Howard Elting is vice consul at Istanbul, where he and his wife do the honors to traveling Chicagoans, the American embassy being 250 miles away.

Tomorrow night a dinner at the Lake Shore Drive, when Luigi Villari of Siena university will speak on "Italy's Foreign Policy" in good English. They say he is a nice, snappy diplomat who will bore nobody. Whether he will tell all he knows is another matter. But he is sent out by the foreign office at Rome.

Mrs. Hutchins Starts a Vogue for Birthdays.

Mrs. Robert Hutchins has started something. People are having birthdays again. The graceful artist wife of "Bob," president of the University of Chicago, had a birthday and there were choral good wishes from her husband in the morning sung over the telephone. This happened a long way from Pinehurst and the Hotel Carolina, where Mr. and Mrs. James Ransom Walker have arrived and Mr. Walker was due to celebrate his birthday.

Mr. Walker, tall, reserved, dignified, was a comparative stranger at the hotel. Wherefore the evening of the fête at dinner when a magnificent birthday cake, all candles, was set upon his table imagine his surprise.

And furthermore his feelings, when at a signal from Tracy Drake hovering cheerfully, all the guests rose like the Apollo club and sang "Happy Birthday, Mr. Walker, Happy Birthday to You." Mrs. David Cooke Jr., the charming sister-in-law of James Walker, had written to Tracy Drake that she wanted to be hostess at a dinner and provide a birthday cake for her family. Mr. Drake, being a good organizer, provided the music.

Mrs. Charles Dewey Enters Ranks of Literati.

In a few days Mrs. Charles S. Dewey will have joined the great majority and become an author. With her usual demureness and rather foreign charm she broke the news that her volume now being printed is on the subject of wine, its history and uses. That is not the exact title. Written for her four children, it will be privately circulated. Listening to its scope one became more and more intrigued by the romantic aspects of the science of winemaking and drinking and can hardly wait to see the little book, illustrated quaintly after the manner of two hundred years ago.

The French people have been making wine for a thousand years and then some, it being, indeed, their principal industry. Mrs. Dewey found her subject a vast one. The more she delved the more she discovered. Napoleon, for example, loved chambertin, while crabby old Voltaire, withered and witty, favored corton. The gallant Henry of Navarre owed some of his gallantry perchance to his rich burgundy vintages.

And the popes are said to have loved Avignon because of its fruity French wines and delayed their return from it to Rome.

Memories of Diplomatic Dinners Her Inspiration.

The romance of wine came to Mrs. Dewey's mind one day as she was looking over some of her official wine books, which are a complete record of diplomatic and official dinners given by her during the fifteen years of prohibition.

In the wine books are recorded a list of guests, the menu, and with each course its appropriate wine, brand, and date.

In Europe even more attention is given to the selection of wines for a grand dinner than to the food, and to serve an inferior wine to an important guest would be a social error not soon lived down.

And the same wine twice running to the same guest would show lack of imagination and attention to detail.

Champagne a Vastly Temperamental Beverage.

After selection of menu and wine comes the vital point of temperature. Mrs. Dewey has for years made purposeful conversation, when seated next to some foreign diplomat with abundant waistcoat and purple cheeks, to find at what degree he liked champagne. "Ah! Madame, ça varie!" Ay, there's the rub. Champagne is vastly temperamental, has its own personality. Every brand and each vintage of that brand has its own proper point of coolness.

Then there is the story of the famous Veuve Clicquot, who went quietly on with her knitting when they told her the Germans were coming to rifle her "caves." Remembering 1870, the grand old gal said, "A good customer always comes back."

And so Mrs. Dewey turned over the pages of Washington and Poland and France, remembering doubtless high moments in the vanished pomps of yesterday and sparkling dinner tables set off by jewels and gold lace, and decided to make her book.

It is really a textbook for those who like wines and wish to serve them properly.

When the pages of "Wine" were on the press Rockwell Kent happened in at the publishing house and was greatly pleased with the amusing illustrations.

Mrs. Redheffer Produces Heavy Book on Economics.

Another author making her debut is Mrs. Raymond Redheffer, whose forthcoming book on economics has kept her writing most of the winter. Probably as high brow as any one can be and get away with it. Mrs. Redheffer is tall, slim, auburn haired, pretty—no spectacled intellectual. I pine to see this book.

Word comes that Mrs. Harry Talbot of Dayton is going abroad again with her famous Westminster choir. Who doesn't remember this most amusing, outstanding woman, the belle of last year's A Century of Progress visitors?

ALLIANCE FRANCAISE JUNIOR

Miss Elizabeth Colt, one of Mrs. Merrill Colt's three charming daughters, is a new member of the Alliance Francaise Juniors and of the Giovinezza, the junior organization of the Italy-America society. As she received a good part of her education in Europe, she is proficient in both the French and Italian languages.

A SINGING DEBUTANTE

Miss Thelma Jenson, a debutante of the winter, can count among successes of the season the one she made as a featured singer in the Service club's annual revue.

Roosevelts Give Two Parties

to see was the capitol. The father took the youngsters over to the big building. The front door on the senate side was locked, so was the back door, and so were all the side doors.

Hopefully they walked out to the house side; everything bolted up fast. The lad was bitterly disappointed. He left that night without having been inside the one building he had hoped to see.

Years passed as they have a habit of doing. The boy, a grown man now and an architect of distinction, comes to Washington. As David Lynn he becomes the capitol architect. And, of course, you've guessed the point of my story. His first official act is to decree that the capitol shall be open to the public on Sunday.

● Chatting with Senator Overton of Louisiana the other day the talk fell on the proposed pure food, drug, and cosmetic bill. He's a member of the senate commerce committee, before which the hearings are held.

"Some cosmetics may be all right," the senator mused. "But that red stuff women put on their lips—I don't like that. Why, I won't let my daughters kiss me when they have it on, for it'll leave red marks all over my cheeks."

● There's a long waiting list of girls who want jobs as guides around the capitol. To many such work spells possible romance. Didn't one graceful guide win a congressman's son for a husband? And didn't another meet and marry a good looking young intern whom she showed about the building? Of course it isn't all romance. There was the girl guide who met up with a crazy woman and had a busy quarter of an hour.

● The British embassy gave its garden party for Ramsay MacDonald and daughter Ishbel. The French embassy entertained for M. Laval and daughter Josette. There have been Japanese princes and Italian prelates. But the Mexican embassy stole the show the other day when it drank a sparkling toast to a fellow countryman, Ramon Novarro, movie star, of Mexican birth.

Lovely ladies who hadn't bothered to make the proper calls at the embassy suddenly recalled how deeply fond they were of Mexico and nearly fell over each other rushing up to the house and leaving visiting cards.

Those who were invited to meet the hero were, they tell me, repaid, for he kissed the gals "like a brother," he said.

Nancy Yuille's Marriage to Lord Adare Occasion for Exclusive Dinner.

PALM BEACH, Fla.—[Special.]—The wedding of Miss Nancy Yuille, sister of Mrs. Wolcott Blair of Chicago, took place on Wednesday in Palm Beach at the Villa Louwanna, the winter home of Mr. and Mrs. Blair, in the presence of the immediate family. It was followed by a small reception attended by a few intimate friends. Lord and Lady Adare are spending their honeymoon in the south and later will return to visit Mr. and Mrs. Blair. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. William C. Biederwolf of Poinciana chapel.

On Monday evening Charles A. Munn, the Duchess of Sutherland, Mr. Blair, and Richard B. Hall of New York were joint hosts at a dinner dance at the Seminole club in honor of Miss Yuille and Lord Adare. The latter upon his arrival here in January was Mr. Munn's guest.

The affair was attended by all the smart set of Palm Beach society, including Joseph E. Widener and Mr. and Mrs. P. A. B. Widener whose guest Lord Adare has been recently and members of Mr. Munn's house party; Mrs. Vincent Astor, Mrs. A. C. Critchley of London, Mr. and Mrs. M. Dorland Doyle, Misses Mary and Frances Munn and Noel Munn, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Pulitzer and members of their house party, and many others. This was the most important private party since that given in honor of H. R. H. Princess Alice and the earl of Athlone.

Mrs. Chase Gives Tea for Her Daughters.

The Seminole club is 14 miles north of Palm Beach on the ocean front and is the one frequented by the younger married set. The Gulf Stream club at Delray, 18 miles south, is patronized by the more conservative older set. Mr. and Mrs. George Alexander McKinlock gave a luncheon there on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Sterling Morton of Chicago and Mr. Morton's sister, Mrs. Joseph M. Cudahy of Lake Forest are enjoying golf and bathing here. Mrs. Charles Curry Chase is giving a tea this week-end at her home in honor of her daughters, Mrs. Roy Brodhead Meredith of Chicago, Mrs. Maurice Fatio, and Mrs. George S. Fenton of Palm Beach and Buffalo.

Many of the Chicago colony attended an apéritif party given at their villa on Sunday by Mr. and Mrs. George Albert Eddy of Chicago. About 50 guests were present. Among Chicagoans attending were Mr. and Mrs. George Weber, Mr. and Mrs. Charles M. Hayes, Mr. and Mrs. William F. Bode, Mr. and Mrs. Olaf Nelson Tevander, Mrs. E. Preston Rowles, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Jackson, Mr. and Mrs. William A. Snyder, and Lindsay Crawford.

Hayes' Yacht Is Scene of Charming Luncheon.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles M. Hayes gave a sailing party and luncheon on board their yacht Charmae for a group of their friends. Among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. Joseph J. Cavanaugh and Mr. and Mrs. B. Cameron Baker of Chicago. They went to the gulf stream where the men enjoyed fishing.

HELPING OUT IN THE SALES FOR THE SHUT-INS

Miss Barbara Eldridge and Miss Eleanor Cushman are members of the recently organized junior auxiliary of the Vocational Society for Shut-Ins, which conducts a shop at 700 North Michigan avenue. The duties of the juniors include the addressing of envelopes in which are sent announcements of the sales the society holds at intervals at the homes of its members near the city and the transporting of the lovely things made by the shut-ins. Miss Cushman is getting together a trousseau these days, but she is doing it in a leisurely manner. She does not plan to be married to Charles Henry Kimball before next fall.

Vacationists in Phoenix Hold a Spectacular Frontier Party

PHOENIX, Ariz.—[Special.]—There have been weeks of anticipating and planning out at the San Marcos in Chandler for the frontier "doin's" held Wednesday evening, at which Cactus Kate, Prospector Pete, and all the old time characters in the early days of Arizona were represented.

Col. Howard won first prize costumed as Ed Scheiffelin, who discovered and staked the first mining claims at Tombstone, Ariz. Mrs. Howard was lovely as a Spanish senora. Mrs. Charles Parks and her daughter, Patricia, were two Mexican girls, while Mr. Parks nearly caused a riot when he appeared as Lady Lou of the mining camp lore. The judges were Mr. and Mrs. Arch Shaw.

The "doin's" began with "eats and vittuls" on long, bare tables in the dining room, which was made to represent a saloon of the early days, with a bar at one end of the room and all the old gambling games in full swing. Each guest was given $100 in stage money with which to play during the evening, the winner receiving a much coveted Navajo blanket. The Samuel Lyndes, E. R. Hurlbuts, A. W. Newtons, Raymond Durhams, John Levis, Mrs. Frank Lowden, and Joseph McNulty all participated.

Two Chicagoans Are Winners in Golf Tourney.

Winners of the annual San Marcos handicap golf tournament, held this week, included two Chicagoans, Charles Parks, who captured the men's tournament, and Mrs. N. L. Howard, who was first in the women's.

Out at the Wigwam at Litchfield park Bill McGuire captured first place, shooting 81 in the resorters' gold tournament held this last week. The Maurice Rothschilds also took part in the tournament. Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Coulter have returned to Chicago after vacationing at the Wigwam. But their daughter, Mrs. Ben Murcheson, is too intrigued by the golf and riding to leave for another month. Shortly after her return both she and her mother will sail for Italy. Other guests at the Wigwam are Mr. and Mrs. F. R. Meyer Jr. and their son, Dick, and Mrs. Daniel Scully.

The Sunset garden and patio, with its tricky pitch and putt course, is popular at the Westward Ho these days. Mrs. Schuyler Reber and Mrs. F. L. Wells of Wheaton, the Misses Jessie and Catherine Colvin of Lake Forest, the F. P. Rosses of Oak Park, and the H. A. Howlands are to be seen every day reading, knitting, or just being lazy in the sun garden.

Rough Riders Do Strenuous Twenty-Five Mile Stretch.

The Jerry H. Kellys are the golfers of the hotel, with Mrs. Jane Williams and Mrs. George Davidson close seconds. The Percy Cowans and Peter Sampsons of Glencoe spend most of their time motoring to the various places of interest.

The Nelson Bucks joined the group of rough riders last Friday, and certainly proved that they are no longer in the dude class. It was a ride of some twenty-five miles over the desert, and a mountain or two which happened to be in the way. Dinner was cooked camp style in the shade of an arroyo—we need shade, too, at midday for comfort.

William McCormick Blair Jr. won first place in both the men's and juniors' singles in the midwinter tennis tournament of Phoenix. Henry N. Rawley of Lake Forest also played an excellent game.

Quite the most brilliant party of the season was given on Wednesday evening at the Arizona Biltmore by Mrs. James McMillan. The table was lovely with golden cassia and white sweet peas in ivory bowls with tall white candles in clusters. The Nelson Bucks, C. W. McGuires, Oren Tafts, Howard Coles, and Paul Harper were there.

Adjust Wedding to Weather

By Nancy Randolph.

NEW YORK, March 10.—[Special.]—Spring came to take a fleeting glance at the metropolitan scene this last week, but no one dared hope that it was more than just a momentary visitation.

None the less, we would say that some of our notables are more pessimistic than seems needful. Take Mary Austin Phipps and Caleb Fellows Fox III. for instance. All the arrangements for their April wedding have been made except the definite scene for the ceremony. Mary and Caleb are so distrustful of the weather that they won't decide just now whether the wedding should take place at Tuxedo Park or here in town.

In the wedding party will be Anne C. Meyer, Mary Anne Vietor, Mrs. Crawford Blagden Jr., Laura De Rham, Beatrice Wagstaff, Helen Fox, Constance Terhunne, Anne S. Richardson, Lucille Theriot, and Peggy Sykes.

The son of Caleb Fellows Fox Jr. and Mrs. Charles Read of Elkins Park, Pa., will have his dad as his best man. Among his ushers are to be William W. Frazier Brinley, Joseph L. Wilmsen, Edward Harris, Williamson Thomas, Norcross S. Tilney, George S. Stillman, and Frank Phipps Jr.

Another wedding due later in the spring will be that of Faith Whitney, daughter of Mrs. Caspar Whitney and the late Mr. Whitney, and Morgan Wing Jr., son of the Morgan Wings of town and Millbrook, N. Y.

Faith's father was a famous explorer of the Amazon and Orinoco. Through her mother, the former Florence Canfield, she is a granddaughter of the late Charles A. Canfield of Los Angeles.

Morgan Wing Jr. is Pomfret and Princeton '34 and a squash player of note. He is descended from the Wings who settled in Dutchess county in our state on land that has remained in possession of the family since the 17th century. His mother was Lucia Burton, daughter of the late Frank V. Burton and Mrs. Burton who was Katherine Van Duzer.

The date for the wedding hasn't been announced yet.

Also to be added to the growing list of spring weddings will be that of Philip Van Rensselaer Schuyler Jr. and Barbara Leslie, daughter of the William M. Leslies Jr.

Once upon a time, Phil was engaged to Molly Mixsell, daughter of the Harold R. Mixsells, but it broke up after no end of mixups during which Molly's trousseau burned no less than twice.

Babs Leslie is a deb of the past season and recently came to attention as one of the girls who informed the Yale Harkness Hoot of why she went to football games. Babs said the game was torture but she did like the parties afterwards.

Sleeping Mexico Is Waking Up to Its Possibilities

Tourist Trade Undeveloped, but Beauty and Charm Are Plentiful There.

By Philip Kinsley.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

GUADALAJARA, Mexico.—In this city of eternal spring the Mexican revolution takes on a kindly and incidental atmosphere. It escapes the sad, discouraged aspect of so much of the countryside and also the torn, hurried, industrial fever that has overtaken the ancient capital in the valley of Mexico. The air is soft, the sky a tender blue, with fleecy, drifting clouds. The song of birds rises above the traffic and mingles with the bells, the deep toned bells of the cathedral, the fast little bells of the churches which lift domes, pyramids and towers of blue and gold above these old Spanish walls.

The revolution which, in various phases, against Spain and France, church and dictators, has been in progress in this brown country for more than one hundred years, is firmly entrenched here as well as in other parts of the republic, but its aspect is more mellow, its outlook more hopeful, under this tender blue sky. There is many a ruined and crumbling old home in this town and there are also new colonies, or suburbs, where life has opened into wide streets and flowered bungalows, instead of being hidden away in patios behind thick walls.

They Disagree as to the Outcome.

What is to come out of the revolution is a question that finds various answers. To the idealist, who looks upon the illusion of time and this world as the shadow of reality, the end is certain. He sees the march of an idea in the 10,000 country schools of Mexico, where there were none twenty years ago. He sees these Indians, so close to the soil, so full of potential power, emerging into home-owners and a literate democracy. Only the timeless surge of an idea that began in Egypt 10,000 years ago, was expressed in the philosophy of Plato, in the new kingdom of Christ and in the practical action of Lincoln, the idea of the value of human personality can give this hope any validity. And it seems to go with these skies and these faces.

These Indian mothers, kneeling in the shadows of the dim churches, their children clutched to them, or sitting in the gay plaza in the evening, while the cars of the rich roll by, may have some idea about this thing, but they cannot communicate it. Their part is to keep the children clean and make the pennies count. There is no harassed, strained look about them, however, no fear. The earth is kind to them and their broods and something may be coming, yet afar off.

Some of Them Know What They Want.

In the cities the Indian and mestizo workmen have developed into a formidable, rather truculent lot, men who have a conception of their rights and demand them. They have taken the syndicate or union idea strongly and like to wear red ribbons and gather in meetings. They have been bombarded with communist literature for years and in some cases this has borne fruit in refusal to pay rent, and massed demonstrations, but on the whole there is little of that sentiment here.

The more immediate results of the revolution may be observed in the rapid industrial growth in the valley of Mexico, and the public works there that make the streets a din of activity.

Guadalajara is seeking a modest industrial increase, but has no desire to dim its golden spires with the smoke of factories. There is more of the ancient handicraft here, expressed in colorful potteries and in glass blown into fairy shapes. There is an idea that the lilies that grow so profusely in the waterways near here might be used in making paper. But the propagandist for this city, which now is united with the great delta lands of the west coast by railroad and has a growing network of commerce, writes of the comforts of life and the Epicurean philosophy of pleasure. He conceives of this as the Anglo-Saxon aim in life and assures all who come there that they will find life a divine gift.

Tourist Possibilities Are Underdeveloped.

"Symbolically speaking," he writes, "we can compare this region to a gigantic fish, whose spine seems to rest on the mountains to the south, and its body meeting the dented land on the north, where the hills appear as statues, motionless and in profile, the mouth opening to the east. Up to the present time it has not satiated itself drinking the waters of a great river. It could be said to be the famous austral fish in the heavens that swallows the stream of stars from Eridanus that erupt from the magnificent constellation of Orion. The star of first magnitude that adorns the austral sky, in this case would be the beautiful city of Guadalajara."

This modest appeal for tourist and industrial attention is only a part of a national drive in this direction. Mexico's greatest potential resource is the automobile and railroad tourist traffic, now undeveloped. Estimates have been made of tourist expenditures of from one hundred to one hundred and fifty million dollars a year as a reasonable expectation of the completion of the international highway next fall. This exceeds its visible trade balance.

TIPS TO TOURISTS

What's your travel problem? Address queries regarding where to go, how to get there, costs and accommodations, to The Travelers' Guide, Chicago Tribune, enclosing stamped, self-addressed envelope.

What are some of the places of especial interest on a cruise of the West Indies?—D. B.

Nassau, a coral island with a magnificent bathing beach; Havana, a cosmopolitan city of pleasure lovers; Kingston, Jamaica, with its memories of Drake and Morgan; Barbados, a little England, with its Trafalgar square and Nelson monument, as well as its draperies of sugar cane, and Martinique, a lush island with vivid greenery, memories of the Empress Josephine, and its picture of France gone tropical.

I have been told that on my first trip to England this summer I should be sure to visit Shottery. Just why?—V. M. M.

Shottery's chief attraction for the traveler is Anne Hathaway's cottage. Little has been changed there; the cottage, the garden, the thatched roof, and even some of the furniture remain as they were when Shakespeare was wooing Anne. It has been said that no palace in Europe has more attraction than has this humble home.

Is there any good place to golf in the Canal Zone? We're planning to go there this spring and want to take our golf sticks along.—F. C. G.

The Panama Golf club has built a new course and a $65,000 clubhouse near the ruins of Old Panama. Tourists may motor there from Balboa, and they will find the course open to them.

Is it too hot for enjoyment in Miami at seasons other than winter?—H. G.

Miami claims that in the last 36 years the temperature there has risen to the maximum of 96 on only two days; that its mean temperature is 75.2 degrees, and that even in July, August, and September its mean temperature is only 81.5 degrees.

Where can I get complete information about our national parks?—L. N.

If you'll write the superintendent of documents, U. S. government printing office, Washington, D. C., and inclose a dollar, he'll send you a book called "The National Parks Portfolio," describing each of the playgrounds and national monuments and containing more than 300 illustrations.

Is Hot Springs National park in Arkansas open to visitors at this time of the year?—R. L. C.

It's open all year round.

What and where is the Grande Corniche?—G. G. J.

It is the mountain road leading from Nice to Monte Carlo and forms a part of the great military highway built by Napoleon in 1806. Running above the rugged shore, it offers one of the world's most magnificent views—that of the azure coast from such an altitude.

Florida's Lent Odd Jumble of Religion, Sport

Solemn Church Attendance Mixed with Mad Rush to Track and Prize Fights.

MIAMI, Fla. — [Special.] — The Lenten season in the fashionable northern winter colony of south Florida is a time of surprises and unexpected contrasts. The seasonal piety manifested in dutiful attendance upon religious services, this year more widely provided than heretofore, is matched by an unprecedented patronage by socialites, as well as those of no social pretensions, at the horse races, prize fights, tennis and polo matches, supper clubs, and beach colonies.

Near the famous white temple, the choir of which is renowned throughout the south as the leading religious musical organization, the shouts, groans, and boos of excited spectators at the Carnera-Loughran ring battle competed with the sonorous harmony of an oratorio. The crowded traffic returning from exciting Hialeah almost isolated the massive sacred edifices of Biscayne boulevard from their congregations. Nevertheless the situation seems to be accepted in a Christian and tolerant spirit with no audible complaints.

One of the most colorful attractions of the south Florida winter is the international tropical flower show held at Miami Beach gardens. This season's exhibition was the fourth annual event and it was heavily patronized by visitors from the north. To most of them the exotic, luxurious blossoms were impressive news as of March 1. According to Mrs. J. Julien Southerland and Mrs. H. E. Talbott, who directed the display, the collections of cut flowers, formal, informal, rock, and tropical gardens were on a grander scale than ever before. Horticultural experts declared the orchid exhibit eclipsed anything hitherto shown.

Did You Know Department

THAT the women—some of them beautiful—of Tehuantepec, Mexico, outnumber the men five to one, but that the opposite is true in Buenos Aires. . . . That the three gold balls displayed by pawn shops in this and other countries were part of the coat of arms of the Medici family, once the rulers of Florence. . . . That the captain of the Berengaria, asked the other day if it were true that men who follow the sea have a sweetheart in every port, said he didn't know, as he hadn't been in every port. . . . That Java, with an area only as big as New York state, has a population of 42,000,000. . . . That the people of Berne, Switzerland, know winter is at hand when they catch the overwhelming smell of onions at the annual market in the arcaded streets. . . . That the Passion Play at Oberammergau goes Eugene O'Neill and Cecil de Mille one better; it has eighteen acts and a thousand actors.

DETOURS

By Frederic Babcock.

OVER the air the other night there came the voice of somebody singing something about "Good Night, Vienna." Apparently the singer didn't mean it that way, but, for this listener at least, there was a touch of prophecy in the song. This listener wondered if the recent blood spilling over there meant the end of what used to be one of the world's entrancing cities.

There was a time, before the Nazis and Fascisti and Socialists began shooting each other up, when the Viennese and their visitors could sit in the glow of a glass of beer and let the rest of the world go to hell as it pleased; when not all the violin players had been drowned out by the radio—not saying anything about the bullets; when life was much as it had been when Beethoven walked along the banks of the streams and composed better songs than "Good Night, Vienna"; when a person could take time to grow and expand before admitting the slow suffocation of old age.

That time has passed. The Viennese of today haven't time to sit down and listen to the music and the talk of their neighbors. They're more interested in killing off those neighbors. It is not at all unlikely that sooner or later that spirit will carry them across the borders of Austria and into neighboring countries, just as it did twenty years ago this summer. After that, of course, the neighboring countries, possessed of the same spirit, will jump in and start doing it all over again.

Then what?

● A good many observers believe the present unrest in Europe is due largely to the fellow who has been kicking up such a fuss with the swastika and trying to force it on the Austrians. H. G. Wells did pretty well in voicing a similar opinion when he made a speech in London some time ago.

"In Germany," he said, "the original and honest writer follows an adventurous and dangerous trade. He is hunted and manhandled, and he is lied about. He is struck at through his family and friends, and he will certainly be deprived of his property. He may be killed violently and disgustingly. . . . These are not matters of dispute; they are proved facts.

"The German affair is not a pogrom. . . . It is not only the Jews who suffer. To me it seems more than anything else a rebellion of a clumsy lout against civilization. It is the clumsy lout's revolution against books, against thought, against sanity. Where it will take Germany no one knows."

Mr. Wells' idea appeared to be that some day England would have to take a hand in the mess, and of course France and Italy and all the others would have to follow. A pretty prospect.

● A lot of Americans who like to travel in peace in the old world, the while they say a fervent prayer that their own country will never again get mixed up in the old world's quarrels, are hoping that Europe, remembering what the other war did, will come to its senses before it's too late.

The war that began twenty years ago took fifteen million lives and burned up two hundred and fifty billion dollars. And who won? Nobody knows. But 'twas a famous victory.

Credit Men to Tour West in Chartered Cars

CHICAGOANS are going traveling this summer though the city itself plays host to the nation. Perhaps one of the reasons is the attraction of lower railroad fares. The vacation dollar promises to be larger than it has been in years.

The first important vacation mass movement from Chicago has just been arranged. It is the eighteen day "Tour of America" of the Chicago Association of Credit Men, aboard a special train of chartered Pullmans, scheduled to leave on June 6. Visits to Mexico and Canada and scenic spots of the west are included in the itinerary.

Floating College Boasts Campus of 40,000 Miles

THE paradox of a university known as the world's smallest, yet boasting of 40,000 miles of ever changing campus, will be offered next fall.

It was announced yesterday that the floating university idea, popular a few years ago, would be revived this year and that the proposed sea-going institution would be operated on the longest cruise ever taken on such a mission. Sixty ports in 34 lands will be visited in the course of 225 days aboard the S. S. Volendam.

It was further announced that the students passing their final exams would be given a full year's credit at their own universities or colleges; that the purpose was purely cultural; that the class work would be supplemented by study from living text in all parts of the world, and that the itinerary had been planned to allow plenty of contrast as well as plenty of time in the more interesting ports of call.

The original floating university got a lot of publicity, some of it favorable and some of it otherwise.

Illinois D. A. R. Meet This Week for Conference

Several Projects Hold the Attention of Members at Evanston Sessions.

By Ruth DeYoung.

THE Daughters of the American Revolution, in name and deed the personification of patriotism, are rallying in Evanston this week for their thirty-eighth Illinois state conference. The session will open with a bugle call at 1:30 Wednesday, at the Evanston Woman's club, and wind up Friday afternoon with a benediction and the retirement of the colors.

Mrs. Julian G. Goodhue, in her capacity of state regent, will be the presiding officer. In the audience, 110 chapters scattered throughout the state from Antioch to Cairo will be represented.

The Lincoln Memorial bridge, spanning the Wabash river at Vincennes, Indiana, is one of the main projects with which the conference will be concerned. Since this bridge links Illinois to Indiana at the exact spot where Abraham Lincoln, at twenty-one, crossed with his family from Gentryville, Ind., and touched foot on Illinois soil for the first time, the local Daughters of the American Revolution feel that the spot should be appropriately marked.

Plan Natural Park as Commemoration.

The plan is to create a natural park with a monument commemorative of the young Lincoln. Gov. Horner has already expressed interest in the undertaking, and Robert Kingery, state director of public works, and State Architect C. Herrick Hammond are offering coöperation.

Mrs. Goodhue will also present to the conference the other projects in which the state chapters are interested. There is the student loan fund of more than $14,000, which was established to give deserving and needy young men and women an opportunity to continue their higher education. The national society has $280,000 which it keeps constantly revolving for this purpose.

The society has long been committed to a policy of adequate national defense. It is opposed to government by military control, but has spent much time in research work on the defense of the United States and subversive movements.

Strives for Friendly Contacts with Foreigners.

Under the heading "Americanism," the society is making a continuous effort to establish friendly contacts with foreign born citizens, prospects, and those already here. It has just added a third worker, a director of occupational therapy, in the hospital at Ellis Island. Two schools for underprivileged mountain children are maintained entirely by D. A. R. contributions, the Tamassee school in South Carolina and the Kate Duncan Smith school in Georgia.

The second day of the convention, Thursday, will present perhaps the most interesting array of events. Frank Kreml is to address the morning session on "Human Conservation Through Safety Measures." From four to six in the afternoon there will be a tea for the state officers at the woman's club, and in the evening the state dinner will be held at the Orrington hotel in Evanston.

Elections will be the main business of Friday.

Books Are Only Price of Admission to Shower.

One or more books is the price of admission to the book shower and authors' reception which the Illinois Woman's Press association is to have from two to six next Saturday afternoon, to open book week for the Chicago public library and its forty-four branches. The party is to be held in the G. A. R. Memorial hall of the library. Prominent authors are to give informal talks, and the Phoebean trio is to furnish a musical program.

Carl B. Roden, librarian of the Chicago public library, tells us that books on every subject are needed. To aid in the classification of the gifts next Saturday, members of the Press association are going to be hostesses at booths and tables marked art, biography, drama, fiction, juvenile, music, poetry, science, travel, and miscellaneous.

Among those serving in these booths will be Francesca Falk Miller, Etta Corbett Garson, Harriet Michael, Helen Downing, Marjorie Barrows, Minna L. Schmidt, Irene J. Crandall, Ethel Colson Brazelton, Nelle Eberhart, Roselle Dean, and Vivian Hoyt Church. Leona Alford Malek is president of the Press association.

Well Known Artists Give Musical Program.

A major attraction of the week is the concert which those two well known Chicago artists, Philip Manuel and Gavin Williamson, are to give at 8:30 Tuesday evening at the Goodman theater, for the benefit of the extension department of the Musicians' Club of Women.

The program is to be a recital for two harpsichords and two pianos. Incidentally, the harpsichords used by Manuel and Williamson were especially constructed for them in the ateliers of Pleyel in Paris, and are faithfully patterned after Bach's finest instruments.

The extension department of the Musicians' club is responsible for most of its philanthropic work, which includes the many concerts it gives in hospitals and public homes throughout the city.

TO BE A BRIDE THIS SPRING

Miss Louise Dewey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Dewey, is one of those fortunate young women upon whom nature smiles. She is blonde, pretty, charming, and versatile. One of the most attractive of the debutantes of two seasons ago, she has traveled extensively. The first step of her happy life will be completd in her marriag to Edward B. Smith, a son of th Solomon A. Smiths. The wedding will be a socially important event of the coming spring season.

When Chicago Was Young

Letters from Martha Freeman Esmond to her friend Julia Boyd of New York.

By Herma Clark.

Chicago, July 29, 1883.

DEAR Julia: We have just heard of the death of our friend Judge Thomas Hoyne in a railway accident at Ogdensburg, N. Y., and our hearts are sad over this loss to our city and to the Hoyne family. My father and Judge Hoyne were devoted to each other, a bond between them being their love of Shakespeare. I've heard them so often playing a sort of game in which when one quoted a part of a line or verse the other must finish it. If father were here today I think he would quote his favorite poet and say:

His life was gentle and the elements
So mixed in him that Nature might stand up
And say to all the world: "This was a man!"

Will and other lawyers of his age, younger than the judge, regarded him with affection and admiration. He came to Chicago in 1837 just after the city had received its charter and so he was one of the oldest members of the bar here. He was left an orphan at an early age and had to struggle for an education, his schooling being obtained largely in night classes. He and Judge George Manierre began a lifelong friendship in a literary club in New York where Horace Greeley was a fellow member. Judge Manierre came to Chicago a little before Judge Hoyne and his letters to the friend back in New York induced the latter to migrate here too.

Martha is feeling well and we have just left her at the beautiful Julian Rumsey house, around the corner from us, where several young marrieds are sitting on the steps. Sandy is to join her there after making a call on one of his patients. It is a saying in our neighborhood that if you would be one of the elect you must join St. James' church and sit on the Rumseys' steps, "for of such is the kingdom of heaven."

No more for this time, from your loving friend,

MARTHA FREEMAN ESMOND.

THE WORLD'S GREATEST NEWSPAPER

March 11, 1934

PUBLISHED BY WILLIAM SMITH PRINTSELLER No 702 SOUTH THIRD STREET PHILADELPHIA

St. PATRICK

Born in the year 361. Died in the year 488

THE GIBSON FAMILY ∴ Sally Is Coddled ∴ Mrs. Gibson Gets Weepy ∴ Julia Plays 2 Hearts

"I'M AFRAID YOUR COLD'S GONE," sighs Nurse Tippit, who has enjoyed babying Sally Gibson.

"Darling, it's your fault!" fondly teases Sally. "You've coddled me so. Here you are, washing my face with Ivory, just as you did when I was your first Gibson baby—"

"Yes," remembers Tippit, "I'll never forget how earnest Dr. MacRae was when he told me to use Ivory for your very first bath. And now your complexion's lovely 'cause it was brought up on pure soap."

PURITY AT IVORY'S PRICE IS A BEAUTY BARGAIN

"JUST SILLY, HENRY!" explains Mrs. Gibson. "Jerry has outgrown his bassinet so I'm giving it to Cousin Helen. Oh, Henry, Jerry soon won't be my baby, he'll be a boy—"

"Here's a clean handkerchief," tenderly offers Mr. Gibson. "Tears won't improve that blanket."

"Helen thought it was new," says Mrs. Gibson proudly. "Imagine, after all the times that blanket's been washed with Ivory Flakes. I told her lukewarm Ivory suds keeps wool soft and unshrunken. So important for a young mother to know!"

Yes, Mrs. Gibson, that's why—

FINE STORES SAY, "WASH BABY WOOLS WITH PURE IVORY"

"PALE HANDS I LO-O-OVED!" tenors Tim, with a cocky admiring stare at Julia's pretty hands.

"When does this gob's shore-leave end?" mutters Clancy, swamped in jealousy.

"Sh!" whispers Julia, "doesn't he sing lovely about my—that Shalimar girl's hands?"

Julia, just for teasing Clancy like that, Mrs. Gibson ought to deprive you of pure Ivory. Then you'd dread dishwashing. Then you'd be mortified about your hands!

PURE IVORY PREVENTS HOUSEWORK HANDS

Can a soap perform a Beauty Miracle?

SHE FELL IN LOVE, as girls do. But he was a doctor, which made everything very different, as he knew ALL ABOUT COMPLEXIONS.

NEVERTHELESS, SHE SAID, "Soaps nowadays are simply miraculous, aren't they? They have beauty oils and mysterious ingredients that keep the skin young and beautiful!"

LISTEN to him! "You don't believe all this fantastic beauty talk, do you?" he asked. "Science knows that soap is a cleanser—and that's all. Use pure soap, dear, because it cleanses gently. That's the way to keep your skin young."

This would be sad if pure soap were a luxury. But IVORY isn't. IVORY is all your beauty-wishing complexion could wish for—so pure and gentle, that it refreshes the skin and protects its youth. You can trust the soap that doctors advise for tiny, touchy babies!

Walk a lot—drink a lot of milk and water—eat simple food—so that your body will cooperate with Ivory's gentle cleansing to give your complexion a fresher, dewier look.

I get lots of compliments on my floors and it's SO EASY to keep them beautiful

"My dull, lifeless floors have changed into bright, gleaming floors since I learned about Johnson's Glo-Coat. This marvelous new polish shines as it dries. You don't have to rub it in or polish it. Just spread it lightly over the floor and let it dry for 20 minutes. When you come back you'll find your floor radiantly polished. It will be much easier to clean and it won't get scuffed and worn looking. Glo-Coat is wonderful for linoleum, rubber tile, painted and varnished floors."

Pabst-ett CONTEST

1ST PRIZE $1,000

2ND PRIZE $500
3RD PRIZE $300
4TH PRIZE $200
NEXT 5 PRIZES $100 EACH
NEXT 100 PRIZES $25 EACH

NEXT 100 PRIZES—each receive one genuine Toastmaster Hospitality Tray complete with two-slice Toastmaster (retail price $19.75 each).

NEXT 1,000 PRIZES—handsome chromium plated Cheese and Cracker Servers.

NEXT 1,000 PRIZES—Surprise Cheese Packages.

TOTAL OF 2,209 PRIZES, including $5,000 CASH!

Contest closes April 7, 1934. Full details below—also complete details inside every package of Pabst-ett.

REASON FOR THE CONTEST

• Ever since Pabst-ett, the revolutionary whole-milk cheese food, was introduced, it has been amazingly popular. Now we know why Pabst-ett is a wonderful food—but we would like to hear from the actual experience of users, exactly what are the secrets of the ever-growing success of this "more-than-cheese" food product.

To get these brief statements we are giving away 2,209 prizes in a very simple contest. There is $5000 in cash—first prize $1000, 109 cash prizes in all, the smallest $25.00. There are wonderful gifts like the 100 genuine Toastmaster Hospitality Trays, retail price $19.75. One or two simple sentences, or a very brief letter might easily win you one of these prizes. All we want are your honest reasons for liking Pabst-ett, from your own experience—written on ordinary paper, in your own words.

WHAT PABST-ETT IS

• Here is a brief description of Pabst-ett that will help you to win one of the prizes. Pabst-ett is a scientific cheese food as easily digested as milk, with the tang and flavor of cheese, the smoothness and spread-ability of butter—all in one.

It is so digestible that any member of your family can eat all he wants of it any time.

It is so nourishing that no finer food could be found for your children. It contains vitamin A in abundance—the same vitamin found in cod liver oil, butter, cream, spinach. Also it contains the valuable milk sugars, milk minerals (such as calcium), milk proteins of whole milk.

It is so convenient in use it has been called the "all purpose food." It spreads like butter, so sandwich making on soft bread is a moment's work. It melts quickly and easily, and does not get stringy—so it is ideal for use in cooking.

It has a wonderful tang and flavor of perfectly aged cheese. It comes in three varieties, all in the familiar, convenient round packages: Standard, Pimento and Swiss.

THE RULES ARE SIMPLE

• Just take the top off a package of Pabst-ett (from any Pabst-ett variety). Write your name and address on the inside of this box top. (If you cannot obtain Pabst-ett easily, a reasonably exact facsimile of the box top will do. It isn't necessary to buy to enter the contest.)

Then write in your own words, your answer to the question: "Why do you like Pabst-ett?"

Send your letter, with the round box top or facsimile, to Pabst-ett, P. O. Box 3, Madison Square Station, New York City, N. Y. Get your entry in as soon as possible. The contest closes on midnight, April 7, 1934. Send in as many entries as you wish.

• Get your entry and box top in early. Try Pabst-ett in a variety of ways—for toasted cheese sandwiches—for macaroni or potatoes au gratin—for welsh rarebit, or just plain melted on toast. Serve it to every member of your family. Any one of them may say something that will win you a prize.

Here's How to Win!

As a housewife you have a better chance than a college professor or a writer to win a prize. We are not looking for big, fancy entries. Brief, short statements, or very brief letters, telling in your own words why you like Pabst-ett, will have the best chances of winning. You may send in as many entries as you care to.

Here are a few simple statements of the kind that may win the prizes. You can see how easy this contest is.

1. "I like Pabst-ett because it has so many uses. Hardly a day goes by without my using it in soups, salads or sandwiches."

2. "You should hear my family cheer when I serve them macaroni or potatoes made with Pabst-ett."

3. "The main reason I like Pabst-ett is because it is best for eating and also for cooking. It melts easily, doesn't get stringy."

4. "My children are the main reason I like Pabst-ett. They have eaten many pounds of it since they were babies—and they are mighty healthy children."

5. "Pabst-ett spreads so easily, and has such a delicious flavor. My husband eats some every night before going to bed. It is so easy to digest."

RULES of the Contest

All you do to enter this contest for one of the 2,209 prizes:

1. Write your name and address on the inside of the box top from any package of Pabst-ett—in any of its three varieties (Standard, Pimento and Swiss). If unable to obtain Pabst-ett from your dealer, a facsimile of the box top will be accepted in lieu of the box top itself. Send in as many answers as you wish, but the box top or facsimile must be enclosed with each answer.

2. Write in your own words, your answer to the question: "Why do you like Pabst-ett?" All we want to know is your own personal experience with Pabst-ett, your own reasons for liking it.

3. Send your answer to Pabst-ett, P. O. Box 3, Madison Square Station, New York City. Be sure your name and address are clearly written out.

4. Judges for the contest will be Nancy Dorris, Home Economics Editor of The New York News; Mrs. Christine Frederick, Home Economics Editor of the American Weekly; and Esther E. Kimmel, Home Economics Editor of the New York Herald Tribune. Decisions of the judges will be accepted as final. No entries will be returned.

5. All entries must be postmarked before midnight, APRIL 7, 1934. Prize winners will be notified by mail as quickly as possible after close of the contest.

Perfume and powder

FOR A LADY WHO KNOWS HER MIND

"FRAGRANCE," the perfume, belongs, by right of discovery, to the woman who is looking for something new, and a little different from the perfumes that have crowded her dressing-table before. It is a brilliant, modern perfume.

"Fragrance," the face powder, is also perfumed with this intriguing odour. Like all Yardley powders, it is delicate, soft, and fine. It is issued in six shades, one of which will tone in with your skin exactly. They are: Natural, Rachel, Medium Rachel, Deep Rachel, Suntan, and English Peach. The price is $1.10, and the box will please you as much as a new picture. The perfume is $1.10 to $8.25 (for the size shown) at shops everywhere.

AN INCIDENT OF THE BALKAN-TURKISH WAR

PRODUCING MUSHROOMS FOR PARISIANS

WHOEVER has enjoyed a mushroom sauce in Paris knows that the French have a high appreciation of this delicious member of the vegetable kingdom. Demand for mushrooms is greater in Paris than anywhere else and, consequently, mushroom production is an important French industry. The above picture is a scene in one of the many mushroom caves of Paris. These underground dungeons produce thousands of pounds of mushrooms daily. The caves are dark and damp and are from 60 to 160 feet underground. The mushroom beds are prepared in these long underground passages in such a way that at least one bed is in production all the time. As high as 3,000 pounds of mushrooms are produced daily in some of the caves. The Paris mushroom is that variety known scientifically as agaricus hortensis and it differs in appearance and in taste from the common or meadow mushroom. The difference, however, is slight. Most of the large cities of Europe obtain mushrooms from the French capital. Successful mushroom production demands considerable knowledge and skill and there are many hazards in the business. The Parisian growers are leaders in this highly specialized profession.

BLONDES

heed this warning!

THERE'S a lot of "come hither" in sparkling, real golden blonde hair! But watch the danger line at the part, around the forehead — hair darkening at the roots. It ruins a blonde's attractiveness. Whether it's due to hair growing in darker or imperfect care, all you need is BLONDEX, the unusual shampoo designed to keep blonde hair always beautiful. Blondex is not a harsh dye. Simply a fine powder bubbling instantly into a beneficial, frothy lather. Naturally brings out all the dazzling charm, the golden sheen and lustre that makes blonde hair so fascinating. Get the inexpensive 25c package, or the economical $1 size, at any drug or department store. NEW: Have you tried Blondex Wave Set? Doesn't darken light hair —not sticky or flaky—only 35c.

SURGERY SOLVES HEADACHE

WOUNDED by shrapnel during the world war, James P. Sherry of Rochester, N. Y., complained recently of severe headaches. An X-ray revealed a knife blade imbedded in his skull. The blade, it is believed, was contained in the shrapnel which struck him. The blade probably was red hot when it entered his skull and automatically cauterized the wound.

Help Your Kidneys

Don't Take Drastic Drugs

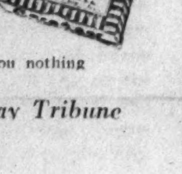
You have 9 million tiny tubes or filters in your Kidneys, which are at work night and day cleaning out Acids and poisonous wastes and purifying your blood, which circulates through your kidneys 200 times an hour. So it's no wonder that poorly functioning Kidneys may be the real cause of feeling tired, run-down, nervous, Getting Up Nights, Rheumatic Pains and other troubles.

Nearly everyone is likely to suffer from poorly functioning Kidneys at times because modern foods and drinks, weather changes, exposure, colds, nervous strain, worry and over-work often place an extra heavy load on the Kidneys.

But when your Kidneys need help, don't take chances with drastic or irritating drugs. Be careful. If poorly functioning Kidneys or Bladder makes you suffer from Getting Up Nights, Leg Pains, Nervousness, Stiffness, Burning, Smarting, Itching, Acidity, Rheumatic Pains, Lumbago, Loss of Vitality, Dark Circles under the eyes, or Dizziness, don't waste a minute. Try the Doctor's prescription Cystex (pronounced Siss-tex). See for yourself the amazing quickness with which it soothes, tones and cleans raw, sore irritated membranes.

Cystex is a remarkably successful prescription for poorly functioning Kidneys and Bladder. It is helping millions of sufferers, and many say that in just a day or so it helped them sleep like a baby, brought new strength and energy, eased rheumatic pains and stiffness—made them feel years younger. Cystex starts circulating through the system in 15 minutes, helping the Kidneys in their work of cleaning out the blood and removing poisonous acids and wastes in the system. It does its work quickly and positively but does not contain any dopes, narcotics or habit forming drugs. The formula is in every package.

Because of its amazing and almost world-wide success, the Doctor's Prescription known as Cystex (pronounced Siss-tex) is offered to sufferers of poor Kidney and Bladder functions under the fair-play guarantee to fix you up to your complete satisfaction or money back on return of empty package. It's only 8c a dose. Ask your druggist for Cystex today and see for yourself how much younger, stronger and better you can feel by simply cleaning out your kidneys. Cystex must do the work or cost you nothing.



City Health Doctor Praises Cystex

Doctors and druggists everywhere approve of the prescription Cystex because of its splendid ingredients and quick action. For instance, Dr. W. R. George, graduate Medical Dept. University of Indiana, former Health Commissioner of Indianapolis, and Medical Director for insurance company 10 years, recently wrote the following letter:

Dr. W. R. George

"There is little question but what properly functioning Kidney and Bladder organs are vital to the health. Insufficient kidney excretions are the cause of much needless suffering with aching back, weakness, painful joints and rheumatic pains, headaches and a general run down exhausted body. This condition also interferes with normal rest at night by causing the sufferer to rise frequently for relief and results in painful excretion, itching, smarting and burning. I am of the opinion that Cystex definitely corrects frequent causes (poor kidney functions) of such conditions and I have actually prescribed in my own practice for many years past the same ingredients contained in your formula. Cystex not only exerts a splendid influence in flushing poisons from the urinary tract, but also has an antiseptic action and assists in freeing the blood of retained toxins. Believing as I do that so meritorious a product deserves the endorsement of the Medical Profession, I am happy indeed to lend my name and photograph for your use in advertising Cystex." Signed W. R. George, M. D.

PERSONAL

IF you were born Sept. 21-Oct. 3, and especially if born Oct. 4-14 you may safely trust your inner urges to expand along non-speculative lines; study other people's interests in connection with yours and don't be selfish, particularly Thursday and Friday. If you are a native of Aug. 10-Sept. 2, particularly of the last nine days of this period, steer around unsupported hunches, unruly and unproved emotions both in private affairs and in business matters with emphasis on Monday and Tuesday this week. Obligations and commitments to be made with unusual care, if at all, by sons and daughters of Jan. 29-Feb. 21, notably Feb. 11-21, especially if tempted in some way tomorrow. Inflammation of the mind is as bad as an automobile accident—be advised, friends of March 10-April 2, especially those born March 19-April 2. Don't let your temper wander, Joan Crawford, John J. Raskob, and Arturo Toscanini. Deal with those higher up, if you were born March 4-27, especially March 12-27.

Joan Crawford

SHIFTS

A state of transition is being gone through in the minds and affairs of those born Feb. 21-28, April 11-18, Aug. 26-Sept. 2, and Oct. 15-21. This is a mixture of intellect and emotion—a strong driving force. The course of wisdom is to direct it, not to try to stifle it. Make changes for the better, if these groups include your birthday. If born April 1-24 (note overlap with above) especially 15-24, shifts are imperative; make moves definitly.

AVOID SCANDAL

Guard the foundations of your reputation, if born Feb. 13-March 8 (take no chances Tuesday), Sept. 9-Oct. 3 (care Wednesday and Thursday) or April 2-25 (self-deception Friday and Saturday to be avoided). Natives of March 6-29 (note overlap) should eliminate secrets, both their own and those of others.

FINANCES AND ESTATE

Better conditions in money matters to be worked for and obtained definitly at this time by the deserving who were born Jan. 5-28 (planning, business, selling, advertising), Jan. 26-Feb. 18 (ability and contacts with important people), Aug. 21-Sept. 14 (self-development and responsibility). Avoid extravagance if born Feb. 1-24. Take no risks on untried matters if born Feb. 23-March 18, or July 10-Aug. 2. Avoid new obligations if born Dec. 25-Jan. 15. Favorable for natives of March 2-7, April 4-8, and Oct. 5-12, if careful. Avoid risks in estate if born Dec. 29-Jan. 20, May 8-31, or June 20-July 14—don't squander savings.

ROMANCE

If eligible by age and previous condition of servitude, this week favors romantic developments, if you were born Sept. 21-Oct. 14 (but go slow Thursday and Friday), May 19-June 13 (watch Tuesday and Wednesday), or Nov. 2-25 (careful tomorrow). Enthusiasm looks strong in this department for natives of Nov. 8-Dec. 1, but keep one foot on the ground, especially tomorrow and Tuesday. This applies to Jack Oakie, Pat O'Brien, and Barbara Mdivani. Don't let your emotion play confidence games with you this week if born Nov. 29-Dec. 22 (note overlap), or April 6-30.

Barbara Mdivani

HEALTH

Watch state of nerves and health generally this week, if you were born March 8-31, especially 29-31 (nerves), particularly Wednesday and Thursday this week; if born Aug. 25-Sept. 18, especially Sept. 15-18 (intestines) particularly Tuesday and Wednesday; if born Oct. 5-28 (kidneys) particularly Friday and Saturday; if born Oct. 27-Nov. 19 (middle of body), especially tomorrow, Saturday and next Sunday. Definite opportunity for improvement in bodily health (mentally, too, if you will work for it) if born April 18-May 12.

MARRIAGE AFFAIRS

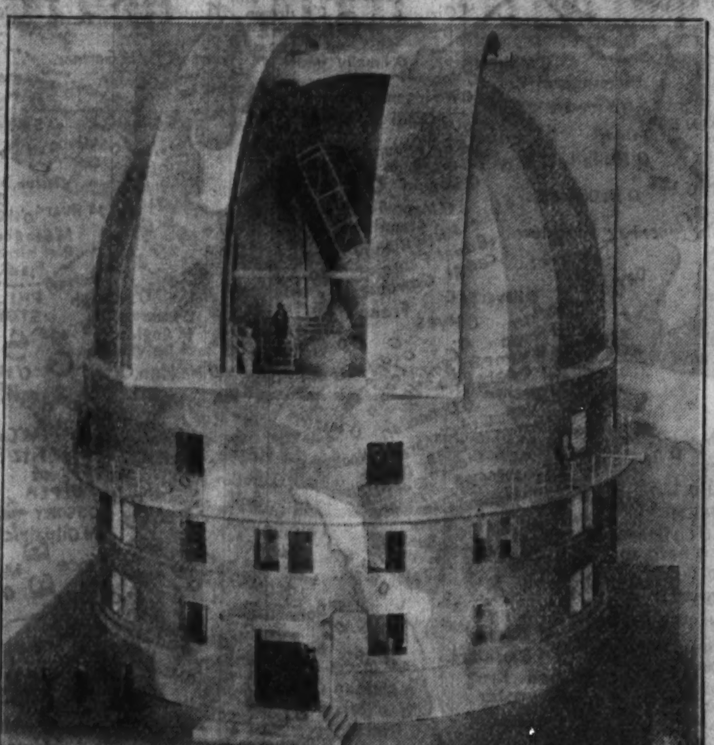
A good time for deciding on marriage problems, if any, whether married or single, if you were born March 19-April 11, especially April 1-11 (Thursday and Friday your best days this week). If born Feb. 6-29, especially 20-29, don't permit emotions, plus or minus, to dictate your actions and decisions—keep cool, particularly tomorrow and Tuesday. Don't throw away valuable possessions, whether relationships or things, if you entered the world Oct. 4-27, especially 18-27 (hold everything Friday and Saturday this week). This applies to Fannie Hurst, Evelyn Brent, and B. A. Rolfe. Domestic and matrimonial matters social and pleasant, or can be made so, for those born July 24-Aug. 17.

Evelyn Brent

SOCIAL

This will be a week for social progress, entertainment and general all around, innocent (keep it that way) pleasure for those born Feb. 16-20, April 19-23, Aug. 21-25, and Oct. 22-26. If born Jan. 21-Feb. 13, especially Jan. 31-Feb. 13, make the most of relations with the opposite sex and in social and artistic interests; caution, however, Saturday and next Sunday. Improve business and occupational matters in connection with social affairs, if born April 17-May 11, especially May 1-11, particularly Saturday.

SECOND LARGEST TELESCOPE



Model of McDonald observatory of the University of Texas, showing the 80-inch mirror of the telescope.

CONTRACTS have been let by the University of Texas for the design and construction of the McDonald observatory, for which the University of Chicago will supply the trained experts needed for operation. The telescope, which will be the second largest in the world, will be exceeded in size only by the 100 inch telescope on Mount Wilson in California. The design of the observatory is the work of E. P. Burrell, director of engineering for a Cleveland company which will construct the telescope. When completed, the observatory, to be located in southwestern Texas, will be taken over by Dr. Otto Struve of the University of Chicago and a staff of technical experts. For the observatory Dr. Struve selected a site on Mount Locke, about 16 miles from the little town of Fort Davis. The atmosphere of this vicinity is clear and dry, ideal for the purposes of an observatory, according to Dr. Struve. The construction of the observatory was made possible by a bequest of the late W. J. McDonald of Paris, Texas. The cost has been estimated at $900,000. Dr. Struve at present is chief of staff of the University of Chicago's Yerkes observatory.

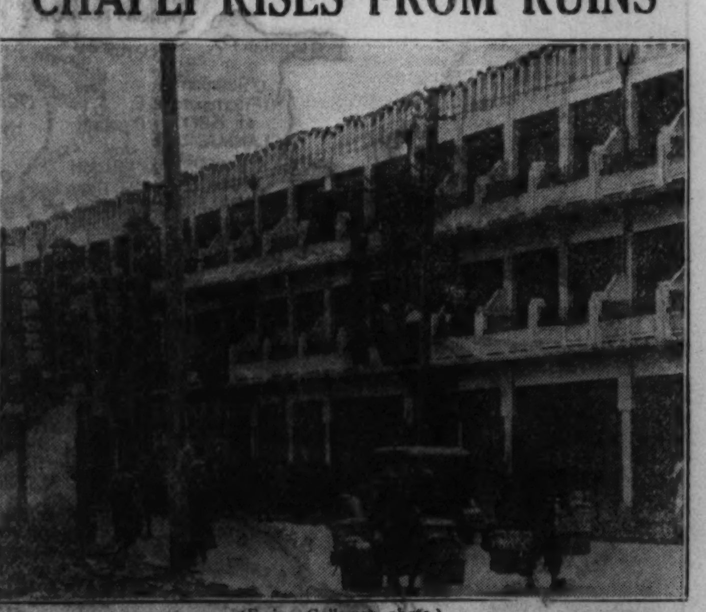
THEY MAKE THEIR OWN

(Acme photo.)

THEY make and play their own pipes, these devotees of the "Pipes of Pan," at Bedford college, London, England. The course they are taking was arranged by the Pipers' guild for the purpose of furthering the craft of pipe makers and to increase the number of pipe players in England. It is perhaps the most unusual of musical courses offered at any English institution. The course, however, in spite of its name, is no "pipe." The students must manufacture instruments of approved tone and design and then must learn to play them expertly.

CHAPEI RISES FROM RUINS



(Ewing Galloway photo.)

IT HAS not been so long since the world was startled by news that a Japanese army, equipped with tanks, bombing planes, and other modern weapons of war, was advancing to the accompaniment of machine gun and rifle fire and the booming of heavy artillery on Chapei, native city of Shanghai, China. The district was demolished. It has not remained a pile of ruins, however, as the above picture of a new and modern apartment building shows. There are still signs in Chapei of the Japanese bombardment, but they are fast being removed and new, up-to-date buildings are rising.

BAITED BERLIN JEWS CREATE STAGE OASIS

Ostracized Artists of Theater and Opera Present Productions of High Merit Under Official Protection

By Sigrid Schultz

Berlin.

WHAT was meant as a curse may prove a blessing in the case of Germany's Jewish artists. When they found themselves ostracized, deprived of jobs, they got together and founded the "Kultur Association of German Jews," staging some of Berlin's finest productions, both operatic and theatrical, under the patronage of the Prussian ministry of culture.

Most Berlin stages have turned political, or they have gone back to the good old times with such a vengeance that it is hard to be amused by them. The Jewish theater is an oasis of art for art's sake

Only the members of the "Kultur Association of German Jews" and a few privileged foreigners may attend the performances. German Gentiles are not allowed to go to the Jewish theater—not that the Jews forbid their coming, but the German government ruled that the association must perform only for Jews. Gentile husbands or wives or other non-Jewish relatives of Jews cannot get into the Jewish theater, much as they would love to. If a Jewess, married to a Christian, wants to go to her theater, she'll have to leave hubby at home or let him go out by his lonesome. That is the rule passed by the ministry, and no organization is more law fearing than the Jewish Kultur association. There is no doubt that if its theater were opened to the public thousands would come despite the strong anti-Jewish feeling prevailing in wide circles and the artificial anti-Jewish feeling sported by those who believe hatred of Jews might make them look more Nazi than they are.

When the Jewish theater first started business, to be sure, the Nazi actors' group protested loudly and vehemently. But apparently government pressure reduced the shouts to silence, and the few policemen on duty at the opening had no more to do than policemen at ordinary first night performances.

More than 170 concerts, plays, operas, and lectures have been presented by this society since its foundation in October, 1933. In the old Berliner theater, which once housed the presentations of the world famous Max Reinhardt, also a Jew now a fugitive from Germany Dr Kurt Singer, manager of the Municipal Opera of Berlin from 1927 until 1931, carries on the task of making good music and drama available to German Jewry.

Presentations have not been limited to the strictly Jewish field Figaro and Othello have been the two operas offered to date. Next month will see "The Tales of Hoffman" sung in the old theater Lessing's famous play, "Nathan the Wise," and Wolf-Ferrari's comic opera, "Die Neugierigen Frauen" (The Curious Women), have had excellent reviews. The orchestra under the leadership of Joseph Rosenstock, formerly of Mannheim, one time of the Metropolitan, New York, offers some of the best compositions of Gluck, Mendelssohn, Schubert, Chopin, Eber and Beethoven. Lectures are given in the fields of literature music, art and religion, with special reference to Jewish accomplishments in each field.

So enthusiastic has been the public's reception that each play and opera has had to be presented eighteen times in order to permit all 20,000 members of the association to see each piece. Tickets sell at two marks. Jews living outside Berlin have asked that performances be given in their towns, and as a result the "Othello" company of seventy-three people made a tour of Dresden, Breslau, Frankfort, and Liegnitz. Their trip was so successful that Dr. Singer is contemplating the formation of a second company which will go "on the road" so that other German Jews may enjoy the same productions the Berlin audiences do.

Once a month, in a kind of laboratory experiment, shows are given by children for children. Sometimes the children are given only an outline of the action taking place, and then are left to improvise their own lines to fit the outline. This novel procedure, according to Dr. Singer, is developing a few of the children into first class actors, who will be trained later on to take part in the larger productions.

The organization, which began work last October with only three employees, now has 260 wage earners on its pay roll, all of them Jews who have lost their jobs as a result of present conditions in Germany. The office at times resembles that of an employment or charity agency, with many unemployed asking for jobs of one kind or another.

Naturally, this is not a big enough organization to take care of all the Jewish actors and artists who lost their jobs in the Hitler regime

Many an outstanding star left Germany. Elizabeth Bergner, idolized in the days of Max Reinhardt, has been playing and filming in London, though the German film industry is trying to lure her back, realizing that the anti-Jewish campaign did more harm than good in the artistic world.

Richard Tauber, tenor, son of a Jewish cantor, whom the German Gretchens pursued with adoration only a year ago, sings in London and in Holland. Max Landa, matinee idol for years, committed suicide in Jugo Slavia, too old to build up a new life. Blond Gitta Alpar is back in Budapest, forgotten by the men who used to stand in line by the hour trying to catch a smile from her.

Felix Hollander, the composer, is in Paris, yet the German stage, short of snappy composers, is glad to play his operettas and sketches.

Siegfried Arno, whose greatest capital was the size of his nose, is acting in Spain and Barcelona. Felix Bressart, whose nose is almost as big as that of Arno, still is acting in German films. He is a veteran, and as such gets a special permit to act. The same applies to happy-go-lucky Fatty Otto Wallburg; yet Wallburg is having a hard time; he is supposed to appear only in the theater, but his chief source of income was the films. High powered friends are trying to help him because of his art, his wife and his tiny baby.

Blond Hans Albers, matinee idol, looking just as most Nordics would like to look, had quite a struggle for some time, people asserting his wife was Jewish—and a Jewish spouse usually bars artists from stage and screen.

Little Grete Mosheim, blond, blue-eyed, praised as the ideal "Gretchen," suddenly found herself without a job because of a Jewish grandmother. She and her sister, Lore, were allowed to play after they proved their father died for the fatherland in the world war, but it was months before a suitable part could be found for Grete, and when it was found it was a pretty punk part. Nothing has turned up for Lore.

Alexander Moissi, Albert Bassermann, Ernst Deutsch, Tilla Durieux, whose names spell histrionic greatness in the German theater, banded together and are touring Switzerland, giving classical art at its purest to their Swiss audiences.

Some actors managed to scrape up foreign citizenship. Fresh little Max Hansen suddenly remembered he was a Dane and quickly straightened out his passport. Adele Sandrock, whose main assets are the wrinkles with which she sends youth into gales of laughter, sports a Dutch passport.

The former queen of Berlin gayety, Fritzi Massary of operetta fame, Rosa Valetti, and Fritzi's husband, famous Max Pallenberg, are in Vienna, heart-broken exiles. Vienna is their home town, but Berlin saw their triumphs, and they are too old to begin life anew, and Vienna makes them feel like intruders—"We were not good enough when you were at your best," says the usually light-hearted city, showing how cruel it can be to prodigal sons and daughters in distress.

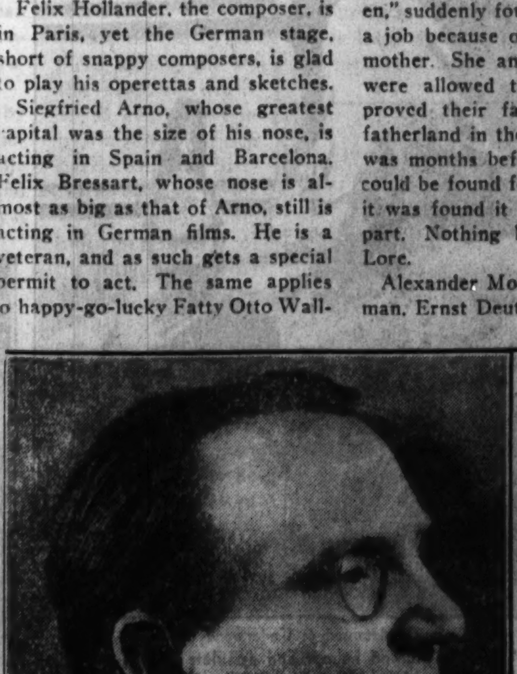
Here is the acting company of the Kultur Association of German Jews as it appeared in a scene from Wolf Ferrari's comic opera, "Die Neugierigen Frauen." In the picture are Susanne Stein, Erich Fuchs, Erica Storm, Fritz Lodmer, Walter Olitzki, Fritz Feher, Anna Brand, Julius Kuthen, and Herman Kant.

Fritzi Massary, once queen of Berlin gayety, and her famous husband, Max Pallenberg, were in happier circumstances when this picture was taken. They were starting on a Mediterranean cruise. Today they are in Vienna, heartbroken exiles. With them in Austria is Rosa Valetti, also an exile.

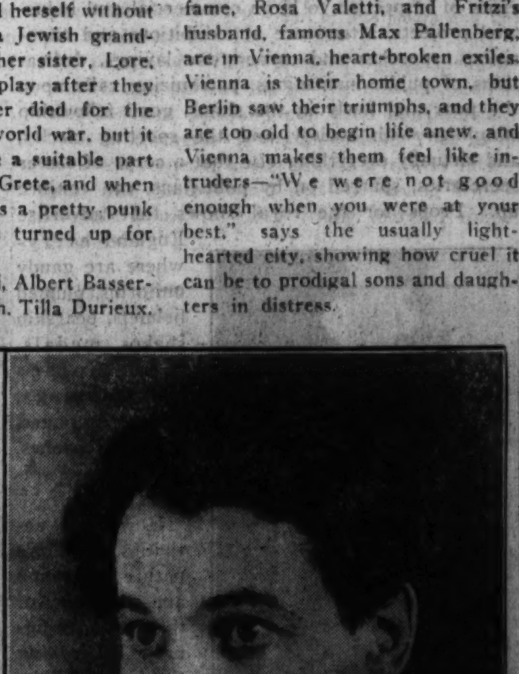
Joseph Rosenstock, formerly concert director at Mannheim and well known in New York, now is director of the Jewish orchestra in Berlin.

Dr. Kurt Singer, former Berlin music critic and once manager of the Municipal opera, who now is head of the Jewish Kultur association.

Tilla Durieux, whose name spells histrionic greatness in the German theater, now is touring Switzerland with a group of distinguished artists presenting classical drama and winning new laurels on foreign soil.



Richard Tauber, tenor and former matinee idol in Berlin, is the son of a Jewish cantor. He now sings in London and in Holland.



Alexander Moissi, a member of the classical drama company touring Switzerland, is well known in America. He was starred not so long ago in Hollywood.

THE British empire has been termed a "crowned republic." That means that the English have a king and a royal family to look up to, to bow to, and to cherish—but a king and a royal family who meddle not in affairs of state. Theirs obviously is a more important job than directing a government (mere politicians do that); they are the press agents de luxe of that sprawling empire upon which the sun never sets.

They—the king, his queen, his sons, his daughter, and his grandchildren—are the magnificent advertisers of England and the English idea; they sell Britain and British patriotism; they are the advance agents and the figurative horn blowers and bell ringers of British industry and British trade both at home and abroad; they are the regal publicity directors for their "nation of shopkeepers."

". . . called Davy by his family . . ."

Barnum at his best never could have conceived a publicity stunt so broad and so comprehensive as the English business of keeping the nation ever before the world's public through the king and his family—a glorified pantomime troupe in a continuous performance. Imperial peddlers of a complete line of wares, the royal family enjoys leisure, of course, but it is always at the call of the country, ready to dispatch one or more of its members to any point, near or far, as the special and added attraction of any old sort of a show intended to boost Great Britain's prestige.

Wherever on British soil the king or one of his family appears there is a "pepfest" of patriotism. When one of the royal sons, or even the king—though the king seldom goes abroad now—visits a foreign land, there is considerable homage paid to the distinguished guest, for the British idea has been sold extremely well almost everywhere. This all entails a great deal of traveling about in short excursions and lengthy trips on the part of England's first-line press agents. Sons of the sovereign are called upon to make protracted journeys to faraway colonies and dominions, are frequently rushed to alien lands to represent the nation at international events, and are seldom free at any length from domestic demands upon their time.

". . . John . . . died fifteen years ago . . ."

Inherited duties of the royal folk in the line of "putting Britain over in a big way" include public appearances at ceremonies of almost every nature, visits of inspection to large commercial and industrial projects, attendance at exhibitions and expositions, speeches and cornerstone layings, dedications of public institutions, patronizing calls upon the poor and lowly in the slums, good fellowship minglings with society and the sporting circles, and virtually everything else that a corps of clever secretaries, spurred on by politicians, can conjure up. Props for the royal shows that advertise England everywhere are gaudy uniforms, plumed helmets, bearskin shakos, medals, swords, horses and trappings, open carriages, gilded coaches, and plenty of soldiers.

(Underwood & Underwood photo)
". . . in her girlhood . . . princess of Teck."

How much activities of this nature and pomp and pageantry of this sort have figured in making the fame of Britain and British goods never can be measured, but it is a well known fact that the empire's prosperity in its broader aspects began when Queen Victoria's son, who later became Edward VII., began his journeys which included a visit, as baron of Renfrew, to the United States back in 1860.

"Even in plumed helmet and epaulets he was a docile figure beside his cousin Willie, the overbearing Kaiser."

England, by sending its royal sons hither and yon, makes its colonies believe that they are nearly as important as the mother country itself. By tossing a prince or a duke of the royal family into a foreign land it tips off in advance that a trade drive on the country visited is a-brewing. (Witness the popularity in America of checkered suits made of English woolens after a visit of the prince of Wales to the land of the free and the home of the brave.) English sales managers know that the legend "By appointment to His Imperial Majesty George V." on a sauce bottle, a marmalade can, or a cigaret box is first-rate advertising. Even Americans—some, at least—like to know that they are drinking the same kind of Scotch that royalty serves to its guests.

Some foreign countries are obliged to maintain ministers of propaganda; Britain needs no such official—it has the royal family, the members of which are more photographed than Hollywood's most famous stars.

In America the public has its fancies, such as the President, whose popularity always depends largely upon economic and political conditions in the country; the far-flying Colonel Lindbergh, who gathers gaping crowds wherever he goes; or celebrities of stage, screen, and baseball diamond, brazenly accepting hero worship for its value in dollars and cents. But America has nothing, human or otherwise, to compare with the perpetually popular royal family of England—the empire's most dignified "ballyhoo."

"The king, as the nation's exhibit A, is the headliner of principal public events . . . rides a horse in military parades . . ."

It must not be thought, however, that the millions of ordinary people in the empire realize that the royal family to all purposes is only the decorative front of Great Britain, for possibly only the politicians and the like know that. To the masses the royal family, especially the king, is the personification of the empire. One never hears a Briton exclaim, "For my country!" or "For the good old flag!" It is always "For king and country!" A curious situation, too, in a land where men stress equality, emphasize liberty above all else, defend their rights so stanchly, and refuse to be pushed about. In England people everywhere actually weep when a king or a queen dies, and in far places where Britons foregather the toast "The king!" brings homesick exiles to their feet, hoarse shouts on their lips and tears in their eyes. It would be inadequate and indefinite to call England's royal family an institution. It is a great deal more than that in the minds of the people, though there is no word nor set of words to describe properly its status and its position in the British scheme of things.

(U. & U. photo.)
". . . uniform of . . . an admiral . . ."

Even to begin to understand why the English must have a king, upon whom they can put a golden crown and drape ermine-trimmed robes, one must back-track through the histories of the houses of Stuart, Tudor, and York clear to the days of Egbert of Wessex.

Head man and principal actor of the royal company of press agents is His Most Excellent Majesty George Frederick Ernest Albert of Windsor, bearing the title of George the Fifth, by the grace of God, of Great Britain, Ireland, and the British dominions beyond the seas, king, defender of the faith, emperor of India—and the most important person in the whole empire. Descendant of the Hanoverian kings—whose line included the first George, who could not speak English, and George III., archvillain of American history books—and grandson of Victoria, George V. has a wealth of family background and an abundance of tradition to bolster him up for his press agent work. But somehow or other, it is said, the ordeals of public appearances are distasteful to the king. He would much rather, it is hinted, chuck the whole business, to conduct a shop on a side street or operate a sheep ranch in Scotland. He cares not for bright uniforms and shining swords. Even in plumed helmet and epaulets he was a docile figure beside his Cousin Willie, the overbearing kaiser. But he knows just what the nation expects of him and is ever ready, when health permits, to don the uniform of a field marshal or an admiral and lend his presence to an act or a scene of the great imperial revue—that publicity performance which never is permitted to lag when it can score a hit for Britain.

The king, who once was merely the second son of a sovereign and who became heir apparent only through the death in 1892 of his brother, the duke of Clarence, early in life learned of his responsibility as an advertiser of England. As a youthful naval cadet he was shipped about from colony to dominion and from dominion to colony. Before he ascended the throne in 1910 he visited the outposts of the empire, journeying through Canada and Newfoundland and traveling in India and Africa. Hardships of that nature, however, are not undertaken today by the sovereign, though occasionally he is called upon to make a political trip to some nearby European country. The more trying travels are left to the sons. The king, as the nation's exhibit A, is the headliner of principal public events. Being crowned king of England and emperor of India and proroguing parliament are his big moments. He rides a horse in military parades; is expected to appear at the opening of important ex-forthwith. If brown bowlers (derbies in America) are selling slowly, the king wears a brown bowler, and then Englishmen flock to the hatters to buy brown bowlers. If the fisheries complain of poor business, George eats more fish. The people learn about it and immediately turn to fish. So it goes. A slump in any kind of trade is certain to attract attention of the king.

He always is interested in new industries, and usually extends his royal patronage to infant undertakings that give promise. The automotive industry long has enjoyed his favor. He has been an ardent motorist since the days of the first Rolls-Royce. Aviation, too, has come in for its share of royal attention, the king wanting faster and still faster planes for the army and navy and improved planes for commercial flying. Manufacturing, mining, shipbuilding, and agriculture are magnets for royal attention. Annually he gives prizes for the finest cabbages, beets, and mangel-wurzels grown in the British isles.

". . . the most important person . . ."

Business ever turns to the king and ever he turns to business. The sales campaign to put more English and Scotch textiles into America and to promote an American taste for British styles may not have had his active assistance, but certainly he knew about it and sponsored and supported it in the ways that he could. Even the king's private hobbies, shooting, yachting, and philately, are commercialized by gunsmiths, boat builders, and stamp dealers. The sovereign is said to have a genuine love for all sports, and, though he might be suspected of being indifferent toward some forms of games, he always applauds the winning athletes. He knows that sports mean healthier Britons and that healthier Britons mean a more robust nation. Patriotic gestures, of course, naturally are attached to the business of being a king. In 1917, in the midst of the world war, George V. proclaimed that the royal house of Great Britain and Ireland no longer should be known as the house of Saxe-Coburg and Gotha, after his grandfather, the German Albert, but as the house of Windsor. That was in line with the British Battenbergs changing their name to Mountbatten and the later change in America of German fried potatoes to cottage fried.

Almost as high in British public esteem as the king, and nearly as stoutly anchored in the affections of English millions, is the Queen Consort Victoria Mary Augusta Louise Olga Pauline Claudine Agnes (commonly called Queen Mary), who in her girlhood days of tight corsets, plumes, and feather fans was princess of Teck.

The queen usually is seen in public with her royal spouse, though often she is in demand, without George, for dedicating nursing homes, girls' community houses, hospitals, needle guilds, and the like. Not considered stylish in the modern sense, with her weirdly old-time hats, she nevertheless sets fashions for the more sedate and the elderly women of the empire. A recent inspection of a British textile mill by the queen was taken to mean that she approved the types of weaves being produced there—weaves now bound to become popular as a result of her approval.

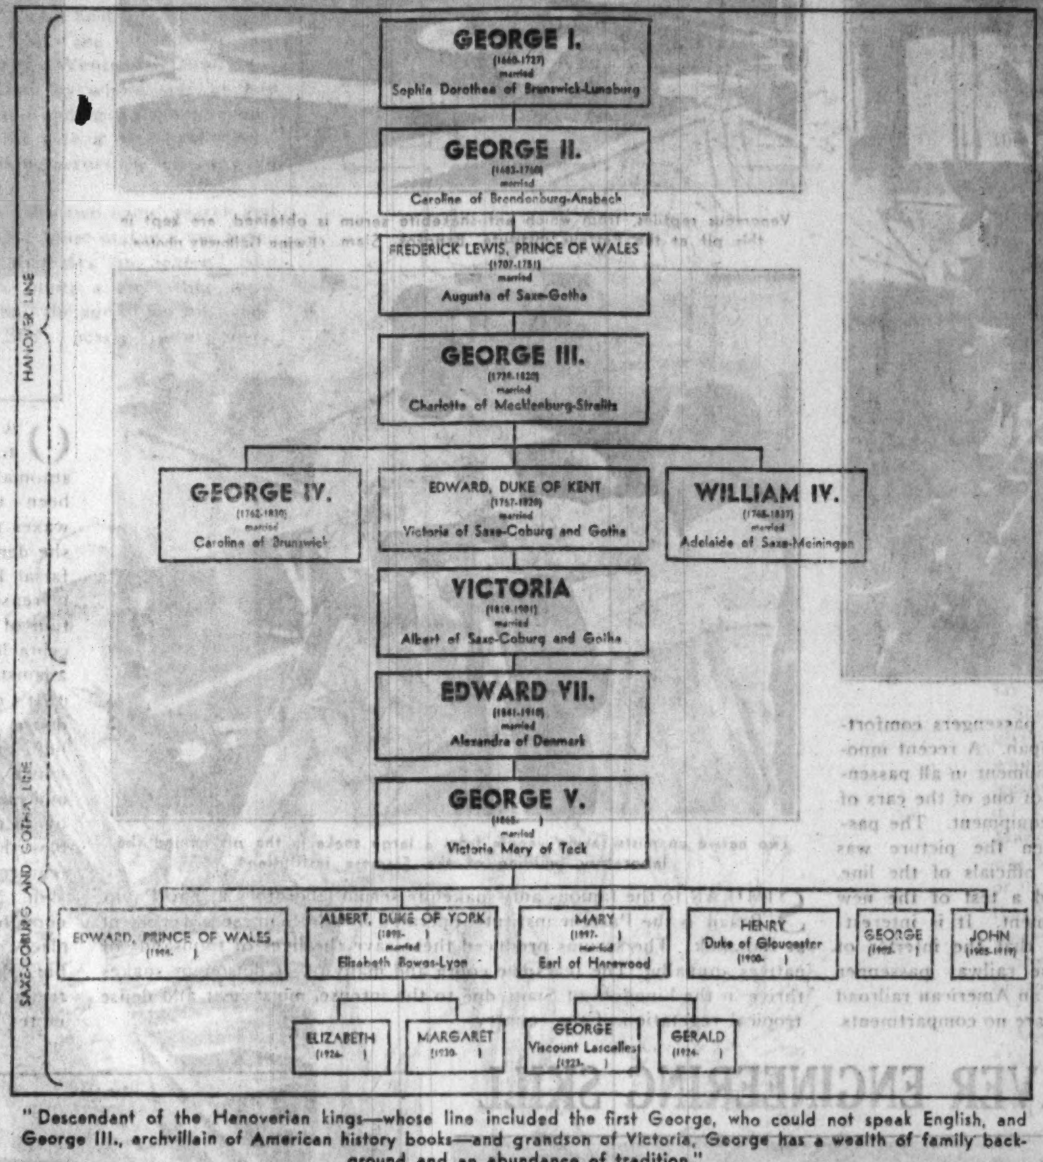
". . . he permits wide play of his humor." (Wales in feminine role.)

For best results in national publicity work by reigning houses, large families are required. Victoria, a woman of amazing fecundity, was the mother of nine. Edward, Victoria's eldest son and husband of Alexandra of Denmark, fathered a royal brood of five, two sons and three daughters. George and Mary became the parents of six (Prince John Charles Francis died fifteen years ago at the age of thirteen), the eldest of whom is Edward Albert Christian George Andrew Patrick David, prince of Wales, earl of Chester, duke of Cornwall, duke of Rothesay, earl of Carrick, baron of Renfrew, lord of the isles, and grand steward or seneschal of Scotland—called Davy by his family. He is England's most popular bachelor, and still young—next June 23 he will be forty years old. Being a bachelor, it can be seen, helps make him an excellent press agent for the empire. So widely has he traveled in the interests of the nation in the colonies and in foreign lands, including the United States, that he has come to be looked upon as the world's leading "ambassador of good will."

Wales, as heir to the throne, is the second man in England. Next to the king he handles the most important publicity assignments, and handles them well, for all his life he has been in training for his work. He wears brilliant uniforms on the right occasions, but in civvies he is Bond street's fashion plate, setting the styles for men in a large part of the civilized world. He is ever active in promoting British patriotism and British trade, and seems to get considerable enjoyment out of his duties. His principal roles as the empire's advertiser are those of public poser, public speaker, sportsman, and democratic good fellow. In the last named character he permits wide play of his humor. As a sportsman, a role that goes over well with Britons, he is prone to take grave chances in big game hunting and similar pastimes. He no longer, however, is allowed to risk his royal neck in steeplechasing since his frequent tumbles at the jumps became historic a couple of years ago. The prince's journeys abroad generally are attended by much of the spectacular. Newspapers everywhere record his travels in a British cruiser, his visits to his ranch in Alberta, his calls on presidents and kings, his every little act. And all that doesn't hurt British prestige one bit.



"Descendant of the Hanoverian kings—whose line included the first George, who could not speak English, and George III., archvillain of American history books—and grandson of Victoria, George has a wealth of family background and an abundance of tradition."

Second of the children of the sovereigns, and no mean national press agent himself, is Albert Frederick Arthur George, duke of York, earl of Inverness, and Baron Killarney. The duke is a year and a half younger than Wales, is married, and is the father of two little daughters, Princess Elizabeth Alexandra Mary and Princess Margaret Rose, children who already are beginning to play an important part in the advertising of the empire. The duchess of York is the former Lady Elizabeth Angela Marguerita Bowes-Lyon, fourth daughter of the fourteenth earl of Strathmore and Lyon.

Princess Mary, countess of Harewood (Victoria Alexandra Alice Mary), is the third of the royal children and the wife of the earl of Harewood, who when he married the princess in 1922 was merely Henry George Charles, Viscount Lascelles. (The eldest son of an earl always is "born in the degree of a viscount.") Sons of Princess Mary are George Henry Hubert (Viscount Lascelles) and Gerald David, already learning their inherited duties as imperial press agents. In January, 1932, the king declared that Princess Mary henceforth should bear the style and title of princess royal.

". . . in demand at military shows . . ."

Fourth child of George and Mary is Henry William Frederick Albert, duke of Gloucester, earl of Ulster, and Baron Culloden, a strapping man of military bearing, in demand at military shows, tattoos, and encampments, and a traveling propagandist almost as famous as his elder brothers. Henry will be thirty-four on the last day of this month.

Youngest of the royal family, and a favorite in Hollywood, is Prince George Edward Alexander Edmund, thirty-one years old. As a booster of Britain he draws the poorer assignments, such as dedicating minor town halls and workmen's clubs. But he has done no little traveling abroad, too, in the interests of the nation, and even now is on just such a national errand.

The appearance in public of any one of the aforementioned members of the royal house of Windsor is always an occasion of vital importance to Englishmen, but when the family collectively graces a ceremony with its multiplied presence it becomes a day of days indeed. Let the queen, the duke and the duchess of York, and the duke of Gloucester sweep down on a toy fair, and it becomes an event talked about for weeks. Sales of toys immediately show a spurt. If the sovereigns ride in a miniature train at some exposition everyone wants to take a ride. If Princess Mary appears in uniform at a rally of Girl Guides, public interest in that organization at once is reawakened. If the prince of Wales discards slacks in favor of knickers as part of his golfing costume, golfers in England and Scotland and even in America turn back to knickers. If the duchess of York as much as fondles one of some mother's triplets in a hospital, the distinguished peril of having triplets is brought home to every young married couple in England.

positions, such as the one at Wembley; is selected to dedicate the biggest public buildings, the finest parks, and the most important governmental projects. He attends funerals of field marshals, lays wreaths on the tomb of the unknown soldier, inspects the greatest of the industrial establishments, entertains visiting notables, such as the late President Wilson, and at rare intervals travels to Ireland. On one of his visits to Belfast he inaugurated the parliament of North Ireland.

Every public act of the king is linked up in one way or another with the glorifying of the nation or the improving and expanding of England's trade and industry. If a certain line of business finds itself in the doldrums, someone in authority is told of it and eventually the word gets to George that he had better do something about it. So he does

RADIO FOR JAP RAILROAD

NO MODERN convenience is lacking to make passengers comfortable on the government owned railway of Japan. A recent innovation was the installation of radio loudspeaker equipment in all passenger coaches. The above picture shows the interior of one of the cars of the express train "Tsubame," with its new radio equipment. The passengers when the picture was taken were officials of the line, who enjoyed a test of the new radio equipment. It is interesting to note that the interior of the Japanese railway passenger coach is like an American railroad car. There are no compartments.

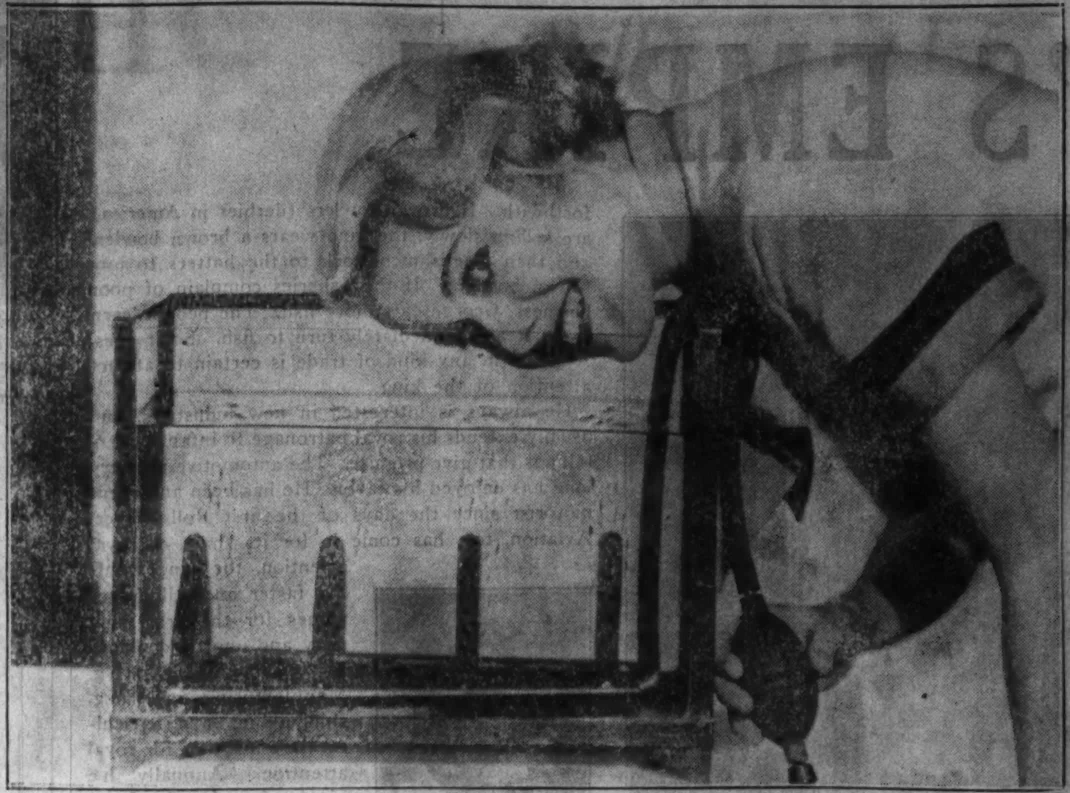
SIMILAR to the famous anti-snakebite serum laboratory at Sao Paulo, Brazil, is the Pasteur institute, operated by the Siamese government at Bangkok. The serums produced there save the lives of thousands of natives annually. The fearsome cobra and many other poisonous snakes thrive in the kingdom of Siam, due to the intense, moist heat and dense tropical vegetation of the country.

SHE'S FOREVER BLOWING BUBBLES



OSCAR, the pet goldfish, stands to lose his happy home if the automatic massage Joan Marsh has been trying out in Hollywood waxes popular in other towns. As she demonstrates here, Joan's new facial bubble bath is designed to increase circulation by the agitation of the water in the glass receptacle, the bubbles breaking against her face as she immerses it. It's quite simple to operate. Just douse the face and squeeze the bulb at one side of the small tank, which injects air into the water and, increasing the oxygen content by 20 per cent, produces the bubbles that spatter against milady's features, to whiten and soften her skin. Not even Joan is optimistic enough to predict that it will replace the professional masseur; but, then, Hollywood believes in trying everything once, if it promotes good looks.

D: THE EVOLUTION OF THE 4TH LETTER OF THE ALPHABET

THE letter D has occupied fourth position in the alphabet from earliest times, and in the modern English alphabet it retains the same place it had in the Phœnician, Greek and Latin, which represent the early stages of alphabetic history. The Phœnician daleth is represented by the Greek delta.

The sound which the letter D commonly represents in English is the voiced dental stop, corresponding to the unvoiced T. It is interesting, however, that in English the letter does not represent a true dental stop, because it is pronounced by placing the tongue against the gums instead of against the front upper teeth. The pronunciation of the letter in English thus differs from the French and German pronunciation. In phonetic terminology the English pronunciation of D is called an alveolar.

In many languages the letter develops an aspirate dh, and this aspirate then represents a voiced spirant, such as the initial sound in the words there and that.

Another interesting fact in connection with the letter D is that in pronouncing it there is little difference between the mouth position for D and for L. The latter is pronounced by placing the tongue against the gums in exactly the position for D but the breath is allowed to escape past one or both sides of the tongue. Because of this phonetic similarity between the two letters, confusion has arisen in many languages between the letters D and L.

Although the sound which D represents and its place in the alphabet remain unchanged from earliest times, the form of the letter has undergone much development. The rounded form, as we know it, passed into Latin from the Chalcidic alphabet. This form has come down to us. In the early Phœnician and Greek, as the chart shows, the form was quite different.

BEAVER ENGINEERING SKILL

The same dam after the railroad embankment had washed out.

BEAVERS, once the most plentiful of the fur bearing animals of the North American continent, have long been acknowledged engineers of superior ability. The above pictures, taken at Dollar Bay, Mich., prove that, in at least one instance, the engineering skill of the beaver was better than that of man. The beavers constructed a dam a short distance below a railroad bridge across a small creek. The dam caused a lake which washed out 25 feet of the railroad track, but the obstruction built by the beavers withstood the pressure of the water. One of the pictures shows the rails suspended after the water had washed away the supporting earth. Beavers once swarmed in Michigan, but in recent years the animals were nearly extinct. State authorities passed legislation protecting them, and recently the animals had increased to the extent of becoming nuisances. Numerous beaver dams, such as the one pictured here, caused the flooding of many farms. This led to the establishment of an open trapping season.

DICK TURPIN house, London, said to have been the home 200 years ago of the notorious English highwayman of that name, recently was demolished as an obstruction to traffic. Three relics of the 18th century were found in the ruins, two swords and a pistol. Dick Turpin, born in 1706, began his criminal career early in life. He was justly feared throughout the English countryside, but finally was caught and hanged in 1739.

When Kidney Trouble Causes YOU To Get Up Nights

Flush Poisonous Waste and Acid From Kidneys

If you aren't feeling just right—are nervous—have dizzy spells and occasional backache—study your kidneys and learn more about yourself.

Through the delicate filters of the kidneys, acid and poisonous waste are drawn from the blood and discharged from the body thru the bladder—sometimes these filters become clogged with poisonous waste and kidneys do not function properly—they need a good cleaning.

One reliable medicine, highly efficient and inexpensive is GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules—you can't go wrong on this grand medicine for it has been helping people for 50 years—to correct their aches and pains and to banish uric acid conditions, the aggravation of sciatica, neuritis, neuralgia, lumbago, and rheumatism.

So if you have such symptoms of Kidney trouble as backache, nervousness, getting up two or three times during the night—scanty, burning or smarting passage—leg cramps—moist palms or puffy eyes, get a 35 cent package of this grand diuretic at any modern drugstore—it starts the first day on its errand of helpfulness.

But be sure it's GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules—the original—the genuine—right from Haarlem in Holland.

AMERICA'S FIRST 'LITTLE SCHOOLHOUSE'

(Ewing Galloway photo.)

IN QUAINT old St. Augustine, Fla., just inside the city gates on old St. George street, stands the oldest schoolhouse in the United States. It is believed to be more than 300 years old. Built by Juan Genoply, the structure is said first to have been a barracks for the city guard. Later it was used as an English speaking schoolhouse, and today it is preserved as a museum. Visitors find the atmosphere of the school maintained in the building by a group of wax figures, representing the schoolmaster at his desk by the fireplace and the pupils seated on rows of wooden benches. The building has withstood the ravages of time and the elements remarkably well. It is built of hand hewn red cedar. The floor, now covered with wood, was once of irregular stone blocks, and one can see a few of these in the closet under the stairway, which the schoolmaster called "the dungeon." The closet served as a place of punishment for unruly pupils. This form of punishment was considered mild, however, as in those days it was not good discipline to "spare the rod." This much-hated method of correcting the conduct of mischievous pupils usually was accomplished with a birch switch, applied to the posteriors of the culprits.

Another Man's Wife

By Mrs. Belloc Lowndes

SYNOPSIS

Rex Chandos, ace racer, meets and falls madly in love with Delia Seaton, the most beautiful girl he ever has seen. Delia, self-centered and of a naturally cold temperament, is the adored wife of Jim Seaton, world-famous cricketer, captain of the England team. She receives a large allowance from her wealthy father, Achilles Taylor. Jim often is away on long cricketing tours. Delia falls under the spell of the masterful Rex Chandos. There begins for her a double life. And then frightful misfortune befalls Delia. Her husband, in Australia, receives an injury which necessitates the amputation of a leg. Her father, facing disgrace, commits suicide, leaving nothing but debts. Jim Seaton returns to London, his health and youth vanished. His lawyer tells Delia that, until they find a way of increasing it, their income will be slightly over three pounds a week. Chandos, in order to get money for Delia, accepts dishonest work. He gets a country home for Delia and Jim, with a secret cottage near by for himself and Delia when he is able to visit her. Dr Wentworth, from the village, becomes interested in the Seatons, chiefly in Delia, with whom he sympathizes and whom he believes to be a faithful wife. His wife, Juliet, is a chronic invalid. She inherited a fortune and the beautiful home in which they live. His mother and his cousin, Jane Galt, who adores him live next door, where the doctor has his office. Mrs. Wentworth gives a garden party, to which the Seatons are invited.

INSTALLMENT VII.

THE gardens of the Old Manor were almost large enough to be called a park. Belts of trees rose from among sweeps of soft, springy turf which were crossed at well spaced intervals by trellises and pergolas bearing the scented burden of all the old fashioned climbing roses and every variety of white and yellow jasmine.

Small wonder that the mistress and owner of all this beauty found that her garden parties were eagerly anticipated by all her husband's patients, as well as her own friends and neighbors. Also, Juliet saw that the refreshments—the fruit and ices, the champagne cup, intriguing little sandwiches, delicious cakes, and delicate light pastries—were worthy of the setting in which the buffet was erected.

Although it was now only half-past four, old Mrs. Wentworth, who stood receiving the guests beside a wide gate leading straight into the gardens from the drive in front of the house, began to look and feel extremely weary.

Suddenly there came a slight stir, a kind of retrograde movement, among the people who had just passed her and were about to spread themselves fanlike on the lawn. She looked around to see a bath chair, in which sat a young man, being slowly wheeled in by one of the Old Manor gardeners, while beside the bath chair there walked the prettiest girl Mrs Wentworth ever had seen. The stranger was exquisitely dressed in a frock and hat which the old lady, who knew something of the world beyond that of Meltham, realized must have been a "creation" of a real artist in dress.

The bath chair stopped and "Mother, this is Mr. Jim Seaton!" exclaimed Harry Wentworth eagerly.

A thin hand shot out from the wheel chair and was cordially grasped. Why, of course—these must be the young couple of whom Harry had talked with so much pity and eager interest.

"May I introduce my wife?" said Jim, smiling proudly.

Delia came forward with a bewitching smile and Mrs Wentworth heard her son say in a quick whisper: "Jane, will you look after Mrs Seaton? She doesn't know a soul here."

A moment later Jane and Delia were in a little frequented path which led round to the second garden of the Old Manor and Harry, having waved aside the gardener, was himself wheeling Jim Seaton on to the lawn toward a giant umbrella under which his wife held high court.

ON the afternoon of her sixth garden party Juliet Wentworth was reclining in a long chair with a table on which stood a vase of magnificent roses by her side. She felt vexed that her husband had not joined her at once when she had come out of the house at a quarter past four. Her maid had looked for him everywhere. However, as she saw him wheeling along a gaunt looking young man sitting in a bath chair her heart softened. How good and kind was her dear, dear Harry, always thinking of other people, never of himself!

She wondered who the young man could be and all at once she guessed—Jim Seaton, of course, the famous cricketer with whom Harry had just made friends and to whose poor wife he wanted her, Juliet, to be kind.

"I am so glad to see you, Mr Seaton, and I am looking forward to meeting Mrs. Seaton," she exclaimed.

The doctor said eagerly: "Jane has taken Mrs Seaton to see the lily pond. I'll go and fetch her."

But Juliet put out a detaining hand. "Don't go for her just yet, darling. I want you to speak to that old lady over there. She is the countess of Peterborough, and she and her daughter have just taken North house. I'm afraid they don't know any one here. I think your mother might come and talk to them. Surely everybody must have arrived by now."

Harry Wentworth hurried off to the old lady indicated by his wife. She was standing looking rather bewildered and oppressed, for her daughter had found an acquaintance.

After her host had introduced himself she said graciously: "It was most kind of Mrs Wentworth to ask me, especially as I am such a newcomer to Meltham. I had no idea there was any house with gardens of this size and beauty on the Common."

"My wife's father was a keen horticulturist and she has tried to keep up everything to the standard set by him. We are particularly proud of our lily pond. Would you care to see it?"

Together they walked to an arch in a brick wall and then the old lady exclaimed, "May I ask who is that young lady standing over there?"

"That is Mrs Jim Seaton, the wife of the famous cricketer who had an accident in Australia. His left leg had to be cut off below the knee."

"Of course, I remember that. I understand they were very poor."

"They are very poor and they know hardly any one in Meltham," he said in a low voice. He was anxious the Seatons should become acquainted with some of the people in the neighborhood and he liked this old lady.

"I should like to make the Seatons' acquaintance," she exclaimed cordially.

A moment later he had introduced Delia and Jane and all four walked back on to the lawn together. Harry sensed the two young women were becoming friends and he felt glad knowing what a real difference his cousin might make to Delia Seaton, for his cousin could not help being actively kind and helpful to every human being with whom she was thrown in contact.

"I see my daughter beckoning to me. We have some one coming down from London, so I'm afraid we must go away," said the old lady.

Beside the bath chair there walked the prettiest girl Mrs. Wentworth ever had seen.

Jane meanwhile had introduced Delia to some people who lived near Marigold road and she now joined her cousin.

"Well," he said eagerly, "what d'you think of her?"

"I think she's the greatest darling I ever met! And not a bit vain. I should be vain if I looked like that!"

"Look here," he said earnestly, "can't you get Juliet to like her, Jane? It would be so nice if the Seatons could sometimes spend an afternoon in these gardens."

FOR once Jane Galt's belief in the goodness of human nature led her sadly astray. She exclaimed: "Why don't you introduce her to Juliet yourself, Harry? She knows you want her to like Mrs. Seaton and she seems to have taken to the poor man," and she glanced toward the giant umbrella under the shade of which young Mrs Wentworth was talking with unusual animation to the occupant of the bath chair.

Harry went up to Delia, who was solitary now.

"What a wonderful party!" she exclaimed. "I feel happier today than I've ever felt since we came to the Thatched house. Miss Galt is being simply angelic. She is finding me a daily woman who was once a cook and she's going to motor me into London tomorrow morning to look at a new kind of gas stove."

Meanwhile, in obedience to a message conveyed by Juliet's maid, Jane Galt was standing under the grateful shade of the giant umbrella. Jim Seaton had been wheeled away, so she was alone with her cousin's wife.

"I'm beginning to feel rather tired," said Juliet pettishly. Then suddenly she asked, "Who is Harry talking to over there?"

"He's talking to Mrs Jim Seaton. She's such a delightful person, Juliet. I'm sure you'll like her."

"I wish he'd introduce her to me." As she uttered the wish Harry Wentworth and the woman by whose side he had been standing for what seemed to his wife a long time began walking across the lawn toward her.

As the two came nearer and nearer Juliet said in a low tone: "Is that Mrs Jim Seaton? She looks quite a girl! She must be half the age of her husband."

"She's nearly twenty-seven and he's thirty-two," said Jane.

By now Harry Wentworth and his companion were within a few feet of the speaker.

"Here is Mrs. Seaton, Juliet."

Young Mrs. Wentworth held out a languid hand. "I was just going indoors, for I never stay out for more than an hour, even at my own garden party. But do sit down here by me for a little while, Mrs Seaton. I've just had such an interesting talk with your husband."

Delia was looking with far more interest than she generally bestowed on any woman at the wife of the man she already regarded as being, in a way, her property.

In the eyes of the visitor only five years younger than herself her hostess seemed almost middle aged. But Delia Seaton, till a comparatively short time ago had lived among women who spent not only a great deal of time but a considerable amount of money and thought on beauty culture and the adornment of their persons.

"I hope you like Meltham," said Juliet politely.

"I am trying to do so, but I never lived in a suburb till we came to the Thatched house."

"My grandfather wrote a book about Meltham. It was privately printed. I'm sure my husband would lend it to you and Mr Seaton if you'd care to look at it."

"We should love to see it."

"I know you won't mind my leaving you now. But do sit on here in the shade," and, scarce waiting for a word of assent, she called out "MacNab!" and an elderly maid appeared.

"Please find the doctor and tell him I'm going indoors now." Then, turning to her silent guest: "I'm not at all strong, so my husband hates my overtiring myself. But I have so enjoyed meeting you and Mr Seaton, and I do hope he will soon be able to have an artificial foot fitted."

"Doctor Wentworth is doing his best to persuade him to try," said Delia in a low voice.

She got up and, with relief, saw Jane Galt and hurried toward her.

As a rule, after having settled his wife comfortably in her own sitting room, Harry hurried out of doors to look after their guests again. But this afternoon he lingered on for a few moments.

"Well, Juliet, what did you think of her?"

"Whom d'you mean, dear?"

"I mean Mrs. Seaton."

"I don't know that I thought of her very much one way or the other. But Mr Seaton and I had quite a nice little talk about the Test match. He looks awfully ill, doesn't he, poor man?"

"He has cause to, for they're desperately poor."

"O, come, Harry, that's simply nonsense! Though I didn't like her dress and hat, I could see they cost a lot of money."

"I don't know anything about Mrs. Seaton's clothes," he said abruptly. "I don't notice such things. But I do know that they're horribly poor. Someone may have given her that dress."

SUMMER wore itself away, and now had come chilly days and daylight going early in the afternoon. So even less than usual was life in the Thatched house bearable for such a woman as was Delia Seaton.

They had come to know a few people, but none of them were in the least her sort, and her only bright spot, if it could be called so, was Dr Wentworth's ever-growing absorption in herself.

But Jim Seaton's doctor was unlike any of the other men who had fallen in love with her. Harry Wentworth was evidently determined to keep his feelings entirely under control.

But Jim's doctor was only a pastime. Consciously Delia longed for the return of Rex Chandos from Germany.

One morning the telephone bell rang about ten o'clock. Languidly she took up the receiver, and then with a thrill of delight she heard the voice of Rex Chandos.

"I had no idea you were back!" she exclaimed.

"I've been back two hours. But I waited, as I didn't want to get you out of bed. I wonder if you and Jim could have me to lunch today. I'll bring a hamper from a new place I hear is good."

He waited a moment. "I could take you for a spin after lunch. I've had a stroke of real good fortune."

She hurried into the lounge. Jim Seaton, who always got up early, was reading a paper.

"Hello!" he said, looking up. But he did not smile, delightful as his wife looked in his eyes, clad in a rose velvet wrapper.

Even his gallant spirit was beginning to be broken. He was in constant pain, though he seldom mentioned it, and his nights now were invariably bad.

"Rex Chandos is back from Germany, and he has just phoned to ask if we can give him lunch today."

She said nothing concerning the motor drive, for the last time Rex had come to take her out Jim had actually asked if he could come, too.

"It will be nice seeing Chandos again," he said wearily, "but what are we going to give him to eat?"

"We shan't have to worry about that. He's bringing down something with him."

Jim made no answer to that. He didn't like the idea that a friend should come to a meal bringing his food with him. But, though he felt mortified, he was glad for his wife's sake. They now had an excellent day servant, a Mrs. Clay, found for them by Jane Galt. But her cooking was not up to Delia's standard. But for that weekly hamper, which Jim believed to be the kindly gift of a woman who had once been a close friend of his wife, they would have been uncomfortable indeed.

THE morning wore away. Delia was cheered up at the thought that Chandos would most certainly bring her some money.

Whatever happened, she must do something that would stop her husband asking to share in that motor drive to which she was now eagerly looking forward. And all at once she thought of a way in which she could prevent his doing so.

Jim had gone into the garden. She shut the glazed door giving on to the veranda, for she did not wish him to overhear what she was about to say over the telephone.

She looked up the number Dr Wentworth had given her. It was a private number, and she would have been surprised and pleased had she learned that only three of his patients possessed it. The line went straight into the library of the Manor house, where he spent his time when he was not actually engaged in his professional work or in the company of his wife. He had told Delia that he was generally there about this time in the morning.

She put the call through, and to her delight she heard his voice: "Who's there?"

"Delia Seaton."

And then the voice at the other end softened. "What can I do for you, Mrs. Seaton? I'm so glad you rang me up."

"I was wondering whether you could come in about three today. I'm afraid Jim feels more pain than usual. Also a man is coming from town who is trying to get Jim some kind of job. Jim's friend is going to take me out in his car to explain it all and see if I think it any use. So I'm afraid I can't be in myself at three o'clock."

"I see."

She felt he was disappointed. Had she made a mistake in saying that? Would it put the doctor off coming? She knew that would have been the case with a good many of her beaux of old days, but this man was quite unlike those beaux of old days.

"I'll certainly come in, and I shall be overjoyed if he can get anything to do. The poor chap is eating his heart out."

He spoke with deep feeling. And then the natural man did assert itself: "If I come in about a quarter to four, would you be back from your drive by then?"

"I think so," she said. "In fact, I certainly will be."

She hung up the receiver, then she went to her husband's room, where the day maid was making the bed.

"Will you lay the dining table in the lounge for three before you leave, Mrs Clay? A friend is coming to lunch with us."

"Would you like me to stay on, ma'am?"

"No, you needn't do that. I'm expecting some cold food from London, but I'd be glad if you'd come back and wash up some time this evening."

"I'll be down about six."

"That'll do very well."

DESIGN SHIP OF AIR TO FLY BY PADDLING

Germans Build New Airplane Called Cyclogiro

By Whitley Noble

WHO ever would think that airplanes some day would be propelled by paddle-wheels, like the steamboats that snorted up and down our great rivers seventy-five years ago?

Just another thrill in store, perhaps, for the world that has viewed with wonder the development of the stationary wing type plane and the autogiro and has refused to give up hope for a flight to the clouds by a helicopter.

In the mammoth Rohrbach works in Germany under the direction of Dr. Adolf K. Rohrbach, constructor of giant aircraft, there is being built today an airplane designed to fly through the employment of revolving wings that turn in the manner of a steamboat's paddle-wheels. This newest of planes has been styled the cyclogiro. Scientific and aeronautical circles soon will know whether the cyclogiro will be a success or a failure. If it performs as its designers expect, it may revolutionize aviation.

The system employed in the cyclogiro seems so simple that it is strange it never occurred to plane designers years ago. Each wing assembly of the plane consists of three narrow-chord wings which are caused to rotate at 420 revolutions a minute by the 240 horsepower, air-cooled motor installed in a separate housing above the main fuselage. While these narrow wings rotate, they can be controlled by the pilot through the manipulation of a lever, different changes in the pitch of the wings being expected to permit of forward flight, hovering, and even backward flight. With the wings set at the proper angles, it is believed on the part of the designers that the cyclogiro will be able to lift itself vertically off the ground without a preliminary forward run. Vertical descent also is expected to be an achievement of the paddle-wheel plane.

Unlike the autogiro, the cyclogiro has no standard propeller. The paddlewheel wings on horizontal axes are geared directly to an eight cylinder inverted motor that draws its fuel from tanks in the main fuselage. In the autogiro lift is accomplished by a free rotor spinning on a vertical axis, but in the cyclogiro ascent is to result only from the revolutions of the wings themselves. One of the claims of the designers of the new plane is that the craft will be able to advance 8,000 feet in the event of failure of the motor at a height of 1,000 feet. In the plane now being constructed in the Rohrbach works is a compartment forward in the main fuselage for the pilot and a larger compartment amidship in the same fuselage for two passengers. Control of the craft is to be managed through a system of three levers and two pedals.
